It marched forty-two yards for its second touchdown, covering twenty of them on a triple-pass play with Darnell, at end, carrying the ball. Ultimately, Ruffa went back from the line, obviously to place kick. He pulled up grass and tossed it in the air and clearned out the cleats of his kicking boot. Then the center fired the ball and Ruffa in turn fired it into the left flat, where hot-and-cold George gathered it for a touchdown.

All would have been well for Durham if Ruffa had kicked the point and if the brothers McAfee could have kept on the alkaline side for the balance of the game.

The line-up:

Kawakami Captures Pro League Batting Honors For 1939 Season

Pitcher and Infielder Tetsuji Kawakami of the Tokyo Giants has clinched the batting honors of the 1939 race of the professional baseball league which ends its season on November 15. Out of 335 times at bat in 92 games, he has lashed out 113 hits for a .337 mark, irrespective of his showing in the remaining two games of the Giants, he will not be dislodged from his top position.

Nearest man is his teammate, Outfielder Kikuji Hirayama, with a .314 mark, the result of 82 hits out of 262 times at bat in 86 games.

KUKULJEVIC, PUNCEC ENTER SEMI-FINALS

Franjo Kukuljevic and Ferenc Puncec, visiting Yugoslav Davis Cup stars, had little trouble entering the semi-finals in Friday's play of the singles of the national tennis championships in its fifth day at the International courts at Koshien, near Osaka.

Kukuljevic's lightning southpaw, service though with an uncommonly short motion for a player of his good height, and strong forehand drives proved too much for Hirose of Kansai University. He won 6-2, 6-1 and 6-1.

PUNCEC IN FORM

Puncec took the measure of Kimura of Waseda University, 6-4, 7-5 and 6-3. His brilliant play at the net and killings at exactly the right moments won him one point after another. He has just about rounded into his regular form, that of the No. 1 ranking player in Europe today, and he is favored to win the championship. Kimura, however, gave a good account of himself, his effective baseline play and backhand keeping Puncec plenty busy.

Fumiteru Nakano of Hosei University, member of Japan's Davis Cup team in 1938 and seeded No. 2 in the tourney, had a battle on his hands, eliminating Yasumine Kuramitsu, former Davis Cup player and national champion, of the Koshien club. The score was 6-4, 6-2, 6-8 and 7-5.

They fought to a 4-4 tie in the first set until Nakano's superb ground strokes won him the set, 6-4. Kuramitsu was in low form in the second set and Nakano won the first five games. He rallied to take the next two but Nakano ran through the set, 6-2. Entering the third set, Nakano was a bit overanxious to get it all over and committed errors to have Kuramitsu lead at 4-0. Nakano rallied to even the score at 5-all. It then went to 6-6 but Kuramitsu resorted to the net and batted his way through Nakano's defense for an 8-6 score to take the set. Nakano won the first two games in the fourth set and then it was Kuramitsu's turn to take the next three. They fought it to 5-all. It was then that Nakano's baseline play excelled that of Kuramitsu's and he won the set, 7-5 and the match.

TSURUTA BEATEN

Tsuruta of Keio University, who has been in a slump, continued to be off form and dropped his match to his team-mate, Tatsu Yamagata, which went to five sets—4-6, 6-3, 0-6, 6-4 and 10-8. Tsuruta resorted too much to a defensive game, hugging the baseline all the way through. Thus it was Yamagata's aggressiveness, which at that was not much noticeable, that carried him to victory.

Kukuljevic was scheduled to meet Nakano and Puncec, Yamagata, in the semi-finals at noon today.

The women's competition on Friday follows:

SINGLES, SECOND ROUND

Iwata (Koshien) defeated Oura (Tokyo Club), 6-3, 6-4.

SINGLES, QUARTER-FINALS

Kimata (Nippon Seimei) defeated Enotani (Koshien), 6-2 and 6-3.

Jun Kamo (Denyen Club) defeated Hamada (Koshien), 6-1 and 6-2;

Sawada (Nippon Seimei) defeated Toda (Koshien), 2-6, 6-2 and 9-6.

Iwata (Koshien) defeated Yamakawa (Koshien), 6-4, 4-6 and 6-4.

DOUBLES, QUARTER-FINALS

Oura-Kamo (Tokyo) defeated Tonohara-Ikeda (Koshien) by forfeit.

Toda-Narukawa (Koshien) defeated Enotani-Ichibashi (Koshien), 6-0, 6-2.

Kimata-Sawada (Nippon Seimei) defeated Tatsuma-Uyeda (Koshien), 6-0, 6-0.

Iwata-Saito (Koshien) and Kuwana-Izawa (Koshien) stopped after second set because of darkness with score 6-4 and 0-6.

Rikkyo Cagers Invited To Manila In January

Rikkyo University's basketball team, 1938 national champions, may compete in the Philippine sports carnival at Manila next January.

From Dr. Regino Ylanan, executive director of the Philippine Amateur Athletic Federation, has come an invitation for the team to make the trip, addressed to the Japan Amateur Basketball Association.

GOOD COACHING FEATURES TEAMS IN 'BIG TEN'

Christian Science Monitor

CHICAGO, Ill—One of the strongest coaching panels in the country, with each head coach having served in college football on an average of more than 18 years, will be seeking the Western Conference gridiron title this year.

Although four of the coaches are graduates of Big Ten schools and three others are graduates of Notre Dame, closely allied with Western Conference schools in the development of football schedules through the years, the backgrounds of the 10 coaches represent training in almost every coaching system and every section of the country where different styles of play prevail.

Veteran of the Conference coaches is Wily Bob Zuppke, in his 27th year at Illinois. A graduate of Wisconsin in 1905 and a high school coach until 1913, Zuppke at Illinois either won or tied for the Big Ten title on an average of one year in three until 1934.

BIERMAN RETURNED

Bernie Bierman returned to his alma mater, Minnesota, in 1932 after successful years at Mississippi A. & M. and Tulane to establish one of the most imposing records in the history of Conference football with his seven Gopher teams and four titles. Bierman ranks second to Zuppke in Big Ten service but in years of coaching service he ranks third behind Ohio State's Francis Schmidt, who joined the Buckeyes in 1933 after graduating from Nebraska in 1913 and coaching thereafter with exceptional success at Kendall, Tulsa, Arkansas and Texas Christian.

Returning to the Big Ten in 1933, too, was Clark Shaughnessy, a Minnesota graduate of 1917 who had coached at Tulane and Loyola and who became Chicago's second coach as he succeeded A. A. Stagg.

MCMILLIN IN 1934

A. N. "Bo" McMillin, famed as a nall-America quarterback with Center College "Praying Colonels" in 1919, came to Indiana in 1934 after success at Centenary, Geneva and Kansas State.

Lynn Waldorf, a graduate of Syracuse in 1925 and later line coach at Kansas and head coach at Oklahoma City, Oklahoma A. & M., and Kansas State, made his debut at Northwestern in 1935 and the following year Harry Stuhldreher, immortalized as one of Notre Dame's "Four Horsemen" and a 1925 graduate, went to Wisconsin after a brilliant record as coach at Villanova.

Mal Elward, a Notre Dame graduate in 1916 and former head coach at Grinnell and John Carroll, succeeded Noble Kizer as Purdue Coach after spending 12 years as an assistant on the Boilermaker staff.

CRISLER FAMILIAR

In his second year as head coach at Michigan, H. O. "Fritz" Crisler is a familiar figure in the Conference, having served eight years under Stagg after graduating from Chicago in 1922, and two years at Minnesota. Crisler came to Michigan from Princeton after six seasons in the East.

Freshman in the Conference is Dr. Eddie Anderson, Iowa's new coach. A Notre Dame graduate of 1922, Anderson served at Columbia College, De Paul, and came to the Big Ten after an impressive record at Holy Cross.

While Big Ten schools have taken their coaches with training in many parts of the country, they also have contributed their former coaches and graduates to positions of dominance in American football.

Notable among the coaches who gained their experience in the Western Conference are Howard Jones of Southern California, who coached at Iowa and Ohio State; Tad Wieman of Princeton, Michigan graduate and former coach; L. B. "Stub" Allison of California, an assistant at Wisconsin; Ossie Solem of Syracuse, who was coach at Iowa; Jimmy Phelan of Washington, former Purdue coach, and Earl Blaik, one time Wisconsin assistant.

Others once in the Conference include Pat Hanley of Boston University, formerly assistant at Northwestern; John Sabo of Vermont, who was on the Illinois and Northwestern staffs; Jack Blott, Wesleyan coach who was Michigan's line coach; Lowell Dawson, Tulane coach from Minnesota, and Charlie Bachman, Michigan State coach who piloted Northwestern in 1919 A. A. Stagg, who retired in 1933 after 41 years at Chicago, is coach of The College of the Pacific, and Ted Stidham seven years an assistant at Northwestern, is coach at Oklahoma.

N.Y. GIANTS BATTLE REDSKINS TO SCORELESS TIE

By ARTHUR J. DOLEY

N.Y. Times

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1—Playing in an intermittent downpour with half of the Griffith Stadium gridiron a miniature lake, the New York Giants and Washington Redskins waged a grim battle before 26,341 damp but enthusiastic spectators and emerged from the struggle with nothing except mud and bruises.

The teams hammered each other with ferocity and yet neither could register a point. This was a thriller, and the fans flinched subconsciously at the bone-shattering line play and the rugged battering up field and down field.

The Washingtonians once had a first down on the 4-yard line, but three times they slammed into that Giant wall and three times they were checked short. So on fourth down they made their only field goal attempt, a 15-yarded by Bob Masterson, only to have it go wide.

INTERCEPTIONS HELP GIANTS

Buoyed up by that magnificent stand, the Mighty Men of Mara repelled three more dangerous thrusts. With the Redskins on the 21 Ward Cuff danced through to intercept a forward pass, on the 17 Johnny Mellus stole the ball from Frank Filchock for an official "recovered fumble" and on the 13 Tuffy Leemans intercepted another forward.

Thus the Giants and Redskins remained deadlocked for the Eastern lead in the National Football League as the New Yorkers went through their 15 game in a row without defeat, including a pair of ties, over a two-year stretch.

The Giant chances, too, were four in number, but they were long-range opportunities. Ken Strong missed field goals from the 37 and 30, Cuff from the 44 and Len Barnum from the 44.

The Redskins, still smarting under the 36-to-0 trouncing the pupils of Stout Steve Owen had handed them last December, were out for revenge. They were ready and the Giants were not.

SHAFFER CARRIED FROM FIELD

With Tarzan White, Larry Johnson and Jim Lee Howell on the shelf because of injuries, the New Yorkers lost three more men in the first period. Leland Shaffer was carried from the field with a wrenched knee and Strong was helped to the sidelines with badly bruised ribs.

To add to the complications, Johnny Dell Isola got into a fist fight with Ernie Pinckert. Both were ejected.

That left the Giants in a bad way, which became more pronounced when Ray Flaherty took a leaf from the Owen book and used the two-team system himself.

Furthermore, the Washingtonians seemed to have two grand mud horses in Anvil Andy Farkas and Filchock. They ripped and slashed their way through, while Leemans, Ed Danowski and company were hobbled by the heavy underfooting.

The Giant passing was worse than useless, since the only completion was for a loss of three yards. The Redskins on the other hands, hit their own men with six out of nine and Giant interceptors with the other three.

HEIN PLAYS 60 MINUTES

Trying to pick out heroes in such a bitter, grinding struggle seems futile. But Mel Hein played sixty minutes, the only man to go the route. Barnum was the only New York back to show to advantage offensively and he did a grand job on the defense, too, along with Dale Burnett, Cuff and Flash Falaschi, who reported to Dr. Francis J. Sweeny later with a possible broken arm.

The most nerve-tingling episode of the fray came in the second period. The Redskins started from the giant 43 with Farkas on the ground and the Baugh-Farkas combination through the air, hammering to the 4 and a first down. Then the Giants, who have not yielded a touchdown this year, rose in all their might (it was the second team, too) to hurl back the Redskin varsity.

PUNCEC WINS NATIONAL TENNIS TITLE, DEFEATING NAKANO IN FOUR SETS

For the second time in three years, the national singles tennis crown will be taken away from the shores of Japan. For Ferenc Puncec, visiting Yugoslav Davis Cup star and presently No. 1 ranking player in Europe, defeated Fumiteru Nakano, 1938 Japanese Davis Cup player, Sunday afternoon in the finals of the national play at the center court of the International Courts at Koshien, near Osaka. The score was 4-6, 6-2, 6-2 and 6-3. Thus did Puncec duplicate the feat of Baron Gottfried von Cramm, the former German Davis Cup star, in 1937.

Puncec and Nakano entered the finals on Saturday by eliminating Ryuzo Yamagata of Keio University, 8-6, 6-2 and 6-1 and Franjo Kukuljevic of Yugoslavia, 6-2, 1-6, 6-1 and 6-4.

A packed crowd was on hand Sunday to witness Puncec and Nakano battle for the singles crown. In this connection, it was recalled that Nakano had defeated Puncec in a two out of three set exhibition in Tokyo the previous week. The two had come through the tourney as expected, Puncec and Nakano having been seeded No. 1 and No. 2 respectively.

NAKANO CONSERVATIVE

Resorting to a conservative game that had been largely responsible for his victory over Kukuljevic the previous day, Nakano's strategy was to pull through a winner taking advantage of Puncec's own errors. Thus did he start and breaking through Puncec's service in the third game, he assumed a 3 to 1 lead in the first set. He made some beautiful recoveries of Puncec's highly effective cross court shots and led 4-3 and 5-4 to win the set.

Nakano continued his good play as the second set opened with a mixed attack, now from the base line and then from the net with drop shots to give the Yugoslav plenty of trouble. With the score at 2 games all, with Puncec serving, they went to deuce ten times before Puncec took the game. Here was the turning point of the match with Nakano failing to win the game because of his errors. For Puncec ran through the set without dropping another game.

At the outset of the third set, a faulty decision by a linesman disgusted Puncec and he seemed to have lost his fighting spirit by committing a series of doublefaults. But he braced himself in time with aces to lead 2 to 1. At this stage of the game, Nakano began to show signs of tiring and he became erratic, netting his balls time and again. It was a different story with Puncec, whose play became better and better as the match progressed. His volleying was particularly effective and he ran through the set, 6-2.

Puncec took the first three games in the fourth set and then led at 5-2. He was within match point in the eighth game but Nakano rallied to take it to put it 3-5. He tried gamely to keep himself in the running but Puncec took the next game on Nakano's netting of the ball on the third match point.

A resume of the points made by the two players follows:

	Puncec	Nakano
Service	2	3
Placements	16	18
Drop shots	7	4
Passing shots	1	5
Volleying	6	1
Smashing	10	1
Total	42	32
Errors	89	98

MISS KAMO WINS

Miss Junko Kamo of the Denyen Club of Tokyo won her first national singles championship by defeating Miss Iwata of the Koshien Club in the finals in two straight sets, dropping only one game. The score was 6-0 and 6-1. Her speedy ground strokes had Miss Iwata running from one end of the court to the other.

It was Miss Iwata who had sprung the biggest surprise on Saturday by eliminating Miss Kimata, ranking national No. 1 player, 6-4 and 6-4. Miss Kamo defeated Miss Sawada, 6-3, 4-6 and 6-4, on Saturday in the semi-finals, thus scoring revenge for the setback she suffered in the recent Meiji Shrine Games in Tokyo.

Puncec and Kukuljevic entered the semi-finals of the doubles play by eliminating Kimura and Taneda of Waseda, Sunday, by 6-0, 6-3 and 6-3.

Fujikura and Yamakawa of Keio University turned the tables over Nakano and Murakami, of Hosei University and the Showa Cotton Co., 7-5, 5-7, 6-4 and 6-3.

Horikoshi and Ubara of the Koshien Club took the measure of Yamagata and Kusumoto of Keio University, 11-9, 6-3 and 6-1.

In the other match of the quarter-finals played on Saturday, Ikujima and Yamagata of Kwansei Gakuin upset Tsuruta and Kagitani of Keio University, 7-5, 1-6, 2-6, 6-3 and 6-4.

Keio Wins National Collegiate Sumo Crown

Keio University's stalwarts won the 21st national collegiate sumo (Japanese wrestling) championships Sunday at Sakai, near Osaka, by defeating Kwansei Gakuin, 4 to 1, in the finals. It was Keio's first title in 11 year.

Keio eliminated the favorite, Colonial College, in the second round, 3 to 2, and then entered the finals by beating Kansai University, 4 to 1, in the semi-finals. Kwansei Gakuin won the other semi-finals battle, 4 to 1, from Doshisha University.

Tokyo Giants Capture Fall Season Title

Defeating the Osaka Tigers 6 to 4, the Tokyo Giants won the championship of the Autumn season of the professional baseball league Sunday afternoon at the Korakuen stadium. The Giants already had won the year's title on Thursday of last week.

The Giants won the game by scoring four runs in the fifth inning, taking advantage of Pitcher Nishimura's wildness.

The summaries follow:

Giants	101	040	000	6	7	0
Tigers	000	102	001	4	8	3

Batteries: Stalphin and Yoshiwara; Nishimura, Miwa and Monzen and Ohashi.

The standings for the Fall season, which ends on Wednesday, follows:

STANFORD TIES U.C.L.A., 14-14, IN COAST BATTLE

N.Y. Herald Tribune

PALO ALTO, Calif., Oct. 14—Coming to life after two dismal defeats, Stanford's Indians battled the highly touted University of California at Los Angeles Bruins to a 14 to 14 tie today. So confident was Babe Horrell, coach of the Bruins, that he started his second team against the Indians, who had been whitewashed by Oregon and Oregon State on two successive Saturdays. But before the scoreless first period was over Horrell had rushed his entire first string into action.

Battling on even terms, U.C.L.A. and Stanford each got a touchdown in the second period. The Indians got another in the third quarter and the Bruins evened the score in the final stanza.

OVERLIN GOES OVER

Stanford scored shortly after when it took a punt on U.C.L.A.'s 30 and, with Norman Standlee and Frankie Albert carrying the ball, went to the 13. Albert passed to to Groves for the touchdown. Groves converted.

In the third period, after each team had intercepted passes, Robinson punted from U.C.L.A.'s 29-yard line. The ball hit midfield, took a queer bounce and landed on U.C.L.A.'s 25 for a net loss of four yards.

STANFORD LOSES BALL

Standlee brought the ball to the U.C.L.A. 2-yard line in a series of power plays, but there Stanford lost the ball.

Gilmore's punt from the end zone went out on the U.C.L.A. 14. Albert heaved a short pass to Hugh Gallarneau, Stanford right halfback, who raced the yards to a touchdown. Albert converted to put the Indians ahead, 14 to 7.

In the fourth period a pass by Albert was intercepted by Robinson on the Bruin 28. Robinson galloped fifty-one yards to Stanford's 21, where he was pulled down by Albert.

Cantor scored from the 2 and Robinson converted to tie the score.

Meiji Ruggers Rout Keio By 44-6 Score

Meiji's rugby team proved too powerful for Keio, winning by the lopsided score of 44 to 6, Sunday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium in the Kanto collegiate league. The score at half-time was 15 to 6.

Meiji scored three goals in the first half, two tries, four goals and one penalty goal in the second half. Keio's scores came on two tries in the first half before Meiji could score.

FRANKIE FRISCH MAY BE MAN TO STOP YANKS

Christian Science Monitor

NEW YORK, Oct. 13—The National League may have acquired a solution to that American League monopoly in the signing of Frankie Frisch as manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

There has been some criticism of the docile attitude of the Cincinnati Reds in the recent World Series; that they went on the field filled with awe for the Yanks instead of muttering: "Aw, the Yanks."

YANKEE REPUTATION

There may have been a certain defeatist attitude. We couldn't say, and if there was, we wouldn't blame Deacon Bill McKechnie, who did a grand job of holding the team together in the stretch run. The Yankees already had the reputation of a super-team. And the Reds would have been a little less than human if they didn't experience a slight sinking sensation in their presence.

Frisch never has been a man to get a hollow stomach and folding legs in the presence of any man or group of men. He was trained in the old John McGraw school, which had as its main course a study of the various methods of expressing contempt for any and all opposition.

MANAGED CARDINALS

He managed the last National League team to win a world championship—his 1934 Cardinals defeated Detroit four games to three. He has been in eight World Series—four with the Giants and four with the Cards—and came out with a 50-50 record.

A manager isn't a ball team, but sometimes he can imbue his players with a little of his own fire and brimstone. Nobody ever accused Frish's cardinals of playing patty-cake baseball.

Naturally the new Pirate boss must take care of the little detail of winning a National League pennant before he can march up to the Yankees (that's taken for granted) with a chip on his shoulder. That's not going to be so easy, considering that the Pirates finished this year marching very bravely on their shoulderblades.

DUROCHER SPARK

And if Frisch doesn't eventually do it, it may be the other half of the Brooklyn-Pittsburgh axis that does, and Brooklyn is managed by another hot potato who wouldn't know an inferiority complex from a dish of spinach.

Leo Durocher, who led the amazing Dodgers out of the second-division wilderness in his first year as pilot, played on Frisch's 1934 Cardinals, and his fiery leadership unquestionably had much to do with Brooklyn's success this year. In fact, more than a few critics believe that had the Dodgers a little more "luck" with pitchers, they, and not the Reds, would have been the party of the second part in the Series.

A GOOD SIGN

All this, naturally, isn't by any means trying to steal any credit away from the Yanks, who unquestionably rank as one of the greatest, if not the greatest, teams of all time.

But the reappearance of the manager who piloted the last National League club to win a world title and whose lifetime World Series record shows he's never beaten until the last man is out in the last game, is at least good sign for the strangely quiet National League fans.

If Frisch's team get into a World Series, his players may experience that same wide-eyed awe for their opponents as the Reds possibly experienced this year. But little Frankie will challenge the first man who shows it. If they can't deliver, they at least can drive up in the wagon and make a bluff at it.

CHARLIE KELLER FETED AS HERO IN HOME TOWN

Christian Science Monitor

FREDERICK, MD., Oct. 13—Charlie Keller doesn't like it very much, but he's a hero to a lot of people who want to shake the hands that knocked two home runs in a World Series game.

Keller, six years from the Middletown High School team, came home Wednesday with only a rough idea of what his public planned for him. If he had any hope for a rest after the Yankees' anti-Cincinnati campaign, he found he had reckoned without his hosts—the ones who wanted to give him dinners.

The town bands planned a parade to escort him from his new house to the banquet the city gave, but he would have none of it. He drove to the hotel like going to lodge, and got some dinner after a lot of handshaking. There were speeches by his University of Maryland coach, Burton Shipley, University President H. C. Byrd, and Keller.

Keller didn't talk very much, but he said he was grateful for the automatic shotgun the home folk gave him. He used to like to hunt—in the days when he had some leisure.

Last night he was Exhibit A at the State-wide dinner of the Future Farmers of America—they called him "Future Farmer No. 1." He was a member of the farm boys' organization when he lived in Middletown, and he hopes to get back to farming some time. After his first year with Newark in the International League he went back to the University and took his degree in agriculture.

Next Thursday is Charlie Keller Day at the University of Maryland at College Park. He will be guest of honor at a military review and an undergraduate rally.

He has a brother, Hugh, a junior at the University now. An inch shorter, Hugh is stocky like Charlie. And like Charlie, who led the World Series batting with a .438, Hugh bats better than .400.

JAPAN BEATS SAN JOSE BOXERS, 3-2

The All-Japan team defeated the San Jose College boxing team, three matches to two, Sunday afternoon at the Koshien ring, near Osaka. It was the Americans second appearance, they having fought to a draw, 2½ points all, with the All-Kanto students combine last Tuesday in Tokyo.

Bill Sellers, Bantamweight, who was robbed of a decision in Tokyo, won a decision over Makino, of Kwansei Gakuin.

Conrad Lacy, featherweight, was given the decision over Inada of Kansai University.

Both Sellers and Lacy were a bit too speedy for their opponents who were terribly poor in their defensive tactics.

Katsuyo Mori, lightweight, of Meiji University took the decision over Don Taylor. In their meeting in Tokyo, Mori put Taylor to sleep in the second round with a straight right to the jaw. Thus it was that Taylor had too much respect for Mori's blows and he resorted to back pedalling. Mori finally caught up with him and with straight rights knocked him to the canvas just before the bell in the second round. The gong saved Taylor. A tired fellow, Mori missed his chance for a knockout in the final round.

Junshaku Ko, lightweight, of Rikkyo University met Charles Kerwin for the second time, having lost the decision in Tokyo, and this time got the decision.

Sai of Meiji University, with the score 2-all, won the meet for Japan by outpointing Captain James Kincaid in the welterweight bout. Kincaid was a foot taller than Sai but the latter waded right into his opponent and scored with lefts and rights to the body. He scored a knockdown in the second round with blows to Kincaid's jaw. Sai was all the aggressor in the third round and he won by a wide margin.

OREGON DOWNS CALIFORNIA, 6-0, IN LONG MARCH

N.Y. Herald Tribune

BERKELEY, Calif., Oct. 14—One big power thrust of seventy-six yards, gained with old-fashioned steam-roller tactics, gave the University of Oregon a 6-to-0 victory today over California before a crowd of some 35,000 fans.

Oregon's first victory over California since 1926 had significant conclusions. For Oregon it continued a sustained march down the corridor leading toward the Pacific coast Conference championship. Oregon now has a tie and two triumphs in the race.

California's opening conference appearance also marked its third loss of the season. Before starting on the title grind, the Bears took it on the chin from little College of the Pacific and the St. Mary's Gaels.

The game itself developed few thrills. Oregon hammered to its touchdown in the second period, starting from its 24-yard line. On eleven line plays it crossed the goal line, Marshall Stenstrom, fullback, ramming over center for the final yard. One sweep outside right end by substitute Bob Smith, right halfback, for twenty-five yards marked the advance. Jay Graybeal, fleet left half, was bottled up much of the time. He failed to convert the extra point.

For the remainder of the game the big fellows from Oregon protected their margin of six points. They made a fourth-period thrust from their own 37 to California's 16-yard stripe.

California's lone rally took place in the third quarter. Two substitute halfbacks, Orv Hatcher and Harry Lieb, were the main cogs in the spurt which carried the oval forty-one yards to Oregon's 16 before it was lost on downs.

Oregon chalked up thirteen first downs, compared with three for the Bears, and accumulated 265 yards from scrimmage and passes, against 134 yards for California.

The line-up:

YUGOSLAVIA FAVORED TO WIN DOUBLES TITLE

Ferenc Puncec and Franjo Kukuljevic, members of the Yugoslav Davis Cup team that lost to Australia in this year's inter-zone finals, entered the finals of the doubles of the national championships Monday at the International courts at Koshien, near Osaka but they had a battle on their hands downing Yamakawa and Fujikura of Keio University. The latter forced the visitors to the maximum five sets before going down to defeat. The score was: 7-9, 6-3, 6-3, 7-9 and 6-1.

The Yugoslavs were strong favorites to defeat Horikoshi and Ubara of the Koshien Club in the finals today, in which both singles and doubles championships will be taken away from Japan. For Puncec vanquished Fumiteru Nakano, 1938 Davis Cup player, in the finals of the singles on Sunday.

Horikoshi and Ubara eliminated Ikujima and Hiroshi Yamagata of Kwansei Gakuin in the other semi-finals match by 8-6, 7-5 and 6-2.

Kukuljevic had a bad day and a brief account of the Yugoslavia versus Keio university match might be said that it was a match between Puncec on the one side and Fujikura and Yamakawa on the other side of the net.

JAPANESE TAKE FIRST SET

On the strength of Kukuljevic's errors and breaking through Puncec's service, Fujikura and Yamakawa came from behind to deadlock the account at 4-all in the first set. Fujikura then won his service to lead 5-4. A see-saw affair followed with the collegians finally winning on an error by Kukuljevic, 9-7.

Puncec played sensational tennis in the second and third sets to down the Japanese, 6-3 and 6-3. In the fourth set, both teams kept their service and ran the score up to 4-all. A doublefault by Yamakawa and an error by Yamakawa in smashing gave their opponents a 15-40 lead in ninth game but lucky drop shots put it at deuce with the Japanese taking the game on Kukuljevic's error to lead, 5-4. The score went to 6-all but the collegians played consistently and put the match at 2-sets all by winning the fourth set, 9-7.

Yamakawa and Fujikura started the fifth and final set in auspicious style with the score progressing at 1-all. Yamakawa's doublefaults on two occasions in the third game proved a heavy blow and the Yugoslavs forged into a 3 to 1 lead. Kukuljevic too began rounding into his regular form and with Puncec winning the plaudits of the spectators with his excellent coverage, the visitors ran through the set, 6-1, to win.

Ubara's effective volleying and Horikoshi's powerful service as well as smashing accounted for their three-set victory over Ikujima and Yamagata in the other match.

MISSES KIMATA, SAWADA WIN

Misses Kimata and Sawada of the Nippon Seimei company won the women's doubles title, defeating Misses Toda of the Koshien Club and Narukawa of Nagoya, 6-2 and 6-2. They were much too good for their opponents.

MEIJI AND KEIO WIN

Scoring two goals in the first period, Meiji defeated Rikkyo, 2 goals to 1, in their ice hockey battle Monday night at the Shibaura rink, thus disposing of a strong rival for the championship. Rikkyo's only tally came in the third period. Keio bumped off Tokyo Imperial University in the other game, 4 goals to nil. Photo shows a melee in front of the Tokyo Imperial University team's goal.

20,000 WATCH INDIANA CRUSH WISCONSIN, 14-0

N.Y. Herald Tribune

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 14—An alert Indiana football team, taking advantage of many Wisconsin errors, punched over two touchdowns today and defeated the Badgers, 14 to 0, before a crowd of 19,000.

With the game only two minutes old, Indiana scored. Wisconsin fumbled on the first play after the kick-off and Indiana recovered on the Badger 19. Harold Hursh, left halfback, threw a touchdown pass to Eddie Herbert, quarterback, after the Badgers held for three downs. Herbert converted the extra point.

Clee Maddox, reserve right halfback, raced eighty yards late in the final period for the other Hoosier score and again Herbert converted.

It was Indiana's second victory over Wisconsin and the first since 1910.

The game was slowed considerably by penalties. Indiana was penalized fourteen times for a total of ninety yards and Wisconsin five times for thirty-five.

Wisconsin scored from the 4-yard line early in the second quarter, but the play was called back and a five-yard offside penalty was inflicted on the Badgers. The Hoosier line held and the threat never was repeated.

Wisconsin made ten first downs to Indiana's five, but the Badgers lacked scoring punch.

Wisconsin held the Hoosiers' touted passing attack to a total gain of twenty-seven yards. However, Indiana intercepted four Badger aerials and recovered three fumbles.

Maddox played outstanding ball. His touchdown run, although aided by good blocking, was accomplished after some fine open-field running. He evaded two Badger backs and outsprinted two more.

Bill Schmitz, regular Badger right halfback, was taken to the hospital after the game because of injuries, the extent of which was not immediately known. The line-up:

Pos.	Wisconsin (0)	Indiana (14)
L.E.	Moeller	Harris
L.T.	Eckl	Sabol
L.G.	Holloway	White
C.	Murray	Gahm

Waseda-Rikkyo Football Game Put Off to Thursday

The American football game between Waseda and Rikkyo universities scheduled at the Korakuen stadium for this afternoon was postponed late Monday to Thursday at 3 p.m. at the same stadium.

The Tokyo O.B. (alumni) football team will take on the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club on Thanksgiving Day as a curtain-raiser to the championship game between Waseda and Keio universities at the same stadium.

LARSON, NAVY'S FOOTBALL COACH, IS UNORTHODOX

Christian Science Monitor

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 11—Move over, Cinderella, you've got company—Maj. Emery E. (Swede) Larson jumped from directing football traffic in 1938 to head coach of Navy football in 1939.

Last year nearly squelched the Swede. He commanded the U.S. Marine detachment at the Naval Academy. The Marines direct stadium traffic on football Saturdays. Larson's duties as boss traffic cop kept him from seeing a home game.

The picture of the modern coach as a big business man, calculating as a pawnbroker, bears no resemblance to the big Marine. Larson at a football game is a whirling dervish. He akes his fooball hard.

METHODS UNORTHODOX

He's unorthodox. At a coaching convention to moan about prospects, Larson started the fraternity by announcing his prospects were good and his material tops. He's more concerned about under-confidence than over-confidence. He gave out honest weights on his heaviest linemen.

Most coaches surround themselves with a flock of assistants. Larson cut his staff to three

He collects airmail stamps. Marines all over the world save rare issues for their old skipper. He's the only big-time grid mentor who coached football in China and at sea.

Larson was picked on Walter Camp's second All-America team at center in 1921, the year he captained Navy. He occupies a special niche in Navy's Hall of Fame as the only three-year varsity gridder who never walked off the field after a defeat by Army. Navy won three straight from the Cadets in the "Larson Years." He was on the All-America lacrosse teams in 1922.

CAN'T STAY OUT

He can't stay out of football. If they put him in charge of an old folks home, he'd have the inmates scrimmaging the first week in September.

Last year was Swede's first without a football assignment in 25 years. But he stopped to watch some 12-year-olds in a vacant lot and five minutes later he was their coach. He organized the kids, scheduled games with prep teams, and they went through an eight-game season undefeated.

He played on the All-Marine team three years after graduation. He was the scagoing coach of the U.S. S. Pennsylvania when that battlewagon won the fleet championship two years in a row. He coached the All-Navy team in Hawaii in 1927, and next year the University of Hawaii drafted him for line coach. He coached at Paris Island marine base for three years. When they sent him out to China, he promptly organized and coached the Sixth Marines. Football follows the flag when Larson is around.

BIG SIX GAMES' ATTENDANCE SHOWS DROP

There was a drop in the attendance of the Fall season games of the Tokyo Six University Baseball league, it is indicated from the payments of the admission tax which totalled ¥8,000, or smaller by approximately ¥2,000 than the average year.

If the final extra play-off game between Keio and Waseda universities is excluded, the tax would have aggregated only ¥7,500.

The decision to start the season as early as September 2, taking advantage of the Summer vacation, and the prohibition of games on regular week days, which made necessary the staging of several tripleheaders, are believed the causes for the reduction in the receipts.

But total receipts of some ¥80,000 during the Fall season still shows the unshakable position of the "Big Six" as No. 1 sports attraction in Japan.

The biggest gate was on September 3 when an attractive tripleheader was staged, Waseda playing Hosei, Keio meeting Tokyo Imperial University, and Meiji taking on Rikkyo universities. The admission tax yield was ¥978.

For a single game, as expected the tilts between the traditional rivals, Keio and Waseda drew the largest attendances. The tax on October 15 and 17 totalled ¥763 on each day. It was ¥580 on the day of the third game.

KAMEDA HURLS ONE-HIT GAME

Ted Kameda, who hails from Hawaii, almost pitched a no-hitter for the lowly Eagles against the Lions in Monday's doubleheader of the professional baseball league. He yielded one hit to aid his team to a 1-0 victory.

It was Kondo, a pinchhitter, who spoiled Kameda's chance for a no-hitter by singling through first and second in the seventh inning.

The Osaka Tigers routed the Hankyu squad 11 to 0 in the other game. Centerfielder Jimmy Horio of the Tigers blasted a homer off Shigematsu in the first inning.

The summaries follow:

Lions	000 000 000—	0	1	1
Eagles	000 100 00A—	1	4	1

Batteries: Kikuya and Muroi; Kameda and Fushimi.

Hankyu	000 000 000—	0	9	2
Tigers	201 320 03A—	11	13	1

Batteries: Shigematsu, Ishida and Hibino, Ikeda; Wakabayashi and Monzen.

The season ends Wednesday with a doubleheader, the Senators meeting the Tigers at noon, and Hankyu clashing with the Dolfins at 2:30 p.m.

OSAKA TIGERS HIT MOST HOMERS IN PRO LEAGUE'S 1939 SEASON

Although they failed by three and a half games to nose out the Giants for the championship of the 1939 season of the Japan professional baseball league, the Osaka Tigers scored the most homeruns with a total of 33 during the 96 games played in the Spring, Summer and Fall.

The Giants came next with 26, followed by the other teams as follows: Eagles 20, Nagoya 19, Nankai 16, Dolfins 13, Senators 12, Hankyu 11 and Lions 8.

Third Baseman Tsuruoka of Nankai, former Hosei University captain, led in the individual honors with 10 circuit clouts to his honor. The other leaders were: Kageura (Tigers) 9, Horio (Tigers) 7, Kato (Nagoya), Nakajima (Giants) and Ribera (Giants) 6 each; and Kameda (Eagles) and Monzen (Tigers), 5 each.

The season came to an end Thursday afternoon at the Korakuen stadium with a doubleheader in which the Tigers nosed out the Senators, 2 1, and the Giants and Nagoya fought to a 3-all tie that was halted at the end of the eleventh inning to make way for the closing ceremonies.

First, there was a prayer in the direction of the Imperial Palace and then another prayer in tribute to those soldiers who fell on the battlefields. Presentation of awards followed. To the championship Giants went an impressive number of pennants and trophies. To Stalphin, Giants pitcher, voted the most valuable player in 1939, Kawakami of the Giants, Wakabayashi and Kuroda of the Hankyu team then lowered the national emblem. Three cheers of Banzai followed for His Majesty the Emperor to end the ceremonies.

The team averages for 1939 follow:

MICHIGAN TOPS IOWA, 27-7 BEFORE 27,000

N.Y. Herald Tribune

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 14—Darting, dodging and twisting up and down the chalk lines like a ballet dancer, Tom Harmon, a blue streak from Gary, Ind., scored every point for Michigan today as the Wolverines opened the Western Conference portion of their schedule with a crushing 27-to-7 victory over Iowa.

A crowd of 27,512 sat in perfect October sunshine that provided a fitting setting for Harmon's amazing performance, one of the greatest the Big Ten had seen since Harold (Red) Grange roamed the gridiron for Illinois more than a decade ago.

Michigan got a scare in the first period when Nile Kinnick, Iowa's able halfback, completed a long pass to Floyd Dean for a seventy-yard gain and a touchdown. Then Harmon took over and personally conducted the Wolverines to a victory in which they turned every Hawkeye slip into points on the scoreboard.

HARMON HIGHLIGHTS

Here are the highlights of the play of Harmon, and they tell the story of the game:

First period—Tossed a twenty-yard pass to Ed Frutig that took the ball to Iowa's 2-yard line and then twisted over the goal without an enemy hand being laid on him.

Second period—Tossed an eleven-yard pass to Forest Evashevski that carried the ball to Iowa's 4 and again went over. Went around Iowa's left end for twenty-nine yards to the 8-yard line and then raced around right end for his third touchdown.

Third period—Intercepted an Iowa pass on Michigan's 10-yard line and galloped ninety yards down the sideline for his fourth and last touchdown.

Harmon added three extra points from placement, missing only after the second touchdown.

SAVILLA ALSO STARS

Harmon was the only back able to gain consistently. Thundering Tom did get some notable assistance in blocking, particularly from Evashevski, quarterback, while Roland Savilla, tackle, set up three Michigan scores by recovering two Iowa fumbles and blocking one of Kinnick's punts.

Statistically the Iowans had the best of it, making eight first downs to seven for the Wolverines and gaining a total of 209 yards, compared to Michigan's 170. The Hawkeyes made 144 yards through the air, mainly because of Kinnick's accurate firing. Few of the Iowa plays clicked in pay dirt, however.

The line-up:

Pos.	Michigan (27)	Iowa (7)
L.E.	Frutig	Prasse
L.T.	Savilla	Walker

WASEDA ROUTS RIKKYO, 59-0 AT U.S. FOOTBALL

Waseda routed Rikkyo 59-0 in their American football game Thursday afternoon at the former's practice grounds at Higashi Fushimi.

Heavy favorites, Waseda started its second string men in the first quarter and the only touchdown was scored by Right Halfback Muraki. But its regulars took the field in the second quarter and thereafter it was a massacre of the Rikkyo squad. Its heavier line tore the Rikkyo line to pieces while its backs carried out lateral passes, forward passes, long sweeps around the flanks and trick plays to score one touchdown after another. The score stood at 39 to 0 at half-time.

Waseda sent in a large number of reserves in third quarter and was content with one touchdown in that period. Two interceptions of desperate psses by Rikkyo accounted for two more touchdowns by Waseda in the fourth quarter.

Waseda used every man on its large squad while Rikkyo suffered from a shortage of players, using only five substitutes.

The line-ups were:

Rikkyo		Waseda

The game at Yokohama will be played even if it rains, it is announced.

TEMPLE'S RALLY DOWNS T.C.U. IN 2ND HALF, 13-11

N.Y. Herald Tribune

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14—A slipshod, outclassed Temple football team that turned into an aggressive alert gang of ball hawks between halves, first made good on a break, then staged an unbroken forty-one-yard scoring march, and finally threw up a cast iron goal line defense, defeating Texas Christian today, 13 to 11.

Before a crowd of 20,000 that cheered the Owls to their first victory of the season, Temple compressed all of its scoring into the third quarter. In the closing minutes of the final period, the Owls still had enough stamina left to take the ball on downs after a pass interference penalty had given T.C.U. a first down on the Temple 1-yard line.

For the first half, with Rusty Cowart pitching passes in a style that would have done credit to his T.C.U. predecessors, Sammy Baugh and Davey O'Brien, the Texans definitely had Temple on the run. Cowart hung footballs in the air and his mates hauled them down for all sorts of yardage.

TEXANS GAIN 9-0 LEAD

One series of aerials put the Horned Frogs in position for Floyd Thompson, a substitute back, to kick a field goal from the 11-yard line on the first play of the second quarter. In the last minute, another series of air maneuvers wound up with Cowart passing to Earle Clark for thirty-four yards and a touchdown.

Since T.C.U. failed to make good the extra-point kick, that left the Texans leading, 9 to 0, at the half. But something happened to the Owls between the halves. They came out hitting harder and tackling better, and making the most of their openings.

The first came soon enough. Cowart, safety man for T.C.U., let a Temple punt roll, figuring it would go to his end zone. Instead it stopped on the 1-yard line, where Norm Rushton, Temple end, fell on it. Connie Sparks, T.C.U. fullback, had to kick out of his end zone, and the ball went to Temple on the 26-yard line.

Seven plays later Jonah Bowles, an outstanding runner and kicker, bucked over the middle from less than a yard out. As on the T.C.U. touchdown, the pass from center on the extra-point play was fumbled.

TOMASIC PUTS OWLS AHEAD

Temple launched another drive, this one from the Texans' 41-yard line, and this time threw in a twenty-yard gain on a forward-lateral. Andy Tomasic, substitute halfback, finally went over from the 4-yard line, skirting the T.C.U. right end after failing to find an opening at tackle.

Cowart kept T.C.U. in the fight through all of the fourth period. Pass interference gave T.C.U. first down on the Temple 1. Although passes had been clicking, Cowart called on Sparks to hit the line. He did it three times without gain, fumbled and lost the ball on the fourth try, and Temple, to get out of a hole, took a safety.

PURDUE TIES MINNESOTA BY LATE RALLY

N.Y. Herald Tribune

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 14—Minnesota's Big Ten champions pretty well bottled up Purdue's famed three "E's" for 55 minutes 34 seconds today, but one of them balked at that point.

Mike Byelene, with 4 minutes 26 seconds of paly remaining, popped through tackle, cut slightly to his left and ran forty-five yards for a touchdown, which with Fred Montague's pay-off placement gave the Boilermakers a 13-to-13 tie.

The Gophers had pulled away to a seven-point lead in the first two minutes of the second half on a fifty-two-yard touchdown run by George Franck on almost the identical play used later by the rallying Black and Gold.

Actually, Byelene's dash, brilliant as it was, was simpler than Franck's, for he had a clear field after the 20-yard line, where Van Every took the final futile shot at him.

The Minnesota speed boy had lots of help at the start, but he had to outrun Louis Brock, a fast man, who dove headlong at Franck's heels on the 10-yard line.

Purdue had a first down on Minnesota's 19-yard line in the early minutes, but on the first play Hennis fumbled and Bjorcklund recovered on the Minnesota 33.

After a punt exchange, the Gophers started from their 24. Van Every got twenty on a tackle smash. A lateral, Van Every to Smith, made it first down on the Purdue 30. Plunges got first downs on the 19 and then the 8 and on a fourth-down triple pass behind the line, Smith swept around Purdue's left end for a touchdown.

The Bilermakers' first touchdown in the second period came after Van Every fumbled a punt on the Minnesota 18. Purdue recovered and three plays later John Galvin passed to David Rankin, who leaped away from two Minnesota men to make the catch deep in the end zone.

It was 6 to 6 as the second half opened and then came Franck's long touchdown gallop. Purdue took almost complete charge of the play at that point. Once Brock punted out on the Minnesota 6 and soon afterward on the Gopher 8.

Byelene almost got that needed second touchdown late in the third period when he broke around end twenty-two yards to the Minnesota 30. Then he was grabbed from behind. The Boilermakers nearly had a first down on the Minnesota 6, an end around by Rankin failing by inches.

Purdue kept hammering and was down to the Minnesota 23 within a few plays, but a fifteen-yard holding penalty pushed them back. The tying thrust came after a daring play. It was fourth down, two to go from the Minnesota 48. Byelene plunged for three for the needed yardage and ran for the tying touchdown on the next play. Montague's place-kick was good this time and the score was tied.

Minnesota gallantly rallied and got a first down on the Purdue 28. The Boilermakers broke up two plays, one for an eight-yard loss, and in the closing minute Joe Mernik vainly tried a field goal from the Purdue 35. The line-up.

COLUMBIA AND ARMY FIGHT TO 6 TO 6 TIE ON GRIDIRON

By ARTHUR J. DALEY

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—The Columbia-Army series that has produced about everything in the past except Frank Merriwell in person bounced up with another thriller on wind-swept Baker Field yesterday. The Lions rocked the cadets back on their heels with a 63-yard touchdown march in the first three minutes and kept them in that very uncomfortable position until the clock showed only two and three-quarter minutes left to play.

Then Army struck. John Hatch spun a long, desperate pass through the air. Fred Yeager engulfed it in his arms, raced 58 yards more for a touchdown, and this thrust spanned 82 yards to tie the score at 6—all. And the clock moved in its inexorable way to the finish without any alteration in that count.

When Art Frontczak missed the extra point there was a collective sigh of relief in the majority of the crowd of 27,000 because Columbia deserved at least a tie. Defeat would have been the rankest kind of injustice.

LIONS ARE INSPIRED

Except for those last three minutes, this was the Lions' private ball game. Lifted to inspirational heights by the rapidity with which it tallied in the beginning, the Light Blue checked the West Pointers at every turn, stalled their running attack and checked their passing.

Army could do nothing right. The Columbia line, unchanged except for the derricking of Bernie Sweeney in the last two minutes, went the full route and hammered the cadets to a fare-thee-well. From the hesitant, uncertain combination of a week ago at Yale, the Lions became a hard-hitting, dynamic group. Never has there been a greater tribute to magnificent coaching than the Blue gave to Lou Little yesterday.

The better team, they say, makes and gets the breaks. Columbia took them all. Whenever Les Stanszyk or Johnny Naylor punted the ball always rolled in the right direction. When the shoe was on the other foot, the ball bounced backward. The fumbles, pass interceptions and even the penalties dropped right into the Lion basket.

FUMBLES PROVE COSTLY

Outside of its one scoring break, Army was absolutely helpless. The cadets moved to the Lion 42 and fumbled, went to the 38 and were checked by a costly 15-yard penalty, went to the 26 and fumbled and that was all that the West Pointers did except for the 82-yarder for the tie.

It should not be construed from this that Columbia had received chances by the dozen. It did not. In fact it had only one, a drive that advanced to the 2-yard line before the ball was lost on downs scant seconds before the first half ended. But Columbia had full control. That was the important thing.

The Lions swept to a touchdown from the opening kick-off with Stanczyk registering on an off-tackle cut-back from the 3-yard mark. Len Will was wide in the attempt for the extra point just as Frontczak was to be wide later and just as Cadet Ivan Sattem was to be in a 29-yard field goal attempt twenty seconds from the end of the game.

A GRAND PERFORMER

Columbia went in there, loaded to the gunwales. It took only nine plays for the touchdown to be made, the backbone of the drive being a 34-yard forward pass from Stanczyk to Captain Frank Stulgaitis, a grand performer all day.

The pass was down the alley, off to the left. It hardly could be described as a flat pass, because it had too much depth to it, but Stulgaitis touched it with his fingertips while out alone, outrunning the Army safety man. The ball bounced upward before finally nestling in his arms. Had it not been juggled it is conceivable that he would have gone all the way for a touchdown on it.

As it was, though, he was tackled as he landed on the Army 14-yard stripe for a first down there. Twice line plays were checked, but Columbia seemed to be operating on the theory that the third down is the passing down. Again the Lions passed, with the Stanczyk-Stulgaitis battery clicking to make it fourth down on the Army 7.

This was not the time for fancy didoes. Stanczyk went off the Army left tackle for a first down on the 3. On the next play he was over, cutting back sharply on the same play for the touchdown. Will missed the extra point, and the end zone was not dented again for some fifty-four minutes.

BORN OF DESPERATION

The Army tally was born of desperation. Midway in the last quarter, a possible West Point threat was turned aside by the armor of Columbia alertness. Sweeney recovered a cadet fumble near midfield and punt exchanges, sandwiched in with Columbia ground gains, had moved West Point farther and farther back.

So Army started on its own 18-yard line, driven there by a 15-yard penalty for illegal use of hands on the offense. On the first play Hatch faded back. A pass was ordained even before a signal was called because the cadets were too far back for anything else.

Back went Hatch in the tailback position. Back and back he went toward the goal line. Completion seemed beyond the realm of possibility. But Cadet Yeager is 6 feet 3 inches tall and both Augie De Augustinis, a 60-minute player, and Naylor are half a foot shorter.

Then came the throw. It went right down the center alley, and Yeager paused ever so slightly right in front of the 1,800 cadets huddled dismally at midfield. A mighty roar arose as the ball dropped right into the outstretched arms of the Army end. He was several steps beyond either defender when he made the catch.

There was nothing to it after that. Sprinting as though the furies were at his heels, Yeager raced the rest of the way for the touchdown, no one near him and pursuit out of question. A hush settled over the crowd as Frontczak tried and missed the extra point.

CADETS PLAY FRANTICALLY

The cadets, buoyed by this, played frantically the rest of the way. Captain Harry Stella almost blocked a punt by Naylor, a 20-yard kick going out of bounds on the Columbia 48-yard line.

In a flash the Army came whirling down the field. A Hatch-Yeager pass clicked for thirty yards and a first down on the 18. Twice Hatch passed as the hand on the clock raced around the dial. Both were incomplete. Then he attempted to run but was halted at the 15.

Only twenty seconds were left to play at this stage and Army took a time out to consider the situation. A field goal try was ordered, with Sattem coming in for the attempt, but the time out cost five yards and it was from the 29 that he tried. It failed, as though the fates could not see gallant Columbia losing that way.

Hosei Ruggers Rout Shodai By 45 To 5

Hosei defeated the Tokyo Commercial University, 45 to 5, in their rugby game Friday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium.

Poor tackling was most responsible for Shodai's one-sided defeat.

Hosei scored two tries and two goals to lead 16 to nil at halftime. Three tries and four goals were the yield in the second half. Shodai's only score was a goal.

WASEDA BEATS KEIO SIX, 4-2 IN EXTRA PERIOD

Waseda nosed out Keio, 4 goals to 2, in an extra period contest Friday night at the Shibaura rink in the final game of the Kanto Collegiate ice hockey league. As a consequence, the schedule ended with Waseda, Rikkyo and Meiji tied for the lead with three victories and one defeat each. There will be no playoff for the title. Keio finished fourth with one victory and three defeats while Tokyo Imperial University was buried in the cellar with four defeats in as many games.

Waseda's smoother functioning team won out in the end by scoring three goals as against one by Keio in the extra period.

Waseda was first to score after 9 minutes of play in the first period when Kitabori pushed the puck into the net, coming down the ice with Kichijima and Nakagawa giving him plenty of help. But Keio deadlocked the count in 7 minutes in the second period on Kimura's goal. Both teams were unable to score in the third period and the game went into extra time. Waseda was depending on its forwards to penetrate into scoring distance but Keio up a stonewall defense. Keio's strategy on the other hand was to attempt long shots and to follow them up with the hope of scoring, and it kept the Waseda squad plenty busy.

Both teams resorted to an all offense game in the extra period in a desperate attempt to break the tie. Accordingly, the game turned into a rip snorting affair. Waseda forged into the lead on Kichijima's goal in minutes. Kichijima pushed the puck into the goal during a close melee in front of Keio goal. Keio, however, lost no time in deadlocking the count at 2-all when Naruse worked his way through the Waseda defense and passed to Mekari, who scored from close range. By this time, Waseda's stick wielders had rounded into form and began pressing hard. A goal by Ichikawa in 7 minutes completely crushed Keio's defense as Kichijima scored another goal in 9 minutes with the goal zone completely deserted by Keio but for the goalie.

The line-ups were:

Waseda: Kawanishi, Onikura, Shichida, Nakagawa, Kichijima and Ota, goalies.

Keio: Kosuga, Inaba, Kimura, Mekari, Naruse and Fukazawa, forwards; Kagatani and Fujioka, defense; and Furudono, goalie.

Dates and Sites Set For Shrine Games' Skiing And Skating Events

The ski and ice skating events of the recently held 10th Meiji Shrine Games will be staged at Takada, Niigata prefecture, and Kamisuwa, Nagano prefecture, according to announcement Friday.

The ski events will be held in conjunction with the 18th annual national championships for five days beginning February 8.

The ice events will be held for three days starting February 2. It will mark the first time the figure skating will be held in the outdoors.

Semi-Finals Scheduled Today and Sunday Of German Club's Tennis

Favored by splendid weather, the annual Autumn tennis tournament, this time with handicap, was pulled off on the courts of the German Club Yokohama last Saturday and Sunday. Twenty-one players registered for the men's singles, ten for the men's doubles, and six for mixed doubles. Lack of applications precluded play in the women's singles. The first series were played during the last weekend. The semi-finals were to be played today and Sunday, and the finals are due next Thursday.

The tennis courts of the German Club Yokohama are in very good condition, and there has been quite a remarkable stimulation on the courts during the recent weeks, much to the benefit of the players.

Puncec and Kukuljevic Off For Manila, Colombo

Ferenc Puncec, Yugoslav tennis star who last Sunday won the Japanese national singles tennis title and the double as well with Franjo Kukuljevic, left Kobe on the Kamo Maru Friday en route to Manila.

Mr. and Mrs. Kukuljevic left for Colombo the same day on the Argentina Maru.

16 TO MAKE GIANTS' TRIP TO MANILA

Sixteen members will make the party of the Tokyo Giants' trip to the Philippine sports carnival at Manila in January. The party, bearing goodwill messages from Foreign Minister Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura and Mayor Keikichi Tanomogi of Tokyo, is scheduled to sail either from Nagasaki on December 18 or on December 15 from Kobe on the Nippon Yusen Kaisha liner Atuta Maru for Manila.

While in Manila, the Giants are scheduled to play about seven games. Tentative plans call for departure from Manila for home on the Kamo Maru on January 16, arriving at Kobe on January 25.

The roster of those making the trip follow:

Chief—Tadao Ichioka.
Business Manager—Sotaro Suzuki.
Manager—Sadayoshi Fujimoto.
Pitchers—Victor Stalphin, Teruzo Nakao, Sadao Kusumoto.
Catcher—Masaki Yoshiwara.
First Base—Tetsuji Kwakami.
Second Base—Shigeru Chia.
Third Base and Captain—Shigeru Mizuhara.
Shortstop—Toshio Shiraishi.
Outfielders—Haruyasu Nakajima, Ribera, Kikuji Hirayama and Nami Go.

DIMAGGIO NAMED MOST VALUABLE PLAYER IN AMERICAN LEAGUE

N.Y. Times

CHICAGO, Oct. 24—Joe DiMaggio, whose big bat earned him the batting championship and helped propel the Yankees to a fourth straight world title, today was named the most valuable player in the American League for the 1939 season.

The 24-year-old center fielder, who thus won a trophy from The Sporting News, received a total of 280 of a possible 336 points in balloting by a committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

DiMaggio, who hit .381, got fifteen first place votes of 14 points each. Three writers of the committee of twenty-four placed him second, three third, one fourth and two fifth. Votes for second place through tenth were rated from 9 points down to 1.

Thus DiMaggio capped his finest season since he came up to the Yanks in 1936. In that year he hit .328 and he followed with averages of .346 and .324, respectively, in 1937 and 1938. This past season he hammered 30 homers and drove in 126 runs.

FOXX THREE-TIME WINNER

Jimmy Foxx, Red Sox first baseman, who won the valuable player award for the third time last year, captured second place. He received 170 points, a testimonial to a fine season in which illness kept him out of action for a long period. Although he drew only one first-place ballot, two scribes placed him second and eleven made him their third choice. Only one writer failed to place the Boston star.

Bob Feller, the Indians' young pitching star, who won twenty-four games, was third with 155. Fourth place went to Ted Williams, the Red Sox freshman outfielder, who led the league with 142 runs batted in. Williams received 126 points, although he did not get any first-place vote, as Feller drew three.

Charlie Ruffing, New York pitcher, who won twenty-one games, also failed to get first-place mention, but piled up 116 points for fifth place, 6 ahead of Bill Dickey. The Yankee's star catcher was the first choice of three writers, but was unplaced by eleven.

The other two to receive first-place consideration were Pitcher Emil Leonard of Washington, who won twenty games for a sixth-place team, and Mike Kreevich, White Sox outfielder. Leonard compiled 71 points and Kreevich 38. Ranking ahead of Kreevich, however, were Bob Johnson, Athletics' outfielder, with 52, and Joe Gordon, New York second baseman, with 43.

HONOR ROLL SELECTED

The honor roll, a tabulation of ten extra votes not counting for points, was topped by first baseman George McQuinn of the Browns and pitcher Tommy Bridges of the Tigers, each being named eleven times. Manager Joe Cronin and Lefty Grove of Boston, third baseman Ken Keltner of Cleveland and Gordon, each with nine votes.

The writers on the selection committee were John Malaney, Gerry Moore and Victor Stout, Boston; James Gallagher, Ed Burns and Howard Roberts, Chicago; Gordon Cobbledick, Ed McAuley and Frank Gibbons, Cleveland; H. G. Salsinger, Charles P. Ward and Leo MacDonnell, Detroit; Dan Daniel, Rud Rennie and Ed Murphy, New York; James Isaminger, Al Horwits and Frank Yeutter, Philadelphia; Glen Wallar, James Gould and Ray Gillespie, St. Louis; Shirley Povich, Burton Hawkins and Frank O'Neill, Washington.

The distribution of points follows:

Joe DiMaggio, New York	280
Jimmy Foxx, Boston	170
Bob Feller, Cleveland	155
Ted Williams, Boston	126
Charlie Ruffing, New York	116

Keio Defeats Waseda, 4-1 in Field Hockey

By far the better team in both defensive and offensive play, Keio defeated Waseda, 4 goals to 1, in their 16th annual field hockey game Sunday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium. The victory marked the 11th for Keio in their dual series.

Although Waseda scored the first goal in 19 minutes in the first half on a shot by Kawai, Keio's stick-wielders ended the half with a 3 to 1 lead.

The line-ups were:

Keio: Kashiwagurna, Nishio, Sugimura, Kawasaki, forwards; Shigeta, Seko, Hattori, halfbacks; Sakaino and Takahashi, fullbacks; Yorita, Yorita, goalie.

Waseda: Shimoda, Kawai, Maruyama, Kojima and Ichikawa, forwards; Tanio, Emogawa and Tatayama, halfbacks; Yamamoto and Hachiki, fullbacks; Inouye, goalie.

NISEI COACH MAKES GOOD

Masao (Bill) Kajikawa (left) and Dixie Howell, coaches of the Arizona State College at Tempe football team which is having a wonderful season. It is Kajikawa's third season on the coaching staff.

NISEI IS ABLE ASSISTANT FOOTBALL COACH AT ARIZONA STATE COLLEGE

Masao (Bill) Kajikawa and Dixie Howell, famed passing star of the 1935 Alabama team which whipped Stanford in the Pasadena Rose Bowl, are having a wonderful season with their Arizona State college at Tempe football team.

The Bulldogs have won six straight games and have scored 136 points to 7 for their opponents. They went through five games untied, undefeated and unscored-upon until the Texas Mines team managed to push over a touchdown before they were routed 27 to 7.

The Arizona team has whipped San Diego State 20-0, West Texas State 19-0, California Poly 35-0, Whittier College 28-0, New Mexico Aggies 7-0, and Texas Mines 27-7.

Kajikawa is on the coaching staff at Arizona State for the third season. He was graduated from the college in 1937 after starring on its football teams four seasons.

For three consecutive years Kajikawa was named halfback on the All-Japanese All-American football team selected by Japanese newspapers in the United States. He was a tricky, brilliant ball-carrier and the best signal-caller of his time in Arizona football.

The Arizona team uses the Notre Dame system and a short-punt formation. They have won the attention of sports writers throughout the nation for their brilliant offensive and defensive football.

STANFORD TIES U.C.L.A. AT 14 TO 14

N.Y. Times

PALO ALTO, Calif., Oct. 14—After two dismal defeats, Stanford battled the highly touted University of California at Los Angeles eleven to a 14-to-14 tie today.

So confident was Coach Babe Horrell of the Bruins that he started his second team against the Indians, who had been whitewashed by Oregon and Oregon State on successive Saturdays. But before the scoreless first period was over, Horrell had rushed his entire first string into action.

U. C. L. A. and Stanford each got a touchdown in the second period. The Indins scored another in the third and the Bruins evened the score in the final stanza.

In the second period Tim Groves, Stanford right halfback, fumbled and Frawley, U. C. L. A. right guard, recovered the ball on the Stanford 42. Bill Overlin, fullback, charged around right end to the Stanford 31; Kenneth Washington, left half, passed to McPherson on the Stanford 11, then Overlin raced around his left end to make the first touchdown. Frawley converted.

Stanford scored shortly afterward. The Indians took a punt on U. C. L. A.'s 30 and, with Fullback Norman Standlee and Halfback Frankie Albert carrying the ball, went to the 18. Albert passed to Groves for the touchdown.

In the third period after each team had intercepted passes, Robinson punted from U. C. L. A.'s 29-yard line. The ball hit midfield, took a queer bounce and landed on the Bruins 25 for a net loss of 4 yards.

Standlee brought the ball to the U.C.L.A. 21-yard line in a series of power plays, but Stanford lost the ball.

Gilmore's punt from the end zone went out on U. C. L. A. 14. Albert heaved a short pass to Hugh Gallarneau, Stanford right halfback, who raced 10 yards to a touchdown, and Albert convertel to put the Indians ahead, 14 to 7.

In the fourth period a pass by Albert was intercepted by Robinson on the Bruins' 28. Robinson galloped 51 yards to Stanford's 21, where he was pulled down by Albert. Fullback Cantor scored from the 2 and Robinson converted to tie the score.

High School Girls Here Beaten in Archery By New Jersey Girls

With the vast Pacific Ocean between them, an archery contest between Japanese and American high school girls was held from 9 o'clock Sunday morning, the contestants being the Uyeno Girls High School and the Bloomfield Girls High School of New Jersey.

Each of the 10 contestants was entitled to shoot 30 arrows in using the American target, which is four feet in diameter and placed at a 50-foot distance, and the Japanese target.

The Japanese girls scored 34 points against 50 points of the American team in the Japanese target, while in the American target, the Japanese girls were able to score only 654 points against 1,106 points by the New Jersey girls.

Mrs. Joseph C. Grew, wife of the American Ambassador to Japan, was among the spectators.

N.Y. GIANTS PLAN NIGHT BASEBALL IN 1940

Christian Science Monitor

NEW YORK—Despite the long-standing objections of Manager Bill Terry, the New York Giants have decided to install a hang-up lighting system in the Polo Grounds and play a full quota of night games next Summer, both at home and on the road.

The Giants thus become the last of the big leaglie clubs to haul down their sunlit banner and succumb to the financial lure of the arcs. Up to now Terry stubbornly has refused to expose his athletes to the night air, but he evidently has been overruled at last. An official announcement will be made in about a week.

This will leave Yankee Stadium alone of the three local ball plants without a lighting system. Brooklyn made a mint of money with its night games at Ebbets Field the past season. The Yankees are willing to play a few night games away from home, but President Ed Barrow is dead set against installing lights—"at least for 1940."

Terry, who has said he never, never would play under lights, will have to shade his eyes and like it, a martyr to the desire of the stockholders to make money. He will remain field manager of the team, not yet having convinced his employers that he would be more valuable sitting at a desk directing the Giants' farm properties.

The decision of the Giant to play night games abroad will be acclaimed by other National League clubs. The Polo Grounds, sitting smack in the center of several million potential customers who like to go places at night, can confidently be expected to jam in several crowds of 50,000 or better for its nocturnal attractions.

At least, it was next to impossible to get inside Ebbets Field, just across the East River, on the nights the Dodgers played there the past season and their opponents benefited accordingly. While Brooklyn was fighting it out with Cincinnati in the matter of total admissions for the year, the Giants had too many afternoons when a charge of grape shot would not have harmed a fan in the upper tiers.

Having finished a wobbing fifth, they plan to make a number of deals to strengthen their line-up before next Spring, but none is likely to be announced before the mid-winter meeting at Cincinnati. They will train at Winter Haven, Fla., for a change, having decided that the can get more and better that they can get more and better practice against the cluster of clubs training around there than they have had the past few seasons against the Indians and Athletics out in Louisiana.

PRINCETON BEATS BROWN, 26-12, FLASHING POWER FOR FIRST TIME

By HARRY CROSS

N.Y. Herald Tribune

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 28—Princeton's big team flashed its scoring power this afternoon for the first time this season and defeated Brown, 26 to 12. The Bruins' faulty ball handling and frequent fumbles annulled much of their good work but they staged a two-touchdown rally in the third period that lifted the contest to a high pitch of excitement and had the crowd of 20,000 on its toes.

The edge which the Tigers had in manpower and weight wore the Bruins down, but in spite of their mistakes they were battling up to the final whistle. It was a game of hard physical contact and Princeton lost two valuable first string men, Down Herring, the 247-pound tackle and Bob Peters, the elusive back and they will probably be out of the Harvard game next week.

PETERS RUNS SEVENTY-TWO YARDS

Princeton got away to a sensational start on the first play of the game, when Peters cut through Brown's left tackle and aided by the great blocking of Bokum and the other Tiger interferers, ran seventy-two yards for a touchdown. This play came just after McNeil had kicked off.

Brown was temporarily stunned by this sudden outburst of Princeton speed and when Hinchman kicked off Ernie Savignano caught the ball on his 5-yard line and ran it back to the 27. After McLaughry had been thrown for a loss by Wilson the Brown captain dropped back into kick formation. The pass from the center rolled past him and went over the goal line, McLaughry falling on it for a safety and two points for Princeton.

Brown was now badly disorganized and it took them two periods to get their poise again. After the safety Princeton got rolling again and displayed some of the best football it has shown this season. The Tiger got one of McLaughry's punts on Brown's 37-yard line, the kick being short because it was kicked into the teeth of a wind which was blowing a gale.

Dave Allerdice came up with a pretty pitch and hurled a forward pass to Bob Van Lengen, who was spilled on Brown's 4-yard line. Van Lengen then made a wide sweep around Brown's left end and went over for a touchdown in the corner. Aubrey came in to kick the goal.

BROWN LINE HOLDS

The Brown line whipped itself together in the second period after another close call when the Tigers got the ball on Brown's 25-yard line on a fumble. Harold Detwiler fumbled and Meyerholz recovered the ball for the Tigers. Smashes through left tackle by Van Lengen gave Princeton a first down on the 14-yard line and then Brown held the Tigers at bay.

Brown, recovering from its early jitters, settled down to business on a reverse play, Detwiler to Blount, the latter racing twenty-nine yards and having the ball on Princeton's 34-yard line for a first down. Then came another fumble by Detwiler, but he recovered.

Tommy Lohr, Brown's 148-pound back, got into the game against the Tiger giants in this period, and he fumbled Allerdice's punt on his 15-yard line. Just a few seconds before the second quarter ended Mullen intercepted one of Allerdice's passes on the 17-yard mark, but it was too late for Brown to cash in. With the gale at his back, McLaughry got away a punt which covered seventy-two yards.

Brown got under way in the third quarter and played some real football. Taking the ball after a kick into the wind on their own 48-yard line, they gave the big Princeton line ten merry minutes of tough going. Charley Blount's arm was in fine shape, and he hurled a twenty-yard pass to Joe Finkelstein on Princeton's 35. Blount tossed another beauty to Prodgers for another first down on the Tigers' 18. McLaughry smashed through the middle of the Tiger line for eight yards, and Detwiler made it a first down on Princeton's 8-yard mark. Detwiler made a sweep toward Princeton's left end and threw a lateral pass to Blount, who went over for a touchdown. Brown was now back in the ball game.

Brown had the Tiger pass defense badly muddled by this time and Blount faded back to the 35-yard mark and hurled a long high pass into the end zone where Prodgers caught it for another touchdown.

Brown, in the final quarter, went back to its erratic ways. Bob Tierney broke through and blocked McLaughry's punt and it rolled over into the end zone where Meyerholz, the Princeton end, fell on it for another touchdown, Aubrey kicking the goal.

After Princeton had brought the ball from Brown's 35-yard line to the 1-yard mark, Brown made a stubborn defense and Van Lengen and Wells were stopped cold as they hurled themselves into the Brown line. Hinchman was brought into the game and kicked a goal from placement from the 13-yard line.

The line-up:

Pos.	Princeton (26)	Brown (12)

PENN BEATS YALE ELEVEN BY 6-0 SCORE

By RUD RENNIE

N.Y. Herald Tribune

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 14—Pennsylvania's football team turned a Yale march into swift and sudden victory, 6 to 0, before 32,000 fans in the Yale Bowl this crisp and sunny afternoon and for the first time in the history of a relationship which began in 1879 took two consecutive games from the Elis.

Yale, having received a punt and made one running play, had the ball on Penn's 27-yard line along toward the close of the first half. Frederic Burr, the quarterback, had just ripped off thirteen yards after throwing the Yale rooters into a tumult by going back to pass and standing there looking vainly for a receiver. "Throw it," the Yale cohorts yelled. But Burr didn't throw it. He ran wide and made a first down.

Yale was twenty-seven yards from a touchdown. Three plays later Pennsylvania made the only score in the game.

The turnabout happened when Burr heaved a pass intended for Bill Zilly. Just as Zilly was gathering himself to spring, Francis Reagan, Penn's busy quarterback, intercepted the ball on his 11-yard line and raced along for thirty-eight yards before Harold Whiteman brought him down one yard short of midfield.

PASS SCORES TOUCHDOWN

At this point, Paul Wexler, a junior who played on the Jayvees last season, went in for Reagan. His first play was a toss which Harlan Gustafson caught on the run for a touchdown.

Gustafson grabbed the ball about twenty-four yards out and eluded Burr on his way to the goal. Thus quickly Penn turned the tide, eating up eighty-nine yards from the spot where Reagan intercepted the pass. Eddie Allen's try for the extra point failed. But Yale was licked in a game it might have won.

Just as the first quarter ended, Burr shot a nice pass to Alan Bartholmy, good for twenty-five yards and a first down on Penn's 17. A plunge by Bill Bell gained a yard. So Yale had the ball on Penn's 16 at the start of the second quarter.

To the tune of a roar that rocked the hills, Burr heaved a pass to Whiteman and he was almost clear when Ray Frick nailed him six yards from the goal line.

REAGAN RECOVERS FUMBLE

With a first down on Penn's 6-yard line, Yale failed. Hovey Seymour took the ball on a running play. The crowd was wild. He was past the 5, past the 3 and still going when Penn's secondaries hit him. The ball shot out of his grasp and went spinning into the end zone. There, in a flurry of legs and arms, Reagan flung himself on the ball, recovering it for Pennsylvania. So ended Yale's first and brightest chance to score. Reagan punted far and away and the next threat was made by Penn.

After Burr fumbled and recovered on his 32, Seymour booted the ball well to Penn's 25, where Reagan, backing up, snuggled it into his arms and then stood still, looking things over. He dodged to his right and came steaming down the sideline. Allen took out an important man and Reagan kept on going. He went fifty yards before Bob Brooks hauled him down on Yale's 25. Penn was on the march. Four plays made a first down on the 14. Three more and the ball was on Yale's 9. But on the next play, Allen fumbled and Whiteman recovered for Yale.

So, with each team upsetting itself by fumbles, the struggle was even until toward the end of the half, when Reagan intercepted that pass of Burr's and Wexler's, fresh from the bench, heaved one to Gustafson for a gain of fifty-one yards and a touchdown.

Yale had one more opportunity. With Seymour carrying the ball and Burr throwing it, the Blue warriors went from their 38 to Penn's 26 just as the third quarter ended. Picking up from there, they got as Penn's 22 on a pass from Burr to Sterling Brinkley. But a fourth-down pass aimed at Bartholemy failed and neither side threatened again.

So Yale, conqueror of Columbia, went down to its first defeat of the season and Penn won its first important contest.

This year's Penn team is rated highly in the Ivy League. But on today's work, it is either rated too high, or the Yale team is better than it is given credit for being.

Reagan did a hard day's work, punting and running. But, Burr, of Yale, with a little more luck, might have tossed his team to victory.

America Considering Pan-American Olympiad If Helsinki Cancels Games

Domei Tsushin

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—The executive committee of the National A. A. U. today authorized President Lawrence di Benedetto to approve the organization of a special committee to consider plans for the holding of a Pan-American Olympiad in the event Finland cancels the Olympic Games which are scheduled to be held at Helsinki next year.

The committee, composed of five members, including Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic Committee, will give a report at the National A. A. U. convention which will be held at Hollywood from December 8 to 10.

LEE CONFIDENT IN MANILA BOUT AGAINST GARCIA

By STAFF CORRESPONDENT

YOKOHAMA, Nov. 21—Glenn Lee, number one contender for the middle weight boxing championship of the world, who arrived here last Saturday on board the Asama Maru, left here this evening on the President Taft, accompanied by his manager, Samuel Silverman, for Manila.

Asked what his chances were against Young Garcia, reigning champion when the two will meet for their third bout, Lee said that he believed his chances to be fairly good.

"The last time we fought was for the welterweight title and at that time I had a terrible time making the weight," he said. "As a result I was weakened by not eating.

"This time we shall be fighting for the middleweight title which is within my weight class and I shall not have any trouble getting down to 160 pounds. Just a few normal workouts will do that for me.

"Because we are fighting on Garcia's home grounds, makes me feel confident that the breaks, if there are any, will be with me. You see there is every possibility that Garcia will be tightened up and overanxious to make a good showing before his people.

"But there is always the possibility that he might fight over his head and that would be rather tough on me. Garcia is a fast fighter, a real good boxer and can hit real hard with both hands.

"As a matter of fact, he hits so hard that all who have fought him, win or lose have hit the floor at least once. Fortunately, I believe I can take it because he has hit me with a straight right on the jaw and could not budge me.

"When we fight down in Manila, Garcia will have to finish me off within a few rounds because I think that I have more endurance than he has. And again the fight is to last 12 instead of 10 rounds. The longer the fight lasts, the better my chances will be.

"There is no danger of my being knocked out because if there are any KO's to be done, it will be done by me, but there is the possibility that Garcia might be able to win on points."

Here his manager Silverman came in and said that Garcia cuts very easily over the eyes and his hands are not exceptionally strong. Such being the case, he believed that his fighter's chances are quite good.

If Lee wins the title, it will muddle things up quite a bit because Garcia has signed a contract to fight Armstrong in Los Angeles. This, Silverman believes is a sign that Garcia is confident that the fight with Lee is a cinch.

The contender says that he has quite a bit of money salted away and should he win the title, he will sign up for a few more real money bouts and then give up fighting. His ambition is to retire in Nebraska and buy up a farm.

GOALS GALORE IN WARTIME BRITISH FOOTBALL

N.Y. Times

LONDON, Oct. 28—Wartime football in the United Kingdom is producing goals in abundance. Fifty-six matches were played in regional competitions in England and Scotland today and the 268 goals scored represented an average of nearly five a match.

With only sectional titles at stake teams are concentrating on attacking play and the spectators are enjoying the sharp-shooting ability shown by their favorites. In the opening matches of the new series last week scoring was at the rate of four goals a game.

Individual honors went to F. Howe of Newcastle United, who made five goals in his team's 9—2 victory over York City. D. Westcott tallied four for the Wolverhampton Wanderers and G. Tadman duplicated the feat for Charlton Athletic. The Wolves trounced Northampton Town, 7—2, and Charlton smashed Southend United, 8—1.

J. Smith, Rangers, and C. Napier, Falkirk, were leading scorers in Scottish games with three goals each. The Rangers routed Third Lanark, 6—0, at Ibrox Park and Falkirk blanked Cowdenbeath, 9—0.

Clever play marked meetings of major league clubs. Portsmouth's English cup-holding squad came from behind to defeat Brentford, 3—1, at Fratton Park. Middlesbrough and Huddersfield Town battled to a 2—2 draw.

Huge Athletic Meet Projected for 1940

Japanese athletic circles are enthusiastically planning to commemorate the 2600th anniversary of the Empire of Japan sometime in May, 1940 by inviting the Philippines, Thailand, Manchoukuo and China to a huge athletic meet in Tokyo, according to a decision reached by a committee meeting of the Japanese sports leaders on Friday.

Representatives of 24-member organizations of the Japan Amateur Athletic Federation will meet at its headquarters at 6 p.m. next Wednesday for further consideration to the projected meet.

It is understood that the Far Eastern Olympic Games will also be carefully weighed as to its possibilities for revival in 1940.

NORTHWESTERN TOPS ILLINOIS BY 13-0 SCORE

N.Y. Times

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 28—Northwestern, baffled for more than two periods by an Illinois defense alternately employing five, six and seven man lines, finally shook loose its attack in the last half and whipped the Illini, 13 to 0, today before a home-coming crowd of 35,000.

Except for one drive started in the first period and carried over into the second, Northwestern was helpless during the first half against the tricky defense designed by Coach Bob Zuppke.

But in the third period the Wildcats shook loose little Paul Soper for a twisting touchdown run of 74 yards and added another six points in the fourth when Illinois, passing desperately in its own territory, lost possession on a pass interception on its own 29-yard line.

Until Soper broke out of nowhere midway in the third period it was a bitter struggle typical of their thirty-three previous meetings.

ILLINI MAKE FEW ADVANCES

Illinois was making one of its few advances when the Wildcats took the ball on a pass interception by Dick Richards on the Northwestern 26. On the first play, Soper shot into a quickly opened hole at left tackle, slipped through as the Illini linemen pawed at him and burst into the open. He cut for the sidelines and outraced Fullback George Rettinger, who was angling to make the tackle.

Soper crossed the goal line standing up and held the ball while Fullback Don Clawson place-kicked the extra point.

WILDCATS PRESS ADVANTAGE

The entire fourth period was played on Illinois ground, due largely to the accurate punting of Bill de Correvont. He drove his punts out of bounds on the 3, 1 and 4 yard lines.

De Correvont's last punt set up the second touchdown. Passing from his own 8-yard line, Ralph Ehni dropped one into the arms of Tuffy Chambers, Northwestern right halfback, on the 29. On third down De Correvont flipped a 10-yard pass to Ted Grefe, who was forced out of bounds on the Illinois three.

De Correfont made two and Clawson hammered over right guard for the touchdown. Clawson's attempted conversion struck the left goal-post and bounded outside.

The line-up:

Pos.	Northwest'n (13)	Illinois (0)
L.E.	Grefe	Anders
L.T.	Cuttich	Reeder
L.G.	Lokanc	Brewer
C.	Haman	Lenich

JAPAN BEATS SAN JOSE BOXERS, 3 TO 2

Japan defeated the San Jose College boxing team, three points in two, in the latter's farewell appearance Thursday afternoon at the Hibiya Park amphitheater.

The outcome hinged on the final bout of the card, between James Kincaid and Bun Shun of Senshu University, welterweights. Bun took the decision of a knockdown he scored in the first round when a left hook to the jaw sent Kincaid down for a 9 count.

The visitors started off in great style by winning two bouts in the bantamweight division to lead 2-0. Ota of Meiji University led in points for the first half of his bout against William Sellers. The latter, however, scored with left and right counter punches and managed to win the judges' decision. Had Ota continued to be the aggressor in the last round, he would have been the winner instead.

Conrad Lacy turned to a southpaw stance in his bout against Matsukawa of Rikkyo University. His left hooks stopped Matsukawa's attack, whereupon he stepped in close and scored with right uppercuts to the face. Matsukawa might have made a better showing had he refused to fall to Lacy's tactics and instead boxed at long range.

Japan won its first point when Donald Taylor, lightweight, failed to appear in the ring against Senshi of the Y.M.C.A.

Tei of Senshu University put the bouts on an even basis, 2 to 2, when he bored in to offset Charles Kerwin's advantage in reach and took a well-earned decision. They are both lightweights. Kerwin resorted to a left and right hook all the way through but Tei scored with hooks to the face by resorting to infighting.

SYRACUSE TIES PENN STATE, 6-6 FOR 4TH DRAW

N.Y. Times

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 28—Battling in snow, hail and a cold wind, Syracuse and Penn State played a 6-to-6 tie today before 13,000 in Archbold Stadium. It was the fourth draw between the two rivals in eighteen meetings since 1922, with the Orange victorious ten times and State four.

Today's game had all its excitement jammed in the opening sixteen minutes of play, when both touchdowns were counted. Syracuse, featuring some hard running by Halfbacks Dick Banger and Bob Heald, dominated the second half, but three times the attack bogged down in pay-off territory.

Syracuse capitalized on a break for its touchdown rung up in one minute and seven seconds of play. On the first play from scrimmage on the State 20, the ball went over the head of Steve Rollins, visitors' tailback, and Whitey Piro recovered for the Orangemen on the Lions' 5.

PLUNGES INSIDE TACKLE

Harold (Babe) Ruth put Syracuse on the 1-yard mark with a 4-yard advance on a reverse play, and Cliff Wilson, strating his first game as a tailback, charged inside State's left tackle for the touchdown. The try for extra point, which loomed so important in later stages, glanced off Bill Hoffman's toe and never got as far as the goal line.

State got into motion after blocking Bernie Batten's fourth-down punt at midfield in the first period. The visitors moved to the Orange 36, but stalled and exchanged punts. The adverse wind put Syracuse's punt, by Willard Thomas, out on the Orange 19, and the Lions marched from this point to score, with John (Pepper) Petrella making the touchdown.

Petrella and Bill Smaltz, sophomores, rushed to the Syracuse one-yard mark. On fourth down, Petrella, from tailback formation, swept his left end and went over standing up. Hugh Daugherty, Orange guard and co-captain, blocked the attempted place kick by Ben Pollock.

From this point, it was virtually all Syracuse, insofar as threats were concerned, but the embattled Lions always dug in when in danger. Late in the second quarter, using the wind advantage, Syracuse got as far as State's five, but missed the vital first down by inches.

ICKES INTERCEPTS PASS

Early in the third period a punt by Thomas struck Rollins and was recovered by George Hooper on the visitors 32. Banger and Heald moved the ball to the 26, but Lloyd Ickes intercepted Banger's pass on the seven to end the threat and Smaltz made a great kick against the wind to the Orange 43.

The best Penn State could manage on attack in the second half was to reach the Orange 41 via a 21-yard forward, Smaltz to Ickes. Syracuse in the fourth period marched 39 yards to State's 21, where a fourth down field goal attempt by Jack Hinkle was spoiled by a bad pass from center. Two other surges were good for 22 and 30 yards each, but State refused to let the Orange backs break away.

Syracuse had eleven first downs to six for State, and a net rushing gain of 151 yards to 85. Under the conditions aerials were almost impossible, the Orange completing only one out of seven, while the Lions connected on two of seven.

Frisch Buys Davis From Philadelphia

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 28—In his initial step to rebuild the Pirates, Manager Frankie Frisch announced last night the purchase of veteran catcher Virgil (Spud) Davis from the Philadelphia Phillies. The cash consideration was not disclosed.

The new Pirates manager expects the 210-pound, six-foot, six-inch backstop to boost the hitting "punch" of the Pirates who finished sixth in the National League race this year after collapsing in the final days of the league pennant chase in 1938.

For some time rumors have floated about the senior loop that shortstop Arky Vaughan and the brothers Waner, Paul and Lloyd, veteran outfielders, would be traded down the river.

Frisch, however, has brushed aside the reports, saying he believed he had a "good" foundation for a "good ball club" now.

Davis, a native of Birmingham, Ala., hit .307 with the Phils last season and has a .309 average for his 12 years in the National League. He bats and throws right handed.

Davis entered the senior circuit in 1928, playing with the St. Louis Cards and the Phils twice each and with the Cincinnati Reds.

Acquisition of Davis brought the Pirate roster to the league limit of 40 players. The Pirates now have five catchers, 10 pitchers, eight infielders and 11 outfielders.

NORTH CAROLINA POWER SWARMS OVER PENN, 30-6

By AL LANEY

N.Y. Herald Tribune

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28—The football team of the University of North Carolina, an effective combination of all the elements that make for success at the game, loosed its strength and finesse on Franklin Field this afternoon before a crowd of 55,000 and smothered Pennsylvania, 30 to 6, producing twenty-four points by passing, running and kicking in the last two periods after a stalemated first half, which ended at 6 to 6.

The Southerners scored four touchdowns and added a twenty-four-yard field goal by Harry Dunkle, who also kicked three of the four extra points. Jim Lalanne, one of the most accurate passers extant, passed for three of the touchdowns and ran thirty yards from scrimmage for the fourth. Paul Severin, who also caught the tying touchdown passes against Tulane a week ago, took two of Lalanne's tosses over the goal line, and Don Baker, a substitute back, caught the other one.

Penn opened the game with a burst of offensive power which carried the ball sixty-nine yards from where Frank Reagan caught a punt on his own 31 to the Carolina's 3, from which point Rainwater plunged over for Penn's only score.

Penn, after its opening surge, was inept, bewildered as to what to do about its own steadily declining attack or the rising Carolina tide. Penn fumbled and lost the ball, could reach no quick decision in the huddle, was penalized for delaying the game, lacked cohesion and twice quick-kicked on first down with ten minutes to go and the score 27 to 6 against the Quakers.

North Carolina, on the other hand, was a team with a purpose, knowing what it had to do to circumvent Penn's defense and dangerous every time one of its backs got his hands on the ball.

There was Dunkle, who kicked for six points, ran powerfully with the ball and blocked; there was Severin, a great pass receiver, and George Sternweiss, who sparked the team in the early stages and brought it back to effectiveness.

The Tarheels, however, were slow to get under way. Penn's line ripped them to pieces all through the first period and Reagan showed signs of running wild. Reagan also pinned North Carolina in its own territory with his punts and Penn seemed on its way to a second touchdown just before the period ended when the first of a series of costly fumbles lost the Quakers the ball on the Tarheel 26. From that point North Carolina went for its first touchdown and gradually gathered its strength to turn the game quickly into a rout in the second half.

The Tarheels marched to the Penn 40 before the quarter ended and then Lalanne began to throw. He threw to Connor for a first down on the 20 and after three were batted down he ran wide to the sidelines, jumped into the air and laid one in Severin's arms at the goal line. Dunkle, with a near-gale blowing, missed the extra point and the remainder of the period was passed in ineffective play.

Penn had its chance to score after Reagan intercepted one of Lalanne's passes on the Penn 45. Penn's line was moving the Tarheels out of the way then and Reagan ran. The ball was brought to the North Carolina 20 with first down and only five yards to go, because of a penalty. Here, after moving steadily along the ground, Penn called for a pass and Paul Thompson intercepted it on the goal line. That was Penn's last chance.

At the interval they were saying that North Carolina would have a chance if Lalanne would keep passing. Penn had not been rushing him. The ends dropped back to cover and Lalanne was taking all the time he needed. But Penn began to fumble again in its own territory soon after the second half began and North Carolina, pouncing on two of them, converted them into touchdowns.

But first Lalanne punted to the 4 and, calling for a fair catch of Reagan's return punt on the Penn 35, passed twice for the score, first to Baker and then to Severin. The first Penn fumble came after Dunkle had kicked over the goal line from his own 40, with the wind at his back. North Carolina recovered on the 25 and Lalanne needed only one pass this time. He ran wide again to the right, stopped, turned and fired the ball diagonally to Baker in the corner of the field.

The third Penn fumble was recovered right at the end of the quarter after the kickoff had been run back to the Penn 25. The Tharheels took the ball on the 30 and Lalanne broke over Penn's left tackle. It was a straight buck and the hole was a mile wide. Once in the secondary no one could catch him.

When Penn tried passing after the ball was put in play on its 20, North Carolina nearly had another touchdown, settling finally for Dunkle's field goal.

RIKKYO WINS CAGE TITLE FOR 2 IN ROW

Making it two straight victories over Waseda, Rikkyo won the championship of the Kanto Intercollegiate basketball league for the second consecutive year Sunday night at the National Gymnasium at Hitotsubashi, Kanda by taking the long end of a 54 to 34 score. Rikkyo won Saturday night by a 30-28 score.

Defeated 35-32 on Saturday night, Bunrika University's quintet rallied Sunday night to down the Tokyo Imperial University, 38 to 31. The play-off for their series is scheduled for Tuesday night at the same court.

The standings follow:

	G	R	B	T	W	M	S	Won
R	10	.	0	2	2	2	2	8
B	11	2	.	1	1	2	2	8
T	11	0	1	.	1	2	2	6
W	13	0	2	2	.	1	2	7
M	11	0	0	0	2	.	2	4
Lost		2	3	5	6	7	10

Key: Rikkyo (R), Bunrika (B), Tokyo Imperial (T), Waseda (W), Meiji (M), Shodai (S).

There was little action in the first half of the Rikkyo-Waseda game with both teams resorting to conservative tactics, waiting for openings. Rikkyo led 16 to 11 at half-time. But it forecasted the final score with Rikkyo by much the greater aggressor of the two teams, as can be accounted from the fact that it attempted seven throws for the basket as compared to only two by Waseda. Rikkyo led 6-2 after 6 minutes of play but Waseda rallied and deadlocked the count 7-all in 10 minutes. Rikkyo, however, got going and pulled away to the 16-11 lead in the last 5 minutes of the first half.

Quite aware that a defensive game would not pull it through to victory, Waseda shifted its tactics to all-offensive tactics in the second half. Yokoyama, forward, and Munakata, guard, both players of Olympic experience, speeded up the attack but Rikkyo was ready for it. As a matter of fact, it was just the stimulant the team had been lacking, and its combination began really working. Thus after the first 10 minutes of play, Rikkyo was already leading by 32-18. Rikkyo lost its best forward, Kasahara, on the limit of personal fouls after 14 minutes of play but the team was leading 38-26 and it was not enough to prevent victory. The combination of Kin Nichi, forward, Kin Sei and Cho, guards, worked all too smoothly for Waseda.

A speedier attack in the first half when the score ended 18-10 in its favor won for Bunrika University against Teidai.

Horiguchi Fights Kansai Boxer Tonight Over 10 Rds.

Tsuneo (Piston) Horiguchi, Japan's best known fighter, is scheduled to take on Taro Aizawa, up and coming featherweight of the Kansai, in a 10-round bout tonight at the Kokusai Theater in Asakusa. He is favored to win.

The smoker, sponsored by the Fuji Boxing Club, will start at 6:30 p.m., there being eight other bouts on the card.

WALTERS VOTED MOST VALUABLE IN NATIONAL

Christian Science Monitor

NEW YORK, Oct. 17—Corralling 303 of a possible 336 points, William Henry (Bucky) Walters, Jr., the prodigious pitching star of the Cincinnati Reds, today was named the most valuable player in the National League.

His selection, more or less expected, was made by a Committee of the Baseball Writers' Association of America and entitled him to a trophy offered by the Sporting News.

The 29-year-old righthander, whose talent for years was buried under a bushel while he masqueraded as an infielder, led both major leagues in victories with 27 during the regular campaign and was instrumental in lifting the Reds to a pennant in his first full season with the club.

IN 39 GAMES

He appeared in 39 games, starting and finishing 31 of them and losing only 11.

The selection of Walters on 18 first place nominations, five seconds and a fifth among the 24 writers in eight National League cities participating kept the award in the Cincinnati family circle. Last year big Ernie Lombardi, Walters' battery mate and then leading hitter of the league, was named.

Second place this year went to Johnny Mize, the St. Louis Cardinals' slugging first baseman who won the hitting championship. He received 178 points, including one first-place nomination.

Four points behind him was Paul Derringer, Cincinnati's strong-armed veteran who pitched the Reds to victories and lost but seven during the red-hot senior circuit race. He received two votes for first place but missed second-place ranking in shuffling of secondary votes, which ran his total to 147.

MCCORMICK FOURTH

Another Cincinnati hero, Frank (Buck) McCormick, the durable first baseman who led the league in runs batted in, rated 159 points and fourth place.

The only other player to get more than 100 votes was Pitcher Curt Davis, the workhorse of the St. Louis Cardinals, who was given 106, although no first-place consideration. The one other star given a first-place ballot was James Roberson (Jimmy) Brown, the Cards' classy infielder, whose total went to 99.

Other point gatherers, based on a 10-place rating, were:

Joe Medwick, St. Louis 81; Leo Durocher, Brooklyn, 52; Harry Danning, New York 33; Luke Hamlin, Brooklyn 32; Mell Ott, New York 21; William Jurges, New York 20; Dolph Camilli, Brooklyn 20; Billy Myers, Cincinnati 18; Stan Hack, Chicago 17; Augie Galan, Chicago 15; Terry Moore, St. Louis 15; Morris Arnovich, Philadelphia 10; Linus Frey, Cincinnati, Bill Lee Chicago, and Enos Slaughter, St. Louis 8 each; Bill Werber, Cincinnati 6, Max West, Boston 5; Leo Hartnett, Chicago 5; Ival Goodman, Cincinnati, Buddy Hassett, Boston, Pete Coscarart, Brooklyn, and Elbie Fletcher, Boston-Pittsburgh 4 each; Harry Lavagetton, Brooklyn 3; Bob Bowman, St. Louis 2; Eddie Miller, Boston 1; William Herman, Chicago 1.

ST. LOUIS SECOND

Points were distributed among the eight clubs as follows: Cincinnati 672, St. Louis 489, Brooklyn 111, New York 74, Chicago 46, Boston 10, Philadelphia 10, Pittsburgh 4.

In a separate tabulation known as the "honor roll" made up of players who received no appreciable consideration for the most valuable player tiara, Goodman the Reds' outfield star, led with 13 votes followed closely by Arnovich and Ott.

The Writers Committee comprised Charles J. Doyle, Chairman, Ed Balinger and Lester Biederman, Pittsburgh; Burt Whitman, John Drohan and Joe Cashman, Boston; Lee Scott, Tommy Holmes, and Roscoe McGowan, Brooklyn; Herb Simons, Warren Brown and James Kearns, Chicago; Tom Swope, Frank Grayson and Lou Smith, Cincinnati; Ken Smith, John Drebinger and Garry Schumacher, New York, Stan Baumgartner, Billy Dooly and Robert Paul, Philadelphia; J. Roy Stockton, Martin Haley and Sid Kenner, St. Louis.

KEIO DOWNS WASEDA, 3-2 FOR SOCCER TITLE

A goal by Outside Left Watanabe after 31 minutes of play in the second half helped Keio to down Waseda, 3 goals to 2, Sunday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium to win the championship of the Kanto Intercolllegiate Soccer league for the third straight year.

Keio's excellent passing by its forwards and halfbacks was the high feature of the game.

Keio broke the ice in the scoring column after 11 minutes of play when Left Inside Obata took a pass from Outside Right Shinozaki and booted it into the goal. It was Obata again that tallied for Keio in 17 minutes when Center Forward Ninomiya dribbled up to close scoring distance and passed to Obata. A penalty kick gave Waseda its first score in 22 minutes when Watanabe made the kick good. Waseda deadlock the count at 2-all in 30 minutes when Outside Left Takahashi took a free kick by his team-mate, Hi, and booted it into the net.

The line-ups were:

Keio: Shinozaki, Harima, Ninomiya, Obata and Watanabe, forwards: Kasahara, Tanaka and Takashima, halfbacks; Ishikawa and Kato, fullbacks; Tsuda, goalie.

Waseda: Kasai, Hi, Kano, Watanabe and Takahashi, forwards; Miyake, Sueoka and Nishimura, halfbacks; Oriuchi and Soda, fullbacks; Fuka, goalie.

DARTMOUTH MAKES IT 6 STRAIGHT WIN OVER HARVARD BY 16-0 SCORE

By WILLIAM H. TAYLOR

N.Y. Herald Tribune

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 28—Dartmouth's football team won a 16-to-0 victory over an ineffective Harvard team this afternoon. It was the sixth Harvard scalp in a row that Dartmouth's Indians have hung on their totem pole and the Indians remain undefeated, but there was nothing about the game to cause anybody to burst into lyrics about either team.

Dartmouth crossed the Harvard goal line first in the second period, when Bill Hutchinson, ace halfback, galloped thirty-eight yards through a complete absence of Harvard defense. Hutchinson place-kicked the extra point. In the third period Sanford Courter added three points to the Dartmouth score by kicking a field goal from placement. And as the final quarter started Dartmouth scored again when Jim Bauman, substitute halfback, slung a pass over the Harvard goal line into the arms of Bob Krieger.

HARVARD SHOWS NO ATTACK

During most of the game the teams defended effectively—not that they had much to defend against. Harvard's offensive, which rolled up a 61-to-0 score against Chicago a couple of weeks ago (boy, would I like to see that Chicago team play football), amassed an impressive total of zero first downs in one hour of football, gained a net total of thirty-two yards rushing and five yards on one completed forward pass. Dartmouth rolled to the tune of sixteen first downs for a total of 193 yards, plus forty-five yards by the aerial method, and outkicked Harvard besides.

The first period was a stand-off, with nobody doing anything much. Charles Spreyer punted over the Dartmouth goal line a couple of times, Dartmouth kicked it half way back again and in a burst of energy in the closing minutes of the period Dartmouth put over a first down when Hutchinson ran eighteen yards on one play. After which Dartmouth's infantry was driven back a few yards and Hutchinson kicked.

HUTCHINSON BOOTS LONG PUNT

In the first of the second period things were much the same. Hutchinson did some fancy kicking, one of his punts traveling seventy-eight yards from the line of scrimmage over the Harvard goal line. Dartmouth got the ball on Harvard's 43-yard line after that kick, owing to a penalty against Harvard for clipping. A pass went to naught and Dartmouth was set back five yards for offside. Bauman gained ten yards. On the next play the ball went to Hutchinson. The center was a bit weak and the ball bounced off the ground just in front of Hutchinson. He picked it up, started around his left end, doubled back through tackle and ran the thirty-eight yards for the touchdown. Nobody tried to stop him. Harvard's players may have figured that the play was going to die behind the Dartmouth line because of the bad pass, or perhaps it is a part of the Harvard strategy to ignore the ball carrier and make him feel foolish. Anyway, the Crimson ignored Hutchinson thoroughly and Hutch, not feeling foolish at all, just ran down the field.

HUTCHINSON KICKS POINT

Hutchinson place-kicked the point and the half ended after Dartmouth had blocked a Harvard punt.

The second half started with a really determined Dartmouth advance which covered forty-odd yards before it fizzled out. One of Bauman's passes connected shortly after that, getting Dartmouth down to Harvard's 26-yard line, and when various running plays failed to make any important gains Courter stepped back to kick. He booted the ball from the 25-yard line and it sailed over the crossbar for the second score of the game.

Just before the period ended, Joe Arico, Dartmouth sophomore back, ran back a Harvard punt from midfield to Harvard's 45, and there Bauman loosed a pass that went twenty yards to Buford Hayden, who was downed on the Harvard 22. A rush through the line gained a few yards, and another pass, Bauman to Krieger, made five yards as the quarter ended with the ball on Harvard's 13-yard line. The next play brought a first down, on the 10 yard stripe. Then Bauman slung a pass which Krieger caught neatly in the end zone. It was one of the prettiest plays of the game.

GAME ENDS SOON AFTER

This was the final score of the game. There was a bit of kicking after that, and Dartmouth made a first down on its own territory. The game ended on an appropriate note, a fumbled pass from center which set Dartmouth back to its 20-yard line as the time ran out.

Offhand, it wasn't the sort of a game that anybody except an old grad of the perpetual-sophomore type could get enthused about. Thirty-two thousand people witnessed it, though several hundred left before it was over. Hutchinson, James Monroe High School graduate, who is practically the sole surviver of Dartmouth's last year's powerful team, did a good job with a moderate amount of assistance. Bauman, a junior from Toledo, came close to being the star of Dartmouth's game today. He threw most of Dartmouth's ten forward passes, including the one that went for a touchdown in the last period, and was in there all the time doing business on offense or defense.

The game was notable for penalties. Dartmouth was set back seven times for seventy-five yards, and Harvard four times for fifty-five yards, a lot of penalties considering that neither team seemed to be very mad at the other.

ABUSIVE LANGUAGE

Probably the most picturesque penalty of all was one of fifteen yards against the Indians for abusive language. I don't know what they said, but if it was any more abusive than the language around the press box when the reporters were trying to think up words with which to describe the game, it must have been pretty awful.

Boston is a town that goes for Harvard football teams, especially when they play old rivals like Dartmouth, but the most pertinent comment I heard around Soldiers Field this afternoon was from an onlooker, who commented that the East Bridgewater High School eleven would give Harvard a pretty tough afternoon if they'd only get together. I'd still like to see that Chicago team that Harvard beat, 61 to 0.

The line-up:

Pos.	Dartmouth (16)	Harvard (0)
L.E.	Krieger	MacKinney
L.T.	O'Brien	V. Miller
L.G.	Young	Peabody

MARQUETTE FOILS ARIZONA, 13 TO 6, WITH LATE RALLY

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 28—Marquette's Golden Avalanche bounded back with two touchdowns in the second half today and turned back a plucky University of Arizona football team, 13 to 6, before a homecoming crowd of 10,000.

Outplayed and outsmarted in the first half, Marquette passed to a touchdown on the first play of the second half and then marched twenty-three yards for another with only four minutes left to play.

The first half was all Arizona. With Johnny Black, snappy-hipped halfback, leading the way, the Wildcats raced sixty-one yards down field and chalked up a touchdown before the game was five minutes old. Black cupped the ball behind his back and slashed tackle for the final twenty-two yards. Later Black spoiled a sixty-seven-yard drive when he fumbled on Marquette's 8, where Bill Burke recovered for the home team.

With the ball on Marquette's 37, Jimmy Richardson, halfback, dropped back on the first play of the second half and hurled a forty-yard pass to Don Vosberg, end, who outraced the Arizona safety man for a gain of sixty-three yards and a touchdown.

Until the last five minutes, the game developed into a punting duel between Black and Johnny Maltsch, with play centering in Arizona territory. The final touchdown drive started on Arizona's 28, where Richardson was downed after catching Black's punt. Richardson ran three yards, then passed to Vosberg for first down on the 13. Then he and Doug Renzel, fullback, smashed to the 1-foot line, from where Renzel bounced over. This time Kemnitz converted.

Arizona rolled up eleven first downs, to Marquette's six, and outgained the Hilltoppers from scrimmage, 157 yards to 84. The line-up:

EAST DEFEATS WEST IN PRO BALL SERIES

The East-All Stars defeated the West All-Stars, three games to two, in the third annual intersectional series of the Japan Professional Baseball Federation which closed Monday afternoon at the Koshien stadium. Incidentally, it was the first time the Eastern side won.

Pitcher Victor Stalphin of the Giants put the Easterners in the running when he aided his team to a 1-0 triumph in the first game Monday, putting the series on a 2-all basis. He checked the Westerners to seven scattered hits. But at that, it must be said that he was given airtight support by his teammates, who executed three fast double-plays.

It was a tough game for Pitcher Shigematsu of the Westerners to lose because he yielded but three hits. But one of them was a home run smash into the left field bleachers by Third Baseman Mizuhara of the Giants. Mizuhara swung at the first pitch.

The extra game necessitated was interesting in that two former Hawaii boys opposed each other on the mound. They were Henry (Bozo) Wakabayashi of the Tigers for the Westerners and Ted Kameda of the Eagles for the Easterners.

It was Wakabayashi himself who put the Westerners into the lead with a four base clout into the left field stands in the third inning.

But the lead was shortlived as the Easterners scored their two winning runs in the first half of the first half of the fourth inning. Mizuhara started the firework with a three bagger to right center. Nakajima's grounder tunneled through Shortstop Uyeda's legs and Mizuhara tallied. Nakajima went to second on the play and then to third on Kato's grounder to second. He then came in on Third Baseman Tsuruoka's error of Kawakami's grounder.

Mizuhara was voted the most outstanding player in the series. Uyeda of the Hankyu team was the leading hitter with a .333 mark, the result of 4 hits out of 12 times at bat.

St. Mary's Is Upset By Portland, 14-12

N.Y. Times

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 29—The world of football was treated to an unusual spectacle today. The patient operated upon the doctor.

The University of Portland accomplished the unheard of feat of defeating by 14-12 a St. Mary's College team so hightly favored that the 5,000 fans were almost unwilling to believe the result.

Portland scored its first touchdown in the second quarter after receiving the ball on St. Mary's 26 on a clipping penalty. The Gaels came right back with a 30-yard march to score, but Nick Katzmeyer failed on the conversion.

St. Mary's opened a march late in the third period and carried on to a touchdown in the fourth. The jubilation was short. Maloney's great punting, which had continually backed St. Mary's deep into its territory, enabled the Pilots to put the ball into play 40 yards from the goal.

Enzler, carrying the ball continually, reached the 1-yard marker, then went through for the touchdown. He converted both extra points.

The line-up:

GEORGIA TECH TRIUMPHS OVER AUBURN, 7 TO 6

N.Y. Herald Tribune

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 28—Georgia Tech's sleeping Giants aroused themselves in the second half today to squeeze out a 7-to-6 decision over an Auburn eleven that started like a ball of fire but wilted rapidly toward the close. Upward of 20,000 watched the Southeastern Conference clash which was marked by long, spectacular runs, a sprinkling of razzle-dazzle football and plenty of penalties.

Tech was the dominant team throughout the second half after being badly outplayed in the first two periods. After punching over a touchdown on the first play of the fourth period, Tech threatened to score twice more but weary Auburn held in the shadow of its goal.

Auburn scored in the second quarter after Neil Cavette, of Tech, punted short from his own 20. A strong wind put a backspin on the ball and Auburn got it on Tech's 35. George Kenmore plunged five yards and then shot a pass to Teddy Faulk. Tackled as he came down with the ball, Faulk lateraled to Carl Happer who scored from the 15. McGowen's attempted placement was bad. Auburn threatened twice more in the second quarter with Rufus Deal and Dick McGowen ripping off long gains through Tech's line.

Tech refused to yield and came out for the third period an entirely different team. After failing to cash in on one drive that carried to Auburn's 9, Tech moved forward again. Johnny Bosch, Billy Gibson and Howard Ector took the ball to the 1-yard line in a series of delayed bucks and reverses that had Auburn guessing. Ector crashed over on the first play of the fourth period and Roy Goree kicked the winning point.

The line-up:

Kameda Elected Captain Of Meiji Baseball Team

Shigeo Kameda, who hails from Hawaii, has been elected captain of Meiji University's baseball team for the 1940 season, according to announcement Monday.

Kameda has been regular second baseman for the team during the last two years and there is no better player at this position in the Tokyo Six University league.

A younger brother of Ted Kameda, star pitcher of the Tokyo Eagles, professionals, he entered Meiji from Takanawa Middle School.

South Carolina Ties On Dash of 85 Yards

N.Y. Times

ORANGEBURG, S.C., Oct. 27—A sensational 85-yard punt return by Fullback Joe Grugan in the final quarter gave South Carolina a 6—6 tie today with the favored West Virginia Mountaineers before 3,500 spectators.

West Virginia went to the air for its touchdown in the second period, Charley Seabright, quarterback, taking a toss from Johnny Carliss to score after a march from the Mountaineer 11. The touchdown play covered twenty-four yards. Seabright missed a placement for the point.

South Carolina almost tied the score on the second half kick-off when Grugan return 75 yards, but he was bumped out of bounds on the West Virginia 15 by Sammy Pinion. Aided by an off-side penalty, the Gamecocks smashed out a first down and seemed headed for a score, but West Virginia stiffened and Bill Lowry fumbled on a line play, Carliss recovering on the one-yard line.

West Virginia warded off two more Gamecock threats and, starting from its 25, made four consecutive first downs to reach the South Carolina 9. The Gamecocks held and took over on their 2, Robinson punting fifty-five yards out of danger.

Failing to gain, Charley Hockenberry punted from his 47 to the South Carolina 15. Lowry handed the hall to Grugan, who tore down the sideline for the touchdown. Dutch Elston failed in a placement effort to convert.

The line-up:

San Jose College Boxers Leave for U. S. Thursday

Members of the San Jose College boxing team will leave for California Thursday from Yokohama aboard the Nippon Yusen Kaisha liner Kamakura Maru. In their two appearances in Tokyo against All-Japan teams, they drew in one and lost the other, 3 matches to 2.

GREEN BAY PACKERS DEFEAT REDSKINS, 24-14

N.Y. Times

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 29—The Green Bay Packers put on another display of superior running and passing to defeat the Washington Redskins today, 24 to 14, in a National Football League game before a crowd of 25,000 and drop them from a tie with the Giants for first place in the Eastern Division. Washington fell to second place.

Despite a wet ball and a slippery field, the Packers' vaunted aerial attack clicked for one touchdown and helped set the stage for two others.

Pass interceptions by Green Bay also played an important part in the final decision. Five of Sammy Baugh's heaves and one by Frank Filchock were pulled down by alert Packers.

Cecil Isbell and Clarke Hinkle led the Green Bay ground attack, which was good for 169 yards. Andy Farkas was an outstanding Washington runner.

THREE PASSES EASE WAY

The Packers' first touchdown came early in the game after a march of 71 yards. Three passes, to Larry Craig, Hinkle and Isbell, made it first down on the Washington 12. Hinkle went to the 2 around right end, then crashed over for a touchdown. Ernie Smith kicked from placement and the Bays led, 7 to 0.

In the second period Charley Brock intercepted one of Baugh's passes and ran it back 58 yards to the Washington 32. Isbell sped around right end to the 21 and Eddie Jankowski and Joe Laws made a first down on the 8. Isbell then passed to Hank Bruder for a touchdown and Isbell place-kicked the extra point.

A 42-yard run by Farkas through right tackle brought the ball to the 7-yard line. Farkas smashed through center to score and Russell kicked the point.

ENGEBRETSEN KICKS FIELD GOAL

A pass from Isbell to Arnie Herber made a first down for Green Bay on the Washington 8 shortly before the end of the second quarter. The Redskin line held, however, and on fourth down Tiny Engebretsen, Packer guard, kicked a 15-yard field goal from a difficult angle.

The third period was scoreless, but the Packers poured it on again in the fourth. Isbell connecting on two passes to Hutson and Laws, to put the ball on the 4. Laws went over from the 3 and Isbell's kick was good, to make it 24 to 7.

Washington trimmed the margin when Filchock passed to Dick Todd for a 55-yard gain and a touchdown. Russell booted the extra point.

Ed Justice, fullback for the Redskins, was confined to a hospital tonight with a "moderately severe" back injury suffered in today's game.

N.Y.U. DOWNS GEORGIA, 14-13, AS POLICE STOP PLAYERS' FIGHT

By BUD RENNIE

N.Y. Herald Tribune

NEW YORK, Oct. 29—Georgia's fighting Bulldogs and New York University's violent Violets brought that old war up to date on the football field in Yankee Stadium yesterday. They fought with fists and elbows feet and hands with a fury worthy of a greater cause. City police had to charge into one impassioned part of the fray to separate the combatants.

But out of a nerve-racking last-minute stand, in which they blocked two times for field goals with their backs against their own goal line, N. Y. U. players emerged battered but victorious, 14 to 13. When the final gun sounded, 15,000 spectators sat limp and exhausted by the fierceness and closeness of the struggle.

There was scoring in every one of the four quarters. Ed Boell slammed over for a four-yard touchdown plunge in the first period and Bill Galu booted the extra point. With one minute left in the second period Boell shot a short touchdown pass to Irving Mond, and Joe LaManna made the extra points is evident in the score.

POLICE SEPARATE PLAYERS

In the closing seconds of the first half, tempers flared. Joe Frank threw a punch at Knox Eldredge, a Bulldog end. Instantly, the fight became a free-for-all. Police had to stop it.

Out of this fight the Bulldogs came from their dressing room for the second half, fired with determination. They tore the Violets to pieces and scattered them all over the place. Vassa Cate, a champion sprinter, sped sixty-six yards to a touchdown early in the third quarter, straight-arming one Violet and outrunning two others. Alex McCaskill added the extra point.

Just as the third quarter was coming to an end, John Stegeman, a Bulldog end, recovered a punt fumbled by Galu on N. Y. U.'s 35. From there the Bulldogs tore to the 1-yard line with the aid of a last-play penalty for off-side against the Violets.

This penalty, half the distance to the goal line, saved the Bulldogs. It was fourth down. They had failed to score from the 3. But on the one play left them in this sequence as the final quarter began, Jim Fordham, a hard-running back, plunged over for a touchdown.

So it was 14 to 13 in favor of the Violets as McCaskill went back to try for the extra point with Cate holding the ball. McCaskill's kick was wide. This miss cost Georgia a tie.

The Violets were still in front, but they were just hanging on. They had a raging Bulldog by the tail, and they had their hands full.

Georgia gathered itself for another thrust. It had seventy-six yards to go. In two plays Cate and Heyward Allen ripped off twenty-nine yards, starting from the reception of a punt on their own 24.

From then until the bitter end the stands were in an uproar as the Bulldogs surged forward in a mad race with the inexorable hand of the clock.

N.Y.U. PENALIZED AGAIN

Twice the Violets had the Bulldogs stopped on fourth down with at least five yards to go. But twice the desperate Bulldogs threw fourth-down passes and were successful—Allen to Jimmy Skipworth and Allen to McCaskill. Then Fordham and Cote smashed through. And the Bulldogs had the ball, third down and about four to go on N.Y.U.'s 9.

In this crisis N.Y.U. was off-side. This impetuosity gave Georgia first down on the 4. There were forty-five seconds left to play.

In the din it almost seemed as if one could hear hearts pounding. Throats were tight and dry. Georgia deserved to win with its fierce last-half attack. But could it make four long yards in forty-five seconds?

Georgia ran five plays before time ran out and the Bulldogs failed on the 3-yard line.

Fordham hit the line for a yard. Allen dived through for another. The ball was on the 2 with twenty seconds left. Fordham hit into the line again and the Bulldogs were on the 1. There were seven seconds left, fourth down and goal to go.

TWO KICKS BLOCKED

In this seven seconds Georgia was moved back five yards for too much time out. The Eldredge went back to try for a field goal. Cote set up the ball on the 14. N. Y. U. piled through and blocked the kick. But the N.Y.U. was off-side. The ball was moved forward five yards. Then Eldredge tried again for a field goal, this time from the 9. Again, the Violets stormed through and partly blocked the kick, recovering it on their own 3. And there they were exhausted but victorious, when the gun went off ending a bitter and thrilling struggle.

Georgia ran all over the Violets statistically. It gained 265 yards to N.Y.U.'s sixty-eight by rushing, mostly in the second half, and made seventeen first downs to N. Y. U.'s nine.

There was animosity in this game before the players ever faced one another. Rough work in the line finally caused the Violets to explode. The blow-off came at the end of the first half when Allen threw a pass intended for Eldredge. Frank spun around and let Eldredge have it. In an instant all was confusion. Players were fighting in knots in midfield. The reserves from both benches poured into the fray. Police rushed onto the field. A moment after peace had been restored the half ended.

N. Y. U. had the Bulldogs in their own territory through the greater part of the first quarter. Cote fumbled as he ran back the opening kick-off. Jack Barmak recovered for N. Y. U. The Violet thrust was stopped by Tom Witt, center, intercepting Boell's first pass. N. Y. U. benefited by an exchange of punts and brisk work by Harry Petcreit, who threw Allen for a ten-yard loss on a fake kick maneuver. Presently N. Y. U. came into possession of the ball on Georgia's 34 on a punt out of bounds and went from there to a touchdown with Boell running and once gaining nineteen yards with a pass to Barmak.

The Violets' second touchdown push started from their own 41 and was aided by a forward lateral play. They made thirty-nine yards at one clip with this, Boell passing to Campanies, who lateraled to Galu. Boell's passing set up this touchdown and his scoring pass to Mond made the eight yards then necessary to score.

This was the sixth game in a series begun in 1929. Each team has now won three games. They had not met since 1933, when the Bulldogs won, 25 to 0, in Athens, Ga., their home town.

Bunrika Five Beats Tokyo Imperial, 44-32

In the final game of the Kanto Intercollegiate Basketball league, the championship of which has already been won by Rikkyo University, the Bunrika University five bumped off the Tokyo Imperial University team by a 44-32 score Tuesday night at the National Gymnasium at Hitotsubashi. The score at halftime was 19 to 7 in favor of the winners.

By virtue of the victory, Bunrika finished as runner-up to Rikkyo, followed by Waseda, Tokyo Imperial University, Meiji and Shodai in the order named.

TEMPLE BEATS W. VIRGINIA BY 16-0 COUNT

By LINCOLN A. WERDEN

N.Y. Times

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27—With Fullback Jonah Bowles contributing a spectacular performance, Temple rolled on to a 16-to-0 triumph in the thirteenth game of the series against Bucknell at Temple Stadium tonight.

A gathering of 10,000 sat through the rain and saw Bowles tally two touchdowns and make the place kicks for the extra points. The other two points came in the second period as the result of a safety. And it was Bowles's punt, landing out of bounds on Bucknell's 1-yard line, that led up to the safety.

By the time Bowles retired from the fray in the closing minutes of the last period he was credited with having gained 103 yards. He put on what amounted to a one-man show.

Bowles was in fourteen of the eighteen plays that brought the touchdowns in the second and third periods. On the first one he carried the ball seven out of ten times and in the third period, when Temple went from the 29-yard line to score, he ripped the opposing line on seven of eight plays.

PUNTING DUEL AT START

For the first time this season, Berrier, Temple left halfback, was in the starting line-up. The opening quarter developed into a punting duel. First, Temple lost the ball, just missing a first down by inches on Bucknell's 35. With Funair doing most of the ball carrying the Bisons failed to penetrate the Temple line. The outstanding play was the final one of the period. Berrier intercepted a Bucknell pass and raced to the Bison 45.

The Owls advanced to the Bison 38 as the second period got under way, but three incomplete passes halted the drive and Funair kicked over the goal line. Temple tried a trick pass formation for a lateral but the receiver dropped the ball.

Fullback Bowles led a drive to Bucknell's 44, and on fourth down he booted the ball out of bounds on Bucknell's 1-yard mark.

Serraro went back into the end zone to kick for Bucknell, but Ashwood, Temple's right end, smashed through and blocked the punt for an automatic safety.

Carrying the ball seven out of ten times from Bucknell's 41-yard line, chiefly through inside tackle plays, Bowles finally went over for a touchdown from the 2. He place-kicked the extra point and the Owls ended the first half with a 9-to-0 lead.

RECOVERS A FUMBLE

Bucknell recovered a Temple fumble on its own 49 in the third period, but fine work of the Temple wingmen broke up the Bison pass plays. Rushton spilled Funair for a 15-yard loss, sending Bucknell back to the 25.

After Bucknell punted, Temple took the aerial route. A double pass, Berrier to McCracken to Berrier, resulted in a first down on Bucknell's 35. Although a fumble spoiled the next pass attempted, Berrier's toss to Walters was completed on the 30. Temple failed to make first down on a line play and Bowles punted out of bounds on the enemy 4.

After Bucknell kicked, Bowles carved out another touchdown, smashing through the line at the end of a 39-yard march.

Horiguchi Beats Aizawa But Disappoints Fans

Tsuneo (Piston) Horiguchi, Japan's best known professional fighter, was not in the best of condition and he had a battle on his hands with Taro Aizawa of the Kansai in their 10-round bout of the main event of a smoker staged by the Fuji Boxing Club Tuesday night at the Kokusai Theater in Asakusa. He just about succeeded in getting the decision.

Lacking speed and far from the usual aggressive fighter that he is, Horiguchi was a bitter disappointment to his admirers. Aizawa carried the fight to Horiguchi at times, scoring with right and left hooks and uppercuts but this punches lacked power to stop his opponent.

Horiguchi weighed in at 125.5 pounds and Aizawa at 127 pounds.

BORICAN KEEPS U.S. TITLE IN PENTATHLON

By FRANK ELKINS

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK Oct. 30—John Borican, sturdy Negro athlete from the Shore A. C. of Elberon, N. J., retained the national A. A. U. pentathlon championship in the seventeenth annual competition held at the Travers Island grounds of the New York A. C. at Pelham yesterday.

A graduate student at Columbia University, where he is studying art, Borican successfully defended his laurels by a wide margin. Ten track and field performers took part in the competition. Borican accumulated 2,947 points, the result of three first places, a fifth and a seventh.

The runner-up was the bespectacled Boston College track captain, William Gilligan, who had 2,721.

The following five posts went to representatives of Seton Hall Prep of South Orange: Ed Styrna, James Gibbons, James O'Hearn, Ron Mead and Paul Plummer, in that order.

BURTON'S PLACING SURPRISE

The biggest surprise was the failure of the 6-foot 6-inch Winged Foot star, William Burton, former St. Anselm football player, to place better than next to last. He was runner-up to Borican in last year's competition, when the New Jersey ace set a new American record score of 3,304. A disqualification in the 200-meter dash for running out of his lane proved disastrous to Burton.

Performances in general were not up to those registered at last year's meet in Jersey City chiefly because of the slowness of the track and a brisk wind.

While Borican was conceded the championship almost from the start there was considerable speculation as to how the other positions would be filled. Gilligan was not thought to be in the running after the first three events, but his comeback with a triumph in the discus, won last year by Burton, and third place in the 1,500 meters sent him into the runner-up berth.

The champion came through with victories in the same three events he won last year, the broad jump with 22 feet 2¼ inches, the 200 meters in 0:23.1 and the 1,500 meters in 4:29. He was runner-up in the two remaining contests in 1938, but this time he could do no better than fifth in the javelin, which Burton won again, and seventh in the discus.

SET FOUR WORLD MARKS

Competing indoors for the first time last season, Borican set four world records in addition to winning the national 1,000-meter title. He created standards at 880 yards, 800 meters, 1,160 yards, or two-thirds of a mile, and at 1,000 yards. The last is unofficial.

One of the most interested rooters present was the 11-year-old blind youngster, Billy Richards of Pelham, a student at the New York Institute for the Blind. Before the meet began Billy, guided by his dad, "tested" the track and predicted that times would be slow for the day. He was right. He quoted the accepted American and world records for all the events, prompting Dan Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the A. A. U., to remark, "That boy knows his sport."

THE SUMMARIES

Broad Jump—Won by John Borican, Shore A. C. (22 feet 2¼ inches); James Gibbons, Seton Hall Prep (21 feet 10⅞ inches), second; Paul Plummer, Seton Hall Prep (20 feet 6¾ inches), third; Ed Styrna, Seton Hall Prep (19 feet 10¾ inches), fourth; Don Button, unattached (19 feet 5¾ inches), seventh; William Gilligan, Hall Prep (19 feet 4¼ inches), sixth; William Burton, N. Y. A. C. (17 feet 8 inches), seventh; William Gilligan, Boston College (17 feet 8 inches), eighth; Ron Mead, Seton Hall Prep (17 feet 4 inches), ninth; Steve Cronin, unattached (16 feet 2¼ inches), tenth.

NEBRASKA ROUTS KANSAS STATE, 25-9

N.Y. Times

MANHATTAN, Kas., Oct. 28—Nebraska used variations of its famed deep reverse twice today to score touchdowns and defeat Kansas State, 25 to 9, in a Big Six conference contest before 15,000 Wildcat homecoming fans. The Huskers came from behind after Jim Brock's placement in the second gave Kansas State a 3-0 lead.

Duwe spaked a 66-yard Kansas State drive in the second period to Nebraska 14-yard line, making 60 of the yards in eight plays, and Brock was rushed into the game to kick a field goal. But Nebraska came right back on the next scrimmage play, Rohrig catching a punt and twisting 80 yards to a touchdown. He failed to kick the extra point.

LUTHER GAINS 24 YARDS

As the third period opened, Butch Luther, on a deep reverse, picked up 24 yards before he was run out on the 13. Six plays later Hopp went over, but missed the try for point from placement.

Ed Schwartzkopf then recovered Duwe's fumble on the 24 and on the next play Luther, employing the same deep reverse, went the distance for the Nebraskans' third touchdown. The point try, again failed.

ANOTHER FUMBLE RECOVERED

The ever-present Rohrig recovered another Duwe fumble in the fourth period on the Kansas State 24 and the Huskers had their fourth touchdown in two plays. Rohrig passed to Knight, who galloped to the 9, then heaved one to Defruiter, who took it on the 6 and ran the rest of the way. Rohrig added the point.

The Wildcats started a frantic passing attack which resulted in Seelye's toss to Barnhardt for a marker with 25 seconds to go.

The lineup:

Pos.	Nebraska (25)	Kansas S. (9)

NO AMERICAN CITY WOULD BE READY TO STAGE 1940 OLYMPIC GAMES

By ARTHUR J. DALEY

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Oct. 31—Reports that the 1940 Olympic Games might be shifted from Finland to Detroit were branded yesterday as "utterly fantastic" by Gustavus Town Kirby, treasurer of the American Olympic Committee, a comment that met with the approval of all sports authorities fully cognizant of the situation.

It would be a complete impossibility for Detroit or any other city in the United States to take over the games on such short notice, except Los Angeles, the Olympic site in 1932. This is the only place with the facilities to handle so tremendous a project. And Los Angeles, highly successful seven years ago, hardly would be interested in a show doomed to failure.

Of many Olympic and other sports officials questioned about the proposition. Mr. Kirby summed up the matter most succinctly and his words can be considered as coming from all of them.

"It is utterly fantastic to think that Detroit or any other city, here or abroad, could hold the 1940 Olympics," he said. "They have to be in Helsinki or not at all. Even if the war would end tomorrow—which it won't—I don't see how even Finland could carry on.

COMMITTEE SANCTION DOUBTED

"The warring nations could not compete and a little bloc of neutrals might be the only contestants. There would still be bitterness and discord, much like the barring to Germany from the Antwerp games in 1920. An Olympic Games without the big nations would not be a real Olympic Games at all and I doubt that the international committee would recognize them as such."

Secretary Frederick W. Rubien made the same remark as President Avery Brundage did in Chicago when he was apprised Sunday of the contemplated shift to Detroit.

"Outside of the practicability of the move," Mr. Rubien said, "I feel certain that there must be some mistake. If the I. O. C. contemplated such a step we surely would know about it and we have heard not a word from the International Olympic Committee or Finland. Mr. Brundage is on the executive committee of the I. O. C. and he would know before any of us. Yes, there must be a mistake.

"The staging of the Olympic Games is too enormous an undertaking on so short a notice. Perhaps the I. O. C. is merely sounding out a few nations before it decides what to do with 1940. The strange part about it all is that not only is Finland going ahead but the last word we received from Garmisch-Partenkirchen, where the Olympic Winter Games are scheduled, is that the Germans are still reconstructing their facilities in spite of the war. I would say that it has to be Finland or not at all."

SEVERAL CITIES BID

Of course, the mere rumor that the I. O. C. was considering the transfer of the games to the United States immediately started a clamor for the show in various cities. Every one seemed to overlook a few salient facts.

Los Angeles, with nothing more to do than enlarge its stadium, build a swimming stadium and the Olympic Village, spent some $2,250,000 in 1932. The Helsinki budget (before Tokyo turned back the 1940 games) a mere 20,000,000 yen. Germany admits to 18,000,000 marks, with the ultimate sum probably four times that.

So an Olympics in the United States in 1940, without full representation, would be a white elephant for whoever would grab it. The Detroit Olympic sponsors who wanted the games in 1944 and are in line for 1948 would ruin all future chances by taking a hodgepodge meet in 1940.

Main talk in the Americas now is of holding Pan-American Games. Many cities have made tentative proffers, among them New York. Mayor La Guardia, speaking through a secretary, James M. Kieran, declared:

"We are very much interested in a Pan-American meet in connection with the World's Fair next year. Of course, having the Olympic Games themselves would interest us even more. We'll make every effort to secure one set of games or the other."

FAIR IS CAUTIOUS

Officially, the Fair authorities did not jump at the bait. "There will be no opportunity to consider such a move until after the Fair closes," said Leo Casey, chief of the public relations department. Unofficially, others connected with the Fair were inclined to regard it as "impractical."

As for Detroit as a 1940 site, that can be dismissed without further consideration. When the automobile city committee made formal bid to the I. O. C. last Summer for the 1944 games the prospectus listed few facilities as being already at hand.

They include the Coliseum, seating 15,000, for equestrian events; Olympia Stadium, seating 17,000, for wrestling, fencing, boxing and weight lifting; the Detroit River for rowing and yachting, and little else. Plans called for construction of a stadium accommodating 110,000, a swimming stadium for 15,000 and an Olympic Village.

Noe of these even have been started. When the games were shifted from Tokyo to Helsinki on July 14, 1938, it will be remembered, the Finns wondered then if they would be ready in time. And they already had a big stadium. Hence it can be easily seen that if they were dubious with two years' time, no Amrican city could do it in eight months.

National Basketball Series Scheduled in January

The 19th annual national men's basketball championships and the 9th annual national women's championships will be held at the National Gymnasium at Hitotsubashi, Kanda, from January 4 to 7, according to announcement today.

Entries will close on December 20 at the Japan Basketball Association's headquarters in the Marunouchi Building.

HUSKIES RALLY BEHIND COACH PHELAN'S ELEVEN

Christian Science Monitor

SEATTLE — When the entire men's cheering section of the University of Washington stormed onto the playing field immediately following the final gun that sounded the first victory of the season for the Huskies, the rest of a homecoming day crowd of 20,000 looked on in amazement.

The celebrating students, numbering more than 4,000, swarmed over the green turf, hoisted Coach Jim Phelan and the players onto willing shoulders, then tore down the goal posts that were imbedded in concrete.

An after-game celebration may not be unusual at many schools—but it is quite an event for Washington. And the remarkable thing about this show of school spirit is—it took a losing team to arouse the interest.

EXPLANATION IN ORDER

A little explanation may be in order. The University of Washington, now a school educating more than 10,000 students, has had a reputation for a lack of school spirit ever since becoming a mass-education school. The University is situated in a large city with two-thirds of the students now in organized houses and the majority living at home, away from the campus. Also, figures show that 75 per cent of the students are entirely or partly self-supporting, and many of these working students have little time for extracurricular activities.

So the recent years have rolled by, with just a small part of the student body expressing what is commonly called "school spirit." Even when Washington defeated Washington State 40-0 to gain the Rose Bowl bid, in the final game of the 1936 season, the student crowd failed to get overly excited.

This year has been one of the worst in Husky football history. On four successive weekends the Washington football team has tasted defeat. Yet even in losing, the team displayed such grand spirit and determination that it was reflected in the attitude of the student body.

Criticism of the coach by a local newspaper also worked its effect in rallying the students to the support of the grid mentor, and when they raised Coach Phelan onto shoulders and paraded him around the field you would have thought he had just given Washington a championship—rather than the first win in five games, and that against a team that hadn't yet won a game.

While all this was going on, the rest of the crowd stayed in the stands, appreciating this revival of interest. It brought much cheer to the old grads attending homecoming, as they remembered the "good old days" at school.

The football game itself deserves some mention, ending as it did with the unusual score Washington 8-Stanford 5, which included one touchdown, one field goal, and two safeties.

Stanford stopped a first-quarter Husky drive on their 4-yard line, taking the ball on downs. Instead of kicking out of danger, the Cardinals tried to pull a "fooler" by having Nurm Standlee skirt end from punt formation. But the play didn't fool anyone, including the Washington team, and Husky end Danny Yarr pulled Standlee down in the end zone for a safety, and Washington led 2-0.

Back came Stanford in the second quarter recovering a Washington fumble and driving to the 5-yard line before being stopped. Whereupon Jim Groves kicked a field goal, and the score at halftime was Stanford 3-Washington 2, which certainly didn't look like a football score.

In the second half, the Huskies got moving, and fullback Don Jones ended a concerted drive by scoring from the one-yard line. The conversion was missed, and Washington led 8-3. Back came the Indians on rampage, but the inspired Washington team stopped the advance on the 3-yard line. Two line plays netted nothing, and the Huskies took time out.

BLOCKED KICK TROUBLE

What to do? All season long blocked kicks had been disastrous. Last week against Oregon State a blocked kick in the end zone led to the winning Beaver touchdown. And the seniors on the Washington team remembered the game in Seattle two years ago against Stanford, when a blocked kick in the end zone gave the Cardinal team their winning margin.

Coach Jim Phelan decided for the Washington team with a smart bit of strategy. Substitute quarterback Elmer Berg was sent in to call a play. Berg took the pass from center, then stepped back out of the end zone area, for an automatic safety, making the score 8-5.

With a free kick allowed after a safety, Washingon got out of danger, and the game ended with that three-point Husky margin.

The Washington team is improving with every game, and may yet prove a bugaboo to el Trojan in their December game. The Huskies have won five in a row from Southern California, and this year the word comes from the South that Howard Jones is planning to end the string of losses.

Skating Championships To Be Held in January

Because the skating competition of the 10th Meiji Shrine Games has been scheduled for February 2, 3 and 4 at Kamisuwa, Nagano prefecture, the All-Japan championships have been moved up to January.

The speed skating events will be held at the Nagano rink at Hachinoye, Aomori prefecture on January 19, 20 and 21.

The ice hockey and figure skating events will be held at the Shibaura and Sanno rinks in Tokyo on January 26, 27 and 28.

KENTUCKY DERBY RAISED TO $75,000

N.Y. Times

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 30—The Kentucky Derby became a $75,000 added race today, the second richest in these United States. Colonel Matt J. Winn, impressario of Churchill Downs, announced the 1940 classic would be run Saturday, May 4, and raised its endowment from $50,000 to $75,000.

Only the Santa Anita Handicap, with $100,000 added, tops the sixty-sixth annual Derby. Kentucky's classic now is worth more than the Preakness, Belmont Stakes, Belmont Futurity, Arlington Classic, Narragansett Special, Pimlico Futurity, Arlington Futurity, Arlington Classic, New England Futurity or Massachusetts Handicap.

WINN EXPLAINS ACTION

Colonel Winn, white of hair and pink of face, smiled broadly as he confined his comment thus:

"The added money was raised because it was worth it."

He did say that the directorate of the racing corporation would decide shortly whether the purses for the second, third and fourth horses would be hiked, and work out other details.

Digging into the history of this one mile-and-a-quarter race for the country's best 3-year-olds one finds:

Owner H. P. McGrath of Aristides, winner of the first Derby in 1875, collected only $2,850 with a field of fifteen starters, the smallest sum in the race's history.

The first time the event passed the $10,000 mark to the victor was in 1915 when Regret's income reached $11,450. Regret is the only filly winner of the Derby.

$55,375 FOR REIGH COUNT

It was Reigh Count's triumph in 1928 that meant the most money to the owner—$55,375. The reason was that twenty-two thoroughbreds started, the highest number on record for the race.

Here's what the "added" means: Last year the winner was assured of $40,000, the second horse $6,000, third $3,000 and fourth $1,000, totaling $50,000. In addition the winner, Johnstown, brought his owner $25 for each entrant plus $500 for each starter. This made his net value $46,350 when his nomination and starting fees were deducted, since there were 115 eligibles but only eight starters.

14 WORLD SWIMMING MARKS CHANGED

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Oct. 30—Fourteen world swimming records claimed this year, seven for men and seven for women, are slated for registration, it is disclosed in the list of approved standards issued by Dr. Leon Donath of Hungary, secretary of the F. I. N. A. (international swimming federation). Eleven marks will displace bracketed records, while the others will set standards for 100 yards breaststroke and 100 yards back-stroke, events not on the federation table until last season.

Six records for men were established by Americans. Richard H. Hough accounted for three breaststroke records, doing 100 yards in 1:00.6 and dropping the marks for 100 meters from 1:09.8 to 1:07.3 and 200 yards from 2:22.5 to 2:22.

Ralph Flanagan clipped the standard for 500 meters free style from 5:57.2 to 5:56.5, Adolph Kiefer hung up a record of 0:58.8 for 100 yards back-stroke and a New York A. C. team of Thomas McDermott, James Reilly Jr., Peter Fick and Walter Spence shaded the figures for the 400-yard relay from 3:31.4 to 3:31.3.

Arthur Heina of Germany slashed the time for 500 meters breast-stroke from 7:18.8 to 7:13.

All the records for women were set by Europeans. Two claimed for American girls were annulled by subsequent better performances.

A mark of 1:16.6 for 100 yards breast-stroke by Miss Jane Dillard was beaten by Miss W. D. Heeselaars of Holland with 1:15.6 and one of 4:11.5 for the 400-yard relay by an all-star four of Mrs. Catherine Thompson and the Misses Emilie Draves, Claudia Eckert and Halina Tomska was cut to 4:08.1 by a quartet from the Copenhagen D. M. G. of Denmark.

Miss Ragnhild Hveger and Miss Inge Sorensen of Denmark scored twice. The former sliced the free-style marks for 100 yards from 0:59.8 to 0:59.7 and 500 meters from 6:39.1 to 6:34.3 and the latter cut the breast-stroke records for 400 meters from 6:19.2 to 6:16.2 and 500 meters from 8:01.9 to 7:58.8.

The records to be registered:

mission was informed that it had no jurisdiction to conduct an investigation at this time. However, it is the unanimous opinion of this commission and Governor Horner that none of the accused parties will be allowed to engage in any boxing enterprise in the State until there has been a complete hearing of the charges made by Mr. Thomas."

Such a hearing can be held only after one or more of the boxers or their managers seek licenses from the commission. The commissioners then asserted that if and when such an application is made, "there will be no license granted to any of the accused until every vestige of suspicion is wiped away."

The statement was signed by Chairman Joseph Triner and his colleagues, Sheldon Clark and James Fitzpatrick.

Galento and Thomas Barred in Illinois

N.Y. Times

CHICAGO, Oct. 30—The Illinois States Athletic Commission tonight barred Harry Thomas, Tony Galento, and Max Schmeling, boxers, and Nate Lewis and Joe Jacobs, managers, from Illinois rings pending a complete hearing of "fixed fight" charges made by Thomas.

The ruling was announced after the commissioners had discussed the allegations of Thomas, a former heavyweight fighter, that the results of his bouts with Schmeling and Galento "had been decided weeks before the fighters entered the ring."

The members met after Governor Henry Horner had ordered a thorough inquiry into Thoma's story of his alleged "dives." They pointed out that neither the three fighters nor their managers held licenses in Illinois or had applied for any. Their formal statement added:

"After consultation with Attorney General John E. Cassidy, the com-

ALL BUT 6 OF 88 CLUBS PLAYING IN ENGLAND DESPITE WARTIME

By R. MAILLARD STEAD

Christian Science Monitor

LONDON—Today let me give you the wartime lay-out in English professional soccer football, as from October 21, the starting date of eight new regional competitions devised in place of the usual tournaments in the four divisions of the English League.

The substitutes have been arranged especially with a view to minimizing the need for travel by competing teams and to fit in with circumstances in civil life here drastically altered by emergency conditions and restrictions. All but six of the 88 clubs in the League are taking part, the exceptions being Aston Villa, Sunderland, Derby County—three of the most famous First Division sides—Exeter City and Ipswich Town, from the Southern Section of the Third Division, and Gateshead, from the Northern Section of the same division.

NEW GROUPINGS

Clubs from all divisions are thrown together in the new groupings, which are made up like this:

North-Eastern (11 clubs)

Huddersfield Town, Leeds United, Middlesbrough, Bradford, Newcastle United, Bradford City, Darlington, Halifax Town, Hartlepools United, Hull City and York City.

North-Western (12 clubs)

Blackburn Rovers, Blackpool, Bolton Wanderers, Preston North End, Burnley, Bury, Accrington Stanley, Barrow, Carlisle United, Oldham Athletic, Rochdale and Southport.

East Midlands (11 clubs)

Grimsby Town, Sheffield United, Barnsley, Chesterfield, Nottingham Forest, Sheffield Wednesday, Doncaster Rovers, Lincoln City, Mansfield Town, Notts County and Rotherham United.

Western (12 clubs)

Everton, Liverpool, Manchester United, Stoke City, Manchester City, Chester, Crewe Alexandra, New Brighton, Port Vale, Stockport County, Tranmere Rovers and Wrexham.

Midland (8 clubs)

Wolverhampton Wanderers, Birmingham, Coventry City, Leicester City, Luton Town, West Bromwich Albion, Northampton Town and Walsall.

South-West (8 clubs)

Newport County, Plymouth Argyle, Swansea Town, Bristol City, Bristol Rovers, Cardiff City, Swindon town and Torquay United.

Southern, A. (10 clubs)

Arsenal, Charlton Athletic, Millwall, Tottenham Hotspur, West Ham United, Clapton Orient, Crystal Palace, Norwich City, Southend United and Watford.

Southern, B. (10 clubs)

Brentford, Chelsea, Portsmouth, Fulham, Southampton, Aledshot, Bournemouth and Boscombe, Brighton and Hove Albion, Queen's Park Rangers and Reading.

COMPETITIVE BASIS

Although it was at first decided to arrange the games between these clubs as "friendly" affairs, without the award of points and the compilation of standings—which would have made the matches seem rather purposeless to the "fans," who greatly relish an atmosphere of keen rivalry—the fixtures have been put on a regular competitive basis (two points being given for a victory, one for a draw) and each club is to oppose each other club in the same group twice, once "at home" and once "away."

The placing of London's clubs in two separate sections was a scheme not well received by football managers of the metropolis, because it involved London teams in journeys to the south coast and to Norwich and debarred certain historic rivals from opposing each other in "local Derbies" always keenly appreciated by supporters. However, the managers decided to accept the arrangement and to supplement it by a two-group competition under the jurisdiction of the Football Combination (the London Combination of 1914-1918 war days) with a line-up like this:

PLAY UNDER DIFFICULTIES

Of course, soccer this season is football under difficulties for all concerned. Teams have to be constituted to fit in with the response of players to the demand for national service, military and other-wise; transportation presents unusual problems; players are no longer paid a wage by their clubs or a bonus for a win or a draw but are remunerated for each match they play in; attedances in "evacuated" areas are restricted in numbers by decree of the authorities—a ground that can hold 60,000 spectators, for example, may admit only 15,000 ticket-holders—and financial problems are inherent in the fact that the clubs, other than those in the additional London tournaments, will have only 18 league engagements to provide income towards the upkeep of their grounds and must contemplate filling in 10 other Saturdays of the season with "friendlies," in which (as has already been shown this winter) the public is not particularly interested. In connection with this last phase of difficulty, there is talk of instituting some sort of regional "knock out" competitions on the Cup-tie lines.

Meanwhile, the Players Union, representing 1,500 footballers, recommends to the Football Association that registered professionals not chosen to play for their clubs should be given financial assistance from the Football League's Jubilee Fund, a commemorative fund raised to provide for cases of necessity in the professional Soccer world. The Union requests that the pay in the regional tournaments should be at least thirty shillings per match, to start with, and that an increase should be considered after a while. Another suggestion from the same quarter is that gate receipts should be "pooled" and any surplus, after the clubs' working expenses have been met, allotted for the distribution of bonuses among players at the end of the season. Two per cent of the "gates" will go to the League. It is urged, too, that players should be permitted by their own clubs to play for clubs nearer to their places of residence, in certain cases.

SCOTTISH PLAY

In Scotland, the war-time football problem has been solved by dividing the clubs of the two divisions in the Scottish League into an Eastern and Western group. In the West the competing sides are Albion Rovers, Ayr United, Celtic, Clyde, Hamilton Academicals, Kilmarnock, Motherwell, Partick Thistle, Queen of the South, Glasgow Rangers, St. Mirren, Third Lanark, Airdrieonians, Dumbarton, Greenock Morton, and Queens Park; while in the East they are Aberdeen, Alloa, Arbroath, Cowdenbeath, Hibernian, Falkirk, Heart of Midlothian, St. Johnstone, Dundee, Dundee United, Dunfermline, East Fife, King's Park, Leith Athletic, Raith Rovers and Stenhousemuir.

How will war-time football work out? That is the question. And the answer lies in all sorts of considerations. Such as the extent to which there becomes a player-shortage. And, possibly, a spectator-shortage, caused by lack of ordinary League "grip" in the Regional competitions, for which, so it is announced, no trophies of victory are to be presented to the successful sides, though the probability is discussed of these teams opposing each other on "knock-out" or Cup-tie lines, to decide what you might term the "national" war-time championship. What happened during the World War, 1914-1918, is nothing much to go on in weighing up the new war-time prospects, because conditions—not least of all in soccer itself—have altered very much indeed.

Keio, Teidai Ruggers To Battle Tomorrow

Rugby fans are in for a good treat Saturday afternoon when Tokyo Imperial University and Keio, two evenly matched teams, clash at the Meiji Shrine grounds.

The big game of the season will be played Sunday at the same grounds between Waseda and Meiji universities. The kick-off is scheduled for 2:30 p.m.

GRID COACHES TODAY MADE OF 'STERNER STUFF'

Christian Science Monitor

SAN FRANCISCO—What about football coaches?

Yes, what about these few hundred men across the nation whose headlined football squads fill stadium after stadium from September through December?

"What do they do . . . how do they do it . . . what kind of men are they . . . what are they made of?"

To answer the last question first—they are made of "sterner stuff." They have to be, for today when their footballers are at the top of the heap "there's nobody better than old coach so-and-so." But when they have had a lean year or two—or three—old coach so-and-so has gone by.

But despite the chances they take on being hounded by the alumni one day and paraded by the Chamber of Commerce and the national magazines the next, most of the nation's top-ranking coaches keep their feet on the ground and wear normal size hats.

GOOD CROSS SECTION

The coaches out here in the Pacific Coast Conference are a good cross section of the typical leading American gridiron mentor. (This excludes the thousands of high and prep school coaches of lesser light but almost without exception of the same high caliber . . . men who usually inspire fair play and good sportsmanship into youngsters.)

There isn't space enough to mention all the Coast Conferences coaches, except briefly.

Leonard B. "Stub" Allison of California's Golden Bears, Howard Jones of Southern California's Trojans and Claude "Tiny" Thornhill of Stanford's Indians are examples of the successful coaches.

"Tiny" has had his troubles recently and is now reaping a few thorns after the more prosperous years.

REMAINS POPULAR

But a coach doesn't have to be a constant winner to remain popular—in some schools. Dynamic Orin "Babe" Hollingbery of Washington State, who is more spectacular on the sidelines than his teams usually are on the field, is one of the coaches to lose often; but one of the most popular. Reason? He performs miracles with little or no materials.

Two West Coast colleges have made recent changes in coaches in the past two years and both schools are having exceptionally good seasons this year. These are Oregon with Tex Oliver, and University of California at Los Angeles with Babe Horrell.

HAS GOOD SEASON

Oregon State with Lon Stiner on the bench is having a splendid season. And even when the Beavers weren't going so well Lon was popular at Corvalis. But Jimmy Phelan up at the University of Washington has had the wolves hard at him for three years now. Jimmy has had good teams but no great ones, and the Washingtonians, used to championship crews, want championship football teams—or else. With little success this reason Jimmy will have to nip off a league leader or two to save him self.

Pity the poor coach. He must find the best material he can put his hands on. He must get these boys without laying himself open to the charge of "commercialism." Often that is extremely difficult where the job-offer markets of some schools are infinitely more attractively presented to high school stars than at others.

HIGH-SCHOOL PLAYERS

The coach must depend on alumni to scout out good high-school players and to secure them for the alma mater, and he must go out himself and try to interest boys to come to his university.

Once that period of "recruiting" is over the practice sessions begin. It's hard work. Day and night the coach drills his charges. By day it's work on the field. At night it's blackboard work outlining new plays, checking old ones.

Comes Saturday. The best combination goes on the field. Maybe they click. Perhaps they don't. The papers come out Sunday morning. Coach so-and-so is a great mastermind or he may be any number of other less complimentary things.

His telephone rings. An irate alumnus wants to know why the quarterback didn't learn to call signals in practice. Newspaper reporters work him over as press box quarterbacks, and the alumni association meets to discuss a new coach.

BOX OFFICE INFLUENCE

The commercialism of the box office at the national football stadia has tended to swing the game away from one of pure sport and fun to a series of week-end battles more skilfully planned with more work behind them than the general staff would put in on a military encounter.

Coaches are diplomats, character-builders, business managers, philosophers, chamber of commerce speakers, good fellows, and wizards all wrapped into one . . . they have to be. Does anyone want their jobs?

Wakashima Retires From Sumo Competition

Wakashima, 34, who has been one of the mainstays of the Dewanoumi Camp's professional wrestlers, has announced his retirement from the ring. He is currently performing in the Osaka tournament for the last time.

A native of Wakayama prefecture, Wakashima has had the reputation of one of the cleverest of the long-haired sumo men. He will act as an official of the Japan Sumo Federation.

SARAZEN WANTS NATIONAL OPEN IN SEPTEMBER

By WHITNEY MARTIN

Christian Science Monitor

NEW YORK—The squat squire, who wouldn't think of stepping on anybody's toes unless he has on hob-nailed boots, waddled in from the barn on his Connecticut farm, his always-busy head popping with another idea.

"Why don't they," he asked, "hold the National open tournament in September, instead of June?"

The squat squire is Gene Sarazen, one of our favorite citizens. He will talk freely on any subject, and he doesn't call a spade a long-handled, sharpened instrument for digging post holes. If his ideas don't coincide with the established order of things, it's too bad. And they often don't.

ROLLS OUT ARGUMENT

Anyway, the squat squire, who plays golf, rolled out an argument for fall open tournaments like a carpet, then tacked it down.

"As it is now," he said, "the Southern players and the pros making the winter circuit have a big advantage over the Northern players and the stay-at-home pros. They have been playing all Winter and come up to the tournament in top form.

"The amateur is held in the fall, probably to give everyone an equal chance. The college boys, and all Northern players, have all Summer to polish up their games.

"I suppose the idea of the June tournament is largely to give the winner, usually a pro, a chance to cash in on his victory during the Summer months. But if he won in September he'd have 12 months with the title just the same.

'ORDINARY YEARS'

"And furthermore," he added, "it would give the pros a chance to compete in both the American and British opens without rushing. Of course I know right now the British open doesn't figure, but I'm speaking of ordinary years.

"As for me, I can't practice in May. Why, I have to work on the farm in May."

Sarazen has had a fine year on the links, and modestly warns that next year is going to be a "Sarazen year." He has been scoring better by the week, and more than one critic thinks that if the open were held right now, the squat squire would be the man of the moment. He recently defeated Jimmy Hines, 10 and 9, in the finals of the Metropolitan P. G. A.

"It's my pitching club," he explains as the secret of his success. "You know, they always say: 'Pitch well and you'll put well.' I've been pitching well."

SPICK-AND-SPAN

And he didn't mean hay, although there's plenty of chance to practice that on his Brookfield Center acreage. It's really something, that farm with its spick-and-span barns, two big houses, well-fed cows and rolling fields looking down on a tree-studded valley. He really has the jump on the other pros who dream of a litle place in the country.

He's 37 years old, but his tenpin legs seem good for many a tournament mile in years to come. He's built like a wrestler, with his hands the only contradictory note in a symphony of power. They're small hands, soft and almost effeminate, and how they do what they do with a gold club is a mystery.

He's human all the way through and he can be just as big a duffer as the next fellow. He lost the Glens Falls open this year by a stroke—by missing a one-inch putt. He walked up to the ball and swung with one hand. He never touched the ball.

"I never did that before in my life," he moaned.

DROP KICKS MAY BE BROUGHT BACK TO FIGURE IN FOOTBALL

Christian Science Monitor

NEW YORK—The East and the Midwest, two sections that already have given football its outstanding dropkickers, are threatening to produce artists like Harvard's Charley Brickley, Illinois' Frosty Peters and Colorado College's Dutch Clark, who may re-introduce a play almost as extinct as "East Lynne."

The dropkick, largely because it's slower than a placement (proven by A. A. Stagg over a period of years' experimentation) and partly because dropkickers must be born and not made, has faded from the football scene in recent years, but a survey today shows that it's not quite so extinct as the Dodo bird.

Apparently the game's best exponent of the art is Nile Kinnick, Iowa's grand all-around back. Nile already has booted five points after touchdowns against South Dakota, two against Indiana and one against Michigan via the dropkick route—and that just about makes him the kingpin of the kickers.

CLARK A DROPKICKER

Pressing him for Midwestern honors is halfback Harry Clark of the Danville, Ind., Central Normal team. Clark's three dropkicks after touchdowns against Defiance represent the only three made in 89 games involving Ohio college teams this Fall.

Farther out West is a lad by the name of Chet Gibbens, a sub quarterback at Kansas U., who dropkicked his eighth-straight extra point Saturday against Colorado State. He split the posts six times last year and has done it twice so far his campaign. He's too little to play regularly of K. U. (150 pounds) but Gwinn Henry wouldn't trade him for a 225-pound tackle. One of his boots beat Texas 19-18 a year ago.

SCORED VICTORIES

Buster Riddle, New Mexico Normal quarterback, dropkicked an extra point and then a field goal to beat the Regis Rangers of Denver 10-7, and Walter Kelimoff of Greeley State in the Rocky Mountain Conference banged a Dutch Clark special against Johnny Mason's School of Mines team, although the Miners won, 6-3.

In the other hobed of the dropkick, the East, the nimblest-toed booter seems to be Ernie Savignano of Brown, a soph who has split the bars four times in extra-point conversions. His teammate, Guard Arnold Eggert has kicked two.

New York University's Violets have a monopoly with three specialists in Bob Connolly, Eddie Boell and Joe Consagra.

Otherwise the report is pretty glum for those who have exciting memories of one of the earlier era's prettier plays.

In the Southeastern Conference, only Eugene (Cowboy) Shaw of Georgia Tech stands between the kick and its undeserved oblivion. He has kicked a pair of conversions without having anybody hold the ball for him.

Clarence Olson of the St. Olaf Olsons beat Luther College 3-0, with a 15-yard dropkick in the closing seconds to keep the art alive around Minneapolis.

But the Southern Conference, the Southwest and the Pacific Coast report absolutely no dropkickers in sight so far.

Down Virginia way there is a schoolboy sensation—sort of a Bill De Correvont of the dropkickers—who is burning 'em between the bars. Home team. He has attempted nine dropkicks for extra points—and has made every one of them.

58,693 SEE NEW YORKERS BEAT CHICAGO BEARS IN PRO GRID GAME

By ARTHUR J. DALEY

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Oct. 23—In their study of the game of football the Giants apparently learned that foot is half of the word. The third of three magnificent field goals by Ward Cuff supplied the margin of victory at the Polo Grounds yesterday when a thrilled crowd of 58,693, second largest gathering in the history of the professional sport, watched the New Yorkers upset the vaunted powerhouse known as the Chicago Bears, 16 to 13.

This was a rousing battle all the way, a relentless hammer-and-tongs struggle, played to the hilt. The Giants, opportunists and defensive magicians, beat back Bear threats for three-quarters of the engagement, then yielded two touchdowns on four heartbreaking plays in the final session. But Chicago hit the airways too late and hence the stalwarts of Mara University moved through their eighteenth successive game without defeat, still tied with the Washington Redskins for the Eastern lead in the National Football League.

This New York team is what is known as a "money team." When the chips are down the Giants can be relied on to haul them in. They were at their superb best yesterday, checking the squad that came heralded as the greatest offensive combination in the game.

TOUCHDOWN SEEMS ASSURED

The battle was practically won in the few minutes it took to execute the last two plays of the initial quarter and the first two plays of the second session. The Bears had fled 60 yards to a first down on the 2½-yard line. A touchdown seemed a certainty.

But not to the Giants. Four times the Chicagoans came catapulting in and four times the Giant wall, hewed of bone and muscle, with a trace of granite tossed in for good measure, held fast. When the pile was finally untangled the ball rested with its snout almost touching the final line of chalk. The New Yorkers had taken it on downs.

This was the defensive high spot of a grueling, merciless conflict under the guise of sport. The tackling had the tender-hearted in the stands shuddering in dismay. The blocking was ferocious and for all of that, this was a clean game, the hitting within the rules and not the free-swinging Donnybrook that had been anticipated.

The net result was that there was not a serious injury on either side even though there were enough aches and bruises to make the players long remember this battle.

PLACEMENT COVERS 43 YARDS

The Giants won deservedly, although they received practically every break possible. That is the way it goes. The winner takes all the spoils. It was a 43-yard field goal by Cuff that sent the New Yorkers under way, and then, in the second quarter, a 35-yard march with Len (Rear Tracks) Barnum whirling the last 13 yards to score standing up that kept them going. Cuff added the extra point.

In the last period Cuff came through with another placement from the 40-yard line, marksmanship in its finest state. When the true-toed youngster stepped up to the 24-yard line a short while later, it was almost child's play for him to connect once more. This kick was so true that Referee Bill Halloran had his hands raised almost before the ball left the ground.

The Bears, however, were not yet done. Earlier, when Bernie Masterson was forced to the sidelines after a series of hopeless passes, Sid Luckman, the pitching artist from Columbia, relieved him. And when this crisis arrived, Coach George Halas sent in Slingin' Sid again.

It was so wise a move that the second guessers could not help but wonder why it had not been done before. Twice Luckman passed from deep in his territory and twice he failed. But on the third try he hit Dick Plasman right in the arms.

BEARS BACK IN GAME

Barnum missed the Bear end at the 40, Plasman wriggling clear. Tuffy Leemans caught him just before the end zone was reached, the pair of them sliding over the line together. The play spanned 68 yards and the Chicagoans were back in the fight.

A few minutes later Luckman passed to Bob MacLeod, the freshman back from Dartmouth. Ken Lunday of the Giants intercepted the ball as both leaped together. But MacLeod had his arms around it too, and both rolled over in a wrestling match for the ball. The Hanoverian came up with it for a 43-yard gain.

Once more Luckman passed. The elusive Bob Swisher snared the pigskin and unreeled an amazing 29½-yard broken field run that saw him shake free of a half dozen tacklers before Barnum and Leemans pulled him down on the 2½-yard line. The Bears were again on the 2½.

The Giants were not up to another incredible goal-line stand. So on the next play Joe Maniaci burst across on one of those fierce quick-openers for a touchdown. The three plays had spanned 75 yards. Automatic Jack Manders kicked the extra point and the aroused lads from Chicago were only a field goal from a tie, a touchdown from victory.

There were only 2 minutes and 15 seconds of play remaining at this stage and the Maramen were determined to keep possession of the ball. Two successive first downs used up the time and the Giants still were driving goalward when the final gun barked and a delirious crowd poured on the field.

This game was a strain on the nerves every minute. The Giants had only six scoring opportunities. They collected on four. The Bears had eight chances. They made only two. There was the difference.

Twice the New Yorkers gave up the ball on downs, once at the 15 after a pass interception had given them a break. Again they saw a 76-yard advance stall on the 4, but this, at least, backed up the Bears so deep that the following punt out of danger started the lone Giant touchdown march from as close as the 35-yard line.

The Bears had many more chances. They lost the ball on downs on the 22 and once more on the one inch from the goal. They went up to the 27, but Plasman failed with a 34-yard placement. They went to the 15, and, after the Giant defense slammed them back to the 32, watched Manders's 44-yard field-goal attempt go away.

When they reached the 37 in the third quarter, another of those damaging Giant interceptions, this one by Mel Hein, stopped them cold. Yet right after this Ed Danowski had a punt blocked by Plasman at the 38 and the Bears really began to roll. But as soon as they reached the 17 Joe Maniaci fumbled in most costly fashion, and, ever alert, the Giants recovered, King Richards falling on the ball.

MANIACI GAINS 102 YARDS

The fumble was a bad piece of work, and, in spite of it, Maniaci ran all afternoon with fury. He alone gained 102 yards of Chicago's total of 143. The other backs were easy to halt, but this 210-pound thunderbolt was in a class by himself.

No, that is not exactly true. Leemans was a grand performer himself. But his style is different. Tuffy kept wriggling through openings that weren't there and advanced 85 yards. How he did it is a mystery. Hank Soar gained 54 yards and Barnum 30 to supply most of the Giant gains.

These three also were the stellar defensive backs for the Maramen, along with Nello Falaschi and Cuff. But trying to pick out heroes in the two Giant lines is like trying to choose more valuable gold pieces in a mint. If any one caught the eye more than any other it was Doug Oldershaw, the freshman guard, in his first big game and Pete Cole, the most deadly downfield blocker in the game.

For the Bears there were two standouts, Joe Stydahar at tackle and Danny Fortmann at guard.

Perhaps no sounder example can be given of New York solidarity than the four plays following the Bears' first down on the 2½-yard line. The Giant first team was in for the first two plays of that stand. It stopped Ray Nolting inches from a score, and Jim Poole tossed MacLeod for a loss, back to the 2, on the next maneouver.

That finished the quarter, and in came the second Giant line. Osmanski burst up to the 1-foot stripe in his first try and came so close to scoring the second time that Coach Halas for one and Bullet Bill for another are still unconvinced that he failed.

The line-ups follow:

Pos.	Giants (16)	Bears (13)
L.E.	Poole	McDonald
L.T.	Cope	Stydahar
L.G.	Dell Isola	Fortmann
C.	Hein	Bausch

Rikkyo Favored to Top Kyoto Teidai Quintet

The annual East versus West collegiate basketball series will be played between the respective champions, Rikkyo University, and Kyoto Imperial University, at the Kyoto Second Middle School court on December 9, 10 and 11, according to announcement Friday.

Rikkyo, which recently retained its title as Kanto champions for the second straight year, is favored to win.

Abandonment By Helsinki of Games Believed Inevitable

With the Soviet penetration into Finland at several paces, it is widely assumed that the scheduled 1940 Olympic Games at Helsinki will be automatically abandoned.

In the meantime, the Japanese members of the International Olympic Committee, Dr. Matsuzo Nagai and Shingoro Takaishi, will withhold their replies to the I. O. C. headquarters in connection with the I. O. C. president's inquiries as to the possibilities to stage the 12th Olympiad in Finland, it was learned Friday.

It is understood that the Japanese I. O. C. members will wait for the Soviet-Finnish development for the time being before they send their replies.

Mayedayama Wins Sumo Title at Osaka

Winning 12 bouts and losing one, Champion Mayedayama won the championship honors of the professional wrestlers' tournament which closed Friday at Osaka.

Akinoumi, stalwart of the Dewanoumi Camp, who created a sensation last year by stopping Grand Champion Futabayama's winning streak over three years, also won 12 bouts and lost one—this to Mayedayama—but the honors went to Mayedayama through seniority in rank.

Futabayama and others of the Tachinami Camp did not compete in the tourney.

BROOKLYN BEATS EAGLES BY 23-14 COUNT

By LOUIS EFFRAT

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Oct. 23—Victory-starved for five weeks, the Brooklyn Dodgers showed 13,051 persons at Ebbets Field yesterday some real gridiron talent as they took the measure of the Philadelphia Eagles, 23 to 14, in a highly exciting struggle, featured by Ralph Kercheval's amazing kicking and a passing duel between Ace Parker and Davey O'Brien.

While the two aerial artists thrilled the fans with their bullet-like heaves, the veteran Kercheval rose to the greatest heights by booting three long placements between the uprights. In order, the distances of the former Kentucky star's kicks were 44, 38 and 45 yards. Adding an extra-point placement, Kercheval accounted for ten points, or the margin of victory.

MANDERS CARRIES 29 TIMES

Another Dodger who performed excellently was Clarence (Pug) Manders. Carrying the ball twenty-nine times, the erstwhile Drake player lost ground only once, and then because of a fumble. Exactly how terrific Pug's reverse plays were may be shown by the fact that of Brooklyn's 142 yards gained rushing, Manders was credited with 113.

It was Manders who launched the scoring in the opening stanza. After he had played the most prominent part in a short advance to the 1, following an intercepted pass by Kercheval, Manders crashed through the middle for a touchdown and Kercheval's placement made it 7 to 0.

Some neat passing by O'Brien and Franny Murray's plunging sent the Eagles within inches of the goal line, and from this point Murray counted on a wide sweep, thanks to some fine blocking by the diminutive O'Brien. Hank Reese then tied the score from placement.

FIRST FIELD GOAL TRY FAILS

Kercheval, who had missed a field goal from the 48 in the opening period handed Brooklyn the lead in the second, making good with an angle kick from the 44. Within a few minutes the Dodgers tallied again, Parker tossing a 47-yard pass to Perry Schwartz, who carried two Philly men on his back over the line. Bruiser Kinard kicked the point and Brooklyn was ahead, 17 to 7.

In the fourth quarter, crowded with action, Kercheval booted two more field goals within five minutes, the first from the 38 and second from the 45 on a angle. But O'Brien threw a 22-yard touchdown aerial to Bill Hewitt and Murray added the point midway through the session.

Later the Dodgers moved to the Eagles' 30 and on fourth down it seemed a perfect spot for Kercheval to attempt another field goal. For some mysterious reason, Parker punted into the end zone instead.

In the closing minutes O'Brien completed three long passes for first downs, but time ran out just as the Eagles moved beyond midfield.

The line up:

Pos.	Brooklyn (23)	Phila. (14)
L.E.	Schwartz	Kolberg
L.T.	Disend	Ellis
L.G.	Haak	Cuppoletti
C.	Mark	Reese
R.G.	Paplanoff	Hughes
R.T.	Kinard	Somers
R.E.	Young	Carter
Q.B.	Parker	Riffle
L.H.	Butcher	Arnold
R.H.	Kercheval	Newton
F.B.	Manders	Bukant

Score by Periods

Brooklyn	7	0	10	6—23
Philadelphia	0	7	0	7—14

Touchdowns—Manders, Murray, Schwartz, Hewit. Field goals—Kercheval 3 (placements). Points after touchdowns—Kercheval, Kinard, Reese, Murray.

Shozo Makino Enters Army At Toyohashi

Shozo Makino, one of Japan's best known swimmers who competed at the 10th Olympic Games at Los Angeles in 1932 and at the 11th Olympic Games at Berlin in 1936, entered the Army on Friday at Toyohashi. He is 24 years old.

Makino was mainstay of the Waseda University swimming team for four years, competing in the 1,500, 800 and 400 meter freestyle events, as well as the 800-meter relay. He is still the national record holder for 800 meters.

Harmon of Michigan Heads Scoring List

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK Oct. 31—Tom Harmon, Michigan's great back, who scored 21 points against Yale Saturday, boosted himself to the forefront of the nation's leading individual football scorers with a total of 73 points.

Harmon, who has been instrumental in keeping the Michigan machine rolling in high gear, has contributed the touchdowns, 10 points after touchdowns and one field goal to the Michigan total.

In second place is Don Lieberum, captain and quarterback of the Manchester (Ind.) College eleven, who has made 66 points via eleven touchdowns. He shades a newcomer to the leaders, Bill Sheridan of the Clarion (Pa.) Teachers, whose record stands at 62 points.

GREEN BAY PACKERS STOP DETROIT, 26-7

N.Y. Times

GREEN BAY, Wis., Oct. 22—Completely outplaying Detroit except for a brief scoring spurt in the first period, the Green Bay Packers ascended to a tie with the Lions for first place in the National Football League's Western division today with a 26-to-7 victory.

The game was played before 22,558. It was Detroit's first defeat of the season.

The Lions punched through to their touchdown in the first period on a spectacular 58-yard run by Fullback Bill Shepherd. Chuck Hanneman, end, kicked the extra point.

PASS INTERFERENCE RULED

Taking the ball at the start of the second period, the Packers marched 49 yards for a touchdown, the break coming when interference was ruled against Jim Tully, Detroit quarterback, during an Arnold Herber to Carl Mulleneaux forward pass. The gain was good for 21 yards to the Detroit 8.

Three plays later Herber tossed into the end zone to Andy Uram, halfback, for the touchdown. Tiny Engebretsen kicked the extra point to tie the score.

The Packers got another break when Charley Brock, center, intercepted Tully's forward and returned 20 yards to the Detroit 20. Three plays failed, then Engebretsen place-kicked a field goal from 34 yards out.

A forward pass near the end of the half gave the Packers their next touchdown. With the ball on Green Bay's 40, Herber passed to End Don Hutson, who grabbed the ball on Detroit's 40 and outraced Halfback Lloyd Cardwell to count. Engebretsen kicked the point.

THIRD PERIOD SCORELESS

The third period was scoreless, but in the fourth the Packers tallied again when Halfback Cecil Isbell passed from the Green Bay 49 to Hutson, who snared the ball on Detroit's 25 and evaded Cardwell to score. Hutson converted.

The Packers added the final points on a safety near the end of the game. Tully, attempting to pass from the end zone, was rushed by Mulleneaux, who blocked the ball.

MEIJI ROUTS WASEDA, 39-9 FOR RUGBY TITLE

With a vastly superior forward line, much the stronger in the scrums, Meiji triumphed over Waseda by the one sided score of 39 to 9 Sunday afternoon before 20,000 fans at the Meiji Shrine stadium to clinch the Kanto Intercollegiate rugby championship for the second straight year. The national title also was at stake and it meant the fifth won by Meiji. The score at halftime was 14 to 6 in favor of Meiji.

The great difference in the score was a surprise to the fans, who had expected a close score. But it was no fluke, as sheer strength accounted for the decisive victory by the Meiji ruggers. It was only during the first 14 minutes of play that Waseda seemed to have a chance. That was due to a penalty goal by Igawa after 2 minutes of play and a try by Sotoyama in 14 minutes which gave Waseda a 6 to 5 lead. But the lead was shortlived as Fuji scored a try in the left corner in 22 minutes to forge Meiji into the lead by 8 to 6. Meiji's forwards got going at this stage of the game and thereafter was the aggressor until the final whistle. Takahashi crossed the goal in 26 minutes but the try was not allowed because of interference. Fujiwara scored a penalty goal in 30 minutes from the 20 yard line and registered another goal from close scoring distance, right in front of the goal posts, and Waseda led 14 to 6 at half-time.

Those two penalties in front of the goal proved costly to Waseda and had a disastrous effect on the team. The outset of the second half found Meiji stronger than ever with Waseda, on the other hand, showing signs of weakening. Meiji's forwards virtually swept down the field, dribbling their way through the Waseda defense, and Fuji scored a try in 6 minutes. Then in 14 minutes, Otani picked the ball from the loose and crossed the final chalked line. Fujiwara picked goals on the two tries and Meiji led 24 to 6, clinching victory early in the game.

Meiji did not let up with its attack and Takahashi scored a try in 17 minutes. Fujihara kicked goal. Waseda's only score in the second half came on a try by Toyoshima on a scrimmage in front of the Meiji goal. Meiji scored again in 37 minutes when Igawa of Waseda missed his kick and Hanaoka picked it up to cross the goal line. Fujiwara kicked the goal. Meiji's final score came after a scrimmage in front of the Waseda goal when Saigo scored a try in the right corner. Fujiwara again kicked goal.

The line-up were:

Meiji: Saigo, Endo, Sakashita, Hayashi, Takashima, Hanaoka, Ito, Nijijima, forwards; Hirazawa and Fuji, halfbacks; Tsubakizaka, Takahashi, Otani and Nakagawa, three-quarters; Fujihara, fullback.

Waseda: Yamaji, Kimura, Sai, Toyoshima, Otagaki, Bansho and Izawa, forwards; Matsumoto, Endo and Kakutani, halfbacks; Ikeda, Suzuki, Sotoyama and Igawa, three-quarters; Nishida, fullback.

Meiji Wins Kanto Wrestling Championship

Meiji University's grapplers won their third straight title in the Kanto Intercollegiate Wrestling league Sunday night at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium at Kanda by taking the measure of the Waseda team, 6 matches to 3.

Keio finished in second place for the first time by vanquishing Senshu University, 5 to 4.

REDSKINS BEAT PIRATES, 21-14 BEFORE 8,000

N.Y. Times

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 22—The once punchless Pittsburgh Pirates of the National Football League threw a scare into the Washington Redskins today before dropping their sixth straight decision, 21 to 14, before 8,602.

In an exciting finish the Pirates penetrated to the Washington 26. Then they sent Coley McDonough back to hurl a desperate last-down aerial on the final play. Right End George Platukis raced across the end zone to try for the catch that might have meant a tie, but the ball collided with a goal post and fell on the field as the final pistol sounded.

Only a week ago the Redskins had triumphed easily over the Pirates, 44 to 14, but they met a more severe test today, although it looked like another rout when two forward passes clicked for touchdowns in the first period.

RUSSELL ADDS TWO POINTS

Frank Filchock threw one to Wayne Millner and the second to Andy Farkas, but it was a 25-yard jaunt through center in the third period by Reserve Back Don Irwin that won the game. Farkas converted from placement after the first touchdown, while Bo Russell added the other two extra points, also from placement.

The Pirates went into the air for both their scores, with McDonough heaving to Sam Boyd in the second period and to Boyd Brumbaugh in the last quarter. Armand Niccolai booted both points from placement.

The game was barely under way when the Redskins scored. The Pirates received the kick-off, but picked up only three yards on line rushes by Littlefield and McCullough's short punt went out of bounds on the visitors' 46.

Two plays lost two yards and then Filchock faded back and passed to Millner, who pulled in the ball far behind the Pirates' safety man and stepped across the goal line. The touchdown play gained 56 yards.

THREE TACKLERS ELUDED

For the Redskins' second touchdown Filchock flipped a pass in the flat from the Pirate 40 to Farkas, who eluded three tacklers and sped for the score. Then the Pirates stiffened and when Brumbaugh, former Duquesne University star, entered the game the Buccaneers drove 67 yards for their first tally.

In the third period Washington, starting on its 13, marched 82 yards. Bursting through center on the Pirate 25, Irwin found himself in the open and galloped over the goal line.

The line-up:

Pos.	Washington (21)	Pittsburgh (14)
L.E.	Millner	Platukis
L.T.	Edwards	Campbell
L.G.	Stralka	Gentry
C.	Carroll	Grabinski
R.G.	Karcher	Kase
R.T.	Barber	Dyle
R.E.	Malone	Sortet
Q.B.	Pinckert	Bond
L.H.	Filchock	McCullough
R.H.	Johnston	Tomasetti
F.B.	Farkas	Littlefield

Score by Periods

Washington	14	0	7	0—21
Pittsburgh	0	7	0	7—14

Touchdowns—Washington: Millner, Farkas, Irwin. Pittsburgh: Brumbaugh, Boyd. Points after touchdowns—Washington: Farkas, Russell 2 (placements). Pittsburgh: Niccolai 2 (placements).

CRISLER HAILED FOR LIFT HE HAS BROUGHT MICHIGAN

Christian Science Monitor

CHICAGO, Oct. 31—"Hail mighty Michigan!" once more rings in triumph in the western skies Fritz Crisler, the old University of Chicago end who gave up the idea of following in his father's footsteps in order to pursue the precarious career of sport, seems to have selected wisely.

Thrice in a row Crisler has been called in for coaching in major crises, and each time his arrival has meant better days for his impatient employers. First at Minnesota, then at Princeton, and now at Michigan he has charted the same propitious course.

The Gophers were in a sad estate when we went to Minnesota from Chicago, and while he was unable to reach the peak with them, he put the percussion cap to the momentum that fruited for Bernie Bierman, and just now is beginning to dry up.

RING LARDNER CRACK

Just before Crisler went to Princeton, the late Ring Lardner was asked in a radio interview whether he had seen any football that fall. "No," Ring replied characteristically, "I've been down to Princeton every Saturday!"

A couple of years later, however, Crisler had lifted the Tigers from low ebb to high tide in the East. It is now the same story at Ann Arbor. Harry Kipke's regime had run into stormy weather when Dr. Crisler was called into the case by shrewd Fielding Yost. And already with the great Hom Harmon and other flitting or pile-driving backs, Crisler has almost overnight restored the Wolverine prestige of old.

Last Saturday Crisler took another crack at his old Eastern rival, Yale, as Harmon and his pals ran up 27 points before calling it a day—and a good day, at that. In the closing minutes, long after the decision was over, Frederic Burr, Eli quarter, inducted a passing attack that covered 88 yards and netted seven points for the Blue. Harmon as usual was the spearhead of the Michigan attack, netting 21 of the 27 points himself. Harmon's best effort of the day was a 59-yard dash for the fourth Michigan touchdown in the third period.

MICHIGAN TRIED

While Michigan was thus once more going to town to try to build up the Big Ten's slightly run-down prestige in intersectional combat, two other leading Conference teams were back-sliding to leave the circuit under .500 in this work with 8 won, 9 lost, and 2 tied.

Ohio State put on one of its famous nose-dives against Cornell, which is rated one of the best teams in the East; and on the West Coast, a blocked kick sent Purdue down to defeat at the hands of Senta Clara, 13 to 6.

As with so many razzle-dazzle offensive teams, Ohio showed definite defensive shortage as the Buckeyes blew their ball game after running up a 14-to-0 lead in the first 22 minutes of play. That didn't last long, however, as Cornell got down to business. On the play following the next kickoff, Walter Scholl scampered 80 yards and crossed the goal line. A few moments later, with the ball on Cornell's 37-yard line, Scholl tossed 33 yards to Jack Bohrman, who ran the remaining 30 to the goal. Nick Drahos had missed the first conversion, so the score was still 14 to 13 in favor of Ohio.

MORE YET TO COME

But more excitement was yet to come. The Big Red team worked their way over from midfield in the third quarter. This would have been enough, but following a 43-yard sprint by Mort Landsberg, Drahos kicked a field goal from the Buckeye 18-yard line and the final count was 23 to 14 for the boys from Ithaca.

Coach "Bo" McMillin of Indiana, which meets the Buckeyes this week at Columbus, personally scouted the game, and what he saw may make the Buckeyes far from a cinch in their Conference combat this week end at Columbus. If Indiana, with Harold Hursh throwing, proves able to cash in on the Ohio demonstration of last Saturday. Michigan may be up there all alone by Saturday night, as the Wolverines should be able to puncture Zuppke's fighting but inadequate Illini.

The Illini put up a game and stubborn battle against North-western here last week, and should have scored twice before the Wildcats did. On one touchdown run a pass-catcher stepped out of bounds, and on the other he dropped the ball on the four-yard line after catching it. Amid such discouragements, the Illini apparently sagged for a moment, and Paul Soper, who for some time has looked like Northwestern's best and least recognized back, broke through from scrimmage for 74 yards and the touchdown that meant the ball game. A 28-yard pass from Bill De Correvont to Ted Grefe on the three-yard line set up the second touchdown as the Wildcats won, 13 to 0. Their performance indicated that they should have an even Stephen opportunity against Minnesota at Minneapolis this Saturday.

SUCCESSFUL SEASON

A successful season was guaranteed for Iowa by a classy 19-to-13 victory over Wisconsin on the fading Badgers' home lawn. As in their victory over Indiana, the Hawkeyes had to come from behind twice on Nile Kinnick's brilliant passes to snake the game out of the fire. Kinnick, who ranks with Harmon of Michigan as the peer of Conference backs, fired 14 passes in the game, seven of them connecting for 126 yards and three of them going for touchdowns.

As in the Northwestern game, passing while ahead led to the Badger debacle. Wisconsin's running game had earned them their second lead of the day, 13 to 12, when at the start of the fourth period the Badgers tried a pass from the Iowa 46-yard line. "Buzz" Dean of the alert and smart Iowa pass defense picked it up, and in three more passes by Kinnick the winners had the deciding touchdown.

This brilliant victory again shows that Iowa under Eddie Anderson has the old fight, and also that the Hawkeyes can score with the smart passing of Kinnick. This means that Purdue is no sure thing in their Conference contest at Lafayette, Ind., on Saturday.

Ohio State and Purdue having failed to pick up any battle flags for the Big Ten last week, the league will lose another set of colors undoubtedly this week as Chicago, which has been demonstrating its 10-cent theory of football lately, travels to Charlottesville, Virginia, for the train ride, and only, incidentally, to appear in a football exhibition with the eleven from the University of Virginia.

Kyoto Imperial Wins Kansai Rugby Title

Kyoto Imperial University's fifteen won the Kansai rugby championship Sunday afternoon at the Hanazono grounds at Osaka by defeating Doshisha University, 25 to 13.

Doshisha led at half-time, 8 to 3, but Kyoto Imperial rallied in the second half to score one try, two goals and three penalty goals.

CONACHER IS AT DEFENSE FOR AMERICANS

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 31—Manager Mervyn (Red) Dutton has decided to convert big Charlie Conacher from a forward into a defenseman, and therein seems to lie the key to the New York Americans' hopes for the coming National Hockey League season.

If Conacher becomes the charging ice general that Dutton hopes, the Americans may land higher in the standings than ever before. If he fails to make good, the A's hardly can hope to get better than fourth place, where they finished last year. Outside of Al Murray, they aren't overly strong at the blue line.

Playing beside the hard-bumping little Murray, Conacher scored a goal and generally marshalled the club to a 2-0 victory over the New York Rangers in an exhibition Saturday night. He was scoreless but impressive in last night's 3-1 triumph. While Red still was trying to use Conacher at forward, the Rangers were winning regularly in their exhibition series.

OTHER COMBINATION

The other defense combination will be sophomore Wilf Field and Chuck Shannon, who played last year with Syracuse in the International-American League. Earl Robertson, bulwark of the team through good fortune and bad, will be in goal again.

Np front, the Americans have been revised radically. Dutton gave up left winger Sweeney Schriner, his most effective forward in recent seasons, to get a flock of players from Toronto. Departure of the veteran Nels Stewart left another gap to fill.

The Amerks' manager thinks he has filled those holes to the best advantage with the acquisition of such players as Elwyn (Doc) Romnes, Harvey (Busher) Jackson and Buzz Boll from Toronto, and Jack Tomson and Murray Armstrong from Syracuse.

HIGH-SCORING COMBINATION

When he altered the plan to play Conacher on a line with Jackson and Art Chapman, Dutton put the little veteran Eddie Wiseman in to the right wing spot. With Jackson flying faster than in many seasons, the Americans seem to have a high-scoring first line combination.

Armstrong will pivot the second line, whose other members are Boll and the experienced Dorner Carr. Boll has recovered fully from leg injuries that hampered his play the last two seasons.

Romnes, a good playmaker and member of Chicago's world champions two winters back, will work between Tommy Anderson and Tomson on the third line to round out an attacking force that is younger and potentially stronger than anything Dutton ever had to work with before. Hooley Smith and Johnny Sorrell, old standbys, will be available for reserve work.

Dutton was enthusiastic as he prepared to lead his team east for the new campaign, declaring, "It's the best training season I've ever had."

Nakajima Bangs Out 4 Homers in Twinbill

Rightfielder Nakajima of the Tokyo Giants set a new record in Japan's professional league by hitting three consecutive homers in one game Saturday at the Korakuen stadium at Suidobashi.

He did so in the fourth, sixth and seventh innings against the Eagles, in one of two games as a sendoff to the Giants who will leave shortly for Manila. The final score was 13 to 6 in favor of the Giants.

Nakajima made it four homers for the day when he knocked out another in the nightcap of the double-header against the Senators, which was called off at the end of the ninth inning, a draw, 4-4, because of darkness.

3-CUSHION BILLIARDS PLAY STARTS

Presenting contestants in the second annual 3-cushion billiards championship which started Monday and will end on Friday night. The only woman entrant is Miss Masako Katsura of Tokyo. In the center or second person on Miss Katsura's left is Kinrey Matsuyama, the champion.

1940 OLYMPIC GAMES REPORTED CANCELLED BY BAILLET-LATOUR

Domei Tsushin

BRUSSELS, Dec. 3—The Peuple, influential local journal, today reported that Count Henri Baillet-Latour, President of the International Olympic Committee, has announced the cancellation of the 1940 Olympic Games.

It was understood, moreover, that Count Baillet-Latour indicated that the organization of the Olympic Games by America is out of the question, since it would be impossible for European athletes to go to the United States due to current hostilities.

A GUESSING GAME

NEW YORK, Oct. 30—The 1940 Olympics became an international guessing game today because of an announcement from Olympic headquarters in Switzerland that they might be transferred from Helsinki, Finland to Detroit.

Nobody could be sure what it was all about, inasmuch as Finland still is planning to hold the Games and Detroit has not asked for them recently, and isn't sure it wants them on such short notice.

STARTLING 'COMMUNIQUE'

There perhaps has been no more startling "communique" since Europe's war began than the proclamation of the International Olympic Committee in Lausanne yesterday that the 1940 Games would be held in Detroit if Finland renounced its right to stage them.

The committee's communique said all National Olympic Committees had been polled as to whether they would send teams to Helsinki and that if their replies were negative, as many were expected to be, Finland would renounce and clear the way for removal of the Olympics to the United States where many of the neutral nations were certain to compete.

The consternation this caused was something to behold.

'SOME MISTAKE'

Avery Brundage, President of the American Olympic Committee, retorted, "There must be some mistake. The committee would not award the Games to Detroit without consulting us and we've heard nothing about it."

In Detroit Mayor Richard Reading, with great civic enthusiasm, declared his city would "welcome the Games with open arms." But his own chairman of a committee to obtain the Olympics in 1944, Frederic C. Matthai, expressed surprise at the action and added:

"There isn't sufficient time to make plans for a bang-up Olympiad, and a track meet without France, Great Britain, and Germany in the contention would not be much of an attraction. Finland has a tremendous investment in the Games and it may mean bankruptcy for someone if they are not held."

$7,500,000 APPROPRIATED

Erik Frenckell, Vice-Mayor of Helsinki and head of the city's Olympic Games Committee, declared today, "Finland has no intention of gixing up the Olympic Games. If the war continues until next year, the committee naturally will be obliged to meet to consider the possibility of maintaining its original plan."

When the Games were moved to Helsinki earlier this year from Japan because of the undeclared Asiatic war, the city appropriated $2,500,000 and the national twice that amount to promote the affair.

PERMANENT DWELLINGS

A stadium designed to seat 62,000 with 45,000 permanent seats is in the last stages of construction. The first apartment houses of the Olympic village, intended to house 4,000 athetes, have been completed and others are being run up speedily. Twenty-four apartment buildings are in the group and four are designed as permanent dwellings for workers.

Only a few days ago the Olympic Committee of Finland announced that of the many acceptances received from foreign nations, not one had been withdrawn as a result of the war.

The confusion surrounding the Games extends also to the Winter Olympics, which were given Switzerland after Japan's withdrawal, and then passed along to Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, because no skiing was to be on the program. Now they are expected to be abandoned entirely.

UPSET FEATURES 3-CUSHION BILLIARDS PLAY

Akira Amada, the Kansai champion, lost two matches for a major upset as the second annual national three-cushion billiards championships got under way Monday at the Shimizu Building's hall in Kayabacho, Nihonbashi. He lost to Keizo Kubo, 30 points to 24, and to Sukezo Furuta, 30 to 27.

Twelve contestants will compete for five days in a round robin for the championship, which is held by Kinrey Matsuyama, second best player in the world.

Matsuyama won his two matches, defeating Nobuo Koroyasu, 30 to 21, and Haruhiko Morita of Tokyo, 30 to 16.

Miss Masako Katsura of Tokyo, the only woman entrant, defeated Haruo Hayashi, 30 to 22, but lost to Denichi Okumura of the Kansai, 30 to 22, and to Kubo, 30 to 17.

The result of the other matches follow:

Hiroya Ogata defeated Kubo, 30 to 20.
Hiroshi Kawahara defeated Koroyasu, 30 to 24.
Furuta defeated Kawahara, 30 to 21.
Shigeo Fujihara defeated Morita, 30 to 9.
Hayashi defeated Morita, 30 to 22.
Ogata defeated Furuta 30 to 23.
Okumura defeated Fujihara, 30 to 21.

SMYTHE SORTS NEW PLAYERS FOR TORONTO

Christian Science Monitor

TORONTO, Oct. 30—Just when Manager Conny Smythe of the Toronto Maple Leafs thought he had his first two forward lines picked, Peter Langelle's play went sky-high and scrambled plans for the line-up the Leafs will send against Boston's champions in their National Hockey League opener here Saturday.

Of course, Syl Apps will start at center between Gordon Drillon and Bob Davidson on the first forward line, and at least three of last year's four defensemen are available. But beyond that, all is doubt. Smythe will alternate his men and, perhaps, let the fans help decide.

SYRACUSE GONE

When the Leafs ended farm club relations with Syracuse of the International-American League, they were left with a player surplus which has led to a bewildering fight for positions.

Part of Smythe's troubles seemed over when Langelle was put between Sweeney Schriner and Gus Marker, and he proved to be a flash.

Billy Taylor and Lex Chisholm then became front-rank candidates for the post, but neither has shown enough to clinch it.

With Davidson and Schriner sure of two left wing berths, Murph Chamerlain has been scrapping Robert Heron for the other. Drillon and Marker have clinched right wing spots, while Regis (Pep) Kelly has been challenged for the other by Don Metz.

DEFENSE PROBLEM

Wally Stanowski has come up from Syracuse with Jack Church to argue over defense positions with Capt. Red Horner, Bucko McDonald, Reg Hamilton and Bingo Kampman.

To complicate matters more, goalie Turk Broda has had listless spells, while Phil Stein, another one of the boys from Syracuse, has looked like he'll be around quite awhile pressing for the position.

In spite of the complications, experts think the Leafs have plucked off five of the outstanding rookies of the year in Taylor, Stanowski, Heron, Chisholm and Metz.

Meanwhile, the three-year-old scoring firm of Apps and Drillon will do business at the old stand. If the proper linemates can be found for Schriner, who twice led the league in scoring while with the New York Americans, the Leafs will be supercharged on attack. They may go all the way to the Stanley Cup finals, as they did last spring.

Kimura Named Captain Of Waseda Tennis Team

Yasu Kimura, who has been making a name for himself in tennis circles, will lead Waseda University's team during the 1940 season. His election as captain was announced on Monday.

Shun Kayama was elected manager with Shisho Nakahara and So Taneda as committemen.

Masao Yanagizawa was named as member of the Students Tennis Federation, representing Waseda.

SANTA CLARA TOPS ST. MARY'S BY 7-0 SCORE

N.Y. Times

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22—Three swift passes, woven into a slashing ground attack, brought Santa Clara's, Broncos a 7-to-0 vistory over St. Mary's Gaels today to add one more upset to a Far Western season already crammed with reversals of the gridiron dope. It was the first defeat of the season for St. Mary's.

The lightning aerial attack, put together early in the third period, topped off an 80-yard drive to scoring turf.

Some 50,000 fans saw the Broncos employ precision attack that had the Gaels floundering all over the field.

The Gaels' attack, which had flattened Gonsaga and ridden over California, bogged down before the hard-charging Santa Clara forwards. Only three times was St. Mary's able to cross the midfield stripe. The nearest it reached Santa Clara's goal was in the opening quarter—to the 26-yard line.

In contrast, Santa Clara ran most of its plays in St. Mary's territory. Outstanding in the victors' line were Rupert Thorton, a substitute guard; John Schiechl, center, and Lacey, the crashing end. Johnson was the back-field star of the day.

Santa Clara made ten first downs to St. Mary's two and had an equally big advantage in yards gained from scrimmage and passing.

Last year, when Santa Clara was the same score which decided today's encounter.

CLEVELAND BEATS CHICAGO ELEVEN, 24-0

N.Y. Times

CHICAGO, Oct. 22—The powerless Chicago Cardinals dropped their sixth National Football League game today to a smooth-passing Cleveland eleven, 24 to 0, before 10,000 spectators.

The Cleveland victory dropped the Cards deeper into the Western Division cellar and gave the Rams a record of two victories in six games. Chicago never seriously threatened, registering only four first downs, one on a penalty, and gaining only 68 yards on the ground and in the air.

The Rams connected for their first touchdown in the opening period, starting the driven on their 47. John Drake reeled off 27 yards at right end and Parker Hall completed three passes that put the ball on the Cards' 3. Drake then rammed the line for the score. Lew Bostick place kicked.

Late in the second period, Milt Popovich punted from the Cards' goal line and Marty Slovak returned 12 to the Chicago 31. Hall tossed an 18-yard pass to Gaylon Smith and pitched another aerial to Vic Spadaccini for the touchdown. Bostwick again converted.

After a fairly even third period, the Rams culminated a 40-yard march with Smith's 2-yard line plunge for the third touchdown. Corby Davis kicked the point from placement. Later in the quarter another Ram advance bogged down and Davis dropped back to the 27 and kicked a field goal.

The line-up:

Pos.	Cleveland (24)	Cardinals (0)
L.E.	Benton	Mason
L.T.	Neihaus	Blazine
L.G.	Livingston	Sabados
C.	Conkright	Aldrich

Reds Release Simmons, Veteran Outfielder

N.Y. Times

CINCINNATI, Oct. 19—Al Simmons, veteran outfielder of the Reds, was given his unconditional release today, less than two months after he was obtained from the Bees.

A veteran of sixteen years in the Big Time, Simmons was acquired in the hope he would solve the Red's outfield problem, but played only a couple of games, then went out with an injury.

WATERLOO, Iowa, Oct. 19—Harry Craft, Cincinnati centerfielder, has gone to Rochester, Minn., for a physical check-up at the Mayo clinic, it was learned today. Craft was reported to be some eighteen pounds under his normal weight.

Friends here said that he blamed most of his trouble on poor tonsils and that these were to be removed following his return from the clinic. The outfielder winters here.

SUCCESS OF GREYHOUND RACING FEATURES BRITISH WARTIME SPORT

North China Daily News

LONDON, Oct. 18—Perhaps the most astonishing thing about wartime sport is the extraordinary success of greyhound racing. First to get official sanction for a restart after the big black-out, it was soon seen that the dogs had lost nothing in their appeal by the switchover to afternoon meetings. Surprised executives wondered if the luck would last. It has. In fact attendances on many tracks are steadily increasing each meeting. So is the amount of betting. At one of the principal London meetings it was estimated that on peak nights before the war the average invested on the Tote was £1.10s. per head. Since the war the average on this track has jumped to £2.8s. In other words, a 5,000 crowd invests round about £12,000. On a day when there were seven other meetings in London the Tote on another track actually handled £36,000.

Maybe the absence of horse racing is part explanation of these extraordinary figures, but it must be said greyhound racing executives helped themselves substantially by the way they tackled problems which seemed insurmountable. Among these were the seriously depleted kennels, the problems of trials, and transport difficulties. Programs suffered for awhile but the standard is steadily coming back to pre-war times.

Robbins, Welsh F. A. Secretary, has been asked by the Football Association to get together the Welsh eleven. England can field an eleven very nearly up to last season's best standard. So can Wales, and the matches will certainly raise a substantial sum for the Red Cross Fund. All depends on the attitude of the police to the matches. The games will probably be played on mid-week dates.

STRONG ENGLAND TEAM

The sort of England team which can be fielded for the Welsh matches is reflected by the strength of the elevens which meet at Aldershot this week. In the F. A. side are eight internationals—Hapgood, Male, Weaver, Hall, Bastin, Bartram, J. W. Lewis and L. C. Finch. The Aldershot eleven will include Sproston of Manchester City; Cook and Mercer of Everton; Copping and Stephenson of Leeds; and Cunliffe of Hull City, all of whom are at the Army Physical Training School. There will be 16 men who have been capped in the match. Aldershot's team is Greaves (Aldershot); Sproston (Manchester City), Cook (Everton); Mercer (Everton); Summerbee (Aldershot); Canning (Leeds); Raynor (Aldershot); Chalmers (Aldershot), Ray (Aldershot); Stephenson (Leeds); Cunliffe (Hull City).

Football League Clubs are not all satisfied about the new rule of a 1s minimum charge for matches. Many do not want to ask women spectators and soldiers, sailors and airmen to pay double the price they have been paying. Mr. W. C. Cuff, president of the Football League, however, said. "It is just a question of income. Clubs provide the games and they must have money to carry on. Gates are limited, and without a 1s. minimum charge, clubs in garrison towns especially would suffer." Several clubs said they were quite ready to carry on at the old rates. But a Manchester United official said, "While we would like to give the soldiers a help there are, of course, many clubs who can't afford the concession."

GOLF CLUB WAR MEASURES

The following temporary measures adopted by the Royal Wimbledon Club are typical of those being adopted by other clubs. They are for the period of the war only and will be rescinded immediately on the proclamation of peace.

When a guest is introduced or accompanied by a member the green fee payable shall be 5s on Saturdays and Sundays and 2, 6d on the other days of the week. Members while on active service with H.M.'s forces may, on application, be transferred to the Supernumerary List. No immediate payment of subscription will be called for.

Denyen Women's Team Defeats Y.C. & A.C., 8-3

The Denyen Club's women's team defeated the Y.C. and A.C. women's contingent of Yokohama, 8 matches to 3, Tuesday afternoon at the Denyen courts.

The Tokyo players took five of the seven singles and three of the four doubles matches.

MING CAPTURES RETRIEVER TEST

By EMANUEL STRAUSS

N.Y. Times

HUNTINGTON, L. I., Oct. 19—Ming, an English-bred, golden-haired Labrador, who won his championship in the field while in England, reached the top rank among retrievers in this country as he captured the important open all-age stake featuring the Women's Field Trial Club's three-day meeting, which was concluded today. The event was held at Kilsyth Farm, the estate of Gerald M. Livingston.

Handled by James A. Cowie of Commack and owned by Frederick T. Bedford of Greens Farms, Conn., Ming turned in a finished exhibition to lead in a field of thirty-three of the nation's best retrievers. The group was one of the largest starting in a retriever trial in the United States.

With scenting conditions better than yesterday, competition was unusually keen, Henry Eagle and Edward V. Ireland, the judges, being forced to call for three more series today following the one yesterday in order to make their decision.

PLACE TO OSBORNE DOG

Placed second to the son of Cock-Robin and Velvet was Shagwang Gypsy, a brown Chesapeake Bay, owned and handled by E. Monroe Osborne of East Hampton. The Delwyn Kennels' brown Chesapeake Delwyn Chesabob was third with Charles Lawrence's 3-year-old Labrador Meadow Farm Night fourth.

Certificates of merit were awarded to Sarona Same of Marvadel, the property of Maurice Wertheim, W. Harriman's Breas of Arden and Dr. George Patton's Banestone Buck.

That the final decision would prove a difficult one was indicated during the water test this morning. The field had been pared to twenty but after an exhaustive examination during which Ming and Meadow Farm Night were outstanding, twelve were called back for a land test. Ming's water work was particularly brilliant.

Meadow Farm Night's courage and persistency in the third series, the second one today, made him the slight favorite as five were selected for the final tests. Both Lawrance's Dog and Bedford's entry held fast, neither breaking and there was a great deal of speculation as the scene was shifted to the field.

It was here that Meadow Farm Night faded out of the picture to be replaced by Ming. Called upon to watch two pheasants brought down in different sections of the field and then to retrieve them one at a time, Meadow Farm Night ran into difficulty.

Ming's efforts were on a par with his other work as he plunged through the punishing cover with determination and speed. Both his retrieves were brought to hand in excellent style to insure the victory.

2 RECORDS SET IN 3-CUSHION BILLIARDS PLAY

Two national records were set Tuesday in the second day of the second annual three-cushion billiards championship at the Shimbun Building hall at Kayabacho, Nihonbashi.

Kinrey Matsuyama, considered the second best player in the world and who will probably go to America in the near future in conquest for more honors, registered one of them when he defeated Keizo Kubo, 30 to 10, in 19 innings, for a new low inning record.

Nobuo Koroyasu set the other record for a high run when he registered a 10 in the first match of the day. But he was defeated by Haruo Hayashi, 30 to 15.

Miss Masako Katsura, the only woman entrant, was defeated in her two matches, losing to Shigeo Fujihara, 30 to 27, and to Hiroya Ogata, 30 to 8.

Sukezo Furuta gave Matsuyama a tough fight, losing 30 to 26. Matsuyama won in 26 innings.

Ogata and Matsuyama are leading the parade with four victories in as many matches.

The results Tuesday were:

Hayashi, 31 innings, defeated Koroyasu, 31 innings, 30 to 15.
Fujihara, 50 innings, defeated Miss Katsura, 49 innings, 30 to 27.
Matsuyama, 19 innings, defeated Kubo, 19 innings, 30 to 10.
Kawahara, 40 innings, defeated Okumura, 40 innings, 30 to 21.
Amada, 25 innings, defeated Morita, 24 innings, 30 to 6.
Furuta, 51 innings, defeated Koroyasu, 51 innings, 30 to 28.
Ogata, 40 innings, defeated Miss Katsura, 39 innings, 30 to 8.
Fujihara, 39 innings, defeated Koroyasu, 39 innings, 30 to 25.
Kawahara, 56 innings, defeated Morita, 55 innings, 30 to 26.
Okumura, 40 innings, defeated Kubo, 39 innings, 30 to 18.
Ogata, 41 innings, defeated Amada, 41 innings, 30 to 23.
Kawahara, 51 innings, defeated Hayashi, 51 innings, 30 to 25.
Matsuyama, 30 innings, defeated Furuta, 26 innings, 30 to 26.

Rikkyo Basketball Team Going to Philippines

Rikkyo University's basketball team, which last week won the championship of the Kanto Intercollegiate league for the second straight year, will make an excursion to the Philippines during the forthcoming Winter holidays.

Sanction of the trip was given officially by the Education Ministry on Monday. This is virtually an about face policy of that established by former Vice-Minister of Education Ministry who voted against trips abroad of students athletic teams because of the wartime situation in this country.

CANADIENS HOPE TO MAKE GOOD SHOWING

Christian Science Monitor

MONTREAL, Nov. 1—The Montreal Canadiens have encountered nearly every imaginable difficulty since they won the Stanley Cup in 1932.

Falling attendance has been costly. Star players have faded. And they made a resounding flop in the 1938-39 season after being picked title contenders.

But there's one trouble that won't bother "Pit" Lepine, who will coach the Flying Frenchmen the coming National Hockey League season. His players aren't likely to suffer from inflated ideas of their ability because of preseason praise. And, says Lepine, "we may surprise a lot of people."

THREE HOLDOUTS

Lepine and Manager Jules Dugal, who piloted the club part of last season, have had to deal with many players who didn't like terms of their contracts. But now all are signed except Hector (Toe) Blake, left winger who led the league in scoring last season; Herb Cain, another left winger, and center Marty Barry, who joined the Canadiens after the Detroit Red Wings gave him his release a short time ago. They're expected to come to terms before the season opener against Chicago next Sunday.

Lepine is just as well pleased right wingers Johnny Gagnon, Bill Summerhill, Rod Lorrain and Earl that the experts aren't going overboard with optimistic predictions this year, but he hints his team will have some surprises.

"Let these boys work with me, which I know they will, and we might surprise a lot of people," he says. "I'm absolutely confident we'll make a play-off place, of course. Anyhow, it's a consolation not to have a whole lot of predictions to live up to like last year."

NEW DEFENSE

In addition to the three "holdouts," the Canadiens roster lists defensemen Cliff (Red) Goupille, Cy Wentworth, Doug Young and Walter Buswell to work in front of goalies Claude Bourque and Wilf Cude.

This defense is mostly a new one, for Albert (Babe) Siebert, who was to have coached the team, is gone; Stew Evans retired and Des Smith went to Chicago on an option technicality. Young, like Barry, was released by Detroit.

On the front lines, there are Robinson; centers Polly Drouin, Armand Mondou, Paul Haynes and Barry and left wingers George Mantha, Ray Getliffe and Lou Trudel, as well as Blake and Cain. Getliffe, most prominent newcomer, was bought from the Boston Bruins. Robinson was picked up from Chicago.

The only one of last year's forward combinations likely to remain intact is the Drouin-Lorrain-Trudel line, outstanding in exhibition games. Barry may be used to center Getliffe and Robinson, while Haynes may pivot for Gagnon and Blake, Mondou could center either line, and Mantha could step in at left wing on either.

FAMOUS FRENCH SPORTSMEN IN ARMY SERVICE

PARIS—A star-studded array of French athletes, including such world-famous names as Georges Carpentier, Marcel Thil, Jules Ladoumegue, Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon, responded to their country's call to arms in September and are now serving in their respective units at the front. First place must be given to Georges Capentier, France's most beloved sportsman who once fought Jack Dempsey for the world's heavyweight title. Carpentier is now a rugged sergeant in the air army.

Special mention must also be made of those well-known international tennis champions Jean Borotra, the "Bounding Basque," and his fellow-campaigner in many a championship doubles final Jacques Brugnon. Both are serving as captains in the same artillery unit and are now known as the "inseparables" by their fellow officers.

Marcel Thil, French middleweight boxing champion who put up such a stout showing in the United States recently against Freddie Apostoli, is also in artillery unit not far from where his sparring partner Gustave Humery is serving.

WRESTLER IN CRUISER

Albert Arnaud, the French wrestling and catch-as-catch-can champion, is on board one of France's largest cruisers. He spends his spare time training the crew in wrestling.

Jules Ladoumegue, one-time holder of the mile running record and France's best runner, is a sergeant in an infantry regiment.

Finally, Jean Urruti, the French hai-alai champion, is serving as private in the infantry.

Thus, France's athletes have set a sound example to their fellow-countrymen. However, they will drop from the public picture for some time to come, and will be serving their country "somewhere in France."

ROLLER SKATING IS PET U.S. INDOOR SPORT

BUFFALO, N.Y., Nov. 20—Roller skating with all the thrills and spills of hockey, football, boxing and six-day bike racing—that's what the customer gets for his money at a roller derby. Sponsors say it will become one of the nation's pet indoor sports.

They're rough and tumble affairs, these roller derbies and to top it all, they have what might be termed sex appeal. At any rate, each team is composed to five men and five girls, and the latter aren't "sissies;" they're skating dare-devils. There are plenty of falls during a derby, which goes on for eleven nights, but the steel helmets and padded uniforms worn by the skaters protect them to some degree from serious injury. More often than not, a bad fall is shaken off, and the skater rejoins the pack.

'THROWING PUNCHES'

Speeding round a hardwood track night after night on maple wood rollers, the skaters—men and girls alike—continually pushing, body-checking and blocking. Soon the skaters start "throwing punches" for good measure—they're not fooling. But they can't get away with everything. Two referees are on the alert for fouls, and penalty boxes are provided for skaters who break the rules.

The men and girls alternate on the track at 150 minute intervals, but in the event of mishap a girl may take a man's place or vice versa.

It's rather a scrambled affair, with plenty of excitement, but, according to the skaters, they are well paid for their efforts.

Points are scored by individual skaters lapping the field and passing members of the rival team. With the rules fairly universal, one point is given for passing one member of the opposition, two points for passing two members and five points for passing the entire team.

And therein lies the excitement. Usually, when a skater "breaks" for a lead, one or two members of the rival team are in hot pursuit. Skating on each other's heels, they push and shove, trying to pass each other while travelling at clip of from 25 to 30 miles an hour. The contestants, derby officials estimated, cover about 60 miles a night.

The usual procedure is for one member of a team to "break" for a lead while his or her teammates block the other team and slow up the field. But gaining the lap is only half the battle; and the easy half compared with passing members of the rival team.

Holding is a foul. But virtually everything else goes with the possible exception of deliberate tripping.

One method of "breaking" is known as the "chip," in which three or four members of a team form a chain by holding hands, and then hurl the last skater out in front of the pack.

Because of the uproar from the crowd during exciting moments, all the skaters have learned the deaf and dumb sign language by which they signal each other.

The possibility of a "derby" being "fixed" in advance is out of the question, sponsors of the merry-go-round insist. They explain that there would be no incentive for a "crooked" race as the split for the competing teams is on 60-40 basis.

The goal of those behind the scenes is to form a league with perhaps eight or more cities sponsoring their own teams. At present, there are several teams on the road, and in each derby one of the outfits wears the local colors.

Dominic DiMaggio Most Valuable Player In Pacific Coast Loop

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 9—The baseball paper "Sporting News" announced today that Dominic DiMaggio, outfielder of the San Francisco Seals and younger brother of the slugging Joe DiMaggio, star New York Yankee out-fielder, has won the most valuable player trophy in the 1939 Pacific Coast Baseball League.

Joe DiMaggio this year was awarded the most valuable player award in the American League. Joe received the Baseball Writers Association award, gaining 280 points out of a possible 336 to win by an overwhelming margin over Jimmy Foxx, last year's winner. Joe is to marry Dorothy Arnold, youthful Hollywood motion picture actress, on November 19.

PRINCETON SUBDUES HARVARD ON FIRST PERIOD ASSAULT, 9-6

By HARRY CROSS

N.Y. Herald Tribune

PRINCETON, Nov. 4—By the uncomfortable margin of a safety and a point after touchdown, Princeton defeated Harvard, 9 to 6, in Palmer Stadium this afternoon in a blazing revival of the ancient rivalry of the Tiger and the Crimson. Princeton's first victory over Harvard since 1935 came only after an underestimated Crimson team suddenly showed a startling return to dangerous gridiron operation.

The crowd of 45,000, a gathering of spectators sentimentally close to both universities, saw with astonishment the odds-on favorite Tiger team in many moments of impending peril as Harvard's ground and air attack functioned for the first time since the Chicago game. Charley Spreyer, an aggressive sophomore, did a great job for the Crimson as Torbey MacDonald, the injured captain, sat in the throes of deep disappointment on the bench.

HERRING LISTENS AS PARENTS ATTEND

Not far away, in the Princeton Hospital, Don Herring, the Tiger giant who lost his leg for the sport, listened to the game as it came from the radio. His father and mother attended the game in the stadium as their son wished them to.

There was a nip of frost in the air as the big crowd watched from the concrete horseshoe in its setting of burnished gold and bronze woodland foliage.

All the scoring came in the first two periods, and the teams played each other to a standstill in the last half. Princeton had many more opportunities than the Crimson, which made the Harvard resistance more surprising. The Tiger was always dangerous and on the verge of scoring more touchdowns.

In the first period Bob Peters got away a valuable punt, kicking the ball from the Harvard 45-yard line to the coffin corner. Howie Stanley was down under it and slapped the ball out of bounds on the 1-yard line. As Harvard lined up in the end zone Spreyer dropped back to punt formation. Instead of kicking, however, he threw a forward pass to Heiden, who was dropped on the 1-yard line after he caught the ball.

PETER'S PASS BRINGS SCORE

When Spreyer tried to kick, Bob Tierney, the Tiger captain, tore through and blocked the punt, Spreyer falling on the ball for a Princeton safety and the Tiger's first two points. Following Spreyer's free kick out from the 20-yard line Peters ran the ball back to Harvard's 49, and Dick Wells smashed around the Crimson left end for five yards.

Peters then heaved a long high pass to Stanley, who caught it on the 17-yard line. Joe Gardella tackled him, but Stanley pivoted out of his grasp, whirled and started for the goal line. Dick Bokum, the Tiger fullback, threw a gorgeous block on two Crimson pursuers and the Princeton end went over for a touchdown. The play covered forty-four yards. Jim Aubrey kicked the goal.

With the score 9 to 0 against them, the Harvard players came to life. Starting the second period on the Crimson 31-yard line, Spreyer threw a forward pass to Gene Lovett for a twenty-yard gain. George Heiden tried another pass and it was intercepted on the Tiger 30 by Bob Jackson, who ran it back to the 43. After Allerdice punted to Harvard's 10, Frannie Lee ran the ball back ten yards and then the Crimson started another march. Spreyer went through the tackles on spinners and reverses and Lee skirted the ends as Harvard brought the ball to midfield on a converted drive.

LEE TALLIES ON REVERSE

After Spreyer punted out of bounds on Princeton's 24, Van Lengen went around Harvard's right end for sixteen yards and a first down on the Tiger 40. Jackson gained eight and Van Lengen made it a first down on Harvard's 45. Dave Allerdice threw a forward pass which was meant for Jackson but Lovett intercepted it for Harvard on the 30 and raced back twenty-six yards before he tumbled on the Tiger 44-yard mark.

Harvard was set back five yards for taking too much time out. On the next play the ball went back to Heiden, who handed it to Lee on a reverse play and Lee cut off the Tiger's left tackle, got into the clear and started down the field. Heiden raced into the rampant Tigers and with crisp, efficient blocking put two of the most dangerous of the pursuers out of the play. Lee continued on his forty-nine yard gallop to score a touchdown. Frazier Curtis came in to kick the goal but his left-footed boot went wild when he was crowded by the charge of the Tiger line.

The entire complexion of the game changed. What was expected to be a rout became a close, hard fought game. The sting of defeats by Pennsylvania and Dartmouth hammered the Crimson into a football unit.

The Tiger's superior kicking got the Crimson into a bad hole again in the third period, when Peters booted a long kick which Stanley downed a foot from the goal line. This time the Harvard line gave Spreyer protection and he kicked out to Jackson on the 36-yard mark.

Jackson, the Princeton sprinter, broke away around Harvard's left flank for twenty-five yards and planted the ball on Harvard's 12-yard mark, Loren MacKinney, the Harvard end, smashed into the next play and threw Jackson for a five-yard loss. Peters's pass to Stanley failed to make up the loss and Harvard took the ball on downs on Princeton's 16-yard line. The Tigers were fighting hard to hang on to their slight lead as the period ended.

Princeton made desperate efforts to score in the final period. Peters dashed around Harvard's left wing on a reverse play for a twenty-yard gain and a first down on Harvard's 25-yard line. Dick Wells fumbled on the next play and MacKinney recovered the ball for Harvard. Heiden and Spreyer resumed their assault on the off-tackle plays but couldn't get a first down. Spreyer's punt was blocked and Purnell got it on Harvard's 41.

Peter's punt was downed by Aubrey on Harvard's 6-yard line, where Harvard rallied again and Heiden and Spreyer brought the ball out to the 22-yard mark for a first down. The Tigers were crowding the Crimson with grim resistance when Spreyer threw a forward pass to Devine. It was intercepted by Big Jim Worth. With only a minute to play, Princeton made another desperate attempt to cross the Crimson goal line, only twenty yards away, but Harvard took the ball away on downs as the game ended.

Harvard held its own in the rushing game and not only tied the Tiger in first downs, at seven each, but gained 140 yards to Princeton's 147. It was in passing and kicking that the Tiger had the edge and they used these two weapons to bring the hard-earned victory which makes Princeton a joyous happy college town tonight.

RIKKYO CAGERS PICKED FOR MANILA TRIP

Accepting the invitation by the Philippine Athletic Association, Rikkyo University's basketball team, which won the Kanto Intercollegiate title for the second straight year, will leave Tokyo Station for Manila by the 8:30 p.m. train next Thursday, and will sail from Kobe on board the steamship Atsuta Maru the following day.

After arriving in Manila, the Rikkyo team is scheduled to play the university teams there, including those of Ateneo de Manila and the University of the Philippines.

The team is scheduled to return home leaving Manila next January 18 on board the steamer Kamo Maru.

Studded with good shooters, the team is one of the best ever turned out in Japan. It will be remembered that it was the first contingent to give the Canadians a surprise last Summer by beating them after they had nosed out the All-Japan team in their debut.

The members of the Rikkyo team to go to the Philippines include Cho Ri Shin, Hotaro Takahashi, Masae Kataoka, Kin Seiko, Tsuneo Nomura, Seichi Kasahara, Yoshihiro Kamoshita, Kimio Mochizuki, Kin Jitsusei, and Captain Sho Kishi.

Ichiro Ito as director, J. I. Fowler as coach, and Hirozo Osegawa and Kenichi Fujisawa as managers, will accompany the team.

Meiji Favored to Down Hosei Gridders Saturday

Meiji and Hosei will battle at the Korakuen stadium at 2 p.m. Saturday in one of the last two games remaining on the 1939 schedule of the Tokyo Intercollegiate American Football league. Meiji is a heavy favorite.

Saigo Named Captain Of Rikkyo Baseball Team

Rikkyo University's baseball team next year will be guided by Hayafusa Saigo, pitcher, according to announcement Thursday.

Since his entrance into the University in April, 1935, Saigo has been the team's mainstay on the mound. He hails from the Kagoshima Second Middle School.

NORTHWESTERN TOPS MINNESOTA BY 14-7 SCORE

N.Y. Herald Tribune

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 4 — They turned young Bill de Correvont loose in the lengthening shadows of Memorial Stadium today and he rolled down the sidelines for a sixty-one-yard touchdown run that gave Northwestern a 14-to-7 victory over Minnesota.

The sun was low and the big clock on the scoreboard showed just four minutes and thirteen seconds to go when Bill ran on the field from the substitutes bench where he had spent most of the afternoon. The score was 7 to 7, and the crowd of 53,200 was moving toward the exits when the moment that had been denied the publicized sophomore all season finally came.

SCHOOLBOY OUTSPEEDS GOPHERS

On the first play De Correvont darted to his right, and his blockers broke him past the scrimmage line on the Northwestern 40. There Bill seemed to be hemmed in by a half-dozen Gophers but he turned on the speed that had made him the most famous high school player of all time, and on the Minnesota 35 he was out in the open. From there time, and on the Minnesota 35 he ran into the end zone to capture the glory that had escaped him throughout the season.

It was Bill's first touchdown in college play and he picked the most dramatic moment possible to live up to his pre-season press notices.

In fact it was De Correvont who sparked the Northwestern team to its first touchdown in the second period. He didn't score the points, but he smashed through tackle for thirteen yards and a first down on the Minnesota 5. From there Don Clawson rocketed across the goal and kicked the extra point to put the Wildcats ahead 7 to 0.

SWEEGER TAKES PASS OVER

Minnesota turned on its traditional power late in the second period and scored the touchdown that tied the score.

A poor kick by De Correvont, from behind his own goal, that carried only to the Northwestern 30 gave Minnesota the break that was turned into a touchdown.

Sweeger hit the line and then took a long pass from Harold Van Every on the Northwestern 1-yard line and sped into the end zone for a touch down. Mernick kicked the extra point and the score was tied.

Throughout the remainder of the first half the Gophers smothered De Correvont on every running play, and it appeared that Bill was destined for the fate that had been his in games against Ohio State Illinois and Wisconsin. In those contests he not only failed to score, but was unable to gain enough ground for a first down.

Baylor Air Game Stops Texas Christian, 27-0

WACO, Tex., Nov. 4—Baylor's Bears overpowered Texas Christian, 27 to 0, today in a remarkable recovery of form that put them back in the Southwest Conference race.

Jack Wilson and Jimmy Witt, working behind smooth line play, led the Bruins to their easy victory.

Witt scored Baylor's first touchdown in the first period through the line, and in the second quarter scampered fifty yards after receiving a long pass from Wilson. The third period was scoreless, but in the fourth Wilson Lucas scored on a pass from Wilson and a few minutes later tallied again when he recovered a Baylor fumble across the Horned Frog goal line. Robert Nelson, center, kicked two extra points from placement, and picked up the ball and lumbered across the goal line for his third extra point when his attempted place-kick was blocked.

Massachusetts State Bows to Amherst, 13-0

AMHERST, Mass., Nov. 4—Cashing in on two breaks—a pass interception and a fumble—Amherst scored two touchdowns today in the first six minutes and set back Massachusetts State, 13 to 0, on Alumni Field before a crowd of 6,000.

Firman grabbed a State pass three minutes after the kick-off and ran twenty yards to the 4-yard line. He then shouldered his way over the goal in four line smashes. Cordner's place kick for the point was wide.

Two minutes later Bullock, of State, fumbled on his 11-yard line and Lawton recovered for Amherst. Blood got away for seven yards and scored on his second attempt. Cordner made good on his try for the point.

MATSUYAMA FAVORED TO WIN BILLIARDS PLAY

Kinrey Matsuyama, world famous cue artist, continued to lead the play Thursday in the fourth day of the 5-day second annual three-cushion billiards championship at the Shimizu Building hall at Kayabacho, Nihombashi, by winning his two matches for nine victories without a setback. The final matches were to start at noon today.

Matsuyama defeated the Kansai star, Akira Amada, 30 to 27 in 28 innings, and the veteran, Shigeo Fujihara, 30 to 27, in 38 innings.

Hiroya Ogata continued to hug close to Matsuyama by winning his two matches for eight victories and nary a defeat. The indications are that the title will be decided when he meets Matsuyama tonight. Matsuyama is favored to retain his title.

Ogata defeated Haruhiko Morita in the first match of the evening, 30 to 19 35 innings, and then later in his second appearance, took the measure of Denichi Okumura, 30 to 28 in 29 innnings.

Miss Masako Katsura, the only woman entrant, won her second match in the tourney by defeating Kobuo Koroyasu, 30 to 18, in 38 innings. In an earlier match in the day, she lost to Hiroshi Kawahara, 30 to 28.

KENTUCKY TIES WITH ALABAMA

N.Y. Herald Tribune

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 4—Noah Mullins, galloping sophomore, all but ran Alabama out of Legion Field in the second half of a bitterly fought game today to give Kentucky a 7-to-7 tie before 13,000 shivering fans.

The Crimson Tide, a 2-to-1 favorite, scored in the second period after Holt Rast, sophomore end, blocked a punt and gave Alabama the ball on Kentucky 2. Spencer drove it across in two plays and Bud Waites added the extra point from placement.

Kentucky, unbeaten and untied before today's contest, drove fifty-five yards for its score midway of midway of the final period. Allen started it by tossing a short pass to Mullins, who sprinted down the sidelines to the Bama 26. A fifteen-yard penalty moved it up to the 11 and Mullins smashed out a first down a foot from the zone in three savage stabs at the line. He went yards into the end zone on his next try.

Hardin came back into the game to add the extra point and tie the score. That point broke a string of sixteen consecutive Alabama victories over Kentucky.

The final five minutes saw each team miss field goal attempts. Alabama's big Hayward Sanford tried from the 38-yard line but the effort was short.

Kentucky took over again with less than two minutes to play and Zoeller tried a field goal, standing on the Bama 20, with twenty-six seconds to play. His kick was short and wide.

FORDHAM SCORES EARLY TO TOP RICE, 13 TO 7, AT POLO GROUNDS

By RUD RENNIE

N.Y. Herald Tribune

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—Rice's Owls from Houston, Tex., the mystery team of the Southwest, remain a mystery to their followers, but not to Fordham. The Rams from Rose Hill, meeting the Owls for the first time, rushed them into defeat in the first half, held them in the second and won, 13 to 7, before 19,971 rooters in the Polo Grounds yesterday.

Two minutes after the kick-off and Fordham had a touchdown. Three plays and the Rams galloped eighty yards, scoring on a twenty-three-yard, zig-zag sprint by Steve Kazlo.

The Rams in that first half were like men who kept hooking brass rings on the merry-go-round. They had the ball almost all the time. Three times they knocked at the door in the second period, only to fail. Once they fumbled and lost the ball; then a pass was intercepted on the goal line; later a twenty-one-yard try for a field goal by Alex Yudikaitis was wide.

It wasn't until Bill Krywick intercepted one of Bob Brumley's passes that the irresistible Rams went to another score toward the end of the half.

This push covered thirty-three yards and came to a happy end when Dom Principe cross-bucked four yards for the touchdown. Kalzo had missed the try for the extra point after the first-period score. He had better luck next time.

So it was 13 to 0 in favor of Fordham at the half. Fordham had gained 254 yards to Rice's thirty-eight. Only twice had the Owls perched in Fordham territory. The farthest they had gone was to Fordham's 38.

But the Owls got a break shortly after the start of the last half. The Rams had received a punt and were working the ball out of their backyard. But Pete Holovak fumbled on his 30 and Marvin Dewoody plopped on the ball, recovering it for Rice on Fordham's 26. From there, with the aid of a five-yard penalty, the Owls scored to a touchdown in five plays.

Olle Cordill, Rice's most elusive back, made it first down on the 15. From there, Erie Lain, the highly touted passer let fly a long one into the end zone. Cordill and Principe jumped for the ball. Cordill jumped higher and caught it. And Livy Basset booted the extra point. That was Rice's only score.

BOTH ATTACKS SUBSIDE

Only twice thereafter did the Owls pass midfield. Their farthest advance was to Fordham's 36. And as for the Rams, they never did get into foreign ground. The rest of the game was played in midfield.

Rice was a disappointment to any one who expected anything spectacular. The Owls threw twenty-four passes of which only four were completed. Lain alone tossed twenty but only three were good. This lack of success wasn't entirely his fault. He was hitting receivers with the ball and the receivers were dropping it.

Fordham did almost no passing. Only two were attempted and none was completed. The Rams relied on their running attack. And at times it was quite flashy. Len Eshmont, Jim Blumenstock and Principe got away in the first half and gave the crowd a few thrills. Once Eshmont broke loose for forty-five yards. Principe sped for forty-three.

Eshmont's forty-five-yard sprint was the first play after the opening kick-off. It was a fake reverse; he found a hole and went right through the middle. Principe picked up two yards on the next trick. And then Kazlo found a hole as big as Holland Tunnel on the right side and went hurtling through for twenty-three yards and the touchdown.

RAMS SURGE SIXTY YARDS

Just as the first quarter ended the Rams went sixty yards. Principe gained forty-three on a reverse wide around right end. That was the last play of the period and gave Fordham the ball on the Owl's 23.

It was on the second play after the start of the second quarter that Principe fumbled and Douglas Tipton recovered for Rice.

But presently the Rams came charging back, only to fail when Fred Hartman grabbed a pass from Blumenstock intended for Vincent Dennery on the goal line.

The Rams were persistent, though. They came back again, only to miss the try for a field goal. And then, on the fourth comeback, they scored after Eshmont went nineteen yards through the middle to the Owls' 4. Principe carried the ball across, and this was the winning touchdown.

The game was unexciting. Even after the Owls scored, no one, except maybe Jim Crowley, Fordham coach, worried about their scoring again. Even that touchdown would not have happened except for the recovery of a fumble.

There was some good tackling by both teams. The Rams never let Cordill or Lain get away for any distance. Lain's passing, when good, was frustrated by alert defenders or by the clumsiness of his receivers. Cordill was the Owls' most useful player.

FORDHAM'S BLOCKING SPOTTY

Fordham's blocking was sometimes good and sometimes not so good. If it had been consistent, the score would have been heavily in Fordham's favor.

Rice, the mystery team, has now lost five or six games it has played this season. Its first trip to New York was not so pleasant. Maybe the Owls should play at night, without lights.

Fordham gained a total of 311 yards rushing to Rice's 93. The Owls made fifty-two yards passing in twenty-four tries. Fordham gained nothing by passing.

The most severe penalty was imposed on Fordham. It was caused by the gabbiness of Jim Haggerty, who came in for Lou DeFilippo and started talking immediately. That cost the Rams fifteen yards.

OHIO STATE ROUTS INDIANA, 24-0

N.Y. Herald Tribune

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 4—Ohio State's football team, rebounding from a defeat by Cornell last week, trampled Indiana, 24 to 0, today before a crowd of 40,873.

Ohio State forgot its only defeat of the season and turned a devastating running and passing attack on Indiana. The Buckeyes scored seventeen points in the first half and coasted home to their third Western Conference triumph.

Every Indiana offensive effort was smothered almost at the outset and the Hoosiers got past midfield only twice, once on an Ohio State fumble and once by an intercepted pass in the third quarter. It was Indiana's second conference loss against two victories. Indiana's heralded passing fireworks, handled chiefly by Hal Hursh, gained only six yards in eleven attempts.

LANGHURST SCORES

Don Scott, burly quarterback, supplied the spark for the Ohio State offensive with his accurate passing and delayed runs on pass plays when it seemed he would be trapped behind the line. Jim Langhurst ploughed through center for a touchdown on the first play of the second period and Scott made the conversion. Two dashes of fourteen and thirteen yards by Jimmy Strausbaugh marked this advance after Ohio State took the ball on its own 42-yard line on a short Indiana punt.

A few plays later, Hursh's punt was again short and came down on the Indiana 28. Scott, on a "pass" play, smashed to the 16. Three running attempts failed and Charley Maag booted a perfect placement from the 15-yard line and fifteen yards from the sidelines to make the score Ohio State, 10: Indiana, 0.

Taking the ball again, this time on the Indiana 49, Ohio wheeled up its aerial guns and Scott passed eighteen yards to Charley Anderson, and ten more to Esco Sarkkinen to the Indiana 18. A tricky forward-lateral pass, Scott to Anderson to Straugsbaugh, took the ball to the 6. Scott drove over center three plays later from the 9-yard line and kicked the extra point again.

LANGHURST GOES OVER AGAIN

With Indiana passing desperately in the last period, Langhurst intercepted a heave on the Indiana 12 and ran to the 7. A penalty for roughing against the visitors placed the ball on the 1-yard mark, from where Langhurst went over left guard. Maag converted.

In total yardage, Ohio State had 218 to Indiana's sixty-nine; in first downs, thirteen to four.

Nakamura Elected Captain Of Waseda's Baseball Team

Shortstop Yujiro Nakamura has been elected captain of the Waseda University baseball team for the 1940 season, it was announced Friday. He succeeds Yasuo Miyoshi, who was the team's regular shortstop for the last three years.

Nakamura hails from Osaka.

MATSUYAMA WINS 3-CUSHION BILLIARDS TITLE

His grey hair is getting thicker but the boyish-looking Kinrey Matsuyama, world's No. 2 three-cushion billiards player, showed an enthusiastic crowd Friday night that he is as good as ever. The scene was the final night of the second annual five-day championships of Japan at the Shimizu Building hall at Kayabacho, Nihonbashi. Exhibiting a number of sensational shots, the cue wizard defeated the up and coming star, Hiroya Ogata, of the Kansai, 30 to 25 in 23 innings in the final match of the evening. His run was a 4.

Ogata won a virtual moral victory, coming through with a high run of 9. His consistent play against the champion won him the plaudits of the fans. It was his only defeat of the tourney and he placed second to Matsuyama with 10 victories and one defeat.

The standings of the other contestants follow: Akira Amada, 7 victories; Sukezo Furuta, 7 victories; Hiroshi Kawahara, 6 victories; Shigeo Fujihara, 5 victories; Denichi Okumura, 5 victories; Keizo Kubo, 4 victories; Nobuo Koroyasu, 3 victories; Miss Masako Katsura, 3 victories; Haruo Hayashi, 3 victories; and Haruhiko Morita, 2 victories.

The results of the matches Friday follow:

Koroyasu, 35 innings high run 4, defeated Okumura, 34 innings, high run 2, 30 to 20.

Ogata, 30 innings, high run 4, defeated Hayashi, 30 innings, high run 4, 30 to 16.

Miss Katsura, 30 innings, high run 4, defeated Furuta, 29 innings, high run 7, 30 to 21.

Okuma, 32 innings, high run 6, defeated Kawamura, 32 innings, high run 5, 30 to 17.

Matsuyama, 23 innings, high run 5, defeated Kawamura, 23 innings, high run 5, 30 to 14.

Amada, 42 innings, high run 5, defeated Fujihara, 42 innings, high run 3, 30 to 25.

Furuta, 40 innings, high run 5, defeated Morita, 39 innings, high run 3, 30 to 13.

Ogata, 45 innings, high run 4, defeated Fujihara, 46 innings, high run 5, 30 to 15.

Matsuyama, 23 innings, high run 4, defeated Ogata, 23 innings, high run 9, 30 to 25.

SANTA CLARA BEATS STANFORD

N.Y. Herald Tribune

PALO ATLO, Calif., Nov. 4—Stanford University's new fancy pants didn't help a bit and Santa Clara University won today, 27 to 7, with a dazzling offensive display. The bright silver trousers were the only flashy thing about the Indians, who have lost four games and tied one this year.

Santa Clara's net yardage gain from scrimmage was 225 compared with 11 for Stanford. The Indians outgained the Broncos in the air however, 164 yards to 123.

Santa Clara made two touchdowns in the second period and two in the last. Stanford's strong moment came in the third period when the Indians took to the air after making no headway through the Santa Clara line. After a series of long passes by Frank Albert, Hugh Gallarneau took a toss on Santa Clara's 30 and outran two Bronco tacklers all the way to the goal line. Albert converted.

Santa Clara battered its way to the 2 at the end of the first quarter and scored three plays later in the second to open the scoring. A pass good for 64 yards, Richard Clark to William Anahu, brought another score in the same period. A pass interception by William Branu, tackle, and his long run to the goal, accounted for the third Bronco score in the fourth, and another theft of a Stanford toss set up the fourth.

The line-up:

Pos.	Santa Clara (27)	Stanford (7)
L.E.	Lacey	Graff
L.T.	Stubler	Anderson
L.G.	Hugan	Keusseff
C.	Schlechl	Verdleck

Bob Feller Fetes His First Birthday

Christian Science Monitor

VAN METER, Iowa, Nov. 3—Bob Feller reached man's estate today but the Iowa farm boy has been doing a man's work for the Cleveland Indians since he was 17.

Baseball's most publicized youngster who returned from the major leagues to get his high school diploma was 21 years old today.

Bob arrived by automobile from Chicago last night and was due to spend today in a quiet fashion at the Feller family's farm home near here.

POPULAR YOUNGSTER

Mrs. William Feller, the attractive mother of the pitcher, said she had "nothing special" planned for the occasion. Bob will spend the day visiting with neighbors and friends and Sunday will attend a dinner with relatives at the Roy Manders home near Adel.

To Van Meter folk, Bob is the same popular youngster who left three years ago to blaze his fastball to major league records.

Its the consensus here that Bob's exploits as a youth are only the beginning of a long career that will rank him with baseball's pitching immortals.

ACHIEVEMENTS

Here a few of the Feller achievements before he came a man:

1936—When 17 he struck out 17 Philadelphia hitters to tie the major league single game strikeout record. He won five games and lost three.

1937—Although hampered by a sore arm part of the season, he won nine and lost seven. Twice he struck out 12 Yankees.

1938—Established major league record by fanning 18 Detroit batters, but lost the game, 4-to-1. He won 17 games and lost 11.

1939—Became the American League hero in the All-Star game by allowing only one hit in 3 2-3 innings. After relieving Tommy Bridges, who had loaded the bases, Feller forced Arky Vaughan to hit into a double play before 62,000 fans.

Fanned 246 batters during the season, largest number since Walter Johnson whiffed 303 in 1912. He won 24 and lost nine.

Not bad going for a kid.

KEIO BEATS KWANSEI GAKUIN, 4-2 TO WIN INTERSECTIONAL SOCCER PLAY

Keio University's soccerites defeated the Kwansei Gakuin eleven, 4 goals to 2, Sunday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium in the 11th annual East versus West intercollegiate championship. Keio not only avenged itself of last year's setback at the hands of Kwansei Gakuin but made it nine victories for the East in the series as against one for the West, one game having ended in a draw.

A strong wind that swept across the field bothered the players considerably.

Both teams failed to show much in the way of an offense in the first 20 minutes of play with any sallies cut off by the speedy defense of the backs. It was a seesaw game in the middle of the field. Numerous penalties also marred the contest. Keio broke the ice in the scoring column in 27 minutes when Obata made good a penalty kick from the right flank of the Kwansei Gakuin 40 yard line. This goal proved the stimulant the Keio players had been looking for and they started a strong offensive game. Center Forward Ninomiya dribbled his way through the Kwansei Gakuin backs and booted the ball into the net for Keio's second score in 31 minutes.

The game thereafter saw Keio continuously pressing with Kwansei Gakuin resorting to long shooting. The visitors got a break, however, just before halftime when Okano's long kick hit the cross bar and Shige Nakamura was on top of it to boot the bouncing back ball into the goal.

Keio started the second half with a strong attack but failed to score. And Kwansei Gakuin deadlocked the count at 2-all in 21 minutes when Koizumi, a newcomer, outsmarted Goalie Tsuda during a melee in front of the goal to score.

Both teams began to show signs of tiring at this stage of the game. Keio forged into the lead once again in 25 minutes when Shinozaki penetrated the Kwansei Gakuin defense and scored. Keio clinched victory in 37 minutes on a corner kick with Ninomiya heading the ball into the net.

Keio's strongest factor was the outstanding play of its forwards. Kwansei Gakuin, on the other hand, was weak in this department of the game.

The line-ups were:

Keio: Watanabe, Obata, Ninomiya, Harima and Shinozaki, forwards; Takahashi, Tanaka and Kasahara, halfbacks; Kato and Ishikawa, fullbacks; Tsuda, goalie.

Kwansei Gakuin: Umezono, Okano, Shige Nakamura, Tajima, Koizumi, forwards; Kuramoto, Shin Nakamura and Tanabe, halfbacks; Iwata and Oye, fullbacks; Nakai, goalie.

Rikkyo Cagers Defeat Kyoto Imperial University For National Title

Rikkyo University, Kanto basketball champions, won the national inter-collegiate title Sunday at Kyoto by making it two straight victories over Kyoto Imperial University in the 9th annual two-day East versus West series.

Following up its 58 to 54 victory on Saturday, the Rikkyo quintet took the measure of the Kyoto cagers by a 44 to 41 count on Sunday, coming from behind to offset a 22 to 17 lead at the end of the first half.

TENNESSEE TOPS LOUISIANA STATE

N.Y. Times

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 4—Tennessee, rolling along toward another unbeaten season and hoping for a spot in the Pasadena Rose Bowl, clicked off another victory today—20 to 0 over Louisiana State. The Volunteers have won every game without yielding a point.

More than 45,000 persons, a Southern record, watched the mighty Volunteers, sweeping to a certain Southeastern championship, use everyhing in the book to score three touchdowns.

Halfback Bob Andridge scored the first touchdown in the second period on a 15-yard pass, All-America Quarterback George (Bad News) Cafego ran 15 yards through the line for the second score in the third quarter, and Fullback Joe Wallen took the ball on the end of a power drive and slammed the line for the third score in the last period.

L. S. U.'s highly touted sophomore passing unit, Halfback Leo Bird to End Ken Kavanaugh, failed to materialize. For one thing the Volunteers watched Kavanaugh too closely. For another, Tennessee showed an alarming tendency to intercept L. S. U. passes, no matter for whom they were intended.

FUMBLE PROVES COSTLY

Lousiana gave Tennessee its first touchdown on a pass from center, which was fumbled by Halfback T. J. Fife. Johnny Butler flipped a 9-yard pass to Andridge and he took it easily as he galloped across the goal line. Fullback Fred Newman converted.

An intercepted pass gave Tennessee its second opportunity to score. Bird's pass to Right-Half Charlie Anastasio was taken by Andridge. Cafego picked up 6 yards. Len Coffman made the first down. Then Bird intercepted a Tennessee pass and held it just long enough to be a legitimate fumble recovered by Tennessee.

Cafego passed to Sam Bartholomew for 15. Then Cafego hit the line, With L. S. U. players streaming from his flying legs, he dragged a couple of his opponents and the ball across the goal line. Cafego also converted.

Wallen and Butler alteranated to powerhouse the ball 40 yards through the line for the third touchdown. Wallen was the one to push it across for the final two yards, but Newman fumbled when he attempted to convert.

FIRST PERIOD SCORELESS

Through most of the first quarter, Tennessee's line plowed through L. S. U., but somehow the Volunteers' scoring punches always fell short of the mark. Once, Tennessee rammed the ball down the field to the four-yard line. L. S. U. dug in, took the ball on downs, then kicked out of danger Cafego distinguished the period with an 82-yard punt.

KEIO GRIDDERS HOLD WASEDA TO SCORELESS TIE

Keio's up and coming American football team registered the biggest surprise of the 1939 season by holding the strong and heavily favored Waseda eleven scoreless Sunday afternoon at the Korakuen stadium in the final game of the schedule. The championship however went to the Waseda team, which finished the season with three victories and one tie.

Keio, with nothing to lose, resorted to a daring attack from the outset of the game and started marching toward the Waseda goal in such a convincing manner that Coach-Player Fukuda had to yank out his starting second string men and send in his entire first stringers. Fukuda punted out of danger but Keio, through the efficient passing attack of Todo to Tomita, worked the ball to the 5-yard line where it lost the ball on downs. And it was not until Waseda had intercepted a pass on its own 20 yard line that it was able to put the ball in play in midfield.

Waseda began to get going in the second quarter on line smashes by Nakuwa and forward passes with Fukuda firing them but Keio put up a strong defense.

That old Statue of Liberty play worked beautifully for Waseda in the third quarter and the ball was inside of the Keio 30 yard line for the first time. With Nakuwa carrying the ball, Waseda advanced it to the 20 yard line but Keio put up a stonewall defense and took the ball over on downs.

The fourth quarter saw Waseda again hammering at the Keio goal but Waseda's backfield lost its coordination to lose the ball on the 17 yard line.

The game was a moral victory for Keio.

Meiji, which lost to Waseda, 6-0 on Thanksgiving Day and the championship as well, ran roughshod over Hosei, 49 to 0 on Saturday at the Korakuen stadium.

The line-ups were:

Jack Medica Becomes Assistant Swimming Coach At Columbia

Jack Medica, who holds world swimming records from 200 up to 500 meters in the freestyle and is well known in Japan having made three trips here, has turned professional, becoming an assistant coach at Columbia University in New York City, according to a special dispatch to the Yomiuri.

Medica won the 400 meter freestyle championship at the 11th Olympic Games at Berlin 1936, nosing out Shunpei Uto in the last 50 meters. In competition from the time he was 13 years old, Medica is now 26.

MICHIGAN DEFEATED, 16-7 BY ILLINOIS

N.Y. Times

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 4—Inspired, alert Illinois rose up from bitter disappointment in four previous games and crumbled the championship hopes of mighty Michigan today, 16 to 7, before an unbelieving crowd of 31,025 home-comers.

Whipped into the fighting frenzy, the Illinois suddenly took the play from Tornado Tom Harmon and his highly touted team-mates with a second-period field goal, lost the lead, then fired back with two touchdowns that demoraized the Big Ten favorites.

It was Michigan's first defeat of the season and the first victory for Illinois.

For days all the Illini have heard was the frantic cry "Stop Harmon." They couldn't stop him completely for he still is the greatest halfback in the Midwest, but they stopped him often and they stopped him when it counted.

ONE THREAT AFTER ANOTHER

Except for a 49-yard touchdown on a forward pass, Dave Strong to Harmon, the game was one Illinois threat after another.

Twice in the first period the undermanned Illini swept within kicking distance of Michigan's goal and each time Captain Mel Brewer's placements failed. He tried his first field goal from the 21 and the second from the 32. In each case fumbles by Halfback Freddie Trosko of Michigan placed Illinois on Michigan ground.

Trosko's third fumble was the first scoring break. He lost the ball on Michigan's 30 and Tackle Jim Reeder recovered for the Illini, Michigan held on the ground, but Brewer, kicking from the 32, drove the ball squarely between the uprights.

Michigan's power began to show after the kick-off. Harmon raced 36 yards around his right end to the Illinois 27, the George Rettinger intercepted Harmon's pass on the 13 and returned to the 22. Ralph Ehni quick-kicked and the Wolverines began to march to midfield from their own 20, with Fullback Bob Westfall ripping the Illini to ribbons.

HARMON GOES ACROSS

Once on the Illinois 49, Westfall took a direct pass from center and faked a plunge, but handed the ball to Strong, who passed to Harmon on the 35. Harmon streaked over the goal line unmolested. His placement was blocked by Reeder, but Strong picked up the bobbing ball and skirted end for the extra point.

Illinois also scored in the second period when Harmon fumbled and Wes Martin recovered on the Illinois 47. While the Illini were in the huddle, Fullback George Rettinger knelt unobserved near the sidelines. Jimmy Smith rifled a short pass to him in the flat zone and Rettinger sprinted straight down the chalk line for a touchdown. Dave Dillon's placement was wide and Illinois led at half-time, 9 to 7.

During the scoreless third period Illinois stopped a 30-yard Michigan drive on the 31, then Flip Anders recovered another Michigan fumble, this one by Joe Rogers, and a touchdown drive was on from the Wolverines' 34.

Smith, Rettinger and Don Elting carried the ball to the 24 as the period ended. On a reverse, first play of the fourth period, Elting swept to a first down on the 12 and picked up 3 more on the next plunge. On third down Smith crashed into right guard for 6 yards, then hammered the same hole for 3 more and the touchdown. Brewer place-kicked the extra point and Illinois led, 16 to 7.

Michigan began to crack both on offense and defense. The raging Illini cut down Harmon and Rogers for big losses before they could get started and twice drove into Michigan territory in the closing minutes of play.

TWO MARCHES HALTED

The first march ended on Michigan's 42, when Rettinger fumbled and the second died on the 15 where Michigan held for downs.

Michigan had a slight edge in first down, eight to seven, one credited to an Illinois penalty. The Wolverines gained a total of 102 yards to 98 for Illinois and passed 99 yards to 77.

But here's the statistical story:

Times lost ball on fumbles—Illinois 1, Michigan 5.

DUKE DEFEATS GEORGIA TECH BY 7-6 COUNT

N.Y. Herald Tribune

ATLANTA, Nov. 4—Fickle Dame Fortune squared two 1939 football accounts today and flipped that so-big-point-after-touchdown to Duke to give the Carolina Blue Devils a 7-to-6 victory over Georgia Tech. Only last week the same Dame Fortune had made that point serve Tech mightly in a 7-to-6 victory over Auburn and a few weeks ago she shoved Duke out of the unbeaten ranks with a 14-to-13 heartbreaker when Pittsburgh got the nod.

But today she was smiling before a full house of 30,000 fans when Big Bill Bailey swung his foot after a first-quarter Duke touchdown and the leather sailed true. But in the second period she was looking the other way when Roy Goree tried to knot the count.

Duke struck swiftly when the entire center of the big Blue line smothered Johnny Bosch's attempted quick-kick on the third play of the game and Mike Karmazin pounced on the ball on the Tech 33. Jolting George McAfee and Roger Robinson hammered it through the 9 on five fierce charges. George and Wes McAfee got five more and Robinson then bulled through to make it 6 to 0. Bill Bailey came back from the line for his first placement try of the year and sent the oval sailing through the uprights.

A few minutes later the Tech linemen smacked George McAfee after a short gain and the ball bounded free. Louis Parkerson grabbed it on the Duke 18. Bobby Beers fired a pass to Roy Goree for twelve yards and a first down at the 6. On the third try, Joe Barlett grabbed a Beers' pass in the end zone and it was 7 to 6. Goree lined up to defend a Tech record of ten points after ten tries this season but his placement was low and wide and that was the game.

The teams wound up the statistical battle with Duke gaining 156 yards running and passing, while Tech made 141.

The line-up:

Pos.	Duke (7)	Georgia Tech (6)
L.E.	Darnell	Ison

MISSOURI TOPS NEBRASKA BY 27 TO 13

N.Y. Herald Tribune

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 4—Laconic Paul Christman shattered Nebraska's hopes for an undefeated season today by passing the Missouri Tigers to a 27-to-13 Big Six victory with all the nonchalance of a co-ed powdering her nose at the junior prom.

He tossed and tossed—but never in a hurry. Once he shook off a pair of Nebraska tackles, faced to the left to survey a horde of possible receivers, then leisurely turned to the right and whipped home a touchdown strike.

It was the most lopsided score Missouri ever piled up on Nebraska here, and 18,000 spectators saw Christman and his rollicking teammates push the Huskers from out of the ranks of the nation's undefeated teams and from the leadership of the Big Six.

Christman tossed twelve passes and eight of them were completed. During the first half, four of them brought the Tigers three touchdowns and 116 yards gained. In the final two periods, when the teams played on a more even basis, he rifled home a like number.

In front of Christman was a line that charged so furiously 100 yards were assessed against it in penalties. Beside him performed Bill Cunningham, who did on the ground what famed Christman did through the air.

Even if Christman wasn't the entire Missouri team he was the whole show.

Before the game he told a news man "I'll pass those guys crazy. I'll have them out of the stadium at the half."

Literally, he did.

The line-up:

Pos.	Missouri (27)	Nebraska (13)
L.E.	Bud Orf	Preston

PRINCETON ATHLETE LOSES HIS LEG; DOCTORS HAIL YOUTH'S COURAGE

N.Y. Times

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 3—Donald Grant Herring Jr., 237-pound Princeton varsity football tackle and son of "Heff" Herring, one of the great Princeton football figures, underwent an operation here today for the amputation of his left leg just above the knee as a result of injury received in the Princeton-Brown game last Saturday.

Three hours before the operation the 21-year-old football and track athlete was notified that an amputation must be performed. He received the news with great courage.

The operation was performed at Princeton Hospital by Dr. Robert W. Johnson Jr., Princeton '12, of Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore. He was assisted by Dr. Ralph J. Belford, staff surgeon of Princeton Hospital, and Dr. Harry McPhee and Dr. Wilbur H. York of the university infirmary staff. Mr. and Mrs. Donald G. Herring Sr. of Lambertville, N. J., were at their son's bedside just before the operation started.

The operation was apparently successful. At 7 o'cock tonight Dr. Belford issued the following statement:

"The patient has reacted favorably from the operation earlier this afternoon and his condition is as satisfactory as can be expected."

An earlier bulletin issued immediately had described the operation as entirely successful.

FAINTED ON PLAYING FIELD

The injury that necessitated the operation was received in the first quarter and during the fourth play of the game between Princeton and the Brown University eleven at Palmer Stadium in Princeton on Saturday. Princeton had scored and was kicking off to Brown. Herring, 6 feet 4 inches of solid brawn and muscle, was sprinting down for the tackle when a Brown player hurled himself at the giant tackle in a terrific block. After the play Herring did not get up. His left leg was doubled up and he was in such pain that he fainted as he was being placed on a stretcher.

A report on the accident was made public yesterday by Dr. York, chairman of the Department of Health and Physical Education at Princeton University. The report follows:

"Donald Grant Herring Jr., a member of the junior class of Princeton University and right tackle on the Princeton football team, injured his left leg shortly after the beginning of the football game last Saturday. He was attended immediately by Dr. Harry R. McPhee, team physician, was removed from the field on a stretcher and was taken to the Isabella McCosh Infirmary of the university.

"Further examination revealed severe injuries to the leg at the level of the knee joint with such violent displacement of the tibia backward that the nerves and vascular structures especially were torn. Upon definite indication that circulation was being interfered with, Dr. Robert W. Johnson, a Baltimore surgeon, was summoned for consultation.

"An exploratory operation was made Tuesday night, Mr. Herring being removed to Princeton Hospital for this purpose. If confirmed the opinion that the main blood vessel of the lower leg was torn and there was a complete block. This condition continued to remain unfavorable and amputation was decided upon. This operation, above the knee joint, was performed by Dr. Johnson, assisted by Dr. Ralph J. Belford of Princeton, consultant in surgery of the university medical staff in Princeton Hospital, at noon today."

'PERFECTLY GRAND ATTITUDE'

After the operation Dr. Johnson said, "Mr. Herring had a perfectly grand attitude before the operation and stood it well. Every possible medical skill was exerted to save the leg. Unfortunately, injuries to the popliteal vessel are invariably followed by loss of limb, and so it was necessary to resort to surgery."

The task of informing the young athlete that his leg must be amputated devolved upon Dr. McPhee, who said that he received the news with admirable courage and fortitude.

Mr. Herring's father, a Princeton football star of thirty years ago and a Rhodes Scholar and winner of an Oxford "blue," said yesterday:

"Don won't be a cripple; he'll be able to walk around just as well as I do. All that it means is that he loses a year of football and a couple of years of track."

Throughout the day messages of condolences were received at the hospital from friends of the Herring family, which until recently lived in the town of Princeton. Messages of regret were received from the captains and coaches of many of the teams on Princeton's schedule this year. Coach Richard Harlow and Captain Torbert Macdonald of the Harvard eleven, which meets Princeton tomorrow, telephoned to the hospital this afternoon to inquire about Herring's condition and to express their regrets at the accident and its results.

In tomorrow's issue of The Daily Princetonian Edward O. Cerf, '40, of Portland, Ore., sports editor, will pay tribute to Herring in an article headed "Sportsman and Gentleman." The article will read:

"No one would wish more than Don Herring that Princeton would pass over his personal tragedy and bend all energies to carrying on the tradition of athletics which he so fittingly helped maintain. And Princeton can pay no more fitting tribute to the honor of a man who combined in the highest degree the two essentials of an athlete—sportsmanship and gentlemanliness—than by carrying on in the spirit which he himself carried into every contest."

The editorial will continue with a plea that the unfortunate incident should not be permitted to redound against intercollegiate football.

Rikkyo Cagers Leave Thursday For Manila

Rikkyo University's basketball team, which on Saturday and Sunday last defeated Kyoto Imperial University in two straight games to win the national title for the second straight year, is scheduled to leave Tokyo Station by the 8:30 p.m. train Thursday en route to the Philippines. The team will board the Atsuta Maru from Kobe at 11 a.m. Friday.

Ten players will make the trip, accompanied by two managers, Coach J. R. Fowler and Superintendent Ichiro Ito.

DIAMOND MOGULS NOT SPENDING

CHICAGO, Nov. 10—No one likes to get cheated, least of all the manager or owner of a baseball club, so there is a good chance the Winter meetings at Cincinnati next month may set some sort of record as a "tight" diamond talent market—on the cash side of the ledger.

Potentially, the approaching assemblage of minor and major league officials shapes up as the most active in years. The Cincinnati Reds won the National League pennant, yet they are expected to do plenty of dickering, aiming particularly at outfield strengthening. Even the incomparable New York Yankees have indicated they might try to swap First Baseman Babe Dahlgren to the St. Louis Browns for George McQuinn.

But the gentlemen who control the purse strings may be very wary of unloosening them next month. There have been too many instances of big money being passed out for high-salaried talent that failed to deliver. The Chicago Cubs, a year ago last April, paid the St. Louis Cardinals $185,000 and three players for Dizzy Dean—and the Cubs will go into next month's meeting still wondering what to do with Ol' Diz.

Henry P. Edwards, of the American League Service Bureau, believes more and more owners are being won over to the idea that it is safer to take chances of developing younger players raher than risk trading for or buying established stars.

"Anyway, several teams which did sell stars found out later they couldn't play the cash at first base or in the outfield," said Henry, who has been attending these Winter sessions for years.

Several observers believe a number of "house-cleaning" operations will come off at Cincinnati. The Cubs likely will put the crow bar to a lot of old timber. Frank Frisch, as Pittsburgh's new pilot, will be in the thick of the dickering, and Frankie usually is where the action is fastest. The rumor that the St. Louis Cardinals will sell Joe Medwick to either Brooklyn or the Cubs refuses to die out and some people are convinced big Hank Greenberg will not be a Detroit Tiger next season.

New Fencing Hall Opened by Nakamura

Tokichi Nakamura, who for many years trained American-born Japanese in the art of Japanese fencing with San Francisco as his headquarters, has built a new training hall at Amanuma, Tokyo, and will hold its opening ceremonies on Sunday.

Nakamura is in charge of the Hokubei Butokukai Kodo Gakuin.

Y. C. & A. C. Women Players Defeat Denyen Tennis Team

The women tennis players of the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club scored revenge by defeating the Denyen Club contingent of Tokyo, 15 matches to 4, Tuesday at the Yokohama club's courts.

The Y.C. & A.C. team took 10 of the 12 singles and five of the seven doubles.

Kon Ranked No. 1 Table Tennis Player

Takashi Kon of Waseda University has been ranked No. 1 table tennis player, under international rules, of Japan for 1939 for the second straight year by the Japan Table Tennis Association, according to rankings released Tuesday.

Karoku Okuno of Tokyo was ranked No. 1 for competition under Japanese rules for the second consecutive year.

Kon and Suekichi Suyama of Tokyo were ranked No. 1 for the doubles under international rules.

Miss Kiyo Yasuhara of Kyoto was ranked No. 1 for the women's rules under international rules, and Miss Kuniko Nagata of Kyoto for Japanese rules.

ENGLISH STARS PLAY 3-3 SOCCER DRAW

LONDON, Nov. 4—Selected teams of English international soccer players played a 3-3 draw before 15,000 persons today on behalf of Red Cross funds. The contest was staged on Everton's ground with the idea of stimulating interest in wartime soccer, an English Football League eleven opposing an All-British team.

Attendances at regional matches in England and Scotland showed improvement over the previous week. Goals were not as plentiful as in the preceding two weeks indicating a general tightening of defenses.

C. Napier, Falkirk sharpshooter, scored three goals for the Scottish team for the second week in succession. In England credit for the hat-trick went to D. Brown, Charlton Athletic; R. Farell, Brighton, and W. Robert, Wrexham.

The Rangers defeated Ayr United by 2—0 to chalk up their third straight victory in Scotland's west section. Celtic bowed to Queen of the South, 3—0.

Dai Astley, noted Welsh international, reappeared for Carlton Athletic and scored one of the London squad's goals in the 8-1 victory over Clapton Orient.

U.S. NEIGHBORS PLACE HIGHEST IN HORSE SHOW

Christian Science Monitor

NEW YORK, Nov. 10—That Latin America is producing some of the best military riders in the world was the concensus of horsemen here today following the capture by Capt. Ramiro Palafox, of the Mexican Army, of the International Military Challenge Trophy for the second year in succession at the National Horse Show here last night. This victory followed the winning by the Chilean Army team of the low-score jumping trophy Wednesday night, when it was placed first over both the United States and Mexico.

Captain Palafox, riding "Aquila Blanca," an American-bred gray gelding, put up one of the most brilliant riding performances seen at the show this year. Opposing him were more than 30 riders who brought out practically all the mounts of the three international teams competing in the show and a few entries from other branches of the service. Captain Palafox was the only rider to give a faultless performance over the special international course.

The Mexican rider captured this trophy a year ago riding the bay gelding "Azteca," and he tried again last night with this, his favorite mount, to repeat last year's performance, but "Azteca" was off-form and was able to clear only the first obstacle. He then brought out "Aquila Blanca," which put up a brilliant performance than brought cheers from 10,000 persons who witnessed it.

SHARE IN SECOND AWARDS

Mexico and Chile shared in the lesser awards, second ribbons going to the Mexican Army's brown gelding "Jarocho," jumped by Capt. Misael Ponce; the Mexican Army's chestnut gelding "Diablo," ridden by Capt. Humberto Mariles; the Chilean Army's bay mare "Chilena," jumped by Maj. Eduardo Yanez, and the Chilean Army's chestnut gelding "Colo Colo," jumped by Major Yanez. The bay gelding "Dan," owned by Lieut. John W. Morris, U. S. Army, and the gray mare "Andina," of the Chilean Army team, tied for third.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Victor Weil, of Elberon, N. J., continued their impressive showing of good horses and took a position as a leading ribbon winner at this show which seems unassailable. They gained their eleventh blue yesterday when they captured the $750 championship for three-gaited saddle horses over 15.2 hands with "Moreland's Maid," developed by Robert Moreland, of Lexington, Ky., and ridden by Frank Connor, superintendent of Mr. and Mrs. Weil's stables.

Reserve went to "Flashing American," owned by Mrs. Samuel Schiffer's Kilkare Farm, also of Elberon, N. J., and shown by Arno Funger.

Chief interest in the show centers, however, in the hunter division and reached a crescendo yesterday when "Holystone," owned by Crispin Oglebay, of Gates Mill, Ohio, was placed first over "Hexameter," owned by Alvin Untermyer, for the Henry H. Dickson Memorial Challenge Trophy. First presented in 1932 by Arrigo Righi for green or qualified hunters jumped by amateurs.

OLD RIVALS MEET

Both of these jumpers had previously won in classes which qualified them for the championship contests and each having defeated the other twice. "Holystone" was jumped by Miss Muriel Cleland, and "Hexameter" by Miss Patricia Bolling, both of whom are among the first women riders, and both horses and riders had a host of supporters when they came in the ring. Performance counted 60 per cent and confirmation 40 per cent. It was upon this latter point that "Holystone" won the blue rosette.

Another closely contested case was that of the junior five-gaited saddle horse championship, which was won by "Ella Wee," a little bay mare owned by R. W. Baker, of Greensboro, N. C., and ridden by Miles Wright. "Ebony Dream," a black mare owned by Sheldon M. Stewart, of Montclair, N. J., and ridden by Ray Cowdin, was placed second and reserve.

Marshall Against Pro Postponement

WASHINGTON—George P. Marshall, owner of the Washington Redskins, is against postponing professional football games because of bad weather. Postponement was advocated by Bert Bell, manager of the Philadelphia Eagles.

The Eagles were defeated by Washington, 7 to 6, in the rain last Sunday.

"A ticket to a Redskin game," Marshall said in a statement, "is a guarantee that the game will be played.....Football is a robust game. It takes strong people to play it and stout hearts to watch it.

"The rule in our league specifically states that in order to cancel a game both teams must agree. It would not be fair to our fans if we allowed Brooklyn or Philadephia to call off a game with us when a great number of people take the trips from here."

Paavo Nurmi Is Called To Colors in Finland

HELSINKI, Finland, Nov. 3—Paavo Nurmi, one of the greatest distance runners who ever drew on a spiked shoe, was called to colors today.

Nurmi, operator of a haberdashery shop since his retirement some years ago, will serve as a chauffeur.

Nurmi won five Olympic running titles. He won the 10,000-meter run and the cross-country event in 1920, the 1,500 and 5,000 meter and cross-country runs in 1924 and the 10,000 meter run in 1928.

Three of his world records still stand.

IOWA SNAPS NOTRE DAME STREAK ON KINNICK'S TALLY, KICK, 7-6

N.Y. Herald Tribune

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Nov. 11—The luck of the Irish went against Notre Dame today as it was toppled from the ranks of the unbeaten by an Iowa team which squeezed out a sensational 7-to-6 triumph.

It was the point after touchdown which had served Notre Dame so well all season that spelled the margin of defeat—and that point was provided by Nile Kinnick's drop kick.

Iowa used only fifteen players to end the Irish winning streak at six games and score one of the major upsets of the 1939 football season.

Forty-five thousand persons, the largest crowd to see a game at Iowa since 1935, saw the Hawkeyes take advantage of a break in the waning minutes of the second period to push over a touchdown and kick the point that won the game.

LUCK DESERTS IRISH

Twice this year the Notre Dame eleven had triumphed by the same margin as they lost today, but their luck failed against Iowa's handful of heroes.

Notre Dame had a chance to tie the score after pushing over a touchdown in two plays after the final period opened. But Lou Zontini kicked wide of the goal in attempting to convert.

Eight members of the Iowa team played the entire sixty minutes. Only two substitutes were made in the line and only two in the backfield.

In contrast, Notre Dame used twenty-nine players, including an entire new team early in the second period.

To Kinnick, senior halfback from Omaha and Iowa's candidate for all-America laurels, went the honor of scoring the touchdown and the point that won the game.

During the early part of the game the teams had been laying back, waiting for the breaks. When the break came Iowa was quick to take advantage. Kinnick intercepted a pass from Harry Stevenson, Notre Dame left half and raced twenty yards to the Irish 35.

INTERCEPTED BY SITKO

Kinnick drew back and fired the only Iowa pass of the game. It was intercepted by Steve Sitko, Irish quarterback, behind the goal. Sitko ran it out, tried a lateral and fumbled. Dick Evans, end, and Buzz Dean, back, fell on the ball for Iowa on the Irish 4-yard line.

Only forty seconds remained in the half when two plays later Kinnick smashed through for a touchdown. He drop-kicked the extra point.

Notre Dame's running attack, which had netted only one first down in the first half, began to click early in the third period.

Big Milt Piepul, Irish fullback and only player able to dent the Iowa line consistently, spearheaded a drive that netted four consecutive first downs and carried the ball to Iowa's 16-yard line.

But the Iowa iron men broke through and smeared Stevenson for a ten-yard loss. On fourth down, Stevenson tried a field goal from the 30-yard line, but the ball went wide of the goal.

But the Irish weren't to be denied again. They started another drive that took the ball to Iowa's 10 as the third period ended. Two plays later, Piepul crossed the goal standing up after a four-yard run.

IOWA PROTECTS LEAD

Skillfully Iowa protected its lead, with Kinnick's punting keeping the Irish a safe distance from another score.

One of the Hawkeye halfback's punts traveled sixty-one yards and went out on the Irish 6 during a crucial moment in the final period.

Notre Dame was passing desperately from its own 10-yard line when the game ended.

Kinnick and his sophomore quarterback, Al Couppee, played the whole sixty minutes, as did Evans and Erwin Prasse, ends; Andruska, center; Wally Bergstrom and Enich, tackles, and Ken Pettit, guard.

Notre Dame had an edge in almost every department of play except punting. Kinnick averaged forty-five and a half yards on his kicks as compared to forty-five by Stevenson. Theirs was one of the finest punting duels ever witnessed in the Iowa field.

The Irish made eight first downs compared to four for Iowa, gained 166 net yards compared to 107, and gained 43 yards on forward passes compared to none for Iowa.

FORCED TO PLAY SAFE

Kinnick's failure to pass, except for once, was the surprise of the game. But during much of the sixty minutes Iowa was on the defensive and forced to play it safe.

Kinnick gained twenty-six yards on running plays in nineteen attempts Dean made nineteen in three and Murphy, Iowa fullback, gained thirty-two in six.

Piepul piled up sixty-six yards from scrimmage in fifteen tries; Stevenson gained thirty-eight in nineteen and Lou Zontini made twenty-four in ten.

History repeated itself in this game because back in 1921 Notre Dame came to Iowa with a record of twenty consecutive victories and went home on the short end of a 10-to-7 count. Eddie Anderson, who took over the coaching job at Iowa this year, played end on that Notre Dame eleven.

Tri-District Soccer Championships Cancelled

The second annual tri-district soccer championships, with Chosen, the Kansai and Kanto competing, scheduled for Tokyo at the year-end, will not be held.

The reason is the decision of the Chosen Soccer Association not to dispatch a team here out of repentance, it is said, of a dispute between the Fusei and Enki teams on November 20 at Keijo during their battle for the championship.

PENN STATE DOWNS RIVAL, PENNSYLVANIA

N.Y. Herald Tribune

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 11—Penn State given on more than one chance in three, rose up and smacked down the favorite, Pennsylvania, 10 to 0, today, before a crowd of 45,000 in Franklin Field.

The Nittany Lions marched sixty-five yards for a touchdown in the opening quarter and never were in danger. They constantly menaced the Quaker goal line and clinched the game with a fifteen-yard field goal in the second period.

Penn, pitifully weak offensively and defensively, showed little of the fire that carried it to victories over Lafayette, Harvard, Yale and Navy.

State students, elated with the victory, poured out of the stands as the final whistle shrilled and started an assault on the Penn goal posts. The Quaker supporters met them in a wave and some 5,000 students and spectators staged a battle royal for nearly a half hour.

STATE'S PONY BACKS STAR

Indicative of the savage Penn State attack were the statistics, which showed the Lions rolled up a total of 242 yards from scrimmage, compared with 105 for Penn.

State's hard-running pony backfield proved will-o'-the-wisps which the high-tackling Quaker defenders were unable to nail. Steve Rollins and Johnny Petrella rolled up most of State's yardage by going deep into the Penn secondary through gaping holes cut by the sharp-blocking Lion forward wall.

Coffin-corner punting by Bill Smaltz and Lloyd Ickes kept Penn constantly on the defense. Leon Gajecki was an all-American at center for the invaders, while Cliff Engler, giant Penn tackle, was the Red and Blue's only consistent performer.

State took the opening kick-off and immediately reeled off two first downs. A short time later the Lions drove sixty-five yards for their touchdown, climaxed by a seventeen-yard off-tackle slant by Petrella. Ben Pollock's placement gave state a 7-to-0 edge at the quarter.

PENN DRIVE IS HALTED

Twice in the second period Penn drove into State territory, only to be stopped by interceptions. The Lions' deadly kicking finally forced Penn back to the 7, where a fumble set up the clinching field goal by John Patrick from the 15-yard line.

Play was in midfield through the third period, and Penn appeared about to roll when it pierced into State's territory early in the fourth quarter. Another interception halted this drive, and from then on it was all State. Play the balance of the game was deep in Quaker land, and State was on the 25, threatening to score again, when the game ended.

KANSAS STATE BEATS KANSAS

LAWRENCE, Kan., Nov. 3—Kansas made its best defensive stand after the game today as 2,000 Jayhawk students repulsed attempts by Kansas States sympathizers to uproot the goal posts following the Wildcats' 27-to-6 triumph in a Big Six football clash.

The gladiators surged up and down the field amid flying fists, and twenty minutes after the gun 18,000 noncombatant spectators were still cheering the spectacle.

In the game itself Kansas State hammered a threadbare Jayhawk line and, when necessity demanded, unveiled an aerial attack that brought yardage and points. Kansas State won and Kansas retained the goal posts but it was Ralph Miller, injured Jayhawk halfback, who starred in the game's most dramatic half minute.

The invading Wildcats already had 13 points when the lad who underwent a knee operation in September entered the game. He tossed 24 yards to Mill Sullivant in the end zone but the leather trickled to the ground. Miller faded back to State's 40 on the next formation and let go again. This time Jake Fry was in the end zone and this time the play netted 6 points. Then Miller turned and limped to the bench. He was in the game only 27 seconds.

WASHINGTON'S PASSES DEFEAT CALIFORNIA, 13-6

N.Y. Herald Tribune

BERKELEY, Calif., Nov. 11—The Washington Huskies and California Bears both booted around considerably this season in Pacific Coast Conference competition, staged a wild and exciting football game today with the Huskies taking the decision, 13 to 6.

The first quarter saw the Bears smashing through the Washington guards and tackles almost at will to set up the first touchdown, which followed after two plays in the second quarter. Anthony Firpo, California left halfback, passed from the Washington 13 over the goal line to Paul Semmens, right end. The kick for the point was blocked. Then the fireworks started.

California kicked off and Washington put the ball in play on its 18. One line play was good for three yards, then Dean McAdams passed to Jay MacDowell, left end, on the Washington 40 and MacDowell ran for a touchdown.

A fumble by Firpo, of California, late in the second quarter set the stage for the winning touchdown. Washington's quarterback, Donald Means, grabbed the fumble on California's 38 and rambled to the 6. In three plays the Huskies gained only three yards, but on the fourth down McAdams made a sensational one-handed catch of Bill Gleason's pass over the goal line. John Mizen, substitute halfback, kicked the point.

HARVARD CONQUERS ARMY, 15-0, SCORING IN THIRD, LAST PERIODS

By EVERETT B. MORRIS

N.Y. Herald Tribune

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 11—Harvard beat Army, 15 to 0, with an irresistible second-half drive this cold, blustery afternoon, thereby achieving its first major football conquest of the season and ending a seven-year period of Cadet dominion of a series which has spanned twenty-five games in forty-four years.

This combination of circumstances was too much for the traditional restraint of the victory-hungry Crimson undergraduates. They became so delirious that they uprooted one set of their own goal posts and marched noisily through the streets with the wreckage while the remainder of the 45,000 spectators hastened to the nearest taverns for pneumonia preventives.

What had been a fairly even battle through the first two periods blew wide apart as the third quarter waned. In the space of five minutes, the suddenly puissant Harvards stormed through the tiring soldiers for two touchdowns and a safety. Thereafter, the Cantabridgians devoted themselves to circumventing Army's desperate attempts to obtain a consolation score.

From the point of view of the shivering customers, it was a perfect football game. Half the Corps of Cadets put on the customary pre-game parade and then formed a cheering, singing, never quiet block of blue-gray in the south stands. Harvard's accomplished band played old songs and new and performed feats of spelling between the halves. The athletes, both contingents striving for their first worth-while triumph, broke away for long runs and negotiated ground-eating forward pass plays.

And in the end a Harvard team that got better as the game progressed won deservedly over an Army delegation that showed the physical effects of its bruising tussle with Notre Dame a week ago. Harvard was down there four times and scored twice. Army had two cracks at the Crimson goal and failed both times, once before and once after Harvard had put the game beyond redemption.

The first time Harvard got its hands on the ball after the intermission it drove sixty-seven yards in nine plays to the Army 12, only to be thwarted by Art Frontczak's goal-line interception of a second-down forward pass. But Harvard was not to be denied. Johnny Hatch punted out to midfield and the Crimson came crashing back forty-seven yards for a score in eight plays.

LEE SCORES ON REVERSE

The touchdown maneuver was a seventeen-yard reverse of Army's right flank by Franny Lee, one of the eight sophomores who started for the Crimson. Harvard deployed in right formation with Charley Spreyer back and Lee moving into George Heiden's bucking spot from the right wing. Spreyer took the pass from center and handed it to Lee as he circled behind toward the short side.

Running all by himself, Lee slipped out of Stan Hutson's grasp (if this tackle had stuck the play would have lost six yards) and then drove for the far corner. At least four Cadets had shots at him, but the rugged youngster tore through their groping hands and went all the way to the end zone. Spreyer place-kicked the extra point with Lee holding and Harvard was up, 7 to 0.

Army never got over this stroke. Before it could do a thing on its own behalf, Army yielded a safety and another touchdown.

When Harvard kicked off after Lee's dash, Army couldn't gain and Hatch went back to punt with the ball on the Cadet 21. As the ball left his toe it was met with the broad chest of Dick Pfister, one of the seven Harvards who played the whole sixty minutes, and rolled back over the Army goal line. Hatch beat a horde of Crimson operatives in a race for the ball and fell on it in the end zone for a safety.

SPREYER RUNS 61 YARDS

Army put the ball in play by a punt from its 20-yard stripe and in less time than it takes to tell it, Harvard was back on Army's 15-yard line. Spreyer, whose devastating running and line cracking had bothered Army all day, took the ball in stride and galloped sixty-one yards down the right sideline behind blocking that scattered Cadets as though a flock of hand grenades had exploded among them.

A last-ditch tackle by Jim Dubuisson, outstanding on both offense and defense for the Soldiers, stopped Spreyer as the period ended.

The teams moved to the other end of the field and on first down Spreyer passed out to Bill Coleman, senior quarterback, in the left flat and that athlete ran to the 3-yard mark before Hatch brought him down. Spreyer blasted inside of left tackle for a yard and then dove between tackle and end on the same side for the score. This time his kick for extra point went sour.

A twenty-nine-yard return of a Harvard punt by Dubuisson and a fourteen yard forward pass from Hatch to Dubuisson put Army on Harvard's fifteen early in the game.

But in this crisis, Harvard's flexible defense stopped three running plays for four yards and one fourth down, a Hatch pass to Emory Adams was covered by Harvard defenders while Dubuisson stood alone in the clear.

DUBUISSON STARS FOR ARMY

Although Dubuisson did a gorgeous piece of running on a reverse for forty yards in the second period, Army never got within striking distance of the goal again until Harvard had its 15-to-0 lead. This aerial drive, carrying fifty-four yards in eight plays to Harvard's 10, after Frontczak had touched it off with a thirty one-yard return of the kick-off after Spreyer's touchdown, went for nothing when Burgy Ayres, Harvard's big sophomore center, intercepted a pass on his 5-yard stripe.

Spreyer put a punt out of bounds on Army's 5 from Harvard's 39 and the Cadets stayed in the hole until Spreyer ended the game by coming up with an Army pass in midfield.

Although probably no one recognized it as such at the time, the tip-off on what was to follow came in the dying moments of the second quarter. Harvard had worked the ball across midfield for the first time under its own power after an Army punt. Then the Crimson went into double wing formation with Spreyer back and Goe Gardella on the right wing. The tailback fired the ball immediately to Gardella, out in the flat, and Joseph ran through Army tacklers all the way to the 7-yard line before Dick Hennessey, yearling reserve halfback, cut him down. One forward pass play was spoiled and then in ran Henry Vander Eb, the place-kicking specialist, as a substitute for Coleman

KICK JUST MISSES

The ball was way over to the right, but Vander Eb kicked accurately for the posts. It looked for an instant as though his effort would succeed but the strong wind wafted the ball just wide of the left upright and the half was over.

Harvard obviously has been improving steadily. It was sound defensively and employed five, six and seven-man lines to upset the Army attack. It did not miss its non-playing captain, Torby MacDonald, who won the toss and then disappeared from view.

The Harvard band spelled out H-A-R-L-O-W between the halves and played "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," a sentiment with which numerous Harvard substitutes are not likely to agree. The Harvard coach, with the game in the bag, abstained from sending in replacements for seven of his starters. Only Coleman, Lee, Peabody and Pfister got relief.

CLARK STARS AS OKLAHOMA WINS, 13 TO 10

N.Y. Herald Tribune

MANHATTAN, Kan., Nov. 11—Kansas States stopped Oklahoma's might today but couldn't do a thing with Oklahoma's mite, Beryl Clark, who led the Sooners to a 13-to-10 victory, their eighth straight in the Big Six.

Twice in the final period Kansas State rapped on the touchdown door only to have misfortune respond to its knock. Once the Wildcats fumbled on the Sooner 3-yard line and the Oklahomans recovered. Seconds later they were back and again a miscue gave the ball to Oklahoma, this time on the 19.

And it was only a desperation block by Oklahoma's lanky Bob Seymour, who punted Elmer Nieman out of bounds on the 4-yard line and into the overflow crowd of 17,500 persons after a forty-six-yard gain on a pass-run play that kept the inspired young men of Manhattan from winning.

It was the largest total score against the Sooners by a conference team in two seasons.

Breaks denied Kansas State a victory but it was a break that brought the Wildcats their first three points. Five minutes after the opening kick-off Indian Jack Jacobs fumbled a Kansas State punt after being hit by two tacklers. Don Crumbaker, Kansas State end, smothered the ball on the 22. Three plays later Jim Brock kicked a field goal from the 14-yard line.

That was the way matters stood when Clark, no bigger than a minute and moving almost as quickly, replaced Jacobs. Almost immediately he quick-kicked sixty-six yards to the Kansas State 8. The Wildcats tried two line plays, then were forced to punt.

The Oklahoma midget tucked the ball under his arm on his 10 and surged forty-seven yards down the field, twisting and turning all the way to gain full advantage of the pathway his blockers hewed for him.

Nine plays later, with the ball on the Kansas State 9, he disappeared entirely for a split second then suddenly re-appeared on the goal line for the touchdown which shoved the Sooners into a half-time lead.

After the rest, a revitalized Kansas State team blasted eighty yards for its touchdown. A fourteen-yard run by Melvin Seelye took the ball to the 18-yard line, from which spot Crumbaker went across on a spectacular end-around formation.

Then, just to show that gridiron history could be repeated, Clark returned the kick-off forty-six yards and nine plays later Oklahoma had its winning touchdown.

Olympic Invitational Committee to Be Set Up

To be constantly ready in the way of organizing the Olympic Games in Tokyo, a standing Olympic Invitational Committee will be set up next year by the Japan Amateur Athletic Federation, it was decided Friday.

The committee will carry on work that was started by the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee for the 1940 Olympic Games, which were abandoned because of the China Affair, so that when in the future the Olympic Games are awarded once again to Japan, Tokyo will not be unprepared.

PITT DEFEATS CARNEGIE TECH BY 6-0 SCORE

N.Y. Herald Tribune

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 11—The Pitt Panthers unloosed their mostly ballyhooed touted forward passing sophomore, Edgar Jones, of Scranton, Pa., and he pitched his side to a 6-to-0 victory over a favored a Carnegie Tech eleven before 55,000 fans today in Pitt Stadium.

An understudy to Dick Cassiano, Jones has had to be satisfied with a bench-riding role most of this season, but today he was needed and he came through.

The 176-pound sophomore, who pitches baseballs as well as he does footballs and who was watched last year by major-league scouts, reentered the game in the final period to relieve the tired Cassiano.

Jones and another substitute halfback, Bob Thuron, of Erie, led the Pitt running attack into Tech's territory and when it stalled, Jones went back to pass.

RUSHED BY TECH TACKLERS

Two Tech men rushed him, rapped him for what seemed to be minutes, and then he squirmed loose. He spotted two men in the end zone—half the distance of the field away.

Jones let fly and the ball nestled in the arms of Thurbon. There was only one and a half minutes left to play and it mattered not that the attempted conversion was low and struck the goal posts.

For three periods, these two city rivals played a cautious and conservative game and neither could put together any sustained punch.

Tech was favored at odds of 5 to 7 before game time and started a second-string eleven that held its own for twelve minutes. After that Tech's coach, Bill Kern, sent in his first-stringers but they could do nothing with a stubborn Pitt forward wall.

Neither team came close to scoring in the first three periods, but Pitt, taking advantage of a poor kick, advanced to Tech's 6-yard line in the opening minute of the final period.

REITH RECOVERS FOR TECH

This threat failed when Emil Narick, right half, fumbled on Tech's 6-yard line and Mill Reith recovered.

The tide turned quickly here, and on the second play Gerald White, Tech's fullback, faked a reverse pass and raced sixty-four yards through right tackle to Pitt's 31 before the safety man, Cassiano, downed him. Pitt stopped three plays and took the ball on the fourth down after Carnegie was penalized fifteen yards. The Panthers then started their victory march from Tech's 34.

Although Pitt made ten first downs to Tech's eight, the Panthers were outrushed 147 yards to 188 for Tech. Pitt completed four of eleven passes and Tech completed two out of ten. The Panthers intercepted three of their rivals' passes, while none of theirs fell into enemy hands.

U.S.C. ROUTS STANFORD, 33-0

N.Y. Herald Tribune

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 11—Southern California's Trojans, rolling along toward another spot in the Rose Bowl, crushed Stanford, 33 to 0, today in a game that dragged so long it was finished under floodlights. Unbeaten but tied by Oregon, the Trojans scored their most commanding victory of the season before a crowd of 50,000 in Memorial Coliseum.

The Trojans unleashed a terrific scoring burst that was good for four touchdowns in the opening half. But in the second half numerous holding and clipping penalties slowed the game down to a point where officials had to turn the lights on so it could be finished. U. S. C. scored only once in the second frame.

LANSDELL SCORES TWICE

Grenville Lansdell, Trojan quarterback, scored two touchdowns. He made the first early in the opening period on a sixteen-yard dash and another in the third when he crossed the line after a ninety-five-yard romp up the field.

Ambrose Schindler, Lansdell's substitute in the second period, worked the ball down the field to Stanford's 6-yard line, and then Schindler passed to Jim Slatter, who caught the ball over Stanford's goal line. Bob De Lauer converted from placement.

Doyle Nave, U. S. C.'s Rose Bowl passer of last year, figured in the other two touchdown drives. Tossing to Bill Sangster and Roy Engle, Nave worked the ball to Stanford's 1-yard line, where he scored on a line plunge. Gaspar's kick was good for the extra point.

A clipping penalty which set Stanford back on its own 10-yard line set up Nave's other scoring opportunity. He threw to Phil Duboski over the goal line for the score. Quentin Klenk, tackle, failed to convert. Stanford made several rallies during the game, largely due to fancy passing by Frankie Albert and fine running by Norm Standlee.

In the first period Stanford worked the ball to the U. S. C. 11-yard line before the heavy Trojan forwards could stop Standlee. The third period was monopolized largely by the officials who called a clipping or holding penalty on almost every play. Lansdell, however, managed to get the Trojans together for a sixty-yard march, which ended in his second touchdown of the afternoon.

ALBERT PASSING THREAT

Albert was the Stanford quarterback in the final period and his passes several times threatened to score. In addition Albert made open field runs of 13 and 20 yards, but both times the ball was carried back and Stanford penalized.

Washington State Wins

PULLMAN, Wash., Nov. 11—Two giant-stride touchdown plays, each starting from the University of Idaho goal line, were not enough to give Idaho's Vandals victory today over a Washington State College team that struck three times in the first half for a 21-to-13 triumph.

CORNELL BEATS COLGATE, 14-12 BUT ONLY AFTER A GREAT SCARE

By AL LANEY

N.Y. Herald Tribune

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 11—Cornell defeated Colgate, 14 to 12, today, but the big Red's unblemished record hung by a slender thread in the bitter cold twilight of Schoellkopf Field as the Chenango Raiders, battered and pushed around for most of the game, came back with a rush and all but snatched victory in the closing seconds of a game that was called by old-timers the most thrilling the hilltop above Cayuga has seen in more than a decade.

Trailing by 14 to 6 as the last quarter began, Colgate called on Hal Lube, her great passer, and the Bayside, L. I., youth went to town. His passes carried Colgate down inside the Cornell 10-yard line twice before Joe Hoague plunged over for the touchdown and, with less than a minute to go, covered fifty-four yards with two passes from his own 20 to give Ed Van Loan a shot at the Cornell goal posts with a placement from the 35 when only five seconds of the game were left. On this kick rode victory and defeat. The kick was wide by a matter of feet only.

BAKER SCORES EXTRA POINTS

Cornell thus owes its place among the elect of college football tonight to those points after touchdown and Whit Baker is the man who should get the credit. Baker took the ball in his hands and ran it across the goal line each time, once after Colgate had blocked his attempt to convert by placement and once after Nick Drahos had missed the try when Colgate was off side.

Baker also was the man who scored Cornell's first touchdown at the end of a 63-yard march from the opening kick-off and it was he who brought the ball down inside the five for Mort Landsberg to plunge over for the other score in the second period.

Colgate's first touchdown also came in the second period and it too was a thing of drama with Hamilton Davids passing twice to Ed Donnelly to cover seventy-five yards in two plays.

These were the high moments of a game in which a team that was badly outclassed by all normal standards and statistical comparisons came dangerous close to achieving a sensational victory in the face of what looked to be overwhelming odds. Colgate was pushed all over the field until the final quarter, but it fought desperately and it refused to be pushed over its own goal line on numerous occasions.

COLGATE HOLDS TWICE AT GOAL

Four times in all Cornell had to give up the ball in Colgate territory and twice the Colgate line held inside its own 5-yard line. And that is why Colgate still had a fine chance to win the game and register one of the biggest upsets of the year with seconds to go.

Cornell began with all its advertised class and power. With Baker and Landsberg alternating in thrusts at the weak Colgate left side they put the opening kickoff in play on their own 37 and marched steadily down field to the touchdown. There were only nine plays in this march, including a pass from Baker to Alva Kelley, the right end, and the last one was Baker's plunge from the 2. When the attempt at conversion was blocked, Baker picked up the ball and ran wide for the point, which, with his second rush later on, won the ball game.

Cornell was stopped by penalties in its efforts to launch other drives in the first period, but at its close they moved seventy-two yards from their own 15 for a first down on the Colgate 13. On this one Baker carried the ball on almost every play and always he lashed at the Colgate left side. Beginning the second period with a first down, however, Cornell had to give up the ball on the Colgate 5. By this time Baker and Landsberg were on the bench, replaced by Brown and Scholl and Cornell became ineffective.

CORNELL FORCED BACK AGAIN

The new backfield combination, with replacements also in the line, took Colgate's clearing punt on the Colgate 38 and started back. A penalty against Colgate for charging the center gave Cornell first down on the 28 and a pass from Scholl to Kelly carried the ball to the 20. But the Colgate defense was tightening. The Big Red was pushed back a few yards and another pass from Scholl to Matuszczak moved to the 6 only because Hoague missed a tackle that looked to be a setup.

But there the Cornell attack bogged again. They foolishly struck at the Colgate right wing where lurked Larry Cabrielli, an outstanding player this day. With only a couple of yards to go for a touchdown Cornelli called an end-around toward Cabrielli and Cabrielli threw them back, taking the ball on the 4. Davids punted out well to the 45 and Cornell brought the ball back to the 36, at which point Baker and Landsgerg came back into the game.

Then it was different. Baker passed to Landsberg for a first on the 25 and immediately struck the left wing for another on the 15. Cornell was under way again and Baker called no plays to Cabrielli's side. He sent Landsberg through the left on a spinner for eight yards, himself struck the same place for a first down on the 4 and then for the first time sent Landsberg wide to the right for the touchdown while Matuszczak took care of Cabrielli. It was the only play Cornell was able to get by Cabrielli all afternoon.

When Drahos kicked badly for the extra point and Cornell got another chance, Baker hit the left once more and went over.

That is all of the story there is to tell concerning Cornell except for another drive that covered sixty-seven yards along the ground to bog down on the Colgate 4 in the third period.

Colgate took charge of the game and the offense belonged entirely to them to the end.

COLGATE TAKES OFFENSIVE

Davids began it by running the kickoff after Cornell's second score back to his 25. He then faded and threw a pass to Donnelly who was downed on the 45. On the next play Donnelly slipped past the Cornell secondary and took Davids's pass on the enemy 30 with a clear road to the goal. Davids missed the conversion badly.

Colgate's next thrust came after Cornell had subsided. Lube entered the game at the beginning of the fourth quarter and began to throw as soon as Colgate got the ball at midfield. Two passes, the first to Hoague, the second to Geyer carried to the 11, from which point he completed one in the end zone to Geyer, but had it called back. It bounced from one Colgate player to another and was ruled incomplete.

A little later, however, Garvey, Colgate right tackle, recovered a Cornell fumble on the Colgate 31 and Lube pitched again. Two passes to Hoague carried the ball to the 6 and Hoague then bucked it a yard or two at a time through the Cornell line for the touchdown.

It was getting late by now and Cornell seemed safe enough when it took the following kick-off with only two minutes left. It used up one of them and then punted, the ball being downed on the Colgate 20.

Then, eighty yards from a touchdown and a minute left, Lube unlimbered again. He threw to Geyer on the Colgate 40 and Geyer ran to the Cornell 45. He was pulled down by Baker from behind. If he had not been he would have run for a touchdown. He was in the clear. Lube missed three passes and then connected again to Hoague on the Cornell 30. Only five seconds remained and Van Loan dropped back to the 35 to try for the goal. It was a good kick but just a little wide. While it was in the air the crowd of 15,000 held its breath, for it looked good until it passed the uprights.

OREGON STATE TOPS OREGON BY 19-14 SCORE

N.Y. Herald Tribune

EUGENE, Ore., Nov. 11—Oregon State College clung to the heels of the Pacific Coast Conference leaders today by winning its fourth straight football game from an ancient rival, the University of Oregon, 19 to 14, in a battle that saw the Webfoots threaten to the very end.

An injury to big Jim Kisselburgh, Beaver fullback, who had to be taken from the game in the third period, slowed the Oregon State offense but the Orangemens' stalwart line held the fort after an explosive fifty seconds at the start of the second half saw two touchdowns scored before the crowd of 20,500 had finished its hot dogs.

The half ended with Oregon State leading, 10 to 7. The Orangemen extended the lead to 17 to 7 when Bob Olson took Jay Graybeal's kickoff on the 7-yard line and ran ninety-three yards for a score. Leonard Younce kicked the point.

Oregon counter-punched in two plays. Younce kicked off for Oregon State and Graybeal returned the ball to the Oregon 34. Bob Smith faded deep and whipped a sixteen-yard pass to Graybeal. The Oregon star caught the ball on the fifty and ran the remaining distance for a touchdown. He also converted and the tally was 17 to 14.

Oregon State got a safety in the last minute when Graybeal tried to pass from his end zone and was downed by Byington, of Oregon State.

The line-up:

Pos.	Oregon S. (19)	Oregon (14)
L.E.	Leovich	H. Harris
L.T.	Sears	Stuart
L.G.	Schultz	Robertson
C.	Tsoutsouvas	Cadenasso

Musashiyama to Quit Sumo Career; Right Arm Fails to Return to Shape

Grand Champion Musashiyama, who injured his right arm in a bout with Kagamiiwa on the seventh day of the Spring tournament in 1936 and since then has been waiting for the day to return to the ring fully recovered, will formally announce his retirement in the next few days, according to the Yomiuri. Not yet 30 years old and with his best years ahead of him in Sumo (Japanese wrestling), everyone connected with the sport, is sympathizing with him.

After getting the best of medical attention, Musashiyama attempted a comeback in the Summer tournamen t of 1938 but won seven and lost six bouts, far from impressive for a grand champion. He subsequently did not compete in the spring and Summer tournaments last year. He was at the Beppu hotsprings during October and November for treatment.

The Spring tournament of 1940 will open during the second week in January at the Kokugikan bowl at Ryogoku.

SCHEDULE WITH MONDAY OPEN IS PROPOSED

Christian Science Monitor

BOSTON—Every baseball man with a sense of humor must have laughed long and loud when he read Sam Breadon's proposal that the major leagues adopt a six-day playing week in 1940, leaving Monday open to manufacture Sunday doubleheaders. Not that the idea is bad. It has a better-than-fair chance of being accepted when the leagues convene at Cincinnati next month. But one of the reasons the Cardinal executive voiced in favor of the scheme has a humorous touch. Among other things Mr. Breadon suggested that the fellow moguls "consider the poor ball player" before turning down the proposal because, he pointed out, "a player practically goes seven months without a day off unless it rains....And I think he is entitled to that day every week....It would give him a chance to spend more time with his family."

The Cardinals, of all clubs, showing concern for the "poor ball player"! It's about as sad as the financial situation at Yankee Stadium. If the St. Louis club has gone out of its way many times in the past to make life more pleasant for the ball player, it hasn't been apparent from this corner of the diamond market.

Cardinal players more than any others are heard to moan because they are railroaded to out-of-the-way towns on open dates for exhibitions arranged by the front office. Two or three years ago when the old Gashouse Gang was riding high in the National League, throwing enough fight and pressure into any single afternoon to win half a dozen games, the club refused to give the men a July or August open date on the road, and at a time when the outcome of pennant race could have been fumbled away in one inning. The players, the managed by Frankie Frisch, seemed stale and badly in need of a few extra hours away from sun-baked diamonds, but the front office said "No."

As the Gashouse Gang went on to win the flag in a colorful climax drive led by the Dean brothers, perhaps another day off here or there along the road might not have made the slightest difference. But the players themselves thought it would, and the fact that they felt that way was a handicap in itself. Also, although the club was benefitting financially from these exhibitions in the smaller towns when a blank space appeared on the regular National League schedule, the stars who actually drew the crowds received no extra cash for risking injury in cow pastures and on rock-infested lots that were about as level as a dirt road in the Spring.

Perhaps Mr. Breadon is as sincere about the proposition as it is possible for any baseball magnate to be, but he might have trouble convincing a few people we can think of.

Wise baseball heads have kept their beloved sport in print constantly since the final play of the World Series, a situation which has not always existed in the past. More than ever before it seems, big league officials are determined to keep the national pastime alive through Fall frosts and Winter snows. Which, of course, is a sound and profitable idea if they can get away with it.

Though forward passes and blocked kicks are making this a season of upsets in gridiron circles, sports-thinking people have found time to discuss MacPhail's play-off proposal, the managerial puzzle at Wrigley Field, prospects of a Greenberg departure from Detroit, the rapid minor league rise of young Dominic Di Maggio and possible trades during the approaching Winter meetings at Cincinnati.

Credit for this flourishing baseball comment belongs, in a large measure, to Larry "Barnum" MacPhail, the man who is putting Brooklyn back on the map. By airing his plan to a roaming reporter, he started a flow of comment out of every big league city and many prominent minor league strongholds as well. Even if he doesn't get to first base when rival moguls convene at the Netherland-Plaza early next month, Larry has at least stimulated fresh fuel for the Hot Stove League, a very necessary branch of the supporting organization presided over by Mr. John Q. Phan.

TENNESSEE TOPS VANDERBILT BY 13-0 COUNT

N.Y. Herald Tribune

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 18—Tennessee's Volunteers, rolling along in the role of the nations' No. 1 football machine and a choice "bowl" eligible, overcame a stubborn Vanderbilt team today, 13 to 0, scoring their twenty-first consecutive victory before a crowd of 25,000.

The orange-clad Volunteers had to stage a last-half stand to keep their goal line uncrossed and remain in the Southeastern Conference.

Tennessee beat Vanderbilt at its own game—passing—and the minus three years net rushing the statistics showed for the Volunteers told the story. Vanderbilt tried twenty-three passes, but four of ten tried by Tennessee's gunners came in a series of seven play that marked a sixty-one-yard touchdown drive in the third period.

VANDERBILT ALMOST SCORES

Playing without the services of its ace quarterback, George (Bad News) Safego, Tennessee performed sluggishly in the opening half. Vanderbilt marched forty-eight yards for a first down at the Volunteers' 2-yard stripe in the second period, but a great defensive stand thwarted a score that might have turned the tide. It was a Vanderbilt team that gave the Volunteers last setback. In 1937, the Commodores won, 13 to 7, and since that reverse Tennessee has trampled all opposition.

Early in the third period Tennessee got its first touchdown. Buist Warren, substituting for Cafego, started firing spot passes. He completed one for twenty-one yards to Jimmy Coleman, end, that set the spark.

COLEMAN TALLIES ON PASS

Fred Newman interspersed two other passes with line bucks and Tennessee had first down. Warren fired a floating pass to Coleman, who went over for the score. Bob Foxx's try for the extra point was wide.

Tennessee's last touchdown came on a sensational sixty-five-yard touchdown run by Newman, husky substitute fullback, who intercepted a toss by Vanderbilt's Junius Plunkett at the Volunteers' 35 and raced for the score. Foxx converted as the clock showed three minutes to play.

A Tennessee fumble recovered by Henry Gude, center, at the Volunteer 49 started Vanderbilt on its scoring threat. Plunkett completed four passes and Roy Huggins, with first down at the Tennessee 2, was stopped on a fourth-down plunge by Don Edmiston, tackle.

The line-up:

Pos.	Tennessee (13)	Vanderbilt (0)
L.E.	Coleman	Heistand
L.T.	Shires	Holdgraf
L.G.	Molinski	Ellis
C.	Rike	Gude

MURAKOSO TO MARRY

Kohei Murakoso, who won international fame for Japan by placing fourth in both the 5,000 and 10,000 meter races at the 11th Olympic Games at Berlin in 1936, will become a Benedict soon. His engagement to Miss Yasuko Muramatsu of Kobe, sister of a brother-in-law of one of his former instructors in Chuo University, was announced Tuesday.

Murakoso is 35 years old and his bride to be, 20. She is a graduate of the Nagano Higher Girls School and her favorite sport is tennis. Murakoso presently is in the business department of the Kawasaki Heavy Industries Aviation Company at Kobe.

Bucky's Hopes For 1940 Season

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 11—A 30 game winner—that's what Bucky Walters hopes to be next year.

The converted third baseman, whose feat of winning 27 games on the pitching mound for the pennant-winning Cincinnati Reds, won him the National League "most valuable player" award, spoke today of his hopes for 1940.

"I'm going to try and win them all," declared the 29-yard-old right hander, who makes his home in Philadelphia during the off season.

"I'm pitching the same way with the Phillies," Bucky continued modestly. "I've got a better team behind me, that's all.

"Of course I pitch to the batter's weakness. I try to get the ball where they hit it softest. I don't try for a strikeout except maybe when I'm in a jam."

As for the World Series, Bucky just laughs.

"I still think Joe Di Maggio must have cut across from first to third," he says of that incident in the fourth and last game when Di Maggio scored all the way from first while Ernie Lombardi, Reds' catcher, lay prone on the ground with the ball only a few feet away.

Bucky is taking things easy now, but plans to play handball a lot after the first of the year.

And, oh yes, he used his loser's share of slightly more than $4,000 from the World Series to finish paying for his Philadelphia home.

NEBRASKA DOWNS PITT BY 14-13 SCORE

N.Y. Times

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 18—The victory-hungry Nebraska Cornhuskers checked a furious fourth-quarter attack and shucked Pitt today, 14 to 13, for their second decision over the Panthers since 1921. Twenty-five thousand fans watched the game at the Pitt Stadium.

Two sophomores, fullback Mike Francis and his understudy, Henry Rohn, carried the mail for Nebraska as the Cornhuskers throttled Edgar (Special Delivery) Jones and his mates. The two Nebraskans scored their first college touchdowns, Rohn in the second period and Francis midway through the third.

Herman (Roaring) Rohrig and George Knight, both halfbacks, provided the winning margin, each kicking a perfect placement.

FRANCIS BREAKS AWAY

Francis broke away for a spectacular 22-yard dash after Nebraska had recovered a Pitt fumble and outran Jones into the end zone. Rohn plunged over from the Pitt 1-yard line.

The game marked the final home appearance of Richard (Dandy Dick) Cassiano, who, with Guard Harold Klein, was co-captain today. Cassiano got a thunderous ovation when he came in midway through the fourth quarter. But the Nebraskans, with victory in sight, held the ball for six minutes and the game ended on the Pitt 26.

For the injury-riddled Panthers, George Kracum, Bob Thurbon of Erie, and Jones were outsanding Kracum tossed a 30-yard pass to Thurbon for the first touchdown in the second quarter and in the final quarter tossed to End John Stahl for a 45-yard gain. A few plays later Kracum crossed the goal line standing up.

LOW PASS IS COSTLY

End Joe Rettinger missed the first attempt at placement as Pitt's center sent back a low pass and Nebraska rushed through to smother the ball. He made good on the second but it was too late.

The Cornhuskers kept Pitt bottled much of the game through the fine punting of Rohrig, while fumbles spoiled other Panther chances. Pitt fumbled five times and Nebraska four, each recovering one enemy bobble.

In first downs, each made 10, but the Cornhuskers gained 199 yards rushing to 162 for Pitt. The Panthers evened it by gaining 129 yards through the air to 44 for Nebraska.

It was the fourteenth game of the intersectional series and only the second triumph for Nebraska. Three games ended in 0—0 deadlocks.

The line-up:

Pos.	Nebraska (14)	Pitt (13)
L.E.	Seeman	Rettinger

Tennis Association Plans Ambitious Program in 1940

Although nothing definite has been decided about the dispatch abroad of a Davis Cup team next year, the Japan Lawn Tennis Association has announced the holding of a training period for the most promising players next Spring.

Tentative plans call for the training of one group of eight players for two weeks beginning March 20, and another group of 16 players for 10 days, both at the Koshien courts near Osaka.

The East versus West students tournaments, canceled this year because of a feared shortage of balls, will be revived next year.

Major tournaments scheduled in 1940 are: competition commemorating 2600th anniversary of founding of the Empire; national championships; national students championships; Tonichi and Daimai tournaments; Kanto, Kansai and Tokai district championships.

SANTA CLARA IN SCORELESS TIE WITH U.C.L.A.

N.Y. Times

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 18—Santa Clara University and the Bruins of the University of California at Los Angeles battled to a scoreless standstill today in a game that was slow for 59 minutes and jammed with excitement in the final sixty seconds.

The Uclans finally mustered a sustained drive in the fading moments of the non-Conference engagement, and with Halfback Kenny Washington and Fullback Leo Cantor leading the drive, swept from within the shadows of their own goal posts to the Santa Clara 4 in a march that brought the 50,000 spectators to their feet.

EFFORT FALLS SHORT

A holding penalty shoved the Bruins back to the 20, however, and with five seconds remaining, big Jack Somers, left guard, tried a field goal from the 27. It fell short, and as a Bronco tried to run it out the gun ended the game.

The result had no bearing on the Bruins' Rose Bowl hopes, since the Pasadena entry from the Far West is drawn from the Pacific Coast Conference and outside games do not count. It marked the second tie for the undefeated Bruins, however, and the third for the rip-tearing Broncos from the Santa Clara valley.

AERIAL GAME SMOTHERED

Twice the Broncos bounced inside the Bruin 10. It was a case of the Bruin line foundationing as never before this season and Santa Clara's strong defense bottling up Washington and smothering the Uclan aerial game throughout the contest.

The Broncos had a slight edge in running play yardage, 142 to 138, but the Bruins picked up 12 first downs to 11 for Santa Clara and also had an advantage in yards gained via the airways.

WILLIAMS TOPS AMHERST

N.Y. Times

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Nov. 18—The Williams football team rose to the heights today to defeat a favored Amherst eleven, 16—8.

Scoring on a long pass in the first period and a 35-yard field goal in the second, the Ephmen clinched their victory late in the final quarter when Harv Potter intercepted an Amherst pass on his own 13 and ran for a touchdown as 8,000 spectators cheered at the first Williams victory over Amherst in four years and the thirty-second in the fifty-seven-game series.

Through the entire first half Williams set the pace, running up 117 yards on the ground for six first downs to Amherst's 28 and two. The Sabrinas had difficulty getting their shifty backs beyond the line of scrimmage, while the Ephmen picked up almost all of their yard-age on short thrusts at the line.

PURPLE LINES STIFFENS

In the second half the situation was practically reversed, and the visitors gained almost at will until they got within the Williams' 30. There the Purple stiffened to hold for downs.

The first Williams score came as the result of a march from its own 28. Potter carried the ball for most of the gains. Making first down on the Amherst 35, Herb Holden faded back and passed to Brad Wood who took the ball in on the 5, well beyond the Sabrina safety man, and trotted over for the touchdown. Hall's kick for the extra point was low.

In the second quarter Williams halted a Sabrina march led by its star punging back, Joe Firman, on the Williams' 27, and moved down to the Amherst 15. There the attack stalled, but Meehan dropped back to the 24 and booted a perfect field goal from placement to give Williams a nine-point lead.

FIRMAN GETS TOUCHDOWN

Early in the third session Amherst recovered a fumbled lateral by Williams deep in Eph territory, and Firman bucked the ball over six plays later. Cordner's attempted conversion was blocked. Then the Sabrinas came back with another march that was stopped on the Williams 2. Firman blocked Meehan's attempt to punt out of danger and the ball rolled into the end zone for a safety.

The remainder of the third quarter and the fourth were about even, until Amherst began to throw passes in a desperate attempt to overcome the one-point deficit. It was then that Potter intercepted one of Lawton's passes and, behind the blocking of Meehan and Head, ran through the entire Sabrina team for the score.

IOWA STUNS MINNESOTA BY 13 TO 9

N.Y. Herald Tribune

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Nov. 18—Iowa's amazing ironmen came roaring back with two last-period touchdowns in an almost unbelievable finish to stun Minnesota's Golden Gophers, 13 to 9, before 50,000 cheering home-coming fans today.

The indomitable ironmen, seven of whom went the route as Coach Eddie Anderson used only seventeen players in another sensational gridiron conquest, were battered and beaten for three quarters.

Minnesota's crushing power had sent a typical bruising Gopher team into a 9-to-0 lead at the end of the period. It seemed almost certain that the astonishing exploits of the ironmen, who went into the battle with victories over three other Big Ten teams and Notre Dame, would be ended by the Gophers.

REFUSE TO GIVE UP

Iowa's little band of heroes, however, would not say quits.

Doughty Nile Kinnick, who completed his sixth game without relief, took command early in the fourth period. He hurled three forward passes to carry the Hawks 80 yards to a touchdown that shocked the confident Gophers and put Iowa within striking distance of a victory that two minutes previously had not seemed possible.

The touchdown pass was a beautiful aerial shot from the Iowa ace to Captain Erwin Prasse, who caught the ball on the 8-yard line and raced across the goal line unmolested. Kinnick calmly dropkicked the extra point and the Ironmen were only two points behind.

GOPHERS STRUGGLE DESPERATELY

The Gophers, struggling desperately now to hold their lead, fought off Kinnick's passing thrusts until the final four minutes.

Again Iowa's aerial lightning struck. Starting from their 21-yard line, the Hawkeyes, aided by an interference ruling on a pass, reached the Minnesota 28-yard stripe.

Kinnick, although rushed by hard-charging Gophers, sailed the ball into the end zone, where bounding Bill Green, substitute Iowa fullback, tucked the ball close to his chest.

That play sent some of the Iowans into near hysteria, for it meant the first victory over the Gophers since Iowa won, 9 to 7, in 1929, and the first Hawkeye triumph over a team coached by Bernie Bierman.

KINNICK INTERCEPTS PASS

Kinnick's drop-kick for that extra point was blocked. But what did those ironmen and the excited Hawkeye supporters in the stands care? They didn't mind at all. They knew that the Kinnick-Green scoring play meant the ball game.

And it did. The Gophers attempted to regain the lead by passes in the closing minutes, but Kinnick stopped that Minnesota bid by intercepting a pass with less than 30 seconds to play.

The game ended with Iowa in possession of the oval and thousands of cheering homecomers rushed on to the playing field to carry the Hawkeyes into the dressing room.

The victory clinched second place in the Big Ten race for the Hawkeyes. They have a chance for a championship tie if they can beat Northwestern next week and if Ohio State loses to Michigan.

INTERNATIONAL ESSAY CONTEST ANNOUNCED BY CULTURE SOCIETY

Project to Commemorate 26th Centennial Of Founding of Empire in 660 B.C.

To commemorate the 26th centennial of the founding of the Japanese Empire in 660 B.C. by the Emperor Jimmu, which falls next year, the Kokusai Bunka Shinkokai (The Society for International Cultural Relations) of Tokyo will sponsor a world-wide essay contest, the largest of its kind ever undertaken by the Japanese, it was officially announced to the local and foreign press today. Awards will include five first prize and 10 second prize travel scholarships to Japan.

Open to the registered national of any foreign country, the contest will be held on three general subjects—The Characteristics of Japanese Culture, The Cultural Intercourse Between Japan and Other Countries (choice of one or more countries) and The Position of Japanese Culture in the World—from which the contestant may choose. Each contestant is limited to one essay of not more than 8,000 words.

The contest will be conducted in five zones into which the Contest Committee has divided the world. They are Zone A Japanese Empire; Zone B Asia east of Turkey; Zone C Europe, Africa, Australia and New Zealand; Zone D Latin America; and Zone E North America and the Hawaiian Islands. One first prize of a round trip to Japan and ¥3,000 for a three months' stay; two second prizes of a round trip to Japan and ¥1,000 for a month's stay; and several third prizes of ¥500 in books or other articles will be awarded to the winners in each zone.

The contest rules and regulation's follow:

PURPOSE

In commemoration of the 2,600th anniversary of the founding of the Empire of Japan this international essay contest has been projected as a means of furthering the understanding of Japanese civilization among the nations of the world and of contributing to closer bonds of intimacy between Eastern and Wester civilizations.

ESSAY SUBJECTS

Contestant may choose any of the following:

1. The Characteristics of Japanese Culture.
2. The Cultural Intercourse Between Japan and Other Countries (Choice of one or more countries.)
3. The Position of Japanese Culture in the World.

CONTEST RULES

1. The contestant must be a registered national of a foreign country.
2. Each contestant is limited to one essay.
3. The contestant may write in any language. However, essays written in languages other than Chinese, English, French, German, Italian, Spanish and Japanese must be accompanied by a translation in any of the foregoing languages, preferably Japanese. Contestants resident in Japan are requested to submit a Japanese translation.
4. Each essay must not be more than eight thousand (8,000) words in length. If written originally in Japanese the length is limited to twelve thousand (12,000) characters including kana.
5. Manuscripts must be mailed by September 30, 1940 at the latest and those not received by the Contest Committee by November 30, 1940, will not be accepted.
6. The winners will be announced on April 29, 1941, on Tencho-setsu, the birthday of H.I.M. the Emperor.
7. All submitted manuscripts will not be returned.
8. The sponsoring society (Kokusai Bunka Shinkokai) will have all rights to the winning essays.
9. The contestant's name must not appear on the manuscript. Name, address, curriculum vitae and photograph of the contestant must be attached to the manuscript and sent together by registered mail.
10. Manuscripts must be typewritten. (Chinese and Japanese manuscripts are excepted from this rule.)
11. Bibliographical references must be mentioned, if any.

RULES ON AWARD

1. The world has been divided into five (5) zones and the contestant, regardless of nationality, will compete in the zone of residence. (e.g. An American resident in China will compete in the Asia zone.)

   Awards will be made in each zone as follows:
   One First Prize.
   Two Second Prizes.
   Several Third Prizes.
2. The Contest Zones are as follows:
   a. Asia (From Turkey east not including Japan.)
   b. Europe, Africa, Australia and New Zealand.
   c. Latin America.
   d. North America (including the Hawaiian Islands.)
   e. Japanese Empire.
3. Each prizewinner will be notified and their names publicly announced.
4. Prizewinners must notify the Contest Committee in which form they would prefer the award as listed below. Awards will be void unless notification is received within six months after the announcement.

METHOD OF AWARDS

1. First prize winners will be awarded a travel scholarship of three months in Japan.
   a. A first class round trip steamer passage from a port in or nearest the country of residence to a port in Japan (the ship and route to be stipulated by the contest committee) and ¥3,000 for a stay of three months in Japan. Prize winner in the Japan Zone is excepted from the steamer passage.
   b. The above award will become void unless the winner arrives in Japan within one year after the winners are announced.
   c. The winner who is unable to make the trip to Japan will be awarded books published in Japan and or other articles to the total value of ¥3,000, after full consideration of the wishes of the recipient.
2. Second prize winners will be awarded a travel scholarship of one month in Japan.
   a. A first class round trip steamer passage from a port in or nearest the country of residence to a port in Japan (the ship and route to be stipulated by contest committee) and ¥1,000 for a stay of one month in Japan. Prize winners in the Japan Zone are excepted from the steamer passage.

and measures for accelerating circulation of the Chungking currency in the war zones.

4) Deliberations on the national revenue and expenditure, increasing source of national revenue, as well as curtailment of expenditures.

Regarding the aforesaid first item it constituted one of the most important subjects for discussion at the financial conference held here last Summer and a resolution was adopted at that time in connection with same, but the resolution could not be realized owing to refusal of Britain to extend her aid. At the forthcoming conference this resolution is expected to be amended in favor of issuing convertible notes under the gold standard.

The forthcoming conference is attracting great public attention here, as its outcome will be indicative of the future of the wartime finance and currency of the Chungking Government.

EAST VERSUS WEST SYSTEM IS REVIVED FOR SUMO TOURNEY

Revival of the East versus West system in the professional sumo (Japanese wrestling) championship tournaments at the Kokugikan bowl at Ryogoku, Tokyo, which was abolished nine years ago, was announced by the Japan Sumo Association on Saturday.

The change will be enforced with the Spring tournament for 1940 scheduled to start in the second week of January.

One of the chief reasons for the return to the old system, which was abolished in 1930, has been increasing unsatisfaction over the current system, which while calling for competition between all training camps, precludes bouts between members of the same camps. The direct cause for this can be said to be the phenomenal development of the Tachinami training camp in the last few years. Not only has the Tachinami house brought forth Grand Champion Futabayama, the greatest in the annals of the sport who went through six seasons over three years undefeated, but has developed Haguroyama, a champion, Nayoroiwa, a near champion, and a number of other stalwarts.

SMALL CAMPS SUFFERED

Under the system that has been in vogue since 1930, these wrestlers, Futabayama, Haguroyama and Nayoroiwa cannot compete against each other. The same dissatisfaction from the viewpoint of the fans lies with the Dewanoumi training camp, the largest and most prosperous of them all, with the best balanced set of wrestlers. The result has been that under the prevailing system, of one camp meeting all others, the small ones have been at a disadvantage. Members of the latter would naturally be lined up against the best talent and their records naturally were wont to suffer.

Thus it was that the leaders of the Association have been cudgeling their brains for some time, even considering a change in the regulations to compel members of the same houses to meet each other. But this, it was said, was against a fixed principle of the sport, inasmuch as members of the same houses are virtually brothers and are not disposed to fighting against each other for honors in the championship bouts. The upshot of it all was that a return to the old system of a tournament between two sides, the East and West, was decided.

The revival of the old system, itself, will prove a disappointment to many fans inasmuch as some of the very bouts that have been the feature of the tournaments for years will be seen no more, for some of the wrestlers will be on the same side. Some of these bouts include those between Akinoumi, of the Dewanoumi camp, who stopped Futabayama's sensational winning streak at 69 last Spring, and Champion Mayedayama; between Grand Champion Minanogawa and Ayanobori, Ryogoku, and Akinoumi.

Grand Champion Futabayama will will be No. 1 man on the East side, synonymous of more distinction than the West side which will be led by Grand Champion Minanogawa. Comprising the main source of strength on the East side will be stalwarts of the Tachinami house, and on the West side will be the Dewanoumi camp.

The other camps will be divided according to their original connections with the Tachinami and Dewanoumi-Takasako houses.

STANDINGS OUT JAN. 4

The official standings which were scheduled to be announced on January 5 will be made public on January 4.

The Tachinami house started its training on Saturday for the forthcoming tourney. While Grand Champion Futabayama did not put in an appearance because of a laceration to his stomach suffered during his exhibition tour, Champion Haguroyama showed enough strength and enthusiasm to make it a lively affair.

Haguroyama is engaged to be married to the elder daughter, 23, of his teacher, Tachinami. For some time, it had been rumored that she would be the bride of Futabayama, ace pupil of her father, but Futabayama surprised his admirers by marrying an Osaka heiress last Spring.

BRIGHTER TRADE WITH WARRING STATES SEEN

Aikawa Points Out Danger of Indiscriminate Exports To Foreign Lands

"Trade with belligerent countries, I believe, could be expanded if effort is expended in exporting goods through neutral countries," opined Yoshisuke Aikawa, President of the Manchuria Industrial Development Corporation, on his return to Hinking last week after a two month's stay in Japan.

Continuing, he pointed out the great difficulty facing Japan at the present moment in connection with commodities in Japan proper. "Since the price of commodities in foreign countries is much higher than in Japan, if the export of goods is carried out indiscriminately, all the commodities in Japan would flow outside.

"Whether it be cotton goods or raw silk or any other commodity, this holds true. Even now there is a shortage of commodities in Japan, and if the shortage becomes more acute than at present, a big problem will arise. In this connection the 'low price policy' of Japan will encounter great difficulties. No matter who may undertake the solution of the situation the question is indeed a knotty one."

With regard to the problem of the supply of materials, Mr. Aikawa pointed out in connection with the anticipation of Manchoukuo of gaining materials from Japan necessary for the expnsion of her productive capacities, that the Japanese Government's policy of allotting materials to key industries had a dominant influence upon the problem.

"With the outbreak of the European conflict, Japan anticipating the difficulty of importing materials, immediately formulated effective measures regarding imports. As a result the import of raw materials for manufacturing and machinery parts from foreign countries has not been as hard hit as has been imagined by the public.

"With regard to the question of the allotment of materails and foreign credit, more emphasis is being placed at present on the utilization of productive machinery installed till now than on the further expansion of productive facilities," stated Mr. Aikawa.

"In other words it is a policy of alloting as much as possible the available working equipment on hand. Thus the industries which can produce the materials necessary to keep the productive power of Japan working, namely the coal and pig-iron industries will be alloted comparatively more materials necessary for the expansion of their productive capacity in Manchoukuo than others.

"As for the future of imports of materials from Europe or the United States, such questions as whether they will provide us with what we want, or whether transportation can be provided or not exist, making it difficult to make any predictions at this juncture," concluded Mr. Aikawa.

ITALY'S SECRET

"I think the country that is profiting the most from the present European War is Italy," stated Mr. Aikawa during an interview with a Kokutsu reporter on his return from Japan on December 5 at the local Yamato Hotel. "Italy is busily selling her goods, while at the same time she has the trade of the seas firmly in her grasp."

"Shipping rates have skyrocketed to more than double those of prewar days and are still rising. No one can predict how high they will go. Premier Benito Mussolini is at present busily raking in the gold held by Great Britain and the United States. I believe that is why Italy is remaining neutral," stated Mr. Aikawa in his typically jovial manner.

In addition, the president of the Manchuria Industrial Development Corporation discussed at some length such questions as the general economic situation in Japan and Manchoukuo, the improvement of foreign trade and the low price policy of the yen bloc countries and others.

GETTING READY FOR SPRING TOURNEY

Champion Haguroyama, left, showing a youngster something of the tricks of the game, as the Tachinami training house started its workout on Saturday last for the Spring tournament of the Japan Professional Sumo Association in January.

DALAI LAMA'S RETURN TO RIGYA IN HIS 14TH INCARNATION FETED

The Times, London

LHASA, Oct. 8—Rigya, over two miles east of Lhasa and within sight of the soaring Potola, was the scene the day before yesterday of the first ceremony on the return of the Dalai Lama to his capital in his fourteenth incarnation. On a plain below rocky foothills a large encampment had been set out in square formation, three lines deep around a resplendent reception tent standing in a yellow walled enclosure. Its outer cover was bright yellow—a colour used only for tents of the Dalai Lama—and decorated with blue designs; its inner roof was richly embroidered with circular patterns in blue, red, and yellow; and on the roof-pole were gilded figures, including peacocks, from which it gets its name of the Peacock Tent. The inner walls had been hung with yellow brocade embroidered with golden dragons, and from the poles scarlet and gold banners were draped. A throne covered with silk and fronted with the double-thunderbolt symbol on white satin had been arranged for the Dalai Lama, and to right and left were seats for officials.

The Regent went in procession with the state sedan chair up to Rigya Monastery on the hill above the camp, there to await the Dalai Lama. Before long an excited murmur told that "the Presence" was coming, and the crowd on a spur hiding the road to the east stirred expectantly as the band of the Bodyguard was heard. Soon, above clouds of dust mingled with the smoke of incense and above the mass of people, tall banners came into sight. Deep trumpets sounded from the monastery on the hill. A reverent, silent crowd of Tibetans pressed forward to see the four-year-old child from the distant Chinese province of Siling in whom their compassionate ruler Chenrezi has again became incarnate. A small troops of Chinese soldiers in dusty quilted clothes came a little in advance, followed by a body of mounted men in bright silks and tall Mongolian hats holding banners. Behind them rode officials in ascending importance wearing magnificent brocade robes and, preceding the centre of the cavalcade, a sedan chair covered in yellow silk through the glass windows of which the small Dalai Lama could be seen looking with calm interest at the crowd. Behind rode his father and mother and his two brothers.

HOMAGE

After a short rest the Dalai Lama was carried down in the large gilded palanquin over which waved an umbrella of peacocks' feathers and one of yellow silk, to receive homage in the Peacock Tent. There he was seated on the throne. After making three prostrations before him the officials, headed by the Regent, began to file past, offering white silk scarves and receiving his blessing. The stream, which included British, Nepalese, and Chinese representatives, and Lhasa Moslems, poured past the throne for almost an hour, while the Dalai Lama, wearing yellow brocade and a yellow peaked fur hat, sat solemnly and with dignity holding out his hands to touch the heads of the worshippers. The stately Lord Chamberlain of his household, standing on a high step beside the throne, watched the proceedings; and in front of the throne a monastic attendant looked after his master with reverent affection, smiling up in encouragement and showing the Dalai Lama whom he should bless with both hands, whom with one, and whom with a silk tassel on a silver rod, and himself holding up the rod when the child grew tired with the long ordeal.

When the offering of scarves was over, tea was brought for the Dalai Lama in golden tea-pot studded with turquoise. First it was tasted by a household official and then offered in a large jade cup.

The dignity and self-possession of the child impressed every one. He looked about calmly, seeming unmoved by the magnificence and as if he were in familiar surroundings. Although appearing to grow tired toward the end of the ceremony he did not lose his composure. He never smiled, but maintained a placid, equable, gaze. Much of his attention was directed to a calm inspection of members of the British Mission as though he were trying to recall where he had seen such people before.

THE ORACLE

The Dalai Lama reached the end of his 2½ month journey to Lhasa this morning, after resting two nights at Rigya. The processsion enclosing the yellow palanquin rode through streets lined with monks holding banners and auspicious emblems. The villagers were dressed in bright colors as dancers and musicians. Every window was shut and curtained, for no one should look from above upon the Dalai Lama. A band of officials wearing the dress of the old kings of Tibet were conspicuous by their rich brocade, by enormous circular ornaments on their chests, and by their earrings of turquoise over a foot long. Golden incense-burners and silk-wrapped bundles of the Dalai Lama's clothing were carried past on horses. The Regent rode behind the palanquin on a richly caparisoned pony.

As the middle of the procession reached the south entrance of the cathedral it was met by the Oracle of Nechung in a state of possession. A god who acts as guardian of religion is said to enter into him, and when he is so possessed he dances with convulsive movements, bending his body fiercely to the ground, forwards and backwards. He wears a high headdress of white plumes over a golden crown, and brandishes a sword and a bow. This terrible figure rushed to the Dalai Lama's palanquin and thrust in his head so that the spirit in him could do reverence. There had been some apprehension that the sight would frighten the child, but it is said that he was quite unperturbed.

When the Oracle had withdrawn the procession went on to the west door of the cathedral, by which the Dalai Lama entered to visit the shrine, 11 centuries old, in which is kept the Jowo Rimpochhe, an image of Buddha said to have been brought from China by a wife of King Song-tsen Gampo, who first established Buddhism in Tibet.

After a short time the procession left the city of Lhasa and entered the Norblu Lingka, a large walled park containing the several Summer palaces of the Dalai Lama. In the oldest of these a reception ceremony was held, and a short performance of dances was given by the Dalai Lama's dancing goys. Finally the Dalai Lama withdrew for a well-deserved rest after more than six hours of ceremony.

He will probably not have to take part in any further ceremonies for at least a month, after which his hair will be cut as a sign of his formal initation into the Buddhist Church. His calm assurance during the exacting two days of his entry into Lhasa has seen a source of wonder and delight to the people of Tibet and has confirmed their trust in the reincarnation.

SULFANILAMIDE USED TO DRESS WOUNDS, BREAKS

Two American Doctors Say It Is Found Effective Infection Preventive

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—A new use for sulfanilamide in the treatment of fractures was reported today by two Washington University surgeons.

Dr. J. Albert Key and Dr. Thomas H. Burford of the St. Louis, Mo., school declared that the drug, which has proved effective in treating almost twenty diseases ranging from gonorrhea to brain infections, will also prevent infection in compound fractures of bones—those in which the end of a broken bone penetrates through the skin.

The sulfanilamide is merely scattered into the wound after the broken bones have been fixed back in place and the skin is stitched together over the break, leaving the chemical to mix with the blood serum and speed up the process of recovery, the St. Louis scientists explained.

Placing sulfanilamide directly in the wound gives a high concentration which could not be obtained in using it by mouth or by general injection, they pointed out. This high concentration stops the growth of bacteria which may have been introduced and enables the body's natural defense mechanisms to destroy them.

"It is thus evident that the local implantation of sulfanilamide in a recently contaminated compound fracture, or other wound, is a highly efficient method of combating infection in the wound," Dr. Key and Dr. Burford declared, and "we believe that this method is the most important addition to our treatment of such wounds that has been made in many years."

Credit for inauguration of this treatment was given by the St. Louis physicians to Dr. A. A. Zierold of the Minneapolis (Minn.) General Hospital.

VITAMIN BENEFIT DESCRIBED

The eating of a common vitamin which can be bought in pills at the corner drug store was described today as a treatment for extreme nervousness and a possible preventive of some forms of insanity.

The vitamin is "not a cure-all" for nervous disorders, Dr. James A. Willie of Oklahoma City said in a report to the association, but he said it had already proved effective in the quick treatment of some physical and mental disorders.

In one case a person who had developed a psychosis with hardening of the arteries of the brain "cleared up" on a high vitamin treatment, he said.

It is also used frequently in the treatment of chronic alcoholism when individuas do not get enough food or do not get enough of this vitamin to enable their food to be digested properly, Dr. Willie asserted, and as a result develop mild forms of insanity with hallucinations, or delirium tremens.

The vitamin has been found highly useful in the treament of persons who receive the insulin shock treatment for insanity.

A treatment for medical "jitterbugs" who develop intense agitation of the hands, feet and face was reported by Dr. D. Henry Poer of Atlanta.

TRACES ANTI-DISEASE 'FACTORY'

MEMPHIS—Discovery of where and how the body makes its disease-fighting antibodies was announced by Dr. Florence R. Sabin of Denver at the meeting here this morning of the Southern Medical Association.

Resistance to disease depends on the possession of these antibodies in the blood, which are active against the specific disease germ or its poisons. These antibodies are best induced by repeated small injections of antigen, which may be either disease germs or their poisons.

"Marked antigens," made with the use of dye-protein synthesized by Dr. Michael Heidelberger of Columbia University, were used in Dr. Sabin's studies to locate the site of antibody formation. When she injected these dye proteins or marked antigens into an animal's body, she was able to discover particles of them in the cells that line the blood vessels in the liver, spleen and bone marrow and in certain other parts of the body. These cells are the scavenger cells of the body. They are part of the reticuloendothelial system which had already been suspected of being the body's antibody factory.

Finding the marked antigen particles in these cells clinched the matter of where the antibodies are formed. A few days after the marked antigen particles were located, and at the time antibodies were appearing in the blood, the scavenger cells no longer showed any dye-protein and exhibited a considerable pinching off of their surface films. This suggests, Dr. Sabin reported, that after engulfing the antigen form the disease germ, the scavenger cells synthesize a chemical called globulin, part of which is modified into antibody globulin. Then through a sacrifice of part of their protoplasm, these globulins are given to the blood. This part of the research seems to explain how the antibodies are formed.

CHAMPION WRESTLER MARRIED

Posing are Mayedayama, Sumo champion, and his bride at their wedding reception Monday night at the Tokyo Kaikan. The bride was the former Miss Fumiye Sakai, 20, and hails from the same place as the bridegroom in Ehime prefecture in Shikoku. Mayedayama, 26, will be second in command next to Grand Champion Minanogawa on the West side in the forthcoming Spring tournament at the Kokugikan next month when the East versus West system will be revived after an interval of nine years.

CHEER LEADING TELEGRAPHERS HINDER SCRIBES

Editor & Publishers

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 20—The "Debacle of the press box" is what several Minnesota sports writers are calling the performance put on for visiting scribes—with the newsmen the victims—at the Iowa-Minnesota football game at Iowa City, Nov. 18.

Home, and in a grumbling mood because of "inexcusable handicaps" put in their way in covering the contest, the sports reporters explained to their home offices today why telegraph service on their reports was delayed, in some cases, 10 to 25 minutes at a time.

HYSTERICAL PRESS BOX

They told of a press box—supposedly the last refuge of sanity at a football game—gone hysterical, with some of the operators literally quitting work to cheer wildly and behave in general like mad collegiates, jumping, dancing, shrieking and back-slapping, but not "clicking."

Iowa won the game in the last minutes of the contest on a spectacular play. With papers at home speeding "extra" preparations and waiting for details from their staff men, some of the reporters "lost their wires" completely as the operators put on their impromptu demonstration. In one case, the connection was not restored for almost 30 minutes.

The reporters made clear that not all operators were at fault but that the pandemonium disturbed everyone on the "cheering" side of the press box partition. The University of Iowa was blamed for allowing a great many hangers-on and others with no legitimate business to pack the press box.

CHEER LEADING TELEGRAPHERS

As one reporter commented today: "Some of the telegraphers were the cheer leaders—not all. The boys who had a 'bug' to cover, on the play-by-play detail, during the game, were too busy trying to fight the noise and move copy to cut in on the whoopla.

"It was the group of spares, including some of the top boys who are paid to know better, who did the unforgivable."

Minnesota writers insist that they are not "sounding off" simply because Minnesota lost the game, for Minnesota has lost four times this year and, according to the newsmen, never has there been a demonstration like this one in the press booth by friends of the winning team.

Bernard Swanson, of the Minneapolis Star-Journal, who has covered two Iowa games this year for his paper, said the same sort of thing has happened at each contest he witnessed at Iowa City—"but this was the worst I've ever seen." Another writer said the affair was "disgraceful" and that there could not have been any more "inexcusable handicaps" placed in the newsmen's way if the school and operators had deliberately tried.

There is talk here of a general effort to ask Iowa authorities to exercise better care in the future lest newsmen ask their offices not to assign them to Iowa games.

TOKYO BEATS KYOTO TEIDAI AT RUGBY, 51-12

The annual rugby game between the Tokyo and Kyoto Imperial universities resulted in a 51-12 one-sided victory for the former Monday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium.

Scoring two tries and a penalty goal, Kyoto led 9-0 in the first few minutes of the game but the tide soon changed with the Tokyo forwards beginning to function smoothly. They registered one try, three goals and one penalty goal to lead 21-9 at halftime.

The Tokyo players packed even more power in the second half and scored four tries, three goals and one penalty goal as against one try by Kyoto.

The line-ups were:

Tokyo: Okudaira, Kinoshita, Kobayashi, Shiraishi, Nanbe, Takashima, Ikeda and Shinozaki, forwards; Konishi, Takahashi, halfbacks; Meguro, Nakanishi, Takahashi, Sakamaki, three-quarters; Hamano, fullback.

Kyoto: Hashi, Yano, Kawaguchi, Kusume, Kumai, Kobayashi, Shibata, Wada, forwards; Tamura, Shirayama, halfbacks; Nakajima, Yoshiri, Tsugawa, Ishiguro, three-quarters; Ishigaki, fullback.

KAWASAKI LINE REPORTS GOOD YEAR'S BUSINESS

Reports for Half Year Term Ending September 30 Show Gain in Profits

The Kawasaki Steamship Company is still doing a good business, according to a survey of the Diamond, a monthly economic magazine.

The business report of the company during the half-year term ending September 30 this year is as follows:

(In ¥1,000)	Sept., '39	Apr., '39
Profits for the term..	3,580	3,865
Against depreciation ..	1,770	2,012
Net profits for the term	1,810	1,810
Brought forward from the previous term..	402	649
Total	2,212	2,502
Legal reserves	200	200
Special reserves	200	200
Shipping insurance ..	500	—
Funds for tax	—	1,000
Dividends	800 or 0.80 % per yr.	700 or 0.07 % per yr.
To be carried forward to next term	512	402

As is shown in the above table, the company gained ¥3,580,000 or 35.8 per cent of profits during the half-year term ending September 30. Although this indicates a decrease of ¥285,000 or 2.9 per cent as compared with the previous term ending March 31, the decrease is so small that it can be said that the company is still doing good business and it is but natural that the company increased its rate of dividends by one per cent in September.

The valuation of the company's ships minus the funds for depreciation stand at ¥18,233,000. As a total tonnage of the company's ships is 245,000, the valuation of the ships per ton stands at ¥75. The valuation is rather low viewed from the general age of the ships, which proves that the company's business condition is very stable and favorable.

The company's policy toward the building of new ships can be said to be positive. It is now constructing five new ships of a total tonnage of 36,200, which are expected to be completed between Spring and Autumn next year.

The construction cost of these ships is estimated at ¥15,000,0000 or ¥420 per ton, of which ¥200,0000 has already been defrayed. As it is expected that the company will gain ¥2,500,000 in profits per half-year term on the average in the future, the funds for the construction of new ships will be financed by the company's profits alone.

NEW SHIPS

As the building of new ships is profitable in every way, the company will continue its activities in that line for the time being.

Marine transportation has become prosperous in both near and deep seas since the outbreak of the European war, and all ship companies increased freights in deep seas by 20 per cent at the lowest.

The company is now operating ships of a total tonnage of ¥1,000,000 at the ratio of 40 per cent for near seas and 60 per cent for deep seas. The raise on freights on distant seas is favorable for the company which has more ships for distant seas than those for near seas. Although the raise of freights cannot be said to bring about increase to the company's business profits, it can be safely said that the company will be favored by this raise.

As new ships of the company are about to be operated in sucession, ly and these ships are expected to gain profits, the company is ensured of maintaining good business for the time being and it is merely a matter of time until the company will make 10 per cent dividend annual-

SAARLOUIS CENTER OF WARS FOR CENTURIES

German Town with French Background, Has Been In Reich Since 1935

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Saarlouis, whose streets have frequently echoed the boom of belligerent guns in the Saar District, is one of Europe's border towns which has been passed back and forth through the centuries between warring powers, according to a bulletin from the National Geographic Society.

"Since the 1935 plebiscite which returned the Saar to Germany, Saarlouis has been known also by the German name of Saarlautern," says the bulletin. "In the present war, French forces for a time occupied portions of the Saar, close to Saarlouis. Later they voluntarily abandoned most of their gains, except for approaches to the French city of Forbach, about 12 miles southeast of Saarlouis. It is around this area that recent engagements have been reported.

FRENCH FOUNDED CITY

"Soon after the French King Louis XIV founded the city in 1680, Saarlouis became an important fortress town through the works there of the French military engineer.

"Because of its French origin and connections, it remained in the possession of France when the rest of Saar region was turned over to the Germans in 1695. It was not until after the defeat of Napoleon that this whole district, including Saarlouis, was taken over by the Allies, to be transferred in 1915 to the German states of Prussia and Bavaria.

"During the World War, German infantry, artillery, and cavalry stationed there made the city an important military post. On December 1, 1919, when Allied troops entered Germany, Saarlouis was occupied briefly by French forces.

"Subsequently, under the terms of the Versailles Treaty, Saarlouis, along with the rest of the Saar, was for 15 years governed by a League of Nations Commission. The plebiscite of 1935, offering a choice of continuance of the League status, joining France, or reunion with Germany, resulted in an overwhelming majority in favor of incorporation within the Reich.

Saarlouis, for more than two centuries after its birth, made its living largely through the activities of the garrisons (French and German) stationed in its barracks.

32,000 POPULATION

"Today this city, with a population of some 32,000, is an active industrial center. With convenient coal mines for fuel, its factories turn out such varied products as machinery, arms, wire, leather, cigarets and beer.

"Still apparent in its architecture and general appearance is the original French influence. Although the old wall and moat have given way to modern buildings and wide streets, some of the ancient fortifications remains. Marshal Ney, one of Napoleon's devoted followers, was born there in 1769.

"On the other hand, years of German rule have resulted in the predominantly Teutonic character of the inhabitants. Civil, court and school officials are German.

"Even before its last return to Germany, the entire Saar District reported that less than one person to each 200 inhabitants spoke French as his native language. In Saarlouis, the French tongue is characteristic of only a few Frenchmen, although a local dialect preserves certain combinations of French and German words. Such is 'Parplischirm,' meaning umbrella, a blend of the French 'parapluie' and the German 'Regenschirm.'"

CZECH AFFAIRS TO BE RULED BY NATIONAL BOARD IN FRANCE

Christian Science Monitor

CHICAGO—The Chicago representative of Dr. Eduard Benes, former President of Czechoslovakia, announced today the formation of the Czechoslovak National Committee in France to take over political direction of affairs of the former republic.

The purpose of the committee, said Dr. Jan Papanek, is "the liberation of the Czechoslovak state territory from the criminal invader and plunderer." The new group will co-ordinate and unify all such endeavor, he added.

JOINT ACTION

LONDON—The Polish Premier, Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski, and the former Czechoslovak President, Benes, agreed yesterday to collaborate in the present European war to repair the damage done to our countries."

Both Polish and Czechoslovak legions are being trained to fight with the Allies.

(After the Munich agreement on Sept. 29, 1938, Czechoslovakia yielded to Polish demands for 419 square miles of territory. A year later, Germany had conquered Poland.)

The two men have been conferring for the past two days.

Authorized sources also announced that in discussion between General Sikorski and British Ministers the exact shape of the new Poland which it is hoped will be founded after the war was not mentioned.

They said, however, that the Polish Government did not distinguish between territory taken by either Germany or Russia in discussing plans for the new state.

A Polish mission soon will go to the United States to seek aid for Poland within the framework of the neutrality law.

CZECH PROTEST

CHICAGO—The Czechoslovak National Council of America protested yesterday against "the wave of terror now sweeping through Czechoslovakia" and "the ruthless murder of nine Czech college students" by Nazi officials.

The organization, an amalgamation of Czech and Slovak groups and headed by Dr. Eduard Benes, former President of Czechoslovakia, said in statement:

"We invite all true Americans, individuals and organizations to join us in public protests against the ruthless and senseless murder of nine Czech college students, whose only crime was that they protested against oppression and brutal Nazi enslavement of their Nation of 10,000,000 souls, who formerly lived peacefully, democratically and prosperously in one of the best democracies of the world...

"We protest in the name of the solidarity of all civilized mankind against the closing of Czech universities by Nazis and we hope that especially all university students and all educators of America will join us in this proper condemnation of a crime, unheard of in the history of civilized nations."

SWITZERLAND HAS 9 SHIPS

Nation Has No River Or Seacoast But Has Mercantile Marine

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Switzerland has neither seacoast nor streams navigable by seagoing vessels, yet, believe it or not, the republic has a deep-set mercantile marine—nine ships chartered from a Greek steamship line for the duration of the present European emergency.

"Some of the ships, now loading at Philadelphia, will deposit wheat at Genoa and Marseilles for shipment to Switzerland," says a bulletin from the Washington, D.C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Approximately $3,000,000 worth of wheat was shipped from the United States to Switzerland, last year. This more than doubled the shipment in 1937, while there was none in 1936.

CHEESE JUMPS

"Prominent among other exports from America to Switzerland are automobiles, leaf tobacco, fruits and nuts, and petroleum products, all showing slight increases last year. Decreases in other lines were largely offset by the larger wheat shipments. The small republic annually spends over $28,000,000 in the United States markets.

"Swiss cheese and Swiss watches long have constituted the principal imports for which Switzerland is famed in the United States. Last year domestic consumption of Swiss cheese in the United States was valued at $2,378,000 or an increase over 1937 of $350,000. The importation of watch movements and parts declined in 1938.

"Watch-making began in Switzerland in the 16th century and long remained a home industry. It was not until late in the past century that factory production began; mass production rapidly developed variety in sizes, shapes and values. Exclusive of movements and cases, Switzerland has exported as many as 15,000,000 watches in one year, (1929). About 50,000 people were engaged in the industry.

ECONOMIC ENIGMA

"Switzerland's 16,000 square miles of territory has an area for the production of foodstuffs about equal to that of Maryland, but supports seven times as many people. The Swiss are dependent upon other countries for more than 25 per cent of their food and raw materials, and in addition must dispose of more than 90 per cent of their manufactured products in foreign lands. Germany normally leads both as a source of supply and as a market.

"Lacking both coal and iron deposits, the Swiss manufacture of machinery has become one of the leading industries. Aluminum is the only metal actually produced to any extent in Switzerland. The United States has imported more than $2,000,000 worth of Swiss aluminum ore and aluminum ware in a year in spite of its own great aluminum production facilities.

"Some raw silk is produced in southern Switzerland, but the amount is negligible in supplying the 185 silk mills. In the days when stylists used more silk ribbon, Switzerland supplied millions of yards. Though no cotton is grown, there are 375 textile mills in the republic employing 35,000 persons.

"As much as 15 per cent of the world output of aniline dyes has come from Switzerland in some years. The dye industry began about 1850 in connection with the manufacture of silk and silk ribbon. It grew with development of hydro-electric power, Switzerland's leading natural resource.

"Power sites are conveniently located throughout the country. These are the great gift of the Alps to the Swiss, but Alpine scenery also is largely responsible for a considerable tourist business which ordinarily employs more than 60,000 persons in Switzerland's 7,500 hotels."

VIOLENT PLAY SENDS BODY HEAT TO 104 DEG.

Violent exercise and the playing of strenuous games have been found to raise the internal body temperature to as high as 104 degrees, it was reported recently at a symposium on temperature under the auspices of the American Institute of Physics at the Hotel Pennsylvania in New York City, by Dr. Eugene F. DuBois of the Russell Sage Institute of Pathology, New York Hospital, Cornell University Medical College, according to The New York Times.

The only difference between "athlete's fever" and the fever due to illness, Dr. DuBois reported, is that in ordinary fever the skin temperature is warm whereas the skin in "athlete's fever" is cool.

The symposium, largest in the field to be held in twenty years, brought together several hundred physicians, engineers, metallurgists, physicists and chemists from many parts of the country to report on recent advances on the measurement and control of temperature in science and in industry.

TEMPERATURE VARIES WIDELY

It is incorrect to speak of 98.6 degrees as the one normal body temperature, Dr. DuBois said. Wide temperature variations exist in man, he reported. Many factors affect the body temperature, even in health. These include severe and even moderate muscular activity, time of day, age, the temperature of the environment, individual variations, especially in children, sleep and emotion.

"The human body," Dr. DuBois reported, "evidently possesses a controlling mechanism very similar to a good thermostat. There is a heat-regulating center contained in a few cells at the base of the brain in the region of the hypothalamus. If this, however, be destroyed or cut off from the rest of the central nervous system, temperature control is gradually re-established and there seem to be secondary sites of control, and even local control in the periphery of the body. Temperature regulation is too vital to be entrusted to any one small center in the brain.

"Unless there be extreme damage to the brain, the control of temperature is highly efficient. Sensory impulses are received by delicate cold and warm sense organs in the skin, which can detect changes as small as one-thousandth of a degree centigrade per second in three seconds.

In fever, Dr. DuBois reported, the regulating apparatus seems to be adjusted as a higher level, usually with marked fluctuations during the day. Sudden rises in temperature are obtained by sudden increases in heat production with little or no change in heat loss. Sudden falls are obtained by increase in skin circulation with sweating.

Premature infants, Dr. DuBois said, have notoriously poor body temperature control. They tend, he said, "to resemble cold-blooded animals in assuming the temperature of the evironment." Even normal infants show marked fluctuations in body temperature.

FLUCTUATIONS ARE NORMAL

Under ordinary conditions, Dr. DuBois added, there is a diurnal variation of the temperature, the lowest point being obtained between 2 and 6 a.m., and the highest point around 4 to 6 p.m. There is a wellknown drop in temperature when a person goes to sleep and a slight fall when one changes from standing to lying. The typical diurnal cycle of temperature, Kleitman found, first appears during the second year of a child's life, and it is believed that learning to walk is the outstanding influence.

"Kleitman believes," Dr. DuBois said, "that muscular activity is the chief factor in establishing the diurnal cycle. Once established, it seems to became a habit, stronger in some individuals than in others."

Dr. Basil J. Luyet of St. Louis University, described experiments on suspended animation on some low forms of life, such as frog's spermatozoa, epidermal cells of plants, moss leaves and isloated muscle fibers. When these were plunged quickly in liquid air, taking care to avoid crystallization of the fluid in the cells, he reported showed "some signs of vitality" after being brought back quickly to normal temperature.

The experiments indicate, Dr. Luyet said, that life is not destroyed by lowering the motions of the molecules, while it is destroyed by the withdrawal of some water molecules through crystallization. In other words, life could be placed in a state of suspended animation provided a way could be found to place it in the state of glass.

TOMMIES AT FRONT WANT GIFTS OF CLOTHES; DETECTIVE NOVELS ARE THEIR FAVORITE BOOKS

N.Y. Times

WITH THE BRITISH FORCES, in France—Up in the line today, I asked some friends of mine in one of the battalions what the men wanted most from the people at home when they are thinking of sending out gifts for the men's comfort. The answer did not surprise me, for the weather has turned colder, and on these wet fields there is a wet mist that chills to the bone.

"Anything for warmth," said one of the young officers, "especially vests, socks, scarves, pullovers, mittens and woolen glove."

Thus far none of our troops in the field have, as far as I can make out, any vests to wear under their shirts, though these may be provided later. This new army of ours is lightly clad compared with their predecessors in the last war, who, in the Somme trenches and other places and even on the march, put on any old thing they could beneath their MacIntosh capes to keep out the rain and wind. Thus far the weather has been fairly mild, but when a cold snap comes our men will need a lot of extra clothing beneath their tunics.

KNITTED SCARVES WELCOME

The three pairs of socks they are allowed are hardly enough for men digging and draining trenches and tank traps in sodden ground where their boots are filled with water. Handkerchiefs also are scarce, and they could do with many more. Any knitted scarf is a boon, though not in such fancy colors as worn by certain cavalry officers I know, who disregard army conventions in this respect.

Inquiries made along the line and in billets behind it bring forth requests for razor blades, moth organs, packs of cards, dominoes, checkers and any other games. But in the mess where I went today, the most urgent desire of the battalion was for twelve false beards.

For intellectual needs, the British Expeditionary Force is calling out for books. No poetry, by request. There is a prejudice, I am told, against love stories and romances. They do not want to know if Jack married Jill. They are not interested in the emotional affairs of young men and women in Bloomsbury or Belgravia.

What they like to read, said one of the officers, is a jolly good detective story with a murder in every chapter.

I never wrote anything of that kind, so copies of my own books are unacceptable, but millions of six-penny thrillers would be deeply absorbed.

A good many of the little things wanted by the men are bought by them in French shops if they happen to be billeted in small towns behind the line, where the shopkeepers already are catering to their British customers. But those are the lucky ones.

MEN FAR FROM STORES

The men in the line are far removed from the amentities of civilization. The villages near by consist mainly of an old farmhouse, some cow sheds, a barn, a church, an estaminet and a row of brick cottages with stone floors. Transport being difficult, they are out of reach of one of those stores called by the mysterious name of Naafi, where a British soldier is able to buy cigarets, if any are left when he arrives; chocolate, pickles, razor blades and biscuits.

In that grim, remote countryside, guarded by blockhouses, machine-gun posts, tanks and tank-traps, thousands of men are cut off from the rest of the world. I think the most desolate of all must be our gunners, planted with their camouflaged guns in odd places, very solitary, with dugouts near by in boggy fields that are ankle-deep in mud.

Each battery is very much by itself. They are like shipwrecked mariners on a desert island when night closes down on them. For them, those vests, socks, pullovers and woolen gloves are badly needed, and a few mouth-organs for their delight on a Winter's night.

N.Y. TELEPHONES BUSIEST IN U.S.

Times Square Pay Station Most Frequently Used; Over 1,000 Calls Handled Daily

NEW YORK—The busiest public telephones in the United States are in the Times Square area, it was disclosed by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company in the October issue of the Bell Telephone Quarterly.

In an article on "Public Telephones" appearing in the publication, Prescott C. Mabon of the A. T. & T. Information Department explained that the country's busiest public telephone station handled nearly 1,000 calls a day by means of eleven telephones.

While the article did not identify the station, the New York Telephone Company, in response to inquiries, explained that the public telephone it referred to was the United Cigar station in the Rialto Theatre Building, northwest corner of Forty-second Street and Seventh Avenue.

As a result of the phenomenal volume of business handled at that station the company reported that its telephone directories were worn out by thumbing within seventy-one to ninety-six hours.

Mr. Mabon also said Manhattan was the single area of greatest use of public telephones in relation to the number of residents and attributed the heavy use of public telephones primarily to the "enormous daily nonresident population."

The company's skilled attendants often help lost persons to find their friends, according to Mr. Mabon, who added that "occasionally they find and return objects of great or little value left in booths—jewels, cameras, and once, at least, the deed to a piece of property."

Mr. Mabon revealed that 1,000 public telephones were installed for the World's Fair in New York and about 300 for the Golden Gate Exposition in San Francisco.

The receptacle of a coin telephone will hold a given number of coins and a "full box" means that the telephone will not work, it was explained by Mr. Mabon. As a result the collector not only must time his rounds accurately but must employ a "skip-stop" system of collection under which various stations are visited at intervals ranging from one day to three months.

SCIENTIST SAYS AIR RAID DEFENSE MAKES BRITISH PEOPLE 'JITTERY'

Christian Science Monitor

NEW YORK—The extreme preparations against air attack in England have had "a bad psychological effect" upon the population and have depleted routine medical service, according to Dr. Emilio Mira, former head of the psychiatric service in the Spanish Republican Army. By comparison, he said, no such tension exists in Berlin or Paris.

Dr. Mira has just arrived from England, where he was engaged in psychiatric research at Maudsley Hospital in London and as a consultant to the Ministry of Health.

In an interview he described "the tremendous preparations for big air raids" in London, adding that the authorities had gone to excess, for, he said: "I think that if they have no air raids they will be in a worse condition than if they had them." An actual raid has a "better reaction to action against the aggressor."

He suggested that although England cannot "relax entirely" in its preparations against air attack, it might reduce the protective forces to "skeleton organizations."

From the standpoint of medical service to the rest of the city, after hospitals had been classified to care for victims of war injuries, Dr. Mira said that many complaints had been received from patients and physicians charging that "the regular service had been partly paralyzed by war preparations."

He pointed out also that "the blackouts" had been responsible for an increased number of accidents and that a large additional expense had been incurred in this way.

Dr. Mira will spend three weeks in this country, lecturing before universities and scientific groups on the subject of "mental effects of war and propaganda."

HAMURO, YUSA TO COMPETE IN BRAZIL

Tatsuo Hamuro of Nihon University, world record holder for the long course in the 200-meter breaststroke, and Masanori Yusa, former Japanese 100 and 200-meter freestyle champion, will appear in exhibitions and meets in Brazil for three weeks beginning next February 21, according to announcement Thursday.

The two swimmers also plan to give exhibitions in Argentina and in Peru at Lima.

Kaiyo Saito, a speed swimming coach of the Japan Swimming Federation, will also make the trip as manager. He was in Brazil last year, coaching Brazilian swimmers, under invitation of the Brazilian Naval Swimming Club.

The Brazilian Naval Swimming Club, the Japanese Residents Athletic Association and Japanese Embassy have sent the invitation this time through the Japanese Foreign Office.

The contingent is scheduled to leave Kobe on January 17 on the maiden voyage of the Brazil Maru and will arrive at Rio de Janeiro on February 21. March 13 is scheduled for its departure from the same port with arrival at Kobe on April 19.

Venlo Is Gateway To The Netherlands

"Venlo, where at least one person was reported killed and others injured in a clash between Germans and Netherlanders, is situated just north of The Netherlands panhandle that extends southward between Belgium and Germany," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"It is a strategic junction point, where two major railroad lines meet the Maas River and the Zuid-Willems-Vaar, one of the country's largest canals. Forty miles to the east lies Essen, the German munitions center.

"Along this frontier, as along other vital entrances into The Netherlands, barriers against invasion have been reported such as mined bridges, steel-point road obstructions, and trees flanking roads loaded with dynamite charges that may be touched off to block passage. Venlo, together with Vlerick, Tegelen, and Steil form a cluster of gateway towns near The Netherlands eastern border.

"Because of its violent history, the town of Venlo has been called the 'cockpit' of The Netherlands. It was founded as a fortress in the 14th century. Between the 16th and 18th centuries it changed hands ten times. Often besieged, it was held at various times by Bavarian, Spanish, Austrian, and French conquerors.

"Not far away lie the barren Mookerheide (the heaths of Mook) famous battlefield where the two brothers of William the Silent, of Orange, gave their lives in 1574 against invading Spaniards. Netherlanders still have a phrase for those they would consign to perdition, 'Let them go to Mookerheide.'

"Modern Venlo has a population of about 25,000. It is a customs station for travelers from Germany. In normal times, Venlo is an important distributing center from which garden produce is exported into Germany's Rhineland. Local manufactures include such varied products as beer and needles, tobacco and leather goods."

ALL-STAR TEAM FOR TOKYO GRID LOOP SELECTED

Sports Editor:

Will you kindly publish my selection of all-stars for the 1939 season of the Tokyo Intercollegiate American football league?

This year's season was the most interesting since the sport was introduced in Japan six seasons ago. The games drew fair-sized crowds, showing that as the years go by, football will become a major sport next to baseball in this country. Football has certainly caught the interest of the public.

First Team

Center—Terada (Meiji)—Played a splendid game throughout the season.

Guard—Kosakaya (Waseda)—Played heads-up football throughout the season.

Guard—Fujioka (Waseda)—Played football the way he wanted and blocked many enemy's plays.

Tackle—Takamoto (Meiji)—Was the most valuable line player for Meiji. His bolcking and tackling were most effective.

Tackle—Oguro (Rikkyo)—Was the most outstanding player for Rikkyo. Played as a tackle is supposed to and broke up many plays.

End—Toyama (Meiji)—He was the best end of the league. Caught many passes and did tackling, holding the opposing ball carriers to small gains.

End—Sakuma (Hosei)—Played a splendid game for his team.

Quarterback—Fukuda (Waseda)—He was unquestionbly "the most valuable player in the league. He was virtually a one-man team. A good blocker and tackler, he was a good field general, and was the principal reason why Waseda took the championship.

Halfback—Wada (Meiji)—Was the most colorful player in the league. Small but mighty, he scored many touchdowns for Meiji.

Halfback—Todo (Keio)—He was the most outstanding player for Keio. A good ball carrier, he has weight and speed.

Fullback—Naguwa (Waseda)—He was most effective for short gains. He was especially good on the quarterback sneak play.

Second Team

Center—Nakajima (Waseda)
Guard—Bun (Meiji).
Guard—Inouye (Meiji).
Tackle—Ohama (Meiji)
Tackle—Fukushima (Waseda).
End—Machida (Meiji)
End—Yamagata—(Keio).
Quarterback—Hamasaki (Meiji)
Halfback—Cho (Waseda).
Halfback—Shima (Rikkyo).
Fullback—Yoshimoto (Meiji).

Yours truly,
NORMAN TACHIKAWA.

Lake Placid Bids For 1942 Tourney

Christian Science Monitor

LAKE PLACID, N.Y.—The international calibre of Lake Placid's Winter sports facilities were given full recognition at a meeting of the Directors of the United States Eastern Amateur Ski Association, which was held in Amherst, Massachusetts, recently, when that body unanimously approved the bid of Lake Placid for the holding of the 1942 World's Ski Championships. The Eastern Association will place Lake Placid's invitation before the National Ski Association at its annual meeting, which will be held in the early part of December.

Lake Placid's invitation includes all of the events—the downhill and slalom, the cross-country race, ski-jumping competition, cross-country race and jump combined, and the relay race if included, in the Championships.

The selection of Lake Placid as the site, if the Championships are awarded to the East, was due not only to its excellent facilities and reliability and constancy of snow, but for its experience in handling International sports and its facilities for handling the large number of visitors who will attend the games.

The invitation was extended by the Lake Placid Ski Club jointly with the Snow Birds of the Lake Placid Club, and had the full support of the North Elba Park District, under whose jurisdiction the major sports activities at Lake Placid.

REICH EMBASSY HOLDS PARTY

Two hundred soldiers wounded in action on the China front were entertained at the German Embassy Wednesday afternoon at a tea party. The party, given to the men now recuperating at a Tokyo military hospital, was held in the hope that it might brighten their lives and bring them cheer as well as to demonstrate the friendly feeling of Germany toward Japan. Ambassador Eugen Ott is shown serving the wounded soldiers.

Waseda Ruggers Rout Kwansei Gakuin, 64-3

Waseda University's ruggers proved much too strong for the Kwansei Gakuin fifteen and won by the lopsided score of 64 to 3 Wednesday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium.

The visitors saved themselves from a coat of whitewash after 25 minutes of play in the first half when Onoda got the ball on a line out and punted with Sahara scoring a try.

Waseda registered three tries and five goals for 34 points in the first half. Five tries and three goals marked the scoring in the second half.

The line-ups were:

Waseda: Forwards: Inouye Matsubara, Kimura, Toyoshima, Nunomura, Konishi, Tsujii and Izawa; halfbacks: Endo and Matsumoto; three-quarters: Yoshida, Suzuki, Igawa, Senda; fullback: Nishida.

Kwansei Gakuin: Forwards: Shiraishi, Nishihara, Yasuhara, Konishi, Otani, Inouye, Sahara, Onoda; halfbacks: Amano, Shibasaki, Matsumoto,, Nakada, Takai and Uyenaka; fullback: Taguma.

A. A. U. Considers Pan-American Games for 1940

NEW YORK—The executive and foreign relations committees of the Amateur Athletic Union met recently to consider the possibilities of holding Pan-American games in case the 1940 Olympics are abandoned by Finland.

A special committee consisting of Jeremiah T. Mahoney of New York, Avery Brundage of Chicago, Gustavus T. Kirby of New York, Eugene Bonniwell of Philadelphia, and Sid Foster of Los Angeles, with President Luarence Di Benedetto of New Orleans and Daniel J. Ferris, national secretary-treasurer, serving ex-officio, was appointed to consider the Pan-American games.

Proposals have been made to hold such meets in Chicago, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, and New York, and invitations from Cuba and Argentina for proposed meets there have been received.

The executive committee also recommended that the National A.A.U. convention, which will be held in Hollywood, Fla., Dec. 8 to 10, approve a plan to add 10 cents to the price of each ticket to an A.A.U. senior championship contest. The money would go into the Olympic fund.

LONDON GARDENS POOLED IN FOOD PRODUCE DRIVE

Spades, Forks of Millions Of British Gardeners Now Working in Unison

Christian Science Monitor,

LONDON,—Spades and forks of millions of British gardeners and allotment holders are keeping pace with the plow in a drive to produce more food at home.

At the outbreak of war, each amateur agriculturalist viewed his own plot with a new conception of its importance; since then the weight of the Ministry of Agriculture, allotment and gardening societies has been directed to encouraging, assisting, and co-ordinating individual efforts into a national campaign.

An average allotment can keep a man, his wife, and three children in potatoes and vegetables for 212 days out of 365, according to an official statement. Moreover, the amateur is not longer in competition with the farmer but is working side by side with him in easing the task of the British Navy in protecting food supplies from overseas and in cutting down the work of home distribution when gasoline has to be rationed.

Under the new plan to increase allotments by 500,000, powers have been given urban authorities to take possession of unoccupied land without obtaining consent and of occupied land by agreement with owner and occupier. This means that unsightly weed-ridden plots awaiting the builder soon will be growing crops.

GOVERNMENT AIDS MOVE

Government booklets have been issued to guide allotment holders; allotment societies are arranging bulk purchases of seeds, implements, and fertilizers. There are more than 2,000 local allotment societies in Britain with a membership of some 200,000. The number of allotments in 1938 was about 900,000. This showed a big drop from 1,330,000 in 1920 but with the new campaign under way it is expected the 1920 total soon will be passed.

Inquiries for plots have been pouring into the London offices of the National Allotment Society. Secretary of this organization, George W. Gilles, has for years been waging a battle to retain allotments from builders' clutches. He contends that all who desire allotments should be able to obtain them if sufficient pressure is brought to bear on local authorities.

An average allotment measures about 10 by 30 yards or one-sixteenth of an acre. The national Allotment Society recommends that annual rents should not exceed 10 shillings a plot in urban areas or 4 shillings in the country. Unemployed can obtain seeds and tools at low cost from the Society of Friends and other organizations.

Meanwhile radio talks for gardeners and gardening periodicals have switched emphasis from flowers to vegetables. Nevertheless gardeners are being repeatedly warned not to become unbalanced by the enthusiasm of the moment to the extent of digging up everything in their gardens. Flowers, it is pointed out, play an important part in keeping the Nation cheerful in wartime.

NURSERY PRICES CUT

Many horticulturalists, who have space and time for both flowers and vegetables are, in fact, benefiting greatly from the big price reductions in plants and shrubs necessitated by nursery gardens clearing land for food production. So there should be plenty of bright gardens next Spring and Summer as well as a great increase in food-stuffs.

Gardeners in Britain are fortunate in having a temperate climate. There are few week ends in the year when it is not possible to work the soil and a number of vegetables flourish through the Winter. Doubtless this is one reason why this country has become a Nation of gardeners, the majority of British families living in houses with a piece of garden of some sort.

Local authorities now have the right, with the Minister of Agriculture's consent, to take over common land for allotments. Already some land in Bushy Park, well known beauty spot near London, which has not been plowed since the days of Napoleon, is being prepared for food production.

KEPT WITHIN BOUNDS

There is, however, strong opposition to any widespread interference with public amenities by plowing parks and open spaces, just as individual gardeners are advised not to dig up lawns which have taken years of careful work to bring to perfection.

The Government has shown a determination that efforts of gardens and allotment workers shall be used to best advantage by its plan for a series of urban executive committees similar to those already set up to control and advise the farming industry. Professional gardeners and nurserymen are cooperating with committees.

Services of C. H. Middleton, undisputed head gardener of Britain in the light of his popular Sunday afternoon talks, are being used to interpret and expand the Government pamphlet, "Food From the Garden." One of Mr. Middleton's chief tasks is to encourage gardeners and allotment holders to make best use of their ground. He also urges people to grow what they like best.

In a recent radio talk, he warned listeners against making the mistake of a friend of his who heard parsnips were good vegetables to grow. But after this friend had taken great trouble in the drilling separate holes for each root to grow down into, it dawned on him that neither he nor any of his family liked parsnips.

NEIGHBORLINESS GROWS

One of the best by-products of this wave of activity and enthusiasm in Britain's gardens and allotments is a new "neighborliness." A breaking down of the characteristic British reserve is noticeable in many aspects of life in war-time. Redistribution of population through evacuation, the blackout, curtailed traveling facilities, and a general desire to talk to people about stirring events have helped to break down barriers.

The Theater in London And the New War

N.Y. Times

Now that eight regular theaters as well as a dozen music halls and subsidiary theaters are open, London may be said to be having some sort of a theatrical season. But the serious theater still is as dead as mutton. J. B. Priestley's "Music at Night," at the Westminster, did as well as could be expected in that theater under these circumstances, but its last weeks are announced.

The most considerable straw indicating the direction of a strong winds is this week's new production at the Criterion of "French for Love." The play in itself is unimportant, but considered as the first wartime venture by one of the most solidly established of our serious theatrical managements, it is a portent. The management is that of Howard Wyndham and Bronson Albery, who have a high reputation well deserved over a number of years. They never have been reluctant to lose a little money if they could give real pleasure to London's small band of serious playgoers, yet they never have been mere theatrical philanthropists. When war broke out, Mr. Albery said to me he thought any one who attempted theatrical production in London for some time to come would be certain to burn his fingers. "Surely," I said, "in the last war was not London an absolute gold mine for theater managers?" "Yes," he said, "but not for the first six months. It wasn't until London began to be full of soldiers on leave that any one went to the theater at all. This time London is unlikely to be full of soldiers on leave."

It is fairly evident he has acted on this opinion. The only one of his three theaters to be opened thus far is the little Criterion, which is a traditional home of good, light pieces. It is obvious "French for Love" is to serve as a kind of test of wartime audiences. The Messrs. Albery and Wyndham are dipping a very careful toe into the water to see how cold it is before they go in over their ankles. To my mind, much though I respect them, they have been overcautious. "French for Love" is, I would say, the worst play that has been on the Criterion's stage since the last war, when it housed a frightful affair called "A Little Bit of Fluff."

Probably it is sensible to assume that soldiers on leave and ordinary people trying to forget this war do not want very serious plays. It is not so sensible to assume that because people went to see absolute rubbish at the end of the last war they will want to see the same sort of stuff at the beginning of this one.

If you ask what "French for Love" is about, I find it difficult to give a cohehent answer. When the curtain finally fell, I had no idea at all what the impulse was that had persuaded any one to sit down and write it. It has one virtue, one only, that it provides a vehicle for Alice Delysia—the French actress whose welcome to London is always assured—and for Cecil Parker, one of the most quietly staisfactory of our actors.

The play is full of earnestly bawdy lines and painstakingly risky situations and I, personally, found it boring in the extreme. However, I am ready to find that the Messrs. Wyndham and Albery, shrewd men of the theater, are right again and that the play will have a success. But if so, nothing will ever convince me that the credit should go to anydoy but the actors, or that a better play of the same kind would not have done better still.

The only other new production of the week, "Runaway Love," at the Saville, is just another made-to-measure farce. There is no doubt about it, the art of the theater is having a rough time just now.

—W. A. D.

RADIO CONTROL AIM OF URUGUAY

Bill Establishing Principle That Ether Is State Domain Follows Argentine Step

N.Y. Times

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay—Both Argentina and Uruguay are preparing to put all broadcasting under strict government control, including the censorship of news. The Uruguayan President recently sent a bill to Congress to that effect and the Argentine Government published the recommendations of a government commission which spent a year studying the problem.

The Uruguayan bill establishes the principle that the atmosphere over the country's territory is a State domain, and that strict governmental control and use of that domain does not violate the constitutional guarantees of free speech, free thought or any other individual liberties any more than those liberties are violated in the government's control of the use of its domain in the soil and subsoil.

According to this principle the State argues that it has the same right to exercise its sovereignty by prohibiting and regulating the crossing by airplanes.

Most of the other South American countries already exercise censorship over radio broadcasting by taking phonographic recordings of all programs and later fining or closing down the stations for sending anything the government disapproves of.

CONFUSION AND OVERLAPPING

The proposed Uruguayan law would prohibit all broadcasting in foreign languages until the government has approved the translation of what is to be broadcast. There is much confusion and overlapping in broadcasting both in Argentina and Uruguay due to the large number of stations most of which are financially unable to cope with the competition of the larger stations. Even the owners of the stations generally admit that some kind of reorganization is urgently necessary but most of them object to the entrance of the government into the broadcasting business.

Argentina has forty-two broadcasting stations of which thirty-eight are commercial and four official. Twenty-one of the stations are situated in the city of Buenos Aires or its environs. Montevideo, with less than a quarter of the population of Buenos Aires, has twenty-six stations.

The Argentine commission appointed to study the situation and recommend a solution has reached the conclusion that "the universal tendency is toward centralization of the technical, administrative and artistic services" and recommends that this centralization be put in the hands of a new organization to be administrated by the State or in a private entity in which the government will be represented. The report favors the latter course. The government explained that its object in publishing the report was to get the public reaction before drawing up new legislation.

WOULD CANCEL ALL LICENSES

The commission recommends the cancellation of all existing broadcasting licenses and the creation of a twenty-five year monopoly to be exercised by a new corporation to be formed by all the present station owners who care to join it. This corporation would be ruled by a board of thirteen directors, all appointed by the government. The President and four directors would represent the State, and the other eight would represent the station owners. All thirteen must be native-born Argentines, which would automatically bar from the directorate the owners of several of the largest and most important stations.

The government would have a voice in the preparation of all programs by its five directors. All stations would have to operate under strict control of the Department of Posts and Telegraphs. Both the Argentine and Uruguayan proposals contemplate a drastic cutting down of the number of stations but provide that the smaller number of new stations must produce the same amount of taxation the State is now receiving.

TEXT OF ORDER IN COUNCIL

The following is the text of the Order in Council framing reprisals for restricting further the commerce of Germany, approved by the British King on November 27, (Statutory Rules and Orders, 1939, No. 1709):—

Whereas his Majesty has been compelled to take up arms against Germany in defense of the fundamental right of nations to a free and peaceful existence:

And whereas German forces have in numerous cases sunk merchant vessels, British, Allied, and neutral, in violation of the rules contained in the Submarine Protocol, 1936, to which Germany is a party:

And whereas merchant vessels, British, Allied, and neutral, have been sunk by mines laid by German forces indiscriminately and without notification, in contravention of the obligations of humanity and the provisions of The Hague Convention No. VII of 1907 to which Germany is a party:

And whereas the sinking of these vessels has been effected without regard to their nationality or destination or to the nature, ownership or destination of their cargoes:

And whereas these acts have already resulted in grave loss of noncombatant life, British, Allied and neutral:

And whereas it is manifest that the German Government have deliberately embarked on a policy of endeavoring to destroy all seaborne trade between the Allied and other countries by a ruthless use of the forces at their disposal, contrary to the laws and customs of war, the rights of neutrals and the obligations of humanity:

And whereas this action on the part of the German Government gives to his Majesty an unquestionable right of retaliation:

And whereas the Allies of his Majesty are associated with him in the steps now to be announced for restricting further the commerce of Germany:

Now, therefore, his Majesty is pleased, by and with the advice of his Privay Council, to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follolws:—

1. Every merchant vessel which sailed from any enemy port, including any port in territory under enemy occupation or control, after the 4th day of December, 1939, may be required to discharge in a British or Allied port any goods on board laden in such enemy port.

2. Every merchant vessel which sailed from a port other than an enemy port after the 4th day of December, 1939, having on board goods which are of enemy origin or are enemy property may be required to discharge such goods in a British or Allied port.

3. Goods discharged in a British port under either of the preceding articles shall be placed in the custody of the Marshal of the Prize Court, and, unless the Court orders them to be requisitioned for the use of his Majesty, shall be detained or sold under the direction of the Court. The proceeds of goods so sold shall be paid into Court.

On the conclusion of peace such proceeds and any goods detained but not sold shall be dealt with in such manner as the Court may in the circumstances deem just; provided that nothing herein shall prevent the payment out of Court of any such proceeds or the release of any goods at any time (a) if it be shown to the satisfaction of the Court that the goods had become neutral property before the date of this Order, or (b) with the consent of the proper officer of the Crown.

4. The law and practice in Prize shall, so far as applicable, be followed in all cases arising under this Order.

5. Nothing in this Order shall affect the liability of any vessel or goods to seizure or condemnation independently of this Order.

6. For the purposes of this Order the words "goods which are of enemy origin" shall include goods having their origin in any territory under enemy occupation or conrtol, and the words "goods which . . . are enemy property" shall include goods belonging to any person in any such territory.

7. Proceedings under this Order may be taken in any Prize Court having jurisdiction to which the Prize Court Rules, 1939 (A), apply.

8. For the purposes of this Order the words "British port" mean any port within the jurisdiction of any Prize Court to which the Prize Court Rules, 1939, apply.

Rupert B. Howorth.

(A) S.R. & O. 1939 No. 1466

ADVICE TO MERCHANTS

The Ministry of Economic Warfare states that requests in respect of goods which have been required to be discharged should be addressed, supported by the necessary documentary evidence, to the proper officer of the Crown in the territory concerned. This, in the case of the United Kingdom, would be his Majesty's Procurator-General, Storey's Gate, London, S.W.I. Such requests should not be addressed to any other Government Department.

Merchants who wish to ensure that their exports from European countries are not delayed or detained are advised to obtain certificates of origin and interest from a British or French consular officer in the European country concerned. They should arrange for these certificates to accompany the goods on board the vessel. This will greatly facilitate the examination of the vessel at the control bases, and shipowners are therefore strongly advised not to accept cargo not accompanied by such certificates.

'COMMERCIAL PASSPORT' SOLD

Britain to Charge $2 For 'Navicerts' to Speed Shipments Through Blockade

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK—A charge of $2 will be made by British consuls in this country for the issuance of so-called navicerts, commercial passports for merchandise shipped through the British blockade to neutral nations bordering Germany, according to application forms available at the offices of the British Consul-General here.

There was widespread speculation regarding the charges likely to be made for the certificates when the navicert plan was announced recently. Exporters said they considered the $2 charge reasonable.

Most foreign traders who commented on the revival of the navicert plan recalled its operation during the World War. They said the system, set up here first on March 11, 1916, had proved helpful in facilitating shipments through the British blockade at that time and that if the revived policy was operated along similar lines it should eliminate the long delays involved in the searching of ships at British ports.

William S. Swingle, vice-president of the National Foreign Trade Council, said that if the plan was carried out as it was in the World War exporters would find little objection. He warned, however, that the system could become burdensome if it was used as a means of attaching conditions to the granting of a certificate or if it was used to limit the variety of merchandise that exporters can ship to neutral European markets.

EXPORTERS SEE EXTENSIVE USE

Exporters indicated they would use the system extensively, but added that if burdensome requirements or high fees were attached they would ship goods without the certificates and take their chances of delays caused by searches on the other side.

The form prepared by the British Government for the use of exporters includes fifteen questions the prospective shipper must answer. Known as the "Form of Application for Neutral Exporters Desiring Navicerts," the form contains a foreward as follows:

"I desire to obtain a navicert for the under-mentioned consignment on the conditions prescribed by His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom. I certify that the particulars given below are, to the best of my knowledge and belief, true and correct, and I undertake to pay on request the sum of $2 if a navicert is granted as a contribution to the cost of telegraphic inquiries."

Questions included in the form concern the name and address of the shipper, precise nature of the goods, the quantity in words and figures, the net weight in metric ton where possible, shipping marks, name and address of consignor, if different from that of the shipper, the name and address of the consignee, and the ultimate consignee, port of shipment, proposed date of shipment, name and nationality of the vessel and ports to which goods are consigned.

PROVISION FOR LACK OF DATE

In cases where particulars as to sailing dates are not available the applicant is asked to sign a statement as follows:

"I am unable at present to give particulars of the date and port of shipment or of the vessel in which the goods will be shipped but I undertake (1) to do so not less than three days before the date of shipment, and (2) to surrender this navicert if requested to do so when particulars of the vessel are supplied."

A note at the bottom of the form states:

"That this document, when signed by or for H. M. Ambassador and duly sealed, constituted a navicert, and should be carried in the same ship as the goods to which it relates. Its distinguishing letter and number should be entered against the item in the ship's manifest to which it relates. It must be surrendered on demand to any duly authorized official or, in any case, to the British consular officer at the port of destination."

GOOD TREAT IN STORE FOR BOXING FANS

Boxing fans won't have to wait long for what is likely to be the biggest bout in 1940 as the Fuji Boxing Club is pulling off a return match between Umio Gen, handsome Chosenese pugilist, and Tsuneo (Piston) Horiguchi, Japan's best known fighter, during the first week of the new year. The two will meet in the main event over 12 rounds of a smoker on the night of January 5 at the Kokugikan wrestling bowl in Ryogoku, on the east side of the Sumida river.

Fresh from a campaign of almost a year in the rings of the Pacific coast of the United States where he learned much of the game, Gen in May last year outfought Horiguchi over 10 rounds before 20,000 rabid fans at the same bowl. Horiguchi never took more punishment in his life and it was his first defeat at the hands of a boxer of local talent in the seven years of his pugilistic career.

HORIGUCHI TRAINS HARD

Horiguchi has been training conscientiously for this return match with Gen, but some of the close followers of the sport are of the opinion that the Chosenese lad, who is equally at home in long distance and infighting, will once more outpoint the rugged Japanese scrapper. In his recent bouts, Horiguchi has not shown the fire he has had in his all-offensive tactics, which had won for him the monicker of "Piston." Rather, he has resorted to boxing and in this he is not at home. He has won his fights by taking all the opponents' punches and then beating them by sheer aggressiveness, wearing them down with his rushes. In other words, his stamina has always been superior to his opponents'.

The only chance Horiguchi has to win against Gen is to resort to this old style fighting of his. If he elects to box, there is no question that Gen will box his ears off. But Gen is reported in the pink of condition. His footwork is the envy of all boxers here. In his bout last year, he took care of Horiguchi's rushes in good style, beating him to the punch with lefts and rights to the face and body.

JUNIOR LIGHTWEIGHTS

The indications are that the two will fight as junior lightweights though they have been appearing as featherweights. Gen is believed likely to hit the scales at 130 pounds and Horiguchi at 129 pounds.

There will be action galore when the two rivals meet. It will be a toe to toe fighting from the opening gong to the final in the 12th if the fight goes that long and it is expected to because both are tough scrappers.

There will be two eight rounders, three six rounders and three four-round preliminaries as well on the card, with the curtain-raiser starting at 6 p.m.

SCIENCE CONGRESS SHAPED BY HULL

Leading Investigators of Americas to Meet in Washington, May 10-18

N.Y. Times

WASHINGTON—The eighth American Scientific Congress, in which leading scientists from all the Americas will participate, will be held in this city from May 10 to May 18, 1940, under the auspices of the Government of the United States.

Definite plans for the congress, expected to be one of the most important scientific gatherings ever held on the Western Hemisphere, are being formulated by the Department of State, under the direction of Secretary Hull.

Invitations on behalf of President Roosevelt, pursuant to a special act of Congress, have been extended to the governments of the American republics which are members of the Pan American Union to participate in the congress. Scientific institutions and organizations are also being cordially invited to send representatives.

The congress will be one of the important phases of the celebration of the fifth anniversary of the founding of the Pan American Union, which will begin April 14, 1940.

"It is hoped," the announcement states, "that the presence in Washington of many disinguished investigators from the American republics as participants in this congress will serve as one of the many tributes to the Pan American Union on the occasion of celebrating the completion of a half century of invaluable service in the fostering of good-will and better understanding among the republics of the Western Hemisphere.

ELEVEN SECTIONS PLANNED

"This series of inter-American meetings, serving as a medium for the exchange of scientific information of particular interest and importance to the governments and peoples of the Americas, has enjoyed a long and distinguished history, dating from the first Latin-American Scientific Congress held at Buenos Aires in April, 1898."

The congress will be divided into the following eleven sections; anthropological sciences; biological sciences; geological sciences; agriculture and conservation; public health and medicine; physical and chemical sciences; statistics; history and geography; international law, public law and jurisprudence; economics and sociology; education.

Each of the sections will be in charge of a chairman, assisted by a vice-chairman, secretary and section committee. The chairman of the respective sections will be selected at an early date, after which the detailed agenda of each section will be announced.

The official languages of the congress will be English, Spanish, Portuguese and French.

The Department of State and a special organizing committee are also preparing an entertainment program which will include visits to places of scientific and general interest in Washington and its environs.

COMMITTEE IS NAMED

Secretary of State Hull has requested the following government officials and scientific men to serve upon the organizing committee, which is collaborating with the Department of State in formulating definite plans for the congress.

Sumner Welles, Under-Serecretary of State, chairman.

Dr. Warren Kelchner, acting chief Division of International Conferences, Department of State, vice-chairman.

Dr. Alexander Wetmore, assistant secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, secretary.

Dr. C. G. Abbot, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution.

Dr. Isaiah Bowman, president the Johns Hopkins University.

Dr. Vannevar Bush, president Carnegie Institution of Washington.

Dr. Ben M. Cherrington, chief Division of Cultural Relations, Department of State.

Laurence Duggan, chief Division of the American Republics, Department of State.

Dr. Ross G. Harrison, chairman National Research Council.

Dr. Waldo G. Leland, Secretary American Council of Learned Societies.

Archibald MacLeish, librarian of Congress.

Dr. Thomas Parran Jr., surgeon general United States Public Health Service.

Dr. Stuart A. Rice, chairman of the Central Statistical Board.

Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director general Pan American Union.

Dr. James Brown Scott, trustee and secretary Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

Dr. Wetmore has been designated also as secretary general of the congress.

WASEDA ROUTS DOSHISHA RUGGERS

Doshisha University's ruggers proved no match for the Waseda fifteen in their annual game Wednesday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium, the Tokyo combination winning by a 42-3 score. The photo shows Suzuki of Waseda in the clear heading for a try after 18 minutes of play in the first half.

Kanto All-Stars Route Kansai, 32-0 In U.S. Football

The Kanto All-Stars routed the Kansai All-Stars 32-0 in their third annual American football game on New Year's Day, played this year at the Hanazono grounds in Osaka. It was the third straight victory for the Eastern aggregation.

Kansai put up a good defense and held the Kanto backs scoreless in the first quarter and held them to one touchdown in the second. But the winners registered another touchdown in the third period and rushed over three more in the final quarter.

The scores were:

Kanto	0	6	7	19	—32

PARIS ENDS NEEDLESS ALARMS

Too Frequent Sounding of Sirens Against Air Raids Greatly Reduced at Present

By WILLIAM H. CHAMBERLAIN

Christian Science Monitor

PARIS, Nov. 24—Disorganization of daily life resulting from frequent sounding of air raid alarm has been greatly reduced by the new policy of withholding alarming when German planes are obviously not of the bombing type and merely carrying out scouting or propaganda missions.

The apparent purpose of increased German flights over French territory is the location of the position of anti-aircraft batteries and other defensive installations, although no one can say whether this intensified air activity is a prelude to more serious land operations which still remain on a small scale with the French communique frequently worded, "Nothing important to report."

LEGEND DESTROYED

Recently reported air successes of individual combats with German airplanes have exerted a heartening influence on French morale, largely destroying the legend of an invincible German Army to which Germany has devoted most of its attention. Of course, it is realized that neither France nor England have yet sustained the real test of mass attacks by German bombers, but it is believed here that the possibilities of reprisals may deter Germany from embarking on this mutually destructive form of hostilities.

Meanwhile, clearer weather has been partly responsible for a marked increase in aerial warfare which has engaged both French and British air forces during the past few days. The French communique Nov. 24 reported eight German pursuit airplanes shot down by the Allies against one French missing.

A German High Command communique, however, declared that German planes on Nov. 23 brought down three enemy craft, with no losses to German planes.

In Britain it is reported that German air raids on the Shetland Islands continued today, two air raid warnings being sounded.

TOLL IN PLANES TO DATE

The French also had reason to be satisfied with the achievements of their aviators No. 22 when five German pursuit planes were shot down on French soil and a German reconnaissance plane crashed in Belgium. The French admitted loss of a single airplane. This makes a total of 17 German planes destroyed in the last two days.

It is estimated that more than 60 German airplanes have been destroyed by the French Air Force since the beginning of the war, while some 25 have been brought down during raids against British coastal objectives and on naval ships. French and British air losses, according to official communiques, are much smaller.

French military experts attribute their air victories largely to the superior maneuvering ability of their pilots and the high quality of two types of pursuit airplanes, American Curtisses and French Moranes. It is believed here that the Allies derived some indirect benefit from Germany's head start in the aviation race. There is no branch of armament where obsolescence makes itself felt so soon as aviation, and French and British aviation experts believe Germany overstocked with great quantities of Messerschmidt pursuit planes which are inferior to the latest French and British American models.

Germany is still conceded the numerical advantage but it is the general impression in well-informed circles that France and England are rapidly overtaking the German lead.

29 Teams Entered In All-Japan Cage Play

The All-Japan basketball championships for men and women started today at the National Gymnasium at Hitotsubashi, Kanda, and will be continued for the next three days. A total of 29 teams is entered.

The All-Fusei team of Keijo is a strong favorite to win its third straight title in the men's division. A battle royal is expected among the Kyoto First Prefectural, Sanyo and Niigata Higher Girls schools for the women's title.

100,000 MASS TO END BOSSISM IN KANSAS CITY

U.S. Midwest City Scene Of Petition for Change In Charter for Recall

Christian Science Monitor

KANSAS CITY, Missouri—The denying Nov. 21 of a parole to Tom Pendergast, former boss of the Kansas City Democratic machine, gives emphasis to the filing of petitons bearing more than 100,000 names, demanding what would amount to a recall of City officials. This action is seen as a direct blow at the domination of the Pendergast machine.

Petitions call for an amendment to the City Charter, reducing terms of elective City officials to two years. The incumbents thus would be replaced next April. Since the petitions bear more than twice the 39,000 names required, the City Council undoubtedly will call an election not less than 60 days nor more than 90 days after the filing date, November 16, or between Jan. 15 and Feb. 15.

The amendment plan of attack was necessitated by tactics of the machine which prevented a direct recall election as provided in the Charter. Under that law, the City Clerk handles recall petitions. It is charged he handicapped recall workers and rejected petitions. Now the City Clerk, Charles W. Regan, and an assistant are under indictment on charges of oppression in office and an appeal from his ruling on the petitions is in the hands of the Missouri Supreme Court.

SERIES OF INCIDENTS

A series of incidents, including resignation of three Councilmen and the passing of the only Republican members of the Council, has empowered the Pendergast organization to appoint four new Councilmen who, under the Charter, are not subject to recall for six months. Of the other five, one is elected by the First District where it is believed the machine still could win an election. Thus the organization would emerge from a direct recall still in control of the Council, with five of the nine members.

Recall forces have made the issue of the amendment campaign clear by limiting it to one proposition, ouster of the present City officials. The city-manager form of government has not been attacked in the reform movement.

Groups in the Pendergast organization, however, are blaming the City Charter for the fraud and dereliction in office being uncovered. Representative Joseph B. Shannon has demanded a complete revision of the Charter. He has called for a return to a straight political basis, to replace the civil service provision of the Charter.

There is little of the political, however, in the make-up of the recall movement.

COUNTY JUDGE RESIGNS

Whatever the outcome in the amendment campaign, the machine is steadily losing power as Federal and State grand juries uncover more evidence of corruption. The heaviest recent blow fell Nov. 8, when David E. Long resigned as presiding judge of the Jackson County Court, rather than face a fourth trial on a charge of corruptly allowing claims against the County.

The County grand jury not only indicted the City Clerk and an assistant, but also brought charges against the City Auditor, City Director of Finance, and two City fee collectors.

Federal officers who started the groundwork for the present clean-up almost three years ago, with a sweeping investigation of fraud in the 1936 general election, are not idle. Pendergast and R. E. O'Malley, former State Superintendent of Insurance, have been joined in the Federal Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., by Otto P. Higgins who pleaded guilty to charges of income-tax evasion.

Charles V. Carollo, the machine's "collector," also has gone to Leavenworth for eight years.

WHY I AM THANKFUL

By LOU GEHRIG

N.Y. Herald Tribune

When I was seven or eight I thought I would be the luckiest kid on earth if I could ever play football on the high-school team. I did.

When I was in high school I thought I would be the luckiest boy on earth if I could only go to college. I did.

When I was in college I thought I would be the luckiest fellow on earth if I could just break into big-league baseball. I did.

When I fell in love with The Most Wonderful Girl in the World I thought I would be the luckiest man on earth if she would really marry me. She did.

I could go on, but maybe that is enough to make my point.

Lou Gehrig

In baseball we talk a lot about the breaks. But I figure the best break I ever got in baseball was when I was signed by the Yankees. When you're playing for the best team in the league you get good breaks made for you all the time, and you can take the bad ones and still come out on top at the end of the season.

A BAD BREAK

This Summer I got a bad break. The doctors said I couldn't play baseball any more. All right, I'm still the luckiest man on earth, when you add things up. I've still got a long season of life to play out, and my team—America—is absolutely the best in the league. That's what counts.

I was a poor kid. We lived in a poor neighborhood. But it was in America, where even poor kids in poor neighborhoods get good breaks—playgrounds, supervised athletics, good public schools. So I got to play on the high-school football team—which made me the luckiest kid on earth.

My mother and father were hard-working people and they hadn't had great educational advantages. But they were American parents, willing to work hard and skimp to give their son the advantages that they had missed. In America they could do it; so I went to college—which made me the luckiest boy on earth.

I was blessed with a good physique. In some countries that might have been just the thing to commend me to the attention of the authorities as a likely young man to carry a gun. But in America it commended me, instead, to the attention of the Yankee baseball Scouts. So I became a big-league player—which made me the luckiest fellow on earth.

Just what my wife saw in me to make her consent to marry me I've never fully understood. But I do know that if I hadn't been sure that I could support her I wouldn't have had the gall to ask her to do it. In this America, the most prosperous country in the world, I had no qualms about making enough money for that. So we were married—which made me the luckiest man on earth.

There are plenty of other reasons why I claim that title. America had lavished opportunities upon me, wonderful friends and associates, great personal satisfactions — all good breaks. I can see no more reason to be overwhelmed by one bad break in the game of life than I could in the game of baseball. After all, I'm still playing on the top-notch team. And what better break could a man have than a chance to do his part for his country as an official of its greatest city? That break came to me recently when I was appointed member of the Parole Commission of New York City.

In baseball you learn that it's team play that makes the good breaks pile up, makes up for the bad ones. I remember, several years ago, going up to Sing Sing prison with the Yankees to play an exhibition game. When we went out on the field it sounded like oldhome week to me. A lot of the convicts in the stand were yelling "Hey, Lou!"....."How're you, Lou?"....."Remember me, Lou?" I looked around and there were several of the fellows who had been kids with me back in my old neighborhood. And I suppose they were thinking, "Lou got all the breaks."

Well, that's what I've just been saying. And I'm sorry for those poor fellows who got bad breaks and landed in Sing Sing. But they certainly got one good break, the most important break of all, the same break that I got. They were Americans. That made them members of the best team in the league, the team that spots a fellow more than his share of the good breaks before he starts.

STRESSES TEAMWORK

Only they forgot—or never knew—that you don't get the breaks unless you play with the team, instead of against it. That's one thing that baseball has taught me. I've seen plenty of fellows come up to the big leagues and land on their ears, because they tried to chisel a little extra glory for themselves and let their teammates down. And they almost always blame the breaks—though they have had the best break of all in getting on the team in the first place.

I suspect it is just the same in any other field, or in life in general. My hunch is that if those fellows up in Sing Sing hadn't tried to chisel a little extra glory—or gravy—for themselves, at the expense of their fellow Americans, they would have had much better breaks all the way along. As a parole commissioner, I hope that I can help youngsters who have got headed wrong to see that they make their own bad breaks—and good ones. I hope that I can help them to help themselves to breaks as good as I have had.

And I'm the luckiest man on earth.

Three British Cruisers Reported Badly Damaged

Special to The Japan Times

MONTEVIDEO, Jan. 3—The British cruisers Ajax, Achilles and the badly damaged Exeter, which took part in the battle with the German 10,000 ton "pocket-battleship" Admiral Graf Spee, are said to be visiting Montevideo.

The request for these cruisers to stay in a foreign port is being interpreted here as confirmation of the report that not only the Exeter but the other two cruisers as well were badly damaged.

OFFICIAL STANDINGS ANNOUNCED FOR 'SPRING' SUMO TOURNEY

The "Spring" championship tournament of the long-haired professional wrestlers will start on Thursday of next week for 15 days at the Kokugikan bowl at Ryogoku on the east side of the Sumida river, according to announcement by the moguls of the Japan Sumo Association.

The tourney will mark the revival of the East versus West competition for the first time in nine years.

Official standing of the ranks, according to the East and West teams, announced by the Association find Grand Champions Futabayama and Minanogawa heading the respective sides. The practice of wrestlers meeting all others of different training houses, irrespective of whether they have been ranked on the East or West sides, has been discontinued.

The standings of those in the upper division follow, with those of the higher honors at the top:

EAST	WEST
Grand Champion
Futabayama	Minanogawa
Champion
Haguroyama	Mayedayama
Sekiwake
Nayoroiwa	Akinoumi
Komusubi
Tamanoumi	Ayanobori
Mayegashira
Tatekabuto	Itsutsushima
Terukuni	Kasagiyama
Onami	Ryogoku
Oshio	Matsunosato
Kaneminato	Ayawaka
Saganohana	Ryuozan
Banjaku	Kashimanada
Aobayama	Dewaminato
Asahigawa	Takiyuzan
Fujigadake	Hishuzan
Tomoegata	Sagamiwa
Tsurugamine	Dewanohana
Shachinosato	Konanosato
Komatsuyama	Yamatonishiki
Kukanishiki	Sakuranishiki
Katsuragawa	Fujinosato
Hatasegawa	Jintozan
Genjiyama	Shikainada
Matsuuragata	Ichiwatari
Kojimakawa	Yamatoiwa

Those in the upper division or "makunouchi" for the first time are Sakuranishiki and Shikainami of the Dewanoumi training house, and Komatsuyama and Kuganishiki of the Izutsu training house.

While Futabayama lost four bouts, his first defeats in three years, last January, he started on another winning streak in the "Summer" tournament last July going through the 15-day tourney without a defeat. Happily married now to an Osaka heiress, the handsome grand champion is said to be stronger than ever, and is a strong favorite to win the individual championship honors in the forthcoming meet.

What is expected to be the most interesting bout of the 15-day tournament is that between Futabayama and Akinoumi on the 13th day. For it will be recalled that it was Akinoumi who stopped Futabayama's winning streak over three years at 69 victories in the January championships last year. And it was Akinoumi again who gave Futabayama his hardest bout in the May tournament that followed. This time, Akinoumi has been promoted to a "sekiwake," rank third from grand champion, and is the mainstay of the Dewanoumi training house, pillar of the West side.

Tickets are already difficult to obtain, what with the wartime boom prevailing.

FRENCH SIGNPOSTS BRING TO MIND AMERICAN EXPLOITS IN LAST WAR

By HAROLD DENNY

N.Y. Times

PARIS—It is a strange thing, but as one travels about France as some of us have been doing extensively in recent days, the World War of 1914-18 becomes so much more real than the present one even though the last guns ceased firing more than 21 years ago.

Though we have heard the guns of this new war thumping as we stood on the roof of a fortress in the Maginot Line, and though we have seen British fighters pursuing German planes to destruction over the British lines, they give nothing comparable to the sense of war—and of its death and suffering and devastation as well as of its heroism—which we feel when we visit the battle areas of the last war.

In our journeys some of us have passed and sometimes paused at places filled with personal memories, for among both the British and American correspondents are men who fought in that still vivid war.

SIGNPOST RECALLS OURCQ BATTLE

Imagine the feeling. You are spinning down a winding road and through a squalid village when suddenly you see a signpost on the bridge over a stream—on an insignificant muddy little creek, but its name once flared for days across the front pages of the papers back home. The signpost says it is the Ourcq. Back in August of 1918 it was the scene of some of the bitterest fighting in which the Americans took part.

It was on the hills beyond it that the Germans had dug in after they had been hurled back from the Marne and where American troops from every part of our country, among them the Rainbow Division, including New York's famous old "Sixty-ninth," were thrown into the Ourcq Valley to drive them on back. Then, we had come upon the river first at dusk and waded across it to come under machine-gun fire so intense that we were pulled back to renew the attack the next day. And all next day we fought along the marshy banks of the little stream and finally floundered across it and gained the heights—and the German machine guns that had been holding us up. Joyce Kilmer was among the dead of that battle of the Ourcq.

RETURNS TO CHATEAU-THIERRY

Presently we were approaching Chateau-Thierry with Belleau Wood and its cemetery just behind us. We coasted down the steep hill and suddenly the eye saw the city just as I had seen it 21 years before, when with a pack on my back I had been one of a weary ragged division, relieved at last, toiling down that same road on our way back to rest and then to more battles. The city had been deserted and in ruins then but now it was wholly restored and bustling with business.

These distances which the American soldiers had covered in 1918—hiking in full equipment or bumping along in "eight horses or 40 men" freight cars, if back of the lines, or battering their way yard by yard under shell fire and against machine guns—had seemed so vast then. But when the other day I sped through and past the places of most of America's operations in the World War, the distances seemed so absurdly short.

On this recent journey we speed without stopping through the town of Souain whose name I had almost forgotten. And then as we passed the corner I remembered that that was where we had turned off at dawn of July 4, 1918, to go into the Champagne front line and under orders to "stand or die" to help beat off Germany's last desperate offensive.

RECALLS AGGRESSIVE "COOTIES"

At Souain 21 years ago we had fallen into bunks in billets once occupied by Germans and which the French said were infested with peculiarly aggressive "cooties" that wore Iron Crosses. This was literally true. These "cooties" were translucent and when we held them up to the light their entrails formed the Iron Cross design.

We marched on to the front. That night we enjoyed a fine Fourth of July pyrotechnic display by the courtesy of the Germans who were keeping the horizon ablaze with signal rockets.

And then, the other day, racing along, for our military hosts were exigent, I suddenly saw a guidepost announcing the village of Court Isol just ahead. That name evoked memories of an ordeal which became legendary in the Rainbow Division—of the thirty-eight kilometer hike after we had been drilling all day on new doubletime formations—from Saint Amand to Court Isol to put us in position for the Champagne defensive.

WALKED IN THEIR SLEEP

On this trip we have just made we tore through the village of Court Isol, but suddenly I saw, as we passed, the farmhouse that had been our company headquarters, with our rolling kitchen in the courtyard and the stone doorstep on which I had sat to read my first mail from home. And as we whizzed out of this town the other day there was the church spire we had marched toward so long ago and the house which, on that ancient day, had been covered with climbing roses. Our French liaison officer had awaited us there at the edge of the village and had thrown roses on us as we staggered, almost walking in our sleep, into that street. And the French officer had cried at our exhaustion.

Memories such as these and many others came upon those of us who were in that other war, memories of blood and hardship—more of these than of glory, so quickly forgotten.

HORIGUCHI AVENGES DEFEAT BY GEN IN THRILLING 12-ROUNDER

By LESLIE NAKASHIMA

Faster with his fists this time and a more rugged physique, Tsuneo (Piston) Horiguchi turned the tables over his archrival, Umio Gen, Chosenese boxer, in a fight that went to the limit of 12 rounds Friday night at the Kokugikan bowl at Ryogoku. There was no question about the decision. Only a knockout could have won for Gen after the ninth round but Horiguchi it was that was in command of the situation and in better physical condition as the final gong sounded.

An overflowing crowd of more than 20,000 rabid fans took in the bout, slightly larger than that which saw the two battle the last time on May 28 last year, when Gen, fresh from a tour on the Pacific coast of the United States, won a clean-cut decision in a 10-rounder.

Piston Horiguchi

Scalpers made money. Tickets priced at 3 yen were sold as high as 5 yen and there weren't enough of them to go around. A considerable number of spectators perched themselves against the windows above the balcony of the fourth floor, overlooking the ring. How the police permitted them to do so is a wonder.

HORIGUCHI IN BETTER CONDITION

To get back to the main event of the evening, it can be said that Horiguchi won because he was in better physical condition. Gen, the able fighter that he is, cuffed him with punches to the face and body in every one of the 12 rounds, but he was ever the aggressor of the two. His relentless one-two punches, though they cannot be said to pack too much of a wallop because they are in the nature of pecking away at the other's anatomy, nevertheless wore down Gen by sheer force of numbers. The consequence was that Gen's punches began to lack power as the rounds progressed.

Horiguchi won because he fought a cool battle. While Gen took the first two rounds with an effective left and right attack to the head and body, Horiguchi refused to get excited over it. He continued to fight with straight lefts and rights and refrained from infighting in which Gen is the superior. And he unleashed amazing rallies, flinging away with both hands, when most any fighter would have been showing the effects of the rip-snorting rounds from the opening gong, to slow Gen. Horiguchi took six rounds. Four rounds were even.

As for Gen, it must be said that his long absence ffom the ring did him no good. It was his first fight since he had startled Japan's fistiana by outfighting and outpointing Horiguchi last Spring. And yet it is possible that he might have done better had he resorted to boxing instead of slugging. True, it was his idea to punish Horiguchi with left and right hooks to the body as a build-up to a knockout. But Horiguchi was too tough for him.

The two started with a bang and fought like two demons for the remaining 36 minutes. It was a give and take affair from the opening to the final gong. There was none of that usual stalling in the opening rounds to feel the other out and they might have been excused for doing this considering that it was a 12-rounder.

Horiguchi began pummelling away with both hands as the two fighters came together at 9:10 p.m. Horiguchi's weight had been announced at 127 1-2 pounds and Gen's at 128 1-2 pounds. Gen seemed taller, possibly half an inch but this might have been due to his thicker crop of hair, as the two received instructions from the referee. Gen unleashed a furious left and right attack to the face and body, but Horiguchi appeared calm and confident of the outcome of the bout. One of his straight lefts drew blood from Gen's nose early in the round and there is no doubt this did much to encourage Horiguchi. As a matter of fact, the bleeding never stopped and Gen's body was a mess of blood throughout the fight. But it was Gen's round.

The second also was Gen's round. He scored heavily with lefts and rights to the face and body. He shot in a hard right to the jaw and Horiguchi began missing. But Horiguchi rallied with a two-fisted attack and they were fighting like mad at the bell that they didn't hear.

It was a give and take affair in the third and the tide began to change in the fourth. Horiguchi peppered Gen with lefts and rights to the face as the latter tried to bore in and fight at close range. Horiguchi took the round by a shade and then the fifth by a wide margin. He shifted his attack to the body and this began to tell on the Chosenese fighter.

HORIGUCHI OUTFIGHTS GEN

The sixth and seventh rounds were even but Horiguchi outfought Gen to take the eighth, ninth and tenth rounds. The ninth especially was a big round for the Japanese scrapper. He literally boxed Gen's ears off. As the eleventh round started, Gen connected with a hard right to the body, one of his best punches in the fight, but Horiguchi refused to be bothered by it and fought back all the harder to set Gen back on his heels with his furious two-fisted attack.

Notwithstanding the torrid 11 rounds they had been through, the two came out fighting like two fresh boys as the gong sounded for the final round. They battled furiously toe to toe, Gen's mouthpiece flying out in one of the exchanges. It was another round for Horiguchi and the judges lost no time in awarding the decision to him.

An interested spectator in the ringside was Grand Sumo Champion Musashiyama, who announced his retirement recently because of a long ailing arm.

Toshiro Aoki, 124 pounds, of the Fuji Boxing Club, took a decision from Taro Aizawa 126 pounds, of the Kansai in the eight-round semi-final. The only interesting thing about this fight was at the end of the fourth round when a feminine voice cheered Aoki. "Aoki San," she cried in a high voice and the crowd howled.

In the other eight round bout of the evening, the judges pulled a bad one by giving the decision to Yoichiro Hanada of the Teikoku Boxing Club over Hideo Fujiwara. The latter's conscientious efforts of steady fighting won him many points but the judges ignored them. Hanada did altogether too much backpedalling and clowning. He weighed in at 114 pounds and Fujiwara at 117 pounds.

There were three six rounders, each was much too long, and three four round preliminaries on the card.

The smoker was sponsored jointly by the Fuji and Teikoku boxing clubs.

'FATHER DIVINE,' U.S. EVANGELIST, DEDICATES NEW SUBURBAN 'HEAVEN'

N.Y. Times

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y.—Without benefit of some of his best-known forensic mannerisms, a subdued and soft-voiced Father Divine came here recently to dedicate at a five-hour banquet the latest "extension" of his steadily expanding domain.

With virtually all his new neighbors in the Sutton Manor section ignoring his engraved invitation, the Harlem evangelist dedicated the 15-room house at 176 Farragut Circle as a model home—one of an infinite number he said would be established "universally" under the "utopian spirit of government."

At least one man who described himself as a retired stock broker dropped in from nearby, however, to share the feast, served with typical Divine lavishness. During the meal at least 100 other residents of this community crowded around the living-room end of the table, while probably 150 others came in to tour the spotless upstairs rooms, then leave them wonderingly.

ANDY ATTRACTS YOUNGSTERS

A large percentage of the callers were youngsters of from 11 to 18, who came in pairs, trios and quartets. They were particularly struck by the big box of candy opposite the living room fireplace and by baskets of fruit which studded the ground floor.

As a matter of fact, it was at the precise instant that Malcolm Vovell, a white Quaker, was declaring that there would never be smoking, drinking nor stealing on the premises, that a few of the visiting young people were engaged in what at least approximated the third of those vices.

One heavy-set young girl in a trench coat headed for the door with an apple in her hand, another in her pocket and an independent mouthful. "I guess we got enough," she remarked to a friend.

A little later a rosy-cheeked high school boy announced in business-like tones that he had "enough apples to take care of the teachers until Christmas." Report cards, he pointed out, were due next week.

Most of those residents of Sutton Manor who had expressed perturbation last June, when the Divine group acquired the house from the estate of Florence M. Childs, were reluctant to discuss the situation today, which seemed pretty well summed up by C. B. G. Gaillard, president of the Neighborhood Association.

He said he had received an invitation, would not attend and added in reply to a question:

"Well, so long as they don't violate the deed restrictions there's nothing we can do. We're just waiting."

Mrs. Robert N. Bavier, wife of a local banker, asserted her husband would not accept his bid and said of the arrival of the happy angels "It's supposed to be a residential section and this is rather a display."

JUSTICE DAVIS NOT INVITED

Supreme Court Justice Lee Parsons Davis said he hadn't been invited. A neighbor, forbidding the use of his name, conceded that the renovated home, on a knoll bounded by Echo Avenue, the Post Road and the Sound, was the "nicest looking place in the neighborhood."

Invitations were not requested at the door and the great bulk of visitors said they had received none. The first New Rochelle couple to arrive toured hastily and left with the wife somewhat fussed by requests for their names, and the presence of many news camera men.

With the sun glinting on the deep pink roof and the bright brick-red shutters, the house awaited Father Divine through the quiet morning. He arrived at 12:15 in the first of four big cars. Mother Divine, John Lamb, executive secretary, and the inevitable corps of six girl secretaries were in the party.

The small evangelist tipped his gray hat to those at the threshold who murmured, "Peace, father," and walked in. Soon he and Mr. Lamb conducted an official tour of the house and the adjoining garage, where four of the "brothers" will live.

A small portrait of the man believed by his followers to be God adorned the parlor mantlepiece, and a large one in a gilt frame hung nearby. The rugs were thick and soft, the chairs for the most part new, and the six upstairs bedrooms were particularly steeped in newness. The girl secretaries, who included Sunshine Bright, Lovely Light, Lovely Peace and Peaceful Love, busied themselves in an office with attractive playroom wall-paper.

DIVINE'S ROOM INSPECTED

Quoting "You shall worship God under your own vine and fig tree," Father Divine, in his most gracious manner, conducted the visitors to his own room. The bed had a satin spread and a frame identified as "Louis Quinzieme" by some one who insisted he knew.

Without dwelling on the furnishings, Father Divine told how Martha Light, one of nine "owners" of the house, had saved $1,000 out of housework earnings in a year and ten months, hid it "under her bathtub," and finally made it available when the purchase of the house was projected. Mr. Lamb listed among the other "owners" Virgin Mary, Peaceful Joy, Anne Shanewise and Harriet E. Cripe, who is the actual titleholder.

Miss Cripe, who is white, acted as No. 1 hostess during the day and Miss Shanewise, also a white woman, with silky gray hair and a cultured and dignified appearance, was one of the banquet speakers. She told of earning a degree at the University of Chicago and teaching at a high school there, but said she had gained her "real education" through the Divine movement. Altogether, there were 42 persons seated at the banquet, of whom at least 16 were white.

The two youngest guests had a fine time chasing each other back and forth during the early afternoon. They were Sunshine Love Madison, 7-year-old daughter of Arthur Madison, Negro attorney long associated with Father Divine, and 2½-year-old Arnold Buffum Lovell, son of the Quaker.

Mr. Lovell said the boy was named for Arnold Buffum, whom he described as his own great-grandfather and founder and first president of the anti-slavery society of which William Lloyd Garrison was secretary. Inheriting a deep concern in the problems of race equality, Mr. Lovell said he had come into contact with Father Divine through his own work in Harlem.

MUCH SINGING AT BANQUET

There was considerable singing at the banquet, but a minimum of frantic time-keeping and bodily rhythm familiar at Divine rallies at Rockland Palace in Harlem. The theme of perhaps the catchiest tune was:

Take all you want
But don't forget the best:
Sweet Father is the best.

As usual, the menue was a startling collection of items, every one of which, however, was actually served in the traditional fashion whereby every dish is passed from guest to guest.

A compilation supplied by Mr. Lamb indicated there were five hot drinks, 18 vegetables, 13 meats, eight breads, six relishes, four cold drinks, six salads, two dressings, five cheeses and nine desserts. The secretary said later he had noticed other items which he had forgotten to mention. A layer cake topped by a frosted baby lamb was a decorative feature.

The man who described himself as a stock broker said he was Fred E. Olsen of 250 Shore Road, near by, but not in, Sutton Manor. With him, he said, were his wife and sister, Miss Cecelia Olsen. The party seemed to enjoy the meal thoroughly. Mr. Olsen said he had frequently read about Father Divine and was "always interested" in the movement, which he said would require more study before he would have a detailed opinion.

In his main address, Father Divine reiterated he was not seeking the "proposition of share the wealth."

"But share the opportunity," he went on, "and I'll take care of the rest."

"Thank you, father," sighed two or three angels, while another murmured, "So glad."

The sudden pirouetting to which Rockland Palace audiences are used, and the lightning-like "Aren't you glad?" which accompany it, were completely missing from the evangelist's delivery.

A man who said he was a Larchmont lawyer dropped in during dessert and said he was sure the "one family" term in the deed was being violated by the occupancy. Mr. Lamb said when told this that he simply disagreed, and reiterated what Father Divine had said earlier—that it was unlikely all the "owners" and their associates would live in the house at the same time.

The banquet began at about 4 o'clock and wound up at about 9, when a less formal second sitting was served. Without speeches, it ended within an hour and Father Divine and his aides left Sutton Manor at 10:15 for another banquet in Harlem at midnight.

Argentina Buying Heavily From American Exporters

Christian Science Monitor

NEW YORK—Exporters said here that they had received large new orders from Argentina, notwithstanding indications in Buenos Aires that the Government there favored Great Britain and France as source for the Nation's imports.

Banking sources said sizable Argentine orders for steel, rails and railroad equipment—which in other years went to England—are being received. Other orders, they said, are being placed for chemicals and drugs, formerly purchased from Germany, and for newsprint, formerly bought in the Scandinavian countries.

They said the usual Argentine orders for automobiles, business machines and farm implements from the United States were continuing.

An Argentine Exchange Control circular saying "it is necessary . . . that our import requirements shall continue to be supplied from their normal sources" was viewed in some local quarters as closely related to the present negotiations for an Argentina-United States reciprocal trade treaty, as designed to strengthen the southern Republic's hand in bargaining for terms.

Police Jiu Jitsuist Gets Better Post

Avon Independent-News

LOS ANGELES—A policeman who competed with 500 jiu jitsu experts, mostly Japanese, to win the city championship has a new job because the chief saw his gold cup.

Some weeks ago, Chief Arthur Hohmann decided Los Angeles police should learn the Japanese wrestling tricks of the jiu jitsu system so they might deal effectively with law violation suspects without shooting them. His problem was to find a suitable instructor.

On a visit to the Hollywood station, Chief Hohmann saw a gold cup. He found it had been awarded to one of his own patrolmen, Jack Servel, as the city's jiu jitsu champion.

Mr. Sergel won the cup last Sunday but had not advertised his triumph. The chief had Mr. Sergel transferred today from his beat to the police training center.

50TH ALL-AMERICA FOOTBALL TEAM PICKED BY COLLIER'S

By GRANTLAND RICE

Collier's

The fiftieth parade of Collier's All-America marches by—a parade started by three teams—Harvard, Yale and Princeton—in 1889 under Walter Camp's supervision. It has been just half a century since Lonnie Stagg, Pudge Heffelfinger, Snake Ames and others made Walter Camp's first All-America. No one then could have looked forward fifty years to the Autumn of 1939 with its 10,000 or more well-trained, well-coached football players electrifying more than 40,000,000 fans.

It is far more difficult today to make an All-Southern, an All-Eastern or any "all" sectional team than it was then. In those days there were fifty or sixty good players around. Today sectional selections must be made from a vastly greater number of stars.

It was for this reason that Collier's decided to celebrate its Fiftieth All-America by having its All-America Advisory Board name, for the first time, the five leading all-sectional teams from which the All-America is selected.

Geographically these sections are: Eastern, from the northern Atlantic to Ohio; Southern, from the Southeastern and the Southern conferences, from Virginia to Mississippi and Louisiana State; Midwest, from Ohio to the Rocky Mountains, including the Big Ten, the Big Six and the Big Seven, plus Notre Dame and other strong entries that belong to no particular conference. In addition there are the strong Southwestern Conference and the Pacific Coast.

SCHEDULES PLAY LEADING ROLE

Schedules today play a leading role in All-America selection. For example, Notre Dame opened with Purdue and closed with Southern California through nine hard games without a half-breather in the list. Yet Iowa played an even harder schedule. Ohio State faced a killing barrier. Wisconsin had a hard, long road to handle. So did Texas A. & M. The breather, if you can find one today, makes a big difference to tired and injured men who need an oasis badly.

There are any number on these all-sectional teams who are only a scant grade below the caliber of those who step into the main frame, where there is room for only eleven. These five sectional teams might be called the All-America Squad. In actual college play there is no longer an eleven. Combinations run two, three and four deep for every position. It is the squad today that writes the story of success or failure.

The 1939 season opened with a rush. As far back as September, Notre Dame had beaten Purdue. Pittsburgh had plastered Washington, Oklahoma and Southern Methodist had fought a draw, Bradley had tied Illinois, the latter a later conqueror of Michigan. Ten major contests were played in September, supposed to be the breather month when the lion feeds on the rabbit.

Before October arrived, such powerful squads as Southern California, Methodist, Nebraska, Indiana, Clemson, Texas Christian, California, Vanderbilt, Rice, Santa Clara and Washington had been either tied or beaten. The casualty list of the season's first week was a record-breaker for all time. September's starting scores were quite enough to establish the fact that football had become truly All-America with no dominating section and few dominating teams. Before mid-November a light Cornell team had spotted Ohio State 14 points to come on with a winning finish. And Bob Zuppke's Illinois team, minus a victory in four starts, had routed Michigan the Gagnificent. By this same time, to show how swiftly they fall, only Tennessee, Cornell, Texas A. & M. and Duquesne in the upper bracket had retained their scalps. There was a savage undertow, working week by week, as the beaten got their revenge on the hitherto unbeaten. Even those coaches with big squads, three deep with able material, found it impossible to keep up the killing pace needed to win them all.

It must be remembered that the few untied and unbeaten never faced such teams as Southern California, Aklahoma, Ohio State, Missouri and several others who might have changed things. These sudden and often startling shifts naturally kept Collier's Advisory Board checking the stars of each section more closely than ever.

Modern football teams that play hard schedules, as most of them do now, not only give way physically on certain days but also lose the keen mental and emotional edge needed for a winning afternoon. A mental attitude can switch even faster than a physical condition in this modern whirligig of spinners, reverses, passes, mousetrapping, hidden-ball plays, fakes, laterals and all the intricate movements that go with both offense and defense. Brain, nerves and muscle suddenly become weary and team strength can vary by three or four touchdowns within a week's space. Whatever margin there was this last season belonged to the South, the section that got an early jump and held on grimly down the stretch. In many cases, these stronger Southern teams were partly recruited from the North, but no one sector could offer as many good teams—Tulane, Tennessee, Duke, Georgia Tech, North Carolina, Clemson, Alabama, Mississippi, L. S. U., Kentucky and Vanderbilt carried Dixie to its peak year. Tennessee and Tulane were exceptionally strong while Duke was only a stride or two away. Tulane had a 209-pound line that was also fast, and this line worked in front of at least eight good backs. The same was true of Tennessee. While the latter lacked Tulane's line weight, it carried even more line speed, aggressiveness and alertness. As able a critic as Dr. Jock Sutherland rated this Tennessee forward wall as one of the finest he ever saw in football. And behind this line there were at least eight high-class backs.

FEATURED MIDWEST

The play of Ohio State, Iowa and Notre Dame featured the Midwest, with Missouri and Oklahoma high up in the group. They were all beaten, but it must be remembered each one of these teams had to work through the toughest type of schedule where there was no easy-going Saturday to offer a day's rest.

Two of the season's finest teams were Texas A. & M. and Southern California. Texas A. & M. had one of the best years any team has known in recent times. It was a big, fast, powerful squad with Boyd and Kimbrough leading in star roles.

I doubt that any one squad in the country had as many high-class football players as Southern California. I am referring to the Trojan squad, three-and-four-deep in every position—most of them big and most of them unusually fast. They started a trifle slowly in the September heat, but once under full steam they were something to stop.

With so many different types of schedules the job of ranking teams was an impossible task. But among those who deserved high praise are Tennessee, Texas A. & M., Tulane, Iowa, Ohio State, Cornell, Notre Dame, Southern California, Missouri, and Oklahoma.

Princeton finished on top among the old Big Three with a high-class Tiger squad.

In checking up the season's returns it becomes obvious that no two teams put on finer exhibitions than Cornell, heading the Ivy League, and Iowa, the underdog of the Midwest, that came from nowhere a year ago. Cornell's defeat of Ohio State was an amazing display of speed and smartness against a vastly superior physical array. The team from Ithaca kept the Ivy League above the pick of the Big Ten to prove once more that Eastern football is far from fading out. Missouri's brilliant finish was another all-season feature against Nebraska, N. Y. U. and Oklahoma.

There was nothing in 1939 that called for any vital changes in the rules. The season's play showed that goal posts should be placed back on the touchdown line where they used to be. But rules committees can be narrow in minor points. There was some demand for abolishing the kickoff after Don Herring, Princeton's giant tackle, had lost a leg in this most dangerous of all plays.

With so many strong teams scattered all over football's tremendous map, it was only natural that the All-America war cry reached its highest note. Not even Merlin, the master wizard, could find room for two hundred pairs of feet in eleven pairs of shoes. The all-season check from Collier's All-America Advisory Board took fair and accurate care of this situation.

Any number of good men were eliminated by injuries—such stars as Suffridge and Cafego of Tennessee, Shirk of Oklahoma, Boell of N.Y.U., Evashevski of Michigan—the type of blocker who helps to make great backs greater—and many others from Notre Dame, Minnesota and Cornell who played through harder schedules.

Now we come to the All-America, and to the problem of an All-America selection. The basis first is the All-Sectional selections from Collier's Advisory Board.

The sectional teams were the foundation upon which the All-America had to be built. From this All-Sectional list the next step in line was the All-America group. In cases of doubt, seniors were named over juniors, since a three-year contribution deserves an extra rating over two years of play. Every coach I have talked with agrees.

Here are the All-America recommendations by Collier's Advisory Board from which the top eleven were named:

Harry Smith and George Vernell, Pacific Coast: SCHIECHL, Santa Clara; SMITH, U.S.C.; Washington, U.C.L.A.; Schultz, Oregon State; Stuart, Oregon.

George White, Southwest: Kimbrough, Texas A. & M.; BOYD, Texas A. & M.; Nelson, Baylor; Crain, Texas; Cordill, Rice.

H. G. Salsinger, C. E. McBride and George Barton, Midwest: SARKKINEN, Ohio State; Rankin, Purdue; KINNICK, Iowa; Enich, Iowa; CHRISTMAN, Missouri; IVY, Oklahoma; HARMON, Nichigan; Haman, Northwestern; Brewer, Illinois; Piepul, Notre Dame.

O. B. Keeler, Fred Digby and Fred Russell, South: McCollum, Tulane; McFADDEN, Clemson; MOLINSKI, Tennessee; Kavanaugh, L.S.U.; McAfee, Duke; O'Boyle, Tulane.

Bill Cunningham and Quentin Reynolds, East: DRAHOS, Cornell; Cassiano, Pittsburgh; Stack, Yale; Tierney, Princeton; Stella, Army; Principe, Fordham.

Most of the positions on the 1939 All-America were settled with almost no differences of opinion among Collier's Advisory Board and the leading coaches.

THE TEAM

In the selection of centers Schiechl of Santa Clara was well ahead of the list. Six feet two or better, weighing over 220 pounds, this entry from the Far West has been a fine center for three years. His play on both offense and defense improved this reason over his good work of a year ago when he barely missed top honors. Haman of Northwestern was in close pursuit but the Santa Clara star was practically a unanimous vote.

When it came to picking the guards one naturally turned to Tennessee. One of the main features of this strong team was the play of Suffridge and Molinski who were on a par until Suffridge was injured for a brief spell. They were the two best guards I've seen on one team in many years, both being fast, alert and aggressive. Molinski drew the post from his mate by only a brief margin. Harry Smith of Southern California was one of the star guards of the game. Big and fast, he was rated by Howard Jones as one of the finest guards in Southern California history. Smith was a big factor in a powerful line. The combination of Smith and Molinski is well above even the All-America average. O'Boyle of Tulane was extremely close, a brilliant forward all year.

In naming the outstanding tackles there were three who were practically on a par. They were Boyd of Texas A. & M., who barely missed a year ago; Drahos of Cornell, the star member of a winning Cornell eleven; and the great McCollumn of Tulane, who will be hard to displace a year away. Boyd was rated the best lineman in the Southwest. He was outstanding in a strong conference where his team dominated the season's play. McCollumn was injured before the Columbia game, but the tremendous Tulane tackle had a tiptop year. He is extremely fast for such height and weight. It was the final report from rival coaches that decided the issue in favor of Boyd and Drahos.

In his game against Ohio State, one of the best teams in football, Drahos was all over the Ohio turf, a high-class tackle on both defense and attack. He was alert enough to recover fumbles and knock down passes, and his place kicking was one of the game's deciding factors.

Stella, the Army captain, was another fine tackle, and so was Tierney of Princeton. Stella's main handicap was an Army team that had a hard year. Enich of Iowa was extremely close up.

There were any number of fine ends this last season. In addition to Sarkkinen of Ohio State and Ivy of Oklahoma, Ken Kavanaugh of Louisiana State took his place as the star receiver of the season. Kavanaugh lacked the all-round defensive play shown by Sarkkinen and Ivy, but he was always dangerous when the ball was in the air anywhere in the same county.

Kerr of Notre Dame had a fine year although injuries cut in a trifle around midseason. Kerr undoubtedly was one of the best. So was Rankin of Purdue.

Each season produces a flock of fast, able backs and 1939 was no exception to the rule. They were all over the map—Christmas of Missouri, Harmon of Michigan, Cafego and Foxx of Tennessee, Kinnick of Iowa, Piepul and Zontini of Notre Dame, Scott of Ohio State, Kimbrough of Texas A. & M., Washington of U.C.L.A., McFadden of Clemson, Cordill of Rice, the McAfee of Duke, Stirnweiss of North Carolina—on and on in an almost unending swirl of speed and drive.

The top back of the year was Nile Kinnick of Iowa. Here was a passer, kicker, runner blocker and strong defensive back who played 60 minutes of hard, battering, bruising football week after week through one of the hardest schedules any team has known in years. He was the flame that lifted Eddie Anderson's fine Iowa team from the rut of 1938 to the uplands of 1939.

Christman of Missouri was one of the best passers football has known in many seasons. In addition to his passing, this big, blond star from the West was an able ball carrier but it was his passing that lifted him above most of the pack.

The battle among big McFadden of Clemson, Harmon of Michigan, and Kimbrough of Texas A. & M. came close to resulting in a dead heat. Of the three, McFadden, a three-year brilliant, had more versatility. He was the South's best combination of passing, kicking, blocking and ball carrying. Kimbrough of Texas A. & M. was an outstanding challenger, but Harmon's all-season play for Michigan could not be over-looked. This fleet, elusive Wolverine, a 195 pounder who can beat ten seconds for the hundred, was the spark plug of Michigan's attack. Only Minnesota held him in check. Don Scott, the 225-pound star from Ohio State, belongs high in any group.

Cafego of Tennessee was up around the front until injured.

Both Tennessee and Tulane had so many fast, hard-running backs it was almost impossible to reach into either group and pull out any single leader. This also goes for Southern California with its high-powered array of blockers and ball carriers.

HAGUROYAMA'S PROMOTION CELEBRATED

Haguroyama, who will perform in the professional Sumo (Japanese wrestling) tournament starting on Thursday at the Kokugikan bowl at Ryogoku for the first time as an ohzeki or champion, was feted at a celebration banquet Sunday night at the Tokyo Kaikan. The photo shows him responding to congratulations. At the extreme right is Admiral Isamu Takeshita, retired, president of the Japan Sumo Association. At Haguroyama's right is former Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita. Haguroyama is 26 years old.

Meiji Ruggers Rout Kyoto Teidai, 51-3

Meiji University's rugby team swamped the Kyoto Imperial University fifteen, 51 to 3, in their annual game Sunday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium.

The Tokyo ruggers, superior in every respect, scored one try, four goals and two penalty goals in the first half to lead, 29-0.

NIIGATA GIRLS WIN NATIONAL CAGE CROWN

In a nip and tuck game that necessitated an extra period, the Niigata Higher School Girls defeated the Tokyo Normal Auxiliary Girls High School, 32 to 30, Sunday evening at the National Gymnasium at Hitotsubashi, Kanda, to win the national open women's basketball championship.

Thus did the girls from Nigata avenge their defeat at the hands of the same Tokyo quintet in the 10th Meiji Shrine Games in the finals last Fall.

The Tokyo girls led at 13-12 at halftime. The game was a battle royal in the second half with the lead changing hands again and again. A field goal by Miss Yamamoto deadlocked the count at 30-all before the final whistle. Miss Asagi might have won the game for the Tokyo team had she converted a free throw in the last 20 seconds of the second half but she missed.

In the extra period of three minutes, Captain Ono scored a field goal soon after the whistle and this proved to be the winning factor.

The All-Fusei College team of Keijo won the men's championship for the third straight year by defeating the Bunrika University team without much trouble, winning by a 58-37 score. The count at halftime was 32 to 21 in favor of the Chosenese cagers.

U.S. COAST GUARD PATROLS TOTAL OF 40,000 MILES

Number of Light Ships Reduced; Other Navigation Aid Now Substituted

Lightships along U.S. coasts have been reduced to 30, a little more than half the number at the beginning of the century. Other aids to navigation, however, have increased. Lights of all kinds have almost doubled in the past twenty years, and now total about 9,000.

There now are 40,000 miles of coastline" guarded by the U.S. Coast Guard. This includes seacoasts, and banks of the Great Lakes and navigable rivers.

IN BOSTON HARBOR

"The first U.S. lighthouse was built on Great Brewster Island at the entrance to Boston Harbor, in 1716," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "It fared badly during the Revolution and was blown up by the British on leaving Boston but was rebuilt in 1783.

"The first lights burned whale oil. Several lights occupied a lighthouse 'Lantern,' the glassed-in top of a lighthouse. The beacons of the early Greeks, Romans and Egyptians were fires atop piles of stone, and open flames supplied light in early light houses. When the Boston light was established, some English lighthouses were still burning candles.

"Nine million candle power is the present light at Navesink, N. J., the most powerful U.S. maritime light. It is one of the lights that guard the entrance to New York Harbor. Electric lights now are used in most of the larger lighthouses, amplified by lenses of glass prisms. The lenses revolve, causing the light to flash in different directions.

"The moving parts of the lens at Kilauea Point Lighthouse, Hawaiian Islands, weigh four tons. Hawaii also has the largest lens in a U.S. lighthouse, at Makapuu Point, on Oahu Island; and the highest light, at Lehua. The latter is 707 feet above sea level. It stands on a high promontory. The tallest lighthouse is on Hog Island, Virginia, 191 feet high.

RADIO GUIDES SHIPS

"The first experimental radiobeacon was installed only 23 years ago at Navesink. Today all lightships and many lighthouses are so equipped. The radiobeacon is the only 'light' that can pierce dense fogs, day or night. With the aid of a radio direction finder and identifying radio signals from two or more lighthouses, even two hundred or more miles away, a ship now can locate its position without other aids.

"Sandy Hook, built in 1764, was the first lighthouse at the entrance to New York Harbor. The colonial assembly authorized a lottery three years earlier to raise money for its construction. At the same time a lottery to finance the building of the lighthouse in New London Harbor was authorized by the Connecticut colonial legislature, which also placed a tax on shipping to support the light.

"The first U.S. lighthouse on the Great Lakes was erected in the harbor of Buffalo, 1818. The lighting of the Pacific Coast did not begin until five years after the beginning of the famous gold rush. The first light was in San Francisco Bay. St. George Beef Lighthouse, near Crescent City, Calif., is one of the most costly lighthouses ever constructed. It was ten years in building and cost $702,000.

"During fogs, lighthouses have sounded strange warning signals. Boston light in 1719 fired a cannon; the Beavertail, R. I., light used a horse to operate a compressed air mechanism to blow a fog signal. Hot air engines have produced power for horns and trumpets, and steam fog signals were in use for many years. Today the most powerful fog signals are operated by compressed air or electricity.

"Buoys also bear lights, generally from acetylene gas tanks, and may have whistles and bells. Sea buoys are quite large. A buoy that broke from its moorings off the North Carolina coast, had a perpendicular measurement of 40 feet. It weighed 12 tons, with light and whistle, and cost $8,000. After drifting about 4,000 miles, it was 'captured' off the Irish coast.

"The whistles on most buoys are sounded by the motion of the buoy in the sea. Air is sucked into a chamber as the buoy rises on a wave, and is forced out through the whistle as the buoy descends."

MEIJI WINS SKATING TITLE

A scene of the 10,000-meter race Monday in the 15th annual national All-Japan collegiate speed skating championships which closed the same day after a two-day competition at Nikko. Meiji University won the meet for the eighth straight year, scoring 42.5 points, followed by Waseda with 35 points and Keio, 15.5 points. Winner of the 10,000 meter race was Satoshi Nakakusu of Waseda in 18 minutes 52.6 seconds.

PEOPLE'S DEFENSE OF FINLAND SEEN AS NEW HEROIC EPIC

By H. B. ELLISTON

Christian Science Monitor

HELSINKI—Helsinki is today a deserted capital.

The story of the evacuation beneath the impact of Russian bombs and of the atmosphere here during the tense hours in which the Finnish cabinet resigned, can be seen as nothing short of a tribute to the Finnish people.

At the time Finland was busy changing governments, I chased the Diet around the countryside in the blackness of the night. The Diet was supposed to be meeting at Finland's imposing Parliament House. When I arrived the Mayor of Helsingfors himself was acting as guard. He stopped me, examined my passport, and would not let me go up the step. I managed to persuade him that I was on journalism bent. Then he explained that the Diet was meeting in the country in secret session.

I begged to be told where, but he was grimly adamantine in his refusal. Through the gloom I saw buses loading the legislators for their new destination.

STREETS FILLED WITH REFUGEES

The streets were jammed with fleeing refugees. If the Russians had not missed the Saarinens railroad depot the congestion would have been unfortunate. Actually the evacuation has proceeded with out too much confusion. The proof is the deserted condition of the streets.

What is the damage of the previous days' frightfulness can still be estimated only in guesses. The Foreign Ministry has asked the correspondents not to indulge the Russians by revealing the main places hit. It is held that such data would provide good registration marks for the hostile aviators.

But I can say that houses, streets, some churches and schools, and one of Finland's prides, the Co-operative Centrals, are either in partial ruin or terribly scarred. Typical of the desolation is the story told by a temporary secretary I engaged early yesterday. She came to me after dinner last night and told me with tears in her eyes that her home was now a wreck and her mother lay wounded. She is now with the vast majority of the womenfolk. The center of the Capital is still intact, but last night when I filed my previous message I had to pick my way through streets filled with broken glass.

[Associated Press dispatches today said that roads outside Helsingfors were crowded with trucks, automobiles, and wagons carrying women and children from the danger area. Railroad stations were jammed with refugees seeking less precarious residences inland. Business was reported almost at a standstill in Helsingfors. Only a few stores were operating.]

COMMUNICATION UNCERTAIN

It is difficult to get comprehensive information, because all the departments in every ministry have been dispersed to secret headquarters in or around Helsingfors. Communication is still uncertain. The correspondents who are getting news out regularly are those whose newspapers or European offices had the foresight to telephone to them in Helsingfors. For with the Government clamping down on outgoing calls, as well as intermittently on cables, the only sure way of communicating with the outside world is by incoming calls!

This correspondent, for instance, was called up all the way from Geneva and asked to give a broadcast to America. This I did at 2 a.m. Finnish time. It was to be picked up in Geneva and relayed to America. But I have learned since that Geneva was not successful even in picking it up.

The same misfortune happened to the former Foreign Minister, Eljas Erkko. All American had been waiting to hear him make a statement. Several times he has spoken such a statement, but each time the Germans as their contribution to the campaign have drowned him out.

MANY PRECAUTIONS LACKING

This is one of the consequences of Finland's unpreparedness. Last Spring they ordered from Marconi in London a new radio installation for 50 kilowatt transmission. In the Fall the firm said it could not make delivery because of urgent British needs.

Now Finland must be content with sending out hit or miss on the ether messages on two stations of one and two kilowatt power transmission—on the off chance that they will be picked up before they are drowned out.

It is the same story in every department, not enough bomb shelters, gas masks, airplanes, antiaircraft guns, hospital equipment. Finland wonders today whether it hasn't been more honorable than prudent in paying off 90 per cent of its foreign debt in the last decade. If that money had been put into preparedness its plight today in everything save fortitude might not have been so serious.

English Town Crier Seeks to Retire From His Duties

Christian Science Monitor

BURNHAM-ON-SEA, England —"The Man with the Seven Mile Voice" has decided to retire, it is announced here. But when friends of James Cox, Town Crier for 52 years, heard of this decision, they immediately thought of his possibilities in the National Service campaign.

The Carnival Committee of Burnham might have procured a very efficient van with a loudspeaker to do part of Mr. Cox's work, but mechanical sirens don't always work when needed, and often do work when they're not needed. (Maybe you've heard of the little mouse who ran over the air raid warning apparatus and livened things up for everybody in the district except himself).

Mr. Cox's friends, crawling out of bed in the early hours of the morning only to learn that a "technical hitch" has set the air raid siren howling, think they could suggest a very good A. R. P. job for Mr. Cox, ex-town crier.

MIYAMOTO 3RD IN MANILA GOLF TOURNEY

Domei Tsushin

MANILA, Jan. 7—Japan and the United States split top honors today in the 28th annual $5,000 Philippine open tournament, played over the swanky course of the Wack Wack Golf and Country Club, considered the finest in the Far East. First and second places respectively went to Harold MacSpaden, holder of the 1939 Canadian Open crown, and to Mery Zimmerman, of Portland, Oregon, while the third to fifth places went to Japanese stars.

MacSpaden, scoring 147 in the final 36 holes, won first place with a score of 287, followed by Zimmerman who ran up 291.

Tomekichi Miyamoto, Japan's leading professional, who led the field at the halfway mark today, faltered in the afternoon as rain slopped up the course, but managed to win third place with a score of 292. Toichiro Toda with a 297 came fourth, while Ryokuzo Asami placed fifth. His score was 298.

The three-day championship turned into a battle in the final round between MacSpaden and Miyamoto who matched stroke for stroke during the major part of the tournament. MacSpaden led at the end of the first day with a 140. Miyamoto was second with 141 and Zimmerman third with 147.

On the second day Miyamoto finished in a tie with MacSpaden, both scoring 213, while Zimmerman still held third place with 218 strokes.

At the end of the morning round today, Miyamoto led the field by one stroke, but in the afternoon, dropped into third place after three-putting several holes on the rain-soaked greens.

The defending champion, Norman von Nida of Australia, winner of the Manila open for the last three years, was not a serious contender and finished eighth.

MEXICO OPENS ANOTHER ROAD FOR AUTOMOBILE

425-Mile Paved Highway Links Two Largest Cities in Republic

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Mexico has opened another modern motor road—a 425-mile paved highway connecting its two largest cities, Mexico, D.F. and Guadalajara.

The new link is a sector of a proposed "west coast route" to Nogales, Arizona, to supplement the 770-mile Pan American Highway between Laredo, Texas, and the Mexican capital.

"The latest addition to Mexico's ambitious highway program traverses one of the most beautiful and historic regions south of the Rio Grande," says a bulletin from the Washington, D.C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

PYRAMIDS AND LAKES

"For a distance almost equal to that between San Francisco and Los Angeles, California, it winds over the brown tableland of west-central Mexico, passing snow-capped volcanoes, ancient pyramids, lakes where fishermen use nets like big dragonflies, and sleepy Tarascan Indian villages with their old Spanish churches and quaint ceremonial dances at fiesta time.

"From the broad modern boulevards of the Mexican capital the new route turns west, scaling the mountain wall that rims the Valley of Mexico. Toluca, first city on the way, lies in the shadow of twin-peaked snow-capped Nevado de Toluca, a dormant volcano. One of the highest cities in North America (8,760 feet), Toluca is famous for its outdoor market, where fine baskets, pottery, blankets, embroidery and other native Mexican wares are displayed. Nearby is the Pyramid of Calixtlahuaca, relic of a forgotten Indian civilization whose culture resembled that of the Toltecs.

"Traces of an old Spanish military road can be seen along the way to Morelia, capital of Michoacan. Morelia has many old homes and shaded plazas, recalling that it was founded in 1541 and was once the residence of Maximilian. The streets have a 'rosy glow' imparted by the pink stone used to construct public buildings and the imposing cathedral.

"DANCE OF OLD MEN"

"The natives of Michoacan have preserved many old and picturesque ceremonies, costumes and songs. To the music of flute, fiddle and wooden drum grotesquely garbed and masked Indians carry on such traditional dances as the Old Men, the Moors, the Apaches, the Little Black Men, the Fandango, etc. Dedicated to certain saints and half-forgotten pagan gods, these ceremonies are held only on special dates. One of the most striking is the Day of the Dead, when gifts are offered to departed spirits and women chant all night in the graveyards amid the flickering glow of thousands of twisted candles. Tarascan Indians, who make up much of the population of Michoacan, are descendants of a tribe Cortez never completely conquered.

"Most colorful center of native Indian life along the new highway is Lake Patzcuaro. A branch road leads to Patzcuaro, a picture village of cobble-stoned streets, and houses with carved wooden balconies. Indian fishermen set out at dawn in dugout canoes to fish with nets stretched on curved frames. Seen over the jade green waters, the boats and nets resemble huge dragonflies.

"On an island in Lake Patzcuaro towers the new masonry memorial to Morelos, hero of Mexico's early struggles for independence. The lofty statue faces the Summer home of President Cardenas, himself of Tarascan descent.

"Not far beyond Lake Patzcuaro another side road leads to Uruapan, noted for lacquer ware, called bateas. Designs are cut into wooden bowls, plates, or jars, then the color is inlaid and the whole carefully polished.

"In wheat fields along the highway Indian farmers still separate the grain from the chaff with crude metal forks of their own design. Since pre-Conquest days the Tarascan has been an expert metal worker, and is credited with the secret of tempering copper.

"Swinging around the south shore of Lake Chapala, largest body of freshwater in the Republic, with its myriad bird life, the highway climbs into the ancient city of Guadalajara. Second only to the Mexican capital in population (180,000 in 1938), Guadalajara presents a colorful blending of old Spanish architecture and culture, and of modern progress.

"Long before the new highway linked the city with the outside motoring world, its narrow streets teemed with auto traffic, controlled by white-gloved policemen. Rubbing shoulders on the busy sidewalks today are high-heeled stenographers, factory hands, ranch owners in boots, sandaled Indians, flower venders, lottery ticket sellers, bankers and railroad executives. Guadalajara is the capital of the prosperous State of Jalisco and the shopping center of more than a million people. Jalisco stretches from the Pacific deep into the central highlands of Mexico and produces gold, silver, pottery, sugar, fruit, coffee, vanilla, tobacco, and the famous potent Mexican liquor, tequila.

"Proposed extensions of the new highway, would carry it north over the mountains to the Pacific port of Mazatlan, thence parallel to the Gulf of California to Guaymas and Nogales, Arizona. Already passable for motorists is the northern sector between Guaymas and the U. S. border."

CANADA'S WOOL SHORTAGE LAID TO SLOW ADOPTION OF CONTROL

Christian Science Monitor

TORONTO—Canada is 8,000,000 pounds short of wool to fill its requirements, declared David C. Dick, Canadian wool administrator in an address before the Canada Allied Textile Trade Association.

Mr. Dick said the reason for the shortage was threefold.

First, the Government allowed 2,000,000 pounds of wool to slip out of the country in the first two or three weeks of the war.

Second, export of wool to Canada are at least 3,000,000 pounds less than in normal years, due to war conditions.

Third, the demand for wool due to war requirements is from 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 pounds more than normal.

"The Government had made no preparations for controlling wool until Sept. 18 when I was appointed," Mr. Dick said. In comparison plans had been laid in Great Britain a year ago to set up a wool control board the moment war broke out. This was done, Mr. Dick said, and 84 per cent of all available exporting wool is now in the hands of England.

"Until the British wool control board sets a price it is very difficult for our board to plan a definite policy," he added.

Canada, largely a consumer of crossbred wool, will have to be satisfied with Merino wool, which is finer, for the time being. This is because the war requirements of Britain will take up a great portion of the crossbred wool, Mr. Dick added.

AUSTRALIAN SITUATION

Christian Science Monitor

BRISBANE, Queensland—Although the British Government's purchase of the whole of Australia's wool clip an average price of 13½d a pound has given graziers a stable and moderately profitable price, the industry generally in this State has much leeway to make up.

According to a report issued by William L. Payne, who was appointed by the Queensland Labor Government as a royal commission to inquire into the State's wool industry, sheep grazing, once the most prosperous industry in the State, has shown the greatest decline. Although still constituting about 42 per cent of the State's total exports, being the largest single item of export, the capital invested in the sheep industry has dropped from £50,000,000 in 1927 to £40,000,000 today.

There has been a State-wide depreciation of from 20 to 25 per cent in values, in the past 10 years, due to low wool prices.

In the boom year of 1923-24 the average price of greasy wool in Queensland was 24.12d a pound.

Although graziers numbered only 5 per cent of the state's taxpayers they contributed 35 per cent of the total taxation revenue. The average contribution of taxation revenue over the past 10 years has been only 9 per cent of the total taxation.

Recommendations, to assist in rehabilitating the industry, are increased governmental cooperation, cheaper railroad freights, controlled marketing, and the "writing off" of principal on overcapitalized holdings."

MEXICAN OIL SALE TO U.S. ADVANCES

Washington Reports State Department Plans No Steps To Block Move in South

N.Y. Times

WASHINGTON—Because of the war and the attendant loss of its principal German market for oil from confiscated American and British properties, Mexico is expected to increase its petroleum sales in the United States soon.

This was reported in diplomatic circles here recently on the basis of information that the State Department was taking no steps—such as the moral embargo set up against American aircraft sales to Japan—to hamper the purchase of expropriated oil from Mexico by American concerns.

Under the new trade treaty between the United States and Venezuela, which became effective Dec. 1, Mexico, as a republic receiving most-favored-nation treatment from this country, will be confronted by a tariff duty of only 11 instead of the present 22 cents a barrel on oil exported to the United States.

The opinion was expressed in some diplomatic circles in Washington that if Mexico could sell reasonably large amounts of oil in this country it would be able to obtain dollar exchange with which to make at least a first payment on the American and British oil properties nationalized on Oct. 18, 1938.

The Mexican Supreme Court is expected to rule soon on the constitutionality of the expropriation and thereafter, President Lazaro Cardenas of Mexico has indicated, the Mexican Government would set a unilateral evaluation on the properties and start indemnity payments.

Despite the insistence of the American State Department on "prompt, adequate and effective" compensation, Mexico has paid no oil indemnities as a result of the seizures, and its government and the foreign oil concerns have failed to reach an agreement.

While the major oil companies were expected to make an attempt to block Mexican sales in this country (which have been rendered virtually impossible up to this point by the high tariff on oil), it was thought possible in informed quarters here that independents in this country would be disposed to buy Mexican oil if the price were right since the tariff hurdle has been removed. The Mexican Government already controls one oil-marketing concern in the United States.

Only a dribble of Mexican petroleum has entered the United States to remain here. The Department of Commerce reports that 205,780 barrels entered in September, 227,742 in August and 287,709 in July. During these three months, however, 1,279,405 barrels were admitted to the United States under bond for reshipment abroad, largely to Italy.

Mexico also would be put in a better position to acquire money to pay indemnities if the plan under discussion for a Pan-American Central Bank became effective. The United States is expected by some Latin American experts to make arrangements for supplying gold backing to such a bank and Mexico's now fluctuating currency would be among those benefitted.

CALIFORNIA AIMS TO SOLVE LABOR ISSUES QUICKLY

Governor Olson Asks Peaceful Settlement Action Be Initiated in State

Christian Science Monitor

SAN FRANCISCO—Gov. Culbert L. Olson of California has indicated he wants quick, voluntary, and peaceful settlement procedure worked out between labor unions and employers to halt the endless number of strikes and lockouts this state has experienced since 1932.

The Governor has indicated he prefers machinery of the voluntary type to arbitration machinery set up by legislation, thereby hinting that the special session of the Legislature to be called the first of the year may be asked for some type of labor relations settlement action.

Already the Governor's recently appointed five-man commission (to study the problems at hand and observe at the negotiations between the ship operators and the union leaders of the Congress of Industrial Organizations over the status of the ship clerks) is preparing its report to the Governor.

Entry of the Governor into the dispute was achieved by public pressure from city, church, newspaper, farmer, and even labor ranks when all shipping ceased and needed holiday trade was diverted elsewhere. The Governor's friendliness with the C.I.O. labor unions, and the welcoming of the State chief executive into the problem of settling the dispute by both organized labor and the waterfront employers is seen to augur well for resumption of work on the waterfront even though the dispute is not finally settled.

The Federal Government has two mediators here on the job who succeeded, after 16 days of strike, in bringing the warring factions together in negotiation. "If we can keep them negotiating every day," declared W. T. Guerts of the Maritime Labor Board mediation service, "we feel we are making progress."

Harry Bridges, the C.I.O. spokesman in this dispute—and all others dealing with waterfront labor problems here—charged the Associated Farmers with being antilabor and seeking to eliminate collective bargaining.

From the head of the Waterfront Employers Association, Almon E. Roth, comes the statement that the employers cannot permit the unions to tell them who they must hire, particularly when the ship checkers are the operators' agents in all ship loading transactions, and responsible, carefully trained men are needed.

NAKANO RANKED NO. 1 SINGLES PLAYER IN 1939

Fumiteru Nakano of Hosei University, member of Japan's Davis Cup team in 1938, has been ranked No. 1 singles player for the 1939 season, according to rankings made known by the Japan Lawn Tennis Association Tuesday night.

Nakano replaces Jiro Yamagishi, his Davis Cup team-mate in 1938. Yamagishi, now in the Imperial Navy, did not compete last year, and was ineligible for the rankings. Nakano lost to Ference Puncec of Yugoslavia in the finals of the national championships in November at the Koshien courts near Osaka.

Yasuo Tsuruta of Keio University, former doubles partner of Yamagishi, staged a comeback by being ranked No. 2.

Haruo Horikoshi and Kenzo Ubara of the Koshien Club were ranked No. 1 doubles team. They lost to Puncec and Franjo Yukuljevic, of Yugoslavia, in the national championships.

Miss Junko Kamo of the Denyen Club of Tokyo was ranked No. 1 for the women's singles. The women's doubles went to Misses Toyoko Kimata and Sumi Sawada of the Japan Life Insurance Company.

Michiko Kawazoye of the Koyo Middle School was ranked No. 1 player in the boys middle school circles.

Two Men Ride Motorcycles From Alaska to United States

Christian Science Monitor

SEATTLE, Wash.—Two bronzed and bearded men, having recently "mushed" on motorcycles from Fairbanks, Alaska, not only shared honors but rather took over the show at a recent Community Council luncheon here where Dr. Ernest Gruening, new Governor of Alaska, and Representative Warren G. Magnuson were guest speakers. Their heavy, bushy beards were the point of curious interest to hundreds of shaven guests present.

The travelers were Charles (Slim) Williams, veteran dog team musher, and John Logan, not so much of a veteran. The men left Fairbanks May 14 and reached Hazelton, British Columbia, Nov. 9, having traveled by motorcycle over the proposed route of the Alaska-Yukon Highway.

They were announced as the "first men to motor the international highway."

The two traveled 1,410 miles in 5½ months which was not so slow when it is realized that they rafted six or seven rivers on a piece of canvas, crossed Groundhog Pass, and blazed their own trail part of the way.

Dr. Gruening spoke of the proposed highway as a "glorious project" which is entirely feasible and one which he expressed confidence would be realized. Alaska, he said, not only needs the highway but it needs more steamships, and a direct air line with Seattle. If the war in Europe continues, he said, there would be need of places for tourists to go and there should be more steamships to accommodate them in travel to Alaska.

U.S., BRITISH 1914 TENSION NOW AVOIDED

American Sympathy For Allied Cause Is Seen In Washington Silence

By SAVILLE R. DAVIS

Christian Science Monitor

WASHINGTON—The degree of American support for the Allied cause is admirably illustrated by the relative silence in official quarters here following Britain's decision to seize German exports on the high seas.

The incident equally well illustrates the extent to which the United States has withdrawn from dangerous involvement in sea warfare.

It is a matter of record that the United States made repeated and literally angry protests at similar action by Britain during the World War. Today, by contrast, the State Department has largely ignored the new development. An inquiry brought forth the statement from Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, that the United States reserves all rights under international law in this, as well as in all other belligerent action. This comment had to be extracted by the press, however, and in general American reticence is of itself a highly significant indicator of the state of opinion in this country.

A review of the circumstances surrounding American protests during the World War brings out the following comparisons:

1. In the last war the United States, as a neutral, entered into a strenuous legal conflict with Britain over interference to neutral trade, each citing international law and precedents to opposite ends. Today, the United States is refraining from pressing any legal issues insofar as possible, even when its legal experts may differ with the British on the authority for some of their actions.

2. In the World War, the United States still depended on chemicals, dyes, equipment, etc., from Germany, whereas today this dependence virtually has ceased. Moreover, imports from Germany had been reduced by retaliatory tariff action to a mere $40,000 in October.

3. American shippers, aware that public opinion might still further clip their wings if trouble developed on the seas, are voluntarily refraining as a group from any great protest at the British action.

4. Finally, the conception of a rigid international law has changed since 1915-16. It is now recognized here that few really fixed and unchallengeable international laws exist, and that military necessity as well as new inventions can reasonably be allowed more latitude in modifying and developing the law than the United States was willing to grant last time.

BRYAN SENT NOTE

On March 30, 1915, following an Order in Council from London of March 11, William J. Bryan, Secretary of State, sent a note to Ambassador Page at London containing the following statements: "The Orders in Council . . . would constitute . . . a practical assertion of unlimited belligerent rights over neutral commerce within the whole European area, and an almost unqualified denial of the sovereign rights of nations now at peace. . . . It is confidently assumed that His Majesty's Government will not deny that it is a rule sanctioned by general practice that even though a blockade should exist . . . innocent shipments may freely be transported to and from the United States through neutral countries to belligerent territories without being subject to the penalties of contraband traffic . . . much less to detention, requisition, or confiscation."

The note then cited the British statement that its action was in retaliation against German breaches of international law and practice in wartime, and said: "The Government has heretofore been scrupulous to act, interprets this merely as a reason for certain extraordinary acts on the part of His Majesty's naval forces, and not as an excuse for, or prelude to, any unlawful action.

WILSON TAKES STAND

"If the course pursued by the present enemies of Great Britain should prove in fact to be tainted by illegality and disregard of principles of war sanctioned by enlightened nations, it cannot be supposed, and this Government does not for a moment would wish the same taint to attach to its actions, or would cite such illegal acts as in any sense or degree a justification for similar practices on their part insofar as they affect neutral rights."

President Wilson at this time, which of course was well before he decided to enter the war on the Allied side, was convinced that the British were determined to ignore what he considered to be the international law on the case.

MODERN SCIENCE

By GOBIND BEHARI LAL

NEW YORK—Experiments that might lead to lengthening of human life far beyond any one's present dreams, by keeping away germs, are reported by Prof. James A. Reyniers, of Notre Dame University, Indiana.

Prof. Reyniers' laboratory is a wonderland of biology in which chickens, guinea pigs and other animals live without any infection of germs.

Most careful investigation has shown that not a single germ enters the bodies of these animals from the moment of birth to full maturity.

The laboratory animals are born by caesarian operation within large glass cases. In these artificial nurseries they receive only such food, water and air as contains no germs whatever.

From such animals Dr. Reyniers boldly advanced to experimental methods of bringing up human babies under as germ-free conditions as possible.

Special cubicles have been designed by him for use in maternity hospitals and babies' homes. Some of them are now in use at the Evanston Cradle, Illinois.

Prof. Reyniers says in his report: "I have combined an air conditioning system which employs a triple graduated air pressure, with the mechanical construction of the cubicles. The result is that there is a flow of air always away from the infant's body.

Such germs and viruses as are transported by the air, causing influenza, common colds, pneumonia, are kept away.

The danger of epidemics in the nurseries is vastly decreased. Each cubicle is made of glass supported by stainless steel and aluminum. It consists of an outer compartment and an inner one, where the child is kept. Air pressure is maintained higher in the inner portion, so that as the nurse opens the door, a draft is expelled.

Prof. William F. Wells of Pennsylvania University, has been using ultra-violet floodlights for killing germs in the air.

The whole new campaign of science to destroy the germs in the air recall Prof. Elia Metchnikoff's famous theory that man's average life could be at least 150 years, if science learned to keep the germs out of the body.—International News.

SILVER STAINLESS STEEL FORECASTS FAR-REACHING INDUSTRIAL PROGRESS

Christian Science Monitor

NEW YORK—First pieces of a new metal, silver stainless steel, were exhibited at the Exposition of Chemical Industries recently.

The silver steel, is the usual stainless steel, to which is added one-quarter of one per cent of silver, in a way that permeates the entire metal with silver particles so fine that one of them has to be magnified about 500 times to be visible.

A sheet of this metal, the size of a medium bedroom mirror and nearly as bright, and some commercial castings that look like silver, are shown. With them goes the story of an unexpected list of far-reaching industrial improvements promised by this metal.

Discovery of the process for making the silver stainless was announced last May, the work of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology men, done for the Chemical Foundation, Inc. The latter and two steel companies—the Lebanon Steel Foundry of Lebanon, Pa., and the Eastern Rolling Mills of Baltimore—show the first commercial results today.

They have gone beyond expectations. The original discovery was that silver-impregnated stainless steel was immune in the laboratory to salt water pit corrosion, the one kind of natural rust to which stainless steel was known to be susceptible.

It now appears the new metal resists also various chemical corrosives that attack stainless steels. One is a wool dye chemical which in four hours ate away four per cent of the weight of ordinary "eighteen eight" stainless steel and when molybdenum, the usual protective metal, was added, still dissolved five hundredths of one per cent of the steel.

The new silver stainless steel, in the same period, was completely untouched. It also showed not the slightest corrosion with immersion in muriatic acid and ferric chloride alongside stainless steel, which in the same period of time was nearly eaten through.

It was explained these chemical resistant properties promise new facilities for greater varieties of color and faster colors in dyeing dress goods. The coming of stainless steel a few year ago made possible vats which could be cleaned quickly, and speeded the color-making.

But now chemists are inventing better and faster dyes which have begun to eat away even some of the stainless steels.

The silver stainless steel was produced originally to meet problems of the U.S. Navy, and more than 80 castings of the new metal were sold by the makers to be already under test in Navy experiments.

RIKKYO WINS ICE HOCKEY CHAMPIONSHIP

A strong attack in the last 10 minutes of the third period enabled Rikkyo University to overhaul Meiji University's lead and capture the 15th annual national intercollegiate ice hockey championship Wednesday night at the Shibaura rink in Tokyo. The score was 3 goals to 2.

Both teams were unable to score in the first period. Ezoye of Meiji broke the ice in the scoring column after 2 minutes in the second session when he pushed the puck into the net after it had caromed off the Rikkyo goalie's stick. Sunada of Rikkyo deadlocked the count in 14 minutes on a long shot from the left flank. Meiji forged into the lead at the outset of the third session when Ezoye, elder brother of the Ezoye who had scored for Meiji in the second period, took a shot and the puck hit a Rikkyo player's skate and spun into the net.

When it seemed as if Meiji might emerge the winner, Sunada came through again for Rikkyo with a beautiful shot as he flashed down the ice to score in 11 minutes to tie the score at 2-all. Then it was Tanaka who shot one spinning into the net for Rikkyo in the next minute to decide the victor.

Better teamwork was a strong factor for Rikkyo's victory.

The line-ups were:

Rikkyo: Tanaka, Sunada, Onikura, Omura, Taga, Takahashi, forwards; Naito and Goto, defense; Miyake, goalie.

Meiji: Ezoye, Fukumoto, Ezoye (older brother), Taguchi, Kusakari and Naito, forwards; Subekawa and Yamanouchi, defense; Yuya, goalie.

Takasuke Arizaka of Meiji University won the figure skating championship for the second straight year. He scored 618.11 points in the free skating Wednesday night and 800.80 points in the school figures on Tuesday night, or a total of 1,418.91 points. His place number was 5.

Tatsuo Kobayashi of Meiji University was second with 1,181.72 points, 634.80 for the school figures and 507.37 for free skating.

SUMO TOURNEY STARTS AT 2 A.M. AT RYOGOKU

The unearthly hour of 2 a.m. marked the opening today of the 15-day professional Sumo (Japanese style wrestling) tournament at the Kokugikan bowl at Ryogoku.

The gates were thrown open at 5 p.m. Wednesday and at 10 p.m. the boxes in the pit, seating 4,800 persons, were filled up. It is a case of first come, first served at one price of 50 sen on the opening day, and there naturally is a battle to get seats in the boxes, which are bought year after year by the same patrons and are good from the second day to the end of the tournament. These boxes presented a novel sight this morning with people of all walks of life, many of them employes in the wartime industries, packed like sardines in them and taking in the bouts of the future champions.

Among the thousands that trekked their way into the bowl since Wednesday night to remain there all day today up to about 7:30 p.m. with the intention of seeing Grand Champion Futabayama performing in the day's final bout were a large number of women. The cold weather didn't stop them.

Near 2 a.m., the bowl, which accommodates some 20,000 persons, had been virtually filled up and the moguls decided on starting the tournament. Two youngsters, Ourayama and Asamifuji, had the honor of participating in the first bout. The chap with the fancier name, Asamifuji, which might mean "looking at Mt. Fuji in the morning," smashed his opponent out of the ring for a convincing victory.

Interest is said to be at a higher pitch this year with the revival of the East versus West system after nine years. A battle royal is expected until the final day for the championship honors. Grand Champions Futabayama and Minanogawa are leaders of the East and West sides respectively.

Highest individual honors are expected to go to Futabayama, who went through the last tournament in May last year, when the 13-day schedule was extended to 15 days, without a defeat

Canada Invites Alien Aviators To Air Force

Christian Science Monitor

OTTAWA—United States citizens who make application from Canada and men of European descent living in Canada but unnaturalized may enlist in the Royal Canadian Air Force, the Department of National Defense announced.

Hundreds of such applications have been received, many of them from United States citizens, officials said, but the number was not made known.

However, bona fide Canadians who apply for enlistment in the R.C.A.F. will receive preference.

Just how many Americans came to Canada and enlisted in the air services during the World War could not be learned here because at that time enlistment in the Air Force came under the direction of the imperial command.

However, some 18,000 men who identified themselves as Canadians served in the Royal Air Force during the World War and many of these were United States citizens.

At present non-Canadians must make application in Canada personally and take the oath of allegiance before being accepted by the R.C.A.F.

It was pointed out that an American holding a Canadian commercial pilot's license, could qualify as an instructor in civilian aviation and could be used in that capacity in the flying clubs giving preliminary training to R.C.A.F. recruits.

In that manner an American could serve his purpose for the R.C.A.F. without ever joining the military service and his taking the oath of allegiance would be unnecessary.

Officials said that among United States applicants wanting to join the R.C.A.F., are a number of experienced pilots offering themselves as instructors.

At present enlistment in the R.C.A.F. is virtually at a standstill. Hundreds of Canadians enlisted in the first month of the war and there now are more applications than can be handled.

3 MAJOR UPSETS MARK OPENING OF SUMO TOURNEY AT RYOGOKU

Three major upsets marked the opening of the 15-day "Spring" Sumo championship tournament at the Kokugikan bowl on Thursday. Nayoroiwa and Akinoumi, of "sekiwake" or third rank from "yokozuna" or grand champion of the East and West sides respectively, and Tamanoumi, of "komusubi" or rank immediately below sekiwake of the East side, all suffered defeats.

Akinoumi, who had leaped into fame in the January tourney last year when he put a stop to Grand Champion Futabayama's winning streak over three years, proved a disappointment to his admirers. Even the experts had expected him to come through with the brightest performance on the West side. As a matter of fact, he was on the verge of victory against lanky Fujigadake. All he needed was just more push but Fujigadake effected a last minute throw that shoved Akinoumi instead outside the ring.

A two-handed pushing attack by Taikyuzan, who hails from Osaka, was responsible for his victory over Nayoroiwa, stable-mate of Futabayama. As Nayoroiwa was forced back, Taikyuzan slipped his left arm through his opponent's defense for a firm grip on the latter's girdle and succeeded with a beautiful arm throw.

Dewaminato, who went through the January tournament last year without a defeat to win the championship, proved a bit too smart for Tamanoumi. His leg-hold sent the strong Tamanoumi down onto the sand.

Grand Champions Futabayama and Minanogawa were altogether too strong for their opponents. Sagamigawa, whose chief admirer is Kikugoro, the famous Kabuki actor, is more than 6 feet in height but Futabayama had little trouble throwing him. Minanogawa just about crushed Tsurugamine out of the ring.

As is usual the case on the opening day, progress of the bouts was slow. The first bout started at 2 a.m. and it was not until 8:45 p.m. when Futabayama defeated Sagamigawa in the day's concluding bout.

Under the revived East versus West competition after an interval of nine years, the West side led 13 to 11 victories at the end of the first day's matches.

The results of these principal bouts after the intermission follow:

Shikainami defeated Hatasegawa.
Fujinosato defeated Genjiyama.
Katsuragawa defeated Sakuranishiki.
Kuganishiki defeated Jintozan.
Yamatonishiki defeated Matsuuragata.
Komatsuyama defeated Ichiwatari.
Komanosato defeated Kojimakawa.
Yamatoiwa defeated Shachinosato.
Saganohana defeated Dewanohana.
Kaneminato defeated Matsunosato.
Oshio defeated Ryogoku.
Ayawaka defeated Onami.
Banjaku defeated Kasagiyama.
Terukuni defeated Ryuozan.
Itsutsushima defeated Aobayama.
Kashimanada defeated Tatekabuto.
Ayanobori defeated Asahigawa.
Dewaminato defeated Tamanoumi.
Fujigadake defeated Akinoumi.
Taikyuzan defeated Nayoroiwa.
Mayedayama defeated Tomoegata.
Haguroyama defeated Hishuzan.
Minanogawa defeated Tsurugamine.
Futabayama defeated Sagamigawa.

INDIAN POPULATION IS RAPIDLY RISING

'Vanishing Race' Now Leads All Groups in Rate

N.Y. Times

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—Indians, often characterized as a vanishing race, actually are increasing in numbers and at a rate faster than any other population group in the country, John Collier, United States Commissioner of Indian Affairs, said today.

According to Mr. Collier, they are also developing "surprising capacities" as business men, in marked contrast to the sagacity of their ancestors who are reputed to have sold Manhattan Island to the Dutch for $24 and a handful of glass beads.

In support of both assertions, Mr. Collier cited in his annual report to Secretary Ickes, made public today, and in a radio address tonight sponsored by The Washington Evening Star, statistics indicating that Indians are catching up on former population records and establishing new ones in industrial and business activities.

"According to the best available data, 846,000 Indians were living in what is now the United States at the time Columbus arrived," Mr. Collier said. "Today there are 351,000 exclusive of Alaskan Indians and Eskimos.

Until about 1928 the death rate equaled or exceeded the birth rate. Then the trend changed, and Indians today are the fastest-growing population group in the United States. Within the last fiscal year the Indian population jumped from 342,497 to 351,878 exclusive of the 30,000 Indian and Eskimo wards of the government in Alaska.

"Indians live in all the forty-eight States and have extensive land holdings in twenty-seven States. Their lands, though greatly shrunken during the last 100 years, still amount to more than 52,000,000 acres, and under a sympathetic government are now slowing increasing.

"And with the facilities and stimulus provided under the Indian Reorganization Act of 1934 and supplementary legislation for Oklahoma and Alaska, Indians and Eskimos are developing surprising capacities as business men, as evidenced by Isleta Pueblo in New Mexico, the Lyons Cooperative Association in Oklahoma and other cooperative and corporate Indian enterprises.

"Examples of the latter include a salmon cannery in Alaska, a tourist cabin enterprise in Wisconsin, a community dairy and farm in California, an oyster culture enterprise in Washington and a municipal water project in the Pacific Northwest."

Mr. Collier cited also a store operated in New Mexico by Jicarilla Apache Indians, regarded, he said, as recently as four years ago as a backward people, which has reported sales amounting to over $135,000 from Nov. 1, 1937, to Dec. 31, 1938 and has begun repayment to the United States of a loan for purchase and operation of the enterprise.

GRAND CHAMPION FUTABAYAMA IN RITES

At the right going through the rites of the formal entrance of a grand champion of Sumo into the ring is Futabayama. His attendants are Haguroyama, holding the sword, and Nayoroiwa. This ceremony is performed daily in the afternoon at about 2:30 p.m. by Grand Champions Futabayama and Minanogawa during the 15-day tournament which started on Thursday.

SCANDINAVIA SO DEMOCRATIC EVEN RED LIGHT STOPS KING

COPENHAGEN—Everything democracy offers—in these days when so many people tremble for the future of democracy—still can be found in the Scandinavian countries, Denmark, Norway, and Sweden.

Everything, that is, except a political organization calling itself the Democratic Party.

The reason for this oversight is simple: democracy is taken for granted in these countries, is so inherently a part of the fundamental life of their peoples, that practically all institutions in them are democratic. Therefore they don't have to be given the label.

That goes even for the monarchy. In Denmark, the King and his family constitute the most arresting and convincing proof of the country's all-wool and yard-wide democracy.

One goes to the theater and notes, casually, that King Christian X and his Queen are also there. One goes shopping and finds the Queen trying on gloves at a near-by counter—unguarded, not at all fawned upon, merely admired.

RED LIGHT FOR KING

The King, riding through the Capital's streets on his horse, is halted by the red traffic light at an intersection and, of course, waits with everyone else for it to turn green. Meanwhile he may exchange the time of day with a messenger boy or a taxicab driver. That's Denmark.

The Danish King, in his democratic spirit, is friend, counsellor, and arbiter for his people. Twice each month they may come to him with their problems. The door is open. The citizen walks in. His wife has been ill so he can't pay all his taxes, and would the King help him? Yes, his democratic Majesty will see what he can do.

There is no formality. One doesn't need cutaway for a call to the Palace. A laborer in his working clothes is accepted equally with the finely turned out gentleman of means.

The Queen, too, does as do all the Danes. On her shopping tours she sometimes refuses the clerk's offer to have purchases delivered to the castle. Her "boys" can carry the packages is usually the Queen's decision. She means the Crown Prince, Frederick, and his younger brother, Prince Knud.

This "just folks" attitude is shared also with the Swedish and Norwegian rulers.

Sweden's Gustaf carries his idea of 100 per cent democracy into a hobby usually considered a strictly feminine venture—he embroiders. Through the Palace one may find table runners, doilies, etc., from His Majesty's needle. Last year he presented an exhibit of his work.

SNACK IN THE HILLS

Norway's monarch, King Haakon, likes nothing better than a snack with his subjects in one of the little inns in mountainous Northern Norway where the "skiing crowd"—which is everyone—gathers in the Winter time.

The Danish King's favorite companion for such an afternoon is his Prime Minister, Thorwald Stauning, who used to work in a factory.

The people carry their interpretation of democracy into a determined ban on classes. Upper class, middle class, lower class do not exist, any Dane or Swede or Norwegian will tell you. Rich man, and poor man, as often as not, live side by side in the same residential district.

It is not scandalous for a high Government employe to announce his marriage to a chambermaid.

There is no apparent distinction in the cafes or restaurants or expensive amusement centers. First served, so long as one can pay.

Behind these practical evidences of their democracy, the Scandinavians have a solid constitutional base. The Swedish Parliament, for example, is over 500 years old.

ALL PARTIES DEMOCRATIC

The lack of a "democratic party" by that name is explained by the claim of all parties to be democratic therefore, none can monopolize the specific designation.

The party system in Norway, Sweden, Denmark is dominated by four parties—Social Democrats, Liberals, Peasants, and Conservatives. It has been thus since the beginning of their parliamentary system. The result is stable government. Denmark's Prime Minister has held office more than 10 years—the Swedish Government has been in office seven years.

NEW YORK—The Growth of tuberculosis germs is stopped by certain substances derived from chlorophyll, the coloring matter of leaves, according to Columbia University medical scientists' studies recently revealed.

Drs. Sylvester Daily, George Heller and Eric Schneider of the college of physicians and surgeons laboratories made experiments with the various cholorophyll products in their effect upon the germs of human as well as bird tuberculosis.

It was found that two substances particularly inhibited the growth of the germs. One of the materials is chlorin-E (chlorin-E correct) and the other chlorophyllin.

The germs were kept alive in the usual laboratory flasks containing nutritive soups. They were not killed by the chlorophyll products, but their ability to multiply was halted.

If scientists eventually learned to produce similar effects in the human body, a new air for fighting tuberculosis might be developed.

For the present however the most interesting discovery is about the way in which the chlorophyll substances interfere with the reproduction of the germs of tuberculosis.

The coloring matter chlorin-E has the property of chemically uniting with the proteins, the building bricks of the nuclear core of the germs. Thus, the chlorophyll derivative locks up the machinery by which the germs reproduce themselves.

Chlorophyll, meaning the coloring matter of green leaves, is the most important material for human beings, animals and plants.

If enables the plants to capture the carbon dioxide gas and water vapor under sunlight, and out of these simple ingredients to make the plant tissues. Thus, the basic source of human and animal food is the activity of chlorophyll in the living plant.

A number of world famous scientists have devoted some of their most brilliant researches toward the understanding of the chemical structure of chlorophyll.

The presence of certain metallic molecules in it has given clue to its powerful chemical service as the promoter of plant action by which sunlight is caught and stored up as food.

The bile contains some of the chlorophyll substances which appear to slow down the growth of tubercular germs.

It was from this clue that Columbia University physicians started their search for the exact chlorophyll products which inhibit germs growth, and the manner of such action.—King Features.

GRAND CHAMPIONS SHOW POWER IN SUMO TOURNEY AT RYOGOKU

Grand Champions Futabayama and Minanogawa lived up to their reputation and won without much trouble in the second day's bouts Friday of the 15-day sumo tournament at the Kokugikan bowl at Ryogoku.

Taikyuzan, who on the previous day had defeated Nayoroiwa, stable mate of Futabayama, attacked Futabayama with both hands with the view to forcing him out of the ring. Futabayama, ever cool, took everything Taikyuzan had to offer and lost no time thrusting his two arms through Taikyuzan's defense for grips on the latter's girdle. Futabayama attempted an arm throw. Taikyuzan checked it and in turn essayed a throw, grasping Futabayama's neck. Futabayama broke the hold easily and promptly pushed Taikyuzan out of the ring.

Aobayama charged desperately at Minanogawa but the latter was altogether too strong for him. Minanogawa stopped him and pulled with both hands and down went Aobayama onto the sand.

MAYEDAYAMA WINS

Mayedayama and Haguroyama, both "ozeki" or of champion rank immediately below "yokozuna" or grand champion, both won impressively. Mayedayama shoved the clever Asahigawa out of the ring for his second straight victory. Haguroyama, competing for the first time as a champion and who only a few years back was a "sansuke" or worker in a public bathhouse, outshoved Ayawaka out of the ring.

Three upsets were registered to the amazement of the close followers of the sport. Akinoumi, a heavy favorite over Tomoegata, pushed the latter to the edge of the ring, but Tomoegata checked the drive momentarily and pulled Akinoumi to the left with the result that it was Akinoumi instead that was forced first out of the ring for defeat. Ayanobori, a stable mate of Akinoumi, was the favorite over Saganohana, but the latter proved the stronger in a rip snorting battle and threw the former out of the ring. Then it was Tamanoumi, ace pupil of the late Grand Champion Tamanishiki, who suffered defeat at the hands of Sagamigawa, a newcomer. Sagamigawa, the bigger of the two, attacked with both hands to keep Tamanoumi from getting a hold. And he succeeded in pushing Tamanoumi out of the ring with his powerful hands.

One of the most interesting matches of the day was that between Ryogoku and Banjaku. Ryogoku, without an ounce of flabby flesh but is nevertheless one of the strongest of the contestants with great lifting power in his arms, was ever the aggressor. Twice he lifted Banjaku into the air with the intention of throwing him down onto the sand, but Banjaku refused to be thrown, and then in the end, it was Banjaku's great protruding stomach which served him as a lever to carry Ryogoku out of the ring for a thrilling victory.

BOUTS PROGRESS FASTER

The bouts progressed much faster than the opening day and the final match between Minanogawa and Aobayama ended at 6:34 p.m., or two hours and ten minutes earlier than on Thursday.

The East side won 13 matches as against 11 by the West side in the principal bouts Friday to be deadlocked at 24 each for the two days.

Friday's results follow:

Jintozan defeated Katsuragawa.
Fujinosato defeated Hatasegawa.
Sakuranishiki defeated Kojimakawa.
Yamatoiwa defeated Komatsuyama.
Kuganishiki defeated Yamatonishiki.
Shachinosato defeated Shikainami.
Genjiyama defeated Komanosato.
Tsurugamine defeated Ichiwatari.
Matsuuragata defeated Dewanohana.
Dewaminato defeated Oshio.
Onami defeated Kashimanada.
Banjaku defeated Ryogoku.
Hishuzan defeated Terukuni.
Kasagiyama defeated Kaneminato.
Tatekabuto defeated Matsunosato.
Itsutsushima defeated Fujigadake.
Sagamigawa defeated Tamanoumi.
Saganohana defeated Ayanobori.
Nayoroiwa defeated Ryuozan.
Tomoegata defeated Akinoumi.
Haguroyama defeated Ayawaka.
Mayedayama defeated Asahigawa.
Futabayama defeated Taikyuzan.
Minanogawa defeated Aobayama.

Canada Favoring War Food Contract With Great Britain

Christian Science Monitor

OTTAWA—The impression is growing in Government circles here that the interests of both the United Kingdom and Canada could be served best during the war by agreements covering the principal Canadian food products—wheat, bacon and cheese—somewhat similar to that entered into between Britain and Australia for wool.

Britain agreed to maintain a price for wool equal to the market price just before the war and took over control of the entire Australian production. The price is to be maintained throughout the war and for a year after the war ends.

This arrangement insures the sheep raisers against further drop in price but the price may be increased by mutual understanding if world market conditions make it necessary.

CONTROLLER IN CHARGE

The present situation is that all the buying of wheat for Britain and France is in the hands of the wheat controller and he has to take many things into consideration. First, there is the price at which wheat can be bought in various parts of the world. Then there is the advantage of buying wheat which might otherwise find its way to Germany.

So long as no offer is forthcoming from Britain to make an agreement with the Canadian Wheat Board for a fixed price higher than 70 cents, there is no object in shifting from the present practice of selling in the open market, it is stated.

However if Britain, to insure a steady supply at a fixed price, would consider a higher figure then it might be advisable for the Wheat Board and the British wheat controller to enter into an agreement that would give Britain control of Canada's present surplus, wiping out public selling.

Canada's exports of bacon to Britain have increased almost 50 per cent in recent weeks and Canada has been informed by British food control authorities that while bacon is being rationed in the United Kingdom, they do not urge that Canada further increase its shipments there at this time.

CONSERVING MONEY RESERVES

Bacon is not being rationed because there is a shortage there, officials here are informed, but to persuade the British people to use lower priced foods. This lessens the drain on British credits.

It is the same with butter and it is rationed to get the people of the United Kingdom to use the cheaper margarine, not because of a shortage of butter. Britain is husbanding its financial resources, an important procedure having regard for the costliness of modern warfare.

All this in inclining Government circles here to think it would be a good thing if the food experts of the two countries got together and settled the situation.

Meanwhile Canada is having trouble finding storage space for its immense wheat surplus. The market stays around 70 cents and one unusual feature is the narrow spread between grades. Not in many years, wheat experts here say, has No. 4 sold only five cents below No. 1 as is presently the case.

The reason given is that No. 4 is unusually high in protein content this year and Canadian millers are buying it because it makes such good flour.

NEWCOMER REGISTERS SURPRISE

Sagamigawa, 23, who is 6 ft. 2 in. tall and weighs about 280 pounds and is considered a future grand champion, stole the show in the sumo matches Friday at the Kokugikan. Resorting to a two-handed attack, he sent Tamanoumi, of much higher rank, sprawling out of the ring. Photo shows Sagamigawa winning after the final push.

FAIRBANKS RITES SIMPLE AFFAIR

5,000 in Roped Area Near Los Angeles Church Watch Procession of Notables

N.Y. Times

GLENDALE, Calif., Dec. 15—With marked simplicity, Douglas Fairbanks Sr., famous, gay, dashing hero of the screen for many years, received the final tribute of his family and friends from Hollywood this afternoon.

All through the services, conducted by the Rev. Neal Dodd, pastor of the St. Mary's of the Angels Episcopal Church, Hollywood, the sobs of Mr. Fairbanks's widow, the former Lady Sylvia Ashley, could be heard. Stricken by grief, she was barely able to walk into the private family chamber of the Wee Kirk o' the Heather in Forest Lawn Memorial Park. She made her way into the church with heavy, uncertain and faltering steps. She leaned heavily on the arm of her stepson, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., and was supported on the other arm by Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks Jr. They were two minutes late in arriving for the rites, which lasted a little more than 15 minutes. The Rev. Mr. Dodd read the usual Episcopal service.

As he began, "I am the resurrection and the life, saith the Lord . . . ." sobs could be heard all over the small auditorium. There was not an eye that was not tear-dimmed and none cared who saw them show their grief.

HUNDRED CLOSE FRIENDS ATTEND

One hundred of Fairbanks' closest friends, with whom he worked in the motion picture industry, were admitted into the beautiful chapel. More than 5,000 men, women and children lingered in a roped-off area near the church. These were not permitted near the place of the services.

After the Rev. Mr. Dodd completed his ritual the huge bronze-colored copper coffin was not opened. It was removed immediately to a temporary receiving vault at Forest Lawn, where tonight Mr. Fairbanks lay next to one of his old friends, Will Rogers, the famous humorist and screen star, whose body still lies in the temporary vault awaiting final burial.

Members of the Fairbanks family said that plans for the burial of Fairbanks were still uncertain.

His body was removed from his home in Santa Monica, where he died early Tuesday morning from an unexpected heart attack, directly to the cemetery chapel.

Among those in the assemblage, small because attendance was by invitation, were friends who worked with him in the early stages of his career.

There was Eileen Percy, one of his first leading women. Bull Montana was present. Tom Mix, his face sad with grief, attended, attired in a black cowboy outfit. Then there was Spike Robinson, Billy Shea, James Hogan, Charles Stevens and Tom Geraghty.

NEW YORK—Atom-smashing experiments at Columbia University have proved that the heart of an atom becomes very "hot" before it bursts and spills out its terrific pent-up energy, it was learned recently.

Prof. John R. Dunning, E. T. Booth and A. von Grosse were able to explore the atomic heart of element 91, called protactinium which is 281 times heavier than a hydrogen atom and gives out radiations like radium and uranium.

Neutrons of a little less than 2,000,000 electron-volts power were shot at protactinium. A single one of these neutrons was needed for the explosion. When the neutron met the nucleus, the heart of the protactinium, an explosion occurred.

Protactinium nuclear heart burst into other sort of atomic hearts. The broken fragments flew away from each other with terrific energy. This power could be harnessed and used. Someday, man may do so profitably.

For the scientists the importance of this result was that it demonstrated the correctness of a dramatic theory advanced by the world famous Copenhagen physicist, Dr. Niels Bohr, Nobel prize winner.

Dr. Bohr and Dr. John A. Wheeler of Princeton University have just written to the editor of the Physical Review that their theory is vindicated by the Columbia University Scientists' experiments.

Dr. Bohr's theory was explained by Prof. Booth, generally as follows:

When a neutron, hurled from outside, enters the nucleus, the heart, of an atom of uranium, thorium or protactinium, Dr. Bohr believes that certain things happen.

"The process that starts may be likened to what takes place when an ordinary drop of water is heated. However, one cannot speak of heat in the atomic substance, a chemical compound of a new kind.

"The whole thing moves like a football kicked on the playground. But the energy of this excitement is tremendous, about 4,000,000 electron volts.

"Next the football, so to say, stretches out like a cigar or like a dumbbell, and snaps in the middle. The two parts then run away from each other with energies of 175,000,000 volts or so in the case of uranium, a little less for protactinium."

It is this force of flying fragments of a hot, burst atomic heart that science hopes to make some day available for man's daily use.—King Features.

FUTABAYAMA SHOWS STRENGTH IN DEFEATING DEWAMINATO

Grand Champion Futabayama showed himself the man to beat Sunday in the fourth day of the current 15-day professional Sumo tournament at Ryogoku by defeating the strong Dewaminato without trouble. It was Futabayama's fourth straight victory and the first defeat for Dewaminato.

No sooner had they stood up than they thrust their right arms through the other's defense for an equal hold on the girdle. Futabayama started pushing. Dewaminato forced back, tried desperately to save himself but Futabayama, displaying his Herculean strength, lifted Dewaminato high into the air and deposited him outside the ring for an impressive victory.

With many rabid fans standing in line for tickets from the night previous, the bowl was a sell-out as early as 6 a.m.

PRINCES ATTEND

T. I. H. Princes Akinori and Fuminori Kaya, Prince and Princess Tsuneyoshi Takeda, Their Highnesses Prince and Princess Ken Ri, Princes Chu and Ki Ri were interested spectators in the Imperial box. Former Grand Champion Musashiyama, who retired recently because of an ailing arm, and former Champion Shimizugawa, explained the different throws.

The end of the day's bouts found both the East and West sides tied with 48 victories each for the four days.

Out of the 48 wrestlers in the top ranking circle competing for the championship, only five remain undefeated, being Grand Champion Futabayama, Champion Haguroyama and Kuganishiki on the East side, and Grand Champion Minanogawa and Itsutsushima on the West side.

The clever Asahigawa, who has beaten Minanogawa by sheer cleverness in the past, was no match for the grand champion on Sunday. Minanogawa lost no time in pushing him out of the ring.

Ryuozan attacked with both hands but Haguroyama was ready for it. The consequence was they fell into a clinch and Haguroyama finally by virtue of his greater strength crushed his opponent out of the ring.

Kaneminato, scarcely over 5 feet in height and the smallest of the wrestlers, pulled off an upset by turning the tables over Ayanobori, reputedly one of the smartest of the stalwarts in competition. A last minute pull to the side and Ayanobori, who was on the verge of shoving Kaneminato out of the ring, hit the sand instead.

TERUKUNI WINS

Terukuni, 21-year-old and the youngest of the wrestlers in the top ranking circle, who on Saturday had beaten Champion Mayedayama, won another impressive victory by downing the strong Kashimanada after a rip snorting bout.

The results of the principal bouts follow:

Satogashima defeated Kojimakawa
Yamatoiwa defeated Nisegawa
Katsuragawa defeated Fujinosato.
Hatasegawa defeated Sakuranisiki.
Jintozan defeated Shachinosato.
Genjiyama won by forfeit from Dewanohana.
Ichiwatari defeated Tomoegata.
Sagamigawa defeated Matsuuragata.
Fujigadake defeated Shikainami
Kuganishiki defeated Ayawaka
Oshio defeated Komanosato
Yamatonishiki deefated Onami
Komatsuyama defeated Ryogoku
Terukuni defeated Kashimanada
Kasagiyama defeated Aobayama
Hishuzan defeated Tatekabuto
Itsutsushima defeated Saganohana
Tamanoumi defeated Taikyuzan
Kaneminato defeated Ayanobori
Nayoroiwa defeated Matsunosato
Akinoumi defeated Banjaku
Haguroyama defeated Ryuozan
Mayedayama defeated Tsurugamine
Futabayama defeated Dewaminato
Minanogawa defeated Asahigawa

ternational spy," said Schuster. But the spy's disclosures were so alarming that Max was afraid to publish them.

Further evidence of Simon & Schuster's unconventionality are their Inner Sanctum advertisements—named after the editorial room between the partners' private offices. These messages, which began around 1927, ranged informally over a variety of topics, including market tips, political prognostications, and discussions of movies. When some of their books failed to sell as they thought they should, they rebuked the public. "A Night in Kurdistan, by Jean-Richard Bloch, is suffering from rhapsodic reviews but melancholy sales," one announcement ran. S & S made a strenuous effort to get Sinclair Lewis in 1931, but when he signed up with Doubleday, Doran, they paid money to congratulate their rival in a Publishers' Weekly ad. In Inner Sanctum ads the partners apologized for book jackets which on mature reflection seemed to them awful, and once devoted an entire column in the Times to praise the Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra and a book about Beethoven published by Knopf.

Currently S & S are excited about their Treasury of Art Masterpieces, by far their most ambitious project. They set aside $250,000 to cover its cost. Some 20 photographers were sent to museums and private collections in this country and Europe, and the book, which weighs 8½ pounds and costs $10, reproduces 144 of the world's most famous paintings in full color.

To familiarize bookstores with this volume, Simon sent out "A Confidential Memorandum for Booksellers," in which he engagingly set forth the aims of the Treasury. Schuster, who had suggested the book, was so pleased when he read Simon' pamphlet that he wired his partner: "Rock-shivering congratulations on incomparably magnificent memorandum. Clearly the Mount Everest of all trade-promotion masterpieces."

BODY OF YOUTH KILLED BY AVALANCHE FOUND

One of Eight University Students in Ill-fated Group

Domei Tsushin

OBIHIRO, Jan. 13—The body of Masao Ishibashi, one of the eight ill-fated Hokkaido University students, who perished in an avalanche at Kusatsunai, gorge of Koi village, on Jan. 5, was this afternoon finally found by the rescue party of the University's mountain climbing society, which is led by the senior member of the society including Naoyuki Sakamoto, Seiki Nakano and Kennosuke Nozaki.

After continuing its strenuous efforts, the rescue party further found several belongings of the fortunate students including knapsack of Mr. Arima and Mr. Kondo, glasses and broken ski of Mr. Tokura, cap and stick of Mr. Uchida and Mr. Takahashi.

Mr. Sakamoto, one of the leader of the rescue party, said:

"The snow in the gorge is much deeper than on the ridge this year, which shows frequent occurrences of avalanches in this region. The scene of the disaster is believed to be about 100 meters right below the summit and the distance between the spot and the edge of the avalanche below is about 1,000 meters.

"It is beyond all imagination how Mr. Uchida alone could return safe despite his friends were pushed down about 800 meters buried alive.

"Since there are no belongings left by these unfortunate climbers in the higher region we believe that all the boys were buried in one place. Before the weather turns bad we shall do our best to locate the bodies."

TIMES WARNS U.S. AGAINST HASTY ACTION

Modus Vivendi Signing And Dropping of Embargo Plan Urged by Lippmann

Domei Tsushin

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—Realizing the tremendous popular interest in the American-Japanese situation likely to follow expiration of the trade treaty between the two countries, the New York Times for the second day in succession today carried an editorial titled, Embargo on Japan?, and indirectly warning the American public against hasty emotional judgments liable to disrupt international relations.

The editorial declared that the newspaper had received a large number of letters expressing support in the letter former Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson published in the New York Times. "However, the majority of people will realize that practical as well as other moral questions are involved." For instance, joint action with other signatories to the nine-Power Treaty would undoubtedly cause greater moral significance on the Japanese public than action by the United States alone because it is possible that the Japanese Government would represent American action as being motivated solely by trade interests and rivalry for war in the Pacific.

Secondly it is impossible to ignore the fact that the imposition of any kind of an embargo by the United States against a nation which technically is at peace with America would constitute an extremely serious step.

Thirdly the move might drive Japanese moderates into the hands of the Japanese military faction or into the arms of the Soviet Union, and thereby usher in a still wider adventure and still greater anarchy in Asia.

The editorial concluded by saying, "If the United States continues its negotiations with Japan—with intimation of the embargo under contemplation—we might gain more by creating an opportunity to judge more realistically the probable consequences of such embargo action against Japan."

AGAINST EMBARGO

Domei Tsushin

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—The stand taken by the former Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson in his letter published in the New York Times was discussed today in the New York Herald Tribune by Walter Lippmann, the well-known commentator on international affairs. Mr. Lippmann supports Mr. Stimson's moral judgment regarding China and also with regard to the political responsibilities of the United States.

However, Mr. Lippmann does not believe "it would be wise to bring Japanese-American relations to a crisis now at a time the treaty between the two countries is about to expire or to impose an embargo against Japan * * * I believe another alternative, namely, the arrangement of a modus vivendi and the dropping of embargo proposals, would be the wiser course not only for the United States but also for China as well as other signatories to the nine-Power Treaty.

The commentator listed the following three "compelling" reasons upholding his contention:

1. The fact that the United States does not possess a two-ocean navy and also at the same time is not prepared for war in the military sense.

2. Great Britain and France are engaged in Europe and consequently would not be in a position to extend help to the American navy in the event of war between the United States and Japan, while Japan, on the other hand, most likely would be aided by the Soviet and German navies.

3. Japan realizes the United States would be reluctant to go to war even if Japan threatened to declare war against the United States. Therefore Japan is in a mood to commit new threatening acts against British and French interests in the Far East, also the Dutch East Indies.

The writer pointed out that Senator Key Pittman, chairman of the Senate's foreign relations committee, has suggested, instead of imposing an outright embargo against Japan, that Congress should seek other ways and means to cut off American supplies to Japan of a military significance.

He concluded by saying, "If a modus vivendi is reached we should take a long time to explore the possibilities of a general settlement in the Far East. Such a settlement might be reached easily if Chinese resistance can continue until the European war ends.

"We should make loans to China to prolong the Sino-Japanese conflict. We should not provoke a crisis now but should play for time. Namely, we should wait and watch Chinese resistance—and wait for Britain and France to restore their influence in the Far East."

MODERN SCIENCE

By GOBIND BEHARI LAL

By G. B. LAL

NEW YORK—New advances toward the relief, prevention and, in some cases, treatment of deafness made by Prof. M. H. Lurie have been reported from the Harvard Medical school.

Dr. Lurie has been able to study deafness in laboratory animals under various conditions that closely parallel those of human beings who are hard of hearing.

For scientific understanding of the cause of acquired and inherited deafness, such careful experiments are needed. Human beings cannot be used for these studies. Animals, however, serve as models for man through the use of ingenious electric instruments.

The excitement produced in the hearing nerve of the animal is picked up by electrical methods and amplified so that it can be heard or recorded. Thus "tests for hearing" can be made upon animals that cannot speak to the scientist.

Says Prof. Lurie:

"Studies in animals deafened by disease, toxic poisoning and exposure to loud sounds for long periods of time, have given definite clues to the cause of perception deafness in the human."

The particular machinery of the ear that Prof. Lurie has just studied is called the organ of corti. The organ's hair-cells aid in changing sound vibrations into electrical messages that are transmitted by the ear nerve fibers to the brain.

As Dr. Harvey Fletcher, of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, says, "the human nerve fibers of hearing behave like busy telephone wires."

For perfect hearing the whole machinery of the ear, from the outermost sound receiving cavities, the organ of corti, the nerve fibers to the hearing center in the brain itself, must be normal. Dr. Lurie and other scientists are studying each of these sections in detail.

Inherited deafness, Dr. Lurie has found, may be caused by complete degeneration of the organ of corti or only partial damage. Internal body poisoning, germ infection and loud noises produce similar injuries in the organ of corti.

Thus, some clues have been found that might enable medical science to prevent or modify even an inherited tendency to deafness from showing itself.

Tests made at the New York World Fair and Golden Gate Exposition, San Francisco, by the Bell Telephone Company staff have shown that: "one person in seven shows a loss of hearing of 25 decibel units, and one in 25 sufficient impairment to be a handicap in hearing speech in an auditorium."

Physiological studies of deafness might show how by proper diet, prevention of infections and other methods, the incidence of deafness of advancing years might be largely reduced.—King Features.

KANEMINATO STEALS THE SHOW BY DEFEATING ITSUTSUSHIMA

Kaneminato, scarcely over 5 feet in height and the smallest of the contestants in the top ranking circle, stole the show Monday in the fifth day of the current 15-day Sumo tournament at the Kokugikan bowl at Ryogoku by defeating Itsutsushima, bigger in physique and several scales higher in the individual ranking of the wrestlers.

Kaneminato's victory was all the more impressive as Itsutsushima had been undefeated up to Monday and was an overwhelming favorite. No sooner had they stood up to do battle than Itsutsushima, instead of resorting to his usual tactics of shoving his right arm through his opponent's defense for a grip on his girdle, attacked with both hands at Kaneminato's throat. But the clever Kaneminato shoved Itsutsushima to the side and as the latter stumbled, Kaneminato followed up his advantage and shoved his opponent out from the rear.

REFEREE'S DECISION DISPUTED

The bouts were held up for 15 minutes by a dispute in the match between Dewaminato and Saganohana. After a rip-snorting scrimmage, Dewaminato effected an arm throw and Saganohana fell out of the ring but the referee ruled Saganohana as the winner, claiming that Dewaminato's left foot had stepped out of the ring before he made his throw. Ryogoku, who was Dewaminato's second, protested against the decision on the ground that Dewaminato's foot was squarely on the straw, marking the circle, and had not stepped out.

The judges had a powwow in the center of the ring for some 15 minutes, after numerous talks with the seconds on both sides, and finally decided to uphold the referee's decision.

As the result of the bouts on Monday, the only undefeated wrestlers are Grand Champion Futabayama and Champion Haguroyama on the East side and Grand Champion Minanogawa on the West side.

Kuganishiki of the East side, who had been undefeated up to Monday, fell by the way side when he was defeated by the veteran Fujinosato.

Grand Champion Futabayama had no trouble disposing of the stout Kashimanada, who had defeated him in the tourney last January. They grasped each other's girdle to be on even terms but Futabayama started pushing and there was no stopping him.

Grand Champion Minanogawa had a narrow escape in his bout with Banjaku, he of the great protruding belly. Banjaku started a drive and forced Minanogawa to the edge of the ring. Banjaku, keeping up his offensive, attempted a leg throw, and when Minanogawa checked it, he resorted to an arm throw. Checking this, Minanogawa in turn started pushing with his giant body and out went Banjaku.

EAST SIDE LEADS

Scoring 13 victories for the day as against nine by their opponents, the wrestlers of the East side took a 61-57 lead over the West side for the five days ending Monday.

The results of the principal matches follow:

Kiyomigawa defeated Kojimakawa
Sadogashima defeated Matsuuragata
Futasegawa defeated Shikainami
Ichiwatari defeated Hatasegawa
Fujinosato defeated Kuganishiki
Yamatonishiki defeated Genjiyama
Komatsuyama defeated Jintozan
Komanosato defeated Katsuragawa
Sakuranishiki defeated Shachinosato
Fujigadake defeated Yamatoiwa
Saganohana defeated Dewaminato
Tsurugamine defeated Ryogoku
Onami defeated Hishuzan
Asahigawa defeated Kasagiyama
Terukuni defeated Matsunosato
Kaneminato defeated Itsutsushima
Tatekabuto defeated Sagamigawa
Ayanobori defeated Tomoegata
Tamanoumi defeated Ryuozan
Akinoumi defeated Oshio
Nayoroiwa defeated Ayawaka
Mayedayama defeated Aobayama
Haguroyama defeated Taikyuzan
Minanogawa defeated Banjaku
Futabayama defeated Kashimanada

All Three Charters Of Man's Liberty Now in America

Christian Science Monitor

WASHINGTON—The three great charters of man's political liberty today are guarded—and—revered—under the same roof: the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States, and now Magna Carta.

Along the gallery in the Library of Congress recently, Magna Carta came to join the two other great milestones on the road to liberty, there stand uniformed guards—men in blue coats. But outside on Capitol Hill stand two other even more significant guardians. Across the plaza to the west is the Capitol itself, which houses Congress. And Congress is the first guardian of the guarantees contained in the three great documents. Across the street to the north is the marble temple sheltering the Supreme Court. It is the second guardian of the basic guarantees of democracy.

17 INCHES OF PARCHMENT

The clearest and most cherished copy of Magna Carta, property of the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln Cathedral in England, which was viewed by some 14,000,000 visitors at the New York World's Fair, has been deposited for the duration of the war in the Library of Congress. Recently Lord Lothian, British Ambassador, handed over to Archibald MacLeish, Librarian of Congress, the 17-inch parchment which contains the earliest written guarantee of Anglo-Saxon liberties. Doing so, Lord Lothian said:

"The principles which underlay Magna Carta are the ultimate foundations of your liberties no less than ours." These liberties are still preserved, he said, though "at the moment they are being challenged by totalitarian imperialism, both from the right and from the left." And for Magna Carta to come to its full fruition, he urged Americans and Britons to develop "that sense of responsibility which is the correlative of freedom."

DEEPER SIGNIFICANCE

Mr. MacLeish, for his part, saw an affirmation of the faith in which this Nation was conceived in the turn of time which brings the Great Charter of the English to stand across the gallery from the two great charters of American freedom."

As the cherished parchment was given over to the Library's safe-keeping, the Chief Justice and five Associate Justices were present, together with leaders of Congress, diplomatists, and plain citizens. Their presence served to emphasize the guarantee which American democracy seeks to offer, that the basic rights granted by Magna Carta shall not be wiped from the face of the earth. And it seemed to some observers that something more precious than the mere physical record of Magna Carta was being evoked: That the United States, in a little fuller sense, is today the guardian of ancient liberties most precious to all men.

MUCH DISPUTED BOUT

An alert cameraman snapped this picture of the bout between Dewaminato (right) and Saganohana just before both hit the sand Monday at the Kokugikan. It was Dewaminato who made an arm throw and down went Saganohana. The referee, however, ruled Dewaminato's left leg had stepped out of the ring, and awarded victory to Saganohana. The judges upheld the decision after a 15-minute powwow.

MODERN SCIENCE

By GOBIND BEHARI LAL

NEW YORK—A study of the heat poured by the sun upon the earth, that might advance science's attempt to predict weather well ahead, has been revealed by Harvard University.

Dr. Theodore Eugene Sterne, Harvard's astrophysicist, has submitted to the National Academy of Sciences the results of his mathematical investigations concerning sun's radiations and weather.

The basis of the study was the theory of Dr. Charles G. Abbot, secretary Smithsonian Institution, that the amount of radiant energy received from the sun undergoes certain predictable changes.

According to Dr. Abbot's theory, derived from world-wide measurement of sun's radiatrons in calories per minute received per square centimeter surface, there are ten periods of changes. That is, the rate of solar energy received on the earth is altered in particular ways after 7, 8, 9, 11, 21, 25, 34, 39, 46 and 68 months.

Critical scientists offered some objections on this theory. One of the serious objections was that such repetition in solar radiation reception was, probably, due to a wrong kind of mathematical logic, involving manipulation of averages.

Dr. Sterne attacked this problem. He found that three of Dr. Abbot's periods, those of 7, and 34 months were not correct. But the rest of the seven periods appear quite legitimate, if one accepts Dr. Abbot's measurements of the solar radiations as accurate.

The possibility has been established of forecasting long-range weather changes according to the Abbot theory.

The difficulties in the way of accepting any too simple theory regarding the predictable relationship between sun's radiation and weather changes on the earth are many. Great deal of further research will be needed for solving the problem satisfactorily.

The atmosphere and the surface of the earth are continually and changingly assaulted by streams of electron bullets, soft X-rays, ultra-violet rays, light rays hurled out from the sun's surface. The ultimate cause of the weather and magnetic changes on the earth are the alterations in the sun's energy producing systems.—King Features.

Inner Mongolian Official Outlines Development Plans

Domei Tsushin

SHIMONOSEKI, Jan. 14—Tamotsu Sekiguchi, chief of the General Affairs Bureau of the Federated Autonomous Government of Inner Mongolia, arrived here this evening aboard the Fusan-Shimonoseki ferry.

He entrained for Tokyo at 8:30 p.m. to make arrangements with the China Affairs Board authorities and others concerned regarding the material mobilization program and funds for industrial development of Inner Mongolia during the next fiscal year and other matters.

When interviewed by the press on the train, he said:

"The Inner Mongolian Government is making efforts to develop agriculture and exploit mineral resources of Inner Mongolia. The authorities are planning to produce 3,000,000 tons of coal and 400,000 tons of iron ore this year at the Tatung mines, coal deposits being estimated at 40,000,000,000 tons. They intend to ship 700,000 tons of coal and iron ore to Japan this year, and the North China Communications Company is now constructing a special railway for this purpose."

FUTABAYAMA ONLY UNDEFEATED WRESTLER IN CURRENT TOURNEY

With Grand Champion Minanogawa and Champion Haguroyama falling by the way side Tuesday in the sixth day of the 15-day sumo tournament at Ryogoku, Grand Champion Futabayama is the only undefeated wrestler of some 50 contestants in the "makunouchi" or top ranking circle. He had no trouble in disposing of Ayawaka for his sixth straight victory Tuesday and his clinching of individual honors with nary a defeat is said to be a foregone conclusion.

Grand Champion Minanogawa, 37, was stacked up against Oshio, 40, the oldest of the competing wrestlers. Having won impressively up to Tuesday, Minanogawa was a heavy favorite. They fell into a clinch, each holding the other's girdle with the left hand to be on equal terms. But Oshio was the more aggressive. He attempted an arm throw. Minanogawa checked it but he momentarily lost his balance. Making the best use of this opening, Oshio started pushing and he didn't stop until he had forced Minanogawa out of the ring.

HAGUROYAMA BEATEN

The day's hero was burly Sagamigawa, only 22 years old and considered with the makings of a future "yokozuna" or grand champion. He was the first to defeat Haguroyama, stable mate of Futabayama and who is competing for the first time as an "ozeki" or champion. Believing that he wouldn't have a chance if the two fell into a clinch because of Haguroyama's greater experience, Sagamigawa attacked with both hands. This very tactics had sent the strong Tamanoumi fairly spinning out of the ring on the second day of the tournament. Haguroyama attempted to grab hold of one of Sagamigawa's arms but as he did so, Sagamigawa gave him a strong push. Haguroyama reeled backwards but rallied to stick his right arm through Sagamigawa's defense. Feeling secure, now that he had grasped his opponent, Haguroyama started pushing. As he was forced back, Sagamigawa pulled downward with his powerful arms and Haguroyama's left knee touched the sand, and victory went to Sagamigawa. In sumo, no portion of the body above the ankle must touch the sand.

Akinoumi, who stopped Grand Champion Futabayama's winning streak over two and a half years in the tournament last January and overnight became a national hero, started the current tourney in bad style by losing on the first and second days to much weaker opponents. But his impressive victory over the up and coming Saganohana in the day's leading bout shows that he has come back into his own and will finish the tournament with a brilliant record, according to the experts. His record to date is four victories and two defeats.

AYANOBORI WINS

The referee's decision in favor of Ayanobori in his bout with Banjaku was disputed. It was called a no bout and the two ordered to fight it over. This time, after another torrid battle, Ayanobori resorted to an arm throw and Banjaku's great body went sailing through the air for an Ayanobori victory.

The West side won 13 bouts as against nine by the East side and the two will start today's matches on an even basis of 76-70 for the six days to date.

The results of the principal bouts Tuesday follow:

Kojimagawa defeated Ichiwatari
Takenosato defeated Genjiyama
Jintozan defeated Hatasegawa
Futasegawa defeated Katsuragawa
Matsuuragata defeated Sakuranishiki
Fujinosato defeated Komatsuyama
Yamatonishiki defeated Tsurumine

CHILE MAY BUY VESSELS, MERGE ALL SHIP LINES

Present War Stimulates Mercantile Marine Both Along Coast, Overseas

Christian Science Monitor

SANTIAGO, Chile—Just as the war news of 1914-18 stimulated manufacturing industries, the present war is already bringing forth a mercantile marine which will not only attend to coastwise carriage but also take a larger share in overseas trade.

As a beginning, the newly-created Production Corporation proposes to spend 40,000,000 pesos on the acquisition of vessels while the Cabinet has under consideration a projected merger of all shipping lines—a kind of Chilean Lloyd—which would apportion participation in coastal and foreign carriage.

Interest was shown in two 7,000-ton Kosmos line vessels, among the seven German steamers which sought refuge in Chilean waters at the outbreak of war.

Negotiations were begun in Berlin but there were reports of local Anglo-French diplomatic intervention.

The Allies do not look with favor on any transaction of this character. Neither does Chile desire to risk a diplomatic passage-at-arms with two valuable customers, especially since they have established a co-ordinated economy. Later, the deal was reported "off," as Germany was asking too high a price.

The lack of shipping is serious, however. There is an improving demand for nitrate. It had been thought that sales would lag owing to a sufficiency of synthetic plants. The copper outlook, too, has improved.

The Production Corporation, in its initial provision for an expanded marine, admitted the difficulties of acquiring new shipping during the war.

It outlined a program of national shipyards to build vessels for coastal trade and proposed to grasp any opportunity during the war to increase registration under the national flag.

Immediately after the war, it indicated, special measures would assure a reduction of Chilean dependence on foreign shipping for the marketing of its exports. Chilean ships have a legal monopoly of coastwise trade. They share only 6 per cent of freight business valued annually at 700,000,000 pesos (about $24,500,000) in overseas trade.

U.S. College Plans To Operate Unique Silk Hosiery Mill

N.Y. Times

ATHENS, Ala.—Athens College, where many a plantation belle learned the social graces before the war between the States, started an experiment in student aid recently when ground was broken for the first unit of a silk hosiery mill to be operated by college girls.

The first unit, which will cost about $50,000 and is scheduled for completion next Spring, will provide jobs for 100 students, working four-hours shifts. Three additional units are planned in 1943, each to add 100 jobs.

Dr. E. R. Naylor, college president and father of the hosiery-mill plan, said the school hoped the mill would enable hundreds of girls to realize their ambitions of a college education.

Students will receive 25 cents an hour for the first 480 hours and 30 cents for the next 480, with both "training" periods to be completed the first school year. The wage for the second, third and fourth years will be 40 cents an hour.

Bonuses of 5 cents an hour will be given for efficient work the first three years. A bonus of 10 cents is possible the fourth year.

The product of the mill will be sold on a contract basis. The college does not expect to make a profit from the mill operation, but looks for no deficit. Money for the four units will come largely from an unnamed philanthropist.

Dr. Naylor makes it plain the step is not one directed toward making Athens College a vocational school.

"It is a liberal arts college steeped in the traditions of the old south," he said, "and the main purpose of this experiment is to give the students means to obtain a liberal arts education."

MODERN SCIENCE

By GOBIND BEHARI LAL

NEW YORK—"Cyclotrons" of stars are the celestial machines that produce atom-smashing cosmic rays, according to Prof. Hannes Alfven's theory revealed by the American Institute of Physics.

The Swedish scientist pictures double stars acting like cyclotrons, atom-smashing laboratory machines of tremendous power. By the magnetic and electric forces of the stars, especially those revolving around each other in families of two or more stars, the mysterious cosmic rays are generated and hurled out into space.

A tiny fraction of such rays reach the earth, according to Dr. Alfven's theory. The rest of them are received by the other planets, stars and moons. Most of the cosmic rays wander in empty interstellar space.

The stars, like the sun, are known to produce tremendous magnetic and electric forces which reach out into the far away surrounding space, creating electrical and magnetic "fields."

Dr. Alfven claims:

"Known laws of electro-dynamics (science of electricity in motion) applied to star motions and star magnetic fields can very well account for the generation of cosmic rays."

Scientists might have to wait until "new natural laws" are discovered to satisfactorily explain the cosmic rays. But Dr. Alfven argues that his theory will work.

At the annual exhibition of the Carnegie Institution held in Washington, December 16 to 18, Prof. T. H. Johnson, one of the leading cosmic rays investigators, presented a summary of what is generally accepted about the cosmic rays so far.

His main points were:

"Where and how cosmic rays originate remains a mystery.

"Cosmic rays are electrified particles traveling from outer space with almost the velocity of light, which is 186,000 miles per second. Approximately one cosmic ray particle strikes each square inch of the earth's surface every ten seconds.

"Cosmic rays are nearly 1,000 times as energetic as rays from radium, and approximately 1,000,000,000 times as energetic as ordinary light rays. If the earth received as many units of cosmic rays as it receives of ordinary light radiations in the same time, the earth would soon become hotter than the sun."—King Features.

ARGENTINA SEEKS TRADE FORMULA

South American Republic Torn Between Demands Of Allies, United States

By ROLAND HALL SHARP

Christian Science Monitor

Argentina, pulled two ways by demands of its best customers—the new British-French economic union on one side, the United States on the other—searches for some formula capable of satisfying both on the delicate question of foreign exchange control.

Behind Argentina's technical dilemma lies intense drama. In wide-avenued Buenos Aires beside the tawny Rio de la Plata, the future of several vital things is being shaped, including:

1. Success of Secretary of State Cordell Hull's latest reciprocal trade agreement, the 22nd in a program he has just described in Washington as a cornerstone of world peace.

2. Economic Pan-Americanism as a whole, now under searching examination in sessions of the new Inter-American Economic and Financial Advisory Committee.

3. Relations of the 21 American nations to Europe both during and after the war. Should the British-French economic union turn out to be as anticipated in some quarters, the embryo of a coming European federation, today's negotiations in Buenos Aires may be testing the winds that blow in potential relationships of such a federation to the loosely-organized American commonwealth of nations.

4. Barter trade and blocked currencies. Until the war, Germany formed the spearhead of barter in opposition to Mr. Hull's philosophy. In the latest twist, Britain and France pull against his plan for free foreign exchanges, and of trade spreading its benefits throughout the world instead of being limited to nations who seek an exact balance of their trade with each other.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE CONTROL

All of this, and more, waits importantly on Argentina's decision regarding foreign exchange control. Urgency is injected into the situation by wartime necessities of Britain and France. With their normal export trade to Argentina curtailed, they have to assure themselves of adequate foreign exchange in Argentina for purchases of meat, wheat, wool, and so on.

Argentina's desire to take every step short of war to help the country's far-and-away heaviest buyer, engaged in a war with which most Argentines sympathize, goes far toward explaining an action taken by the Exchange Control Bureau in Buenos Aires. The Bureau stated that purchases from the Allies would be given preference in order to supply the Allies with foreign exchange for use in Argentina.

AID FOR BRITAIN

In practice, Argentina is bound by terms of the Roca-Runciman Treaty of 1933 to block off each year as much foreign exchange for Britain as Britain has generated by buying from Argentina. Since British imports from Argentina normally double the amount of exports to Argentina, the earmarked exchange gives Britain a broad working margain.

American traders with Argentina, meanwhile, have to scratch for exchange. They are subjected to delays. They pay higher rates due to a variety of ingenious discriminations.

Argentines play this game of favoritism openly and deliberately. They view it as fair retaliation against the Smoot-Hawley Tariff Act of 1930, with its disguised embargo on Argentine meat in the form of a sanitary regulation. They also subscribe to the slogan: "Buy from those who buy from us."

U.S. TRADE TREATIES

So much for the cleavages, and they run deep. But while the United States is not Argentina's best customer, it is second best. Also, Argentina agreed in advance to moderate its exchange restrictions. Without that agreement, Washington would not have opened negotiations. Without fulfillment of that agreement, Washington says it will not sign a trade pact.

Hence the search for a formula. Even before the war had complicated the British position, a way to bridge the gap between the Roca-Runciman Treaty and the Hull program had been indicated by the State Department:

"The proposed trade agreement will assure that imports into Argentina from the United States will be accorded any advantages given competing imports from any other source. . . ."

A more difficult requirement, in view of developments, is this one:

"Any governmental regulation of imports into Argentina will be applied in a nondiscriminatory manner."

Argentina to Cut U. S. Auto Imports

N.Y. Times

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina—A reliable source says that the Argentine Government planned to cut 1940 imports of United States automobiles to approximately one-half of the 1939 quotas.

Argentina's severe restriction of auto imports this year already had caused sharp protests in North American industrial circles.

It was said that the planned cut would be made regardless of the progress of negotiations for a trade pact between the two Nations.

Argentina was reported willing to admit only $9,000,000 worth of United States vehicles in the next quota year, which begins Dec. 1.

The Exchange Control Board for the current year approved permits for about $17,500,000 worth.

ERSTWHILE WASEDA STUDENT BEATS CHAMPION IN SUMO TOURNAMENT

Kasagiyama, a former Waseda University student and for which reason he is known as the intellectual among the professional long-haired wrestlers in competition today, was hero No. 1 Wednesday in the seventh day's matches of the current 15-day sumo tournament at the Kokugikan, Ryogoku.

The erstwhile Waseda student outfought Champion Haguroyama to account for the latter's second setback to date. Haguroyama was a heavy favorite but this was no cause to put fear into Kasagiyama. He was the aggressor all the way through to score an impressive victory.

No sooner had they stood up than Kasagiyama thrust his left arm through Haguroyama's defense for a grip on his opponent's girdle and he started pushing. Haguroyama, however, checked the drive and in turn gripped Kasagiyama's girdle to be on even terms with him. This time, it was Haguroyama who attempted to force Kasagiyama out of the ring but the latter maneuvered himself back to the center and attempted one leg throw after the another. Haguroyama barely saved himself from falling, and tried to lift his opponent into the air. Kasagiyama countered by hooking his right leg onto Haguroyama's left. During the ensuing struggle, Haguroyama's right foot stepped outside of the ring and it was Kasagiyama's victory.

Grand Champion Futabayama remained the only undefeated wrestler in the first ranking circle competing in the East versus West competition. He threw Komanosato in less than five seconds for his seventh consecutive victory.

Grand Champion Minanogawa had a bad day Tuesday when he lost to the veteran Oshio but he was back in form Wednesday and just about toyed with the up and coming Saganohana. With his powerful arms, he crushed the younger opponent out of the ring.

As the result of the day's principal bouts, the West side is leading the East side by a margin of two victories, 82 to 80.

The results of the principal bouts follow:

Futasegawa defeated Matsuragata
Ichiwatari defeated Genjiyama
Sadogashima defeated Hatasegawa
Katsuragawa defeated Yamatowa
Kojimagawa defeated Yamatonishiki
Sakuranishiki defeated Komatsuyama
Tsurugamine defeated Shikainami

Nayoroiwa defeated Hishuzan
Mayedayama defeated Oshio
Kasagiyama defeated Haguroyama
Minanogawa defeated Saganohana
Futabayama defeated Komanosato

Joan Fontaine Has 22nd Birthday

Although Joan Fontaine, co-star of "Rebecca" with Laurence Olivier, was 22 years old on her last birthday, there were only 21 candles on her birthday cake.

Frank, her Filipino butler, who is an avid student of American etiquette, remained serene when the error was called to his attention.

"But I'm 22, Frank," Joan protested.

"Sorry, missy," was Frank's reply. "Blue Book says American ladies like only 21 candles on all birthday cakes."

Lewis Milestone Now Making Of Mice and Men

When Lewis Milestone confounded the "it-can't-be-done" Hollywood sages and actually started production of John Steinbeck's "Of Mice and Men" at the Hal Roach Studios, the head-shakers played their trump card.

"Women won't be attracted by it," they said pontifically, "It's too strong for them." And with that pronunciamento, Milestone was supposed to wither and start biting his nails.

But, strangely enough, he is blithely going ahead making the finest motion picture he knows how from the best-seller and prize-winning play. As for the skeptics and carpers he has this to say:

"It's nonsense to put any credulity in the belief that a few scenes of violence will frighten women away from the box-office. It doesn't matter how hard-hitting a picture is—women have an elemental insight and if they once sense that a picture is true, they'll flock to it."

Milestone should know whereof he speaks, for his "All Quiet on the Western Front," in addition to garnering all the international prizes for excellence in films, was a smashing box-office success, and its current re-release is breaking attendance records. Yet no one has ever accused Milestone of pulling his dramatic punches in that picture.

To illustrate his point, Milestone recalled an incident that occurred a few weeks after "All Quiet" had opened in New York. "I was walking through one of the dinner rooms," he said. "When someone called me by name. It was a woman I had never seen before. She came up to me and said with a shiver, 'Mr. Milestone, how could you ever film that last scene, where the hand comes over the trench and is shot? Ugh.'

"'That was my hand you saw in the picture,' I told her, and reenacted the scene again.

"'Oh', she screamed, and ran back to her friends and told them what had happened. I could see she'd never had a better time in her life. In a minute, about six women started toward me. They wanted to be scared too. They insisted on it.

"'What I'm leading up to is that if you tell a woman she shouldn't see a picture, she'll drop her housework and run to the nearest theatre. Then she'll tell her friends how awful it was, and how close she came to fainting, and before she can finish, they'll be on their way to see it too. That's what I expect to happen when 'Of Mice and Men' is released. Not that I think it's going to make women faint, but they'll go for a perverse thrill just because they're told they shouldn't and they'll stay because emotionally they'll recognize that the people and their story are true."

Tigers Rout Nankai, 7-0

Notwithstanding the prevailing cold weather, baseball is still being played. The Osaka Tigers routed the Nankai Railway team, 7-0, in an exhibition contest Wednesday afternoon at Kumamoto. Both are members of the Japan professional baseball league.

TERUKUNI WINS AGAIN

Terukuni, 21, youngest wrestler in the top ranking circle, caught by the camera as he lifted Taikyuzan high into the air and dropped him outside of the ring for a sterling victory in Wednesday's bouts at the Kokugikan.

REPUBLICANS ORGANIZE BLOC AGAINST HULL TARIFF POLICY

Christian Science Monitor

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—The bi-party barrage against the reciprocal agreements policy took on more formidable aspects here today as Congressional Republicans formed a committee to study effects of the program and presumably to prepare for returning to old-time tariff-making methods.

This development rounded out an intensive political week-end here in Washington. Presidential candidates and their retainers were almost as thick as lobbyists in the hotels here, and "smoke-filled rooms" were to be found down every corridor.

Perhaps the single hero of the occasion was the principal speaker at the Gridiron Dinner, Gov. Harold E. Stassen (R) of Minnesota, but he is too young to be a presidential nominee in 1940. His address to the distinguished audience did much to enhance his already growing reputation.

But scarcely second to Governor Stassen in the limelight were Thomas E. Dewey, District Attorney of New York County, fresh with laurels from his address at Minneapolis; Alf M. Landon and Col. Frank Knox, the 1936 standard bearers; Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R) of Michigan; and a big flock of Democrats who do not attract so much attention because many of them are established here.

DEWEY SEES PRESS

Over the week-end Mr. Dewey held his first Washington press conference. He declared, as a keynote that the next President could and must balance the budget, but he said no Democrat, however conservative, was "capable of cleaning up the mess of the last seven years."

He agreed that the next President's ability to balance the budget would depend on the course of events, and said:

"I don't say it can be done in one year. But I say he certainly can because he's got to. There is a bottom in every well."

The Washington reporters sought Mr. Dewey's views on many matters, but he asked them not to force him "into the role of a prophet," or to ask him to deliver all his campaign arguments on the spot. As to the third term, he said: "My views on the third term are the same as those of most good Americans." Asked: "So what?" he replied: "So I think I will stand on that statement."

Mr. Dewey indicated that he had no intention of seeking delegates in States like Michigan and Ohio which have "native son" candidates. He remarked that Michigan was his own native State, but said Senator Vandenberg was entitled to the State's delegates if he could get them. He counseled against holding the Party's convention particularly late.

WHEN ADVICE IS FUNNY

Commenting on Mr. Landon's suggestion that President Roosevelt declare himself on a third term, Mr. Dewey said:

"Giving advice from one party to another is often more amusing than helpful."

As for the Republican campaign against the trade agreements program, it rotates around a group of 10 Ways and Means Committee members, under the chairmanship of Representative Allen T. Treadway of Massachusetts. There will be a larger group studying the effects of the trade treaties on national interest as a whole, on the farms, and on manufacturing industries.

Senator Charles L. McNary, GOP Senate Leader, also demanded last night that the Administration scrap the trade program and cancel all treaties negotiated under it.

His statement shows the extreme to which Republican policy is now proceeding. Senator McNary said the treaties had caused "real hardships" to many American producers, and since the outbreak of war in Europe had caused "additional hardships to those who toil and produce in America."

Red Demands

and other moderates and also military commanders in the northwestern area already are voicing absolute opposition to the Communists' fresh demands. Though there may be some room for starting a political movement of half-way conciliation by the main current of war resistance led by Chan Chong and pro-Soveit and pro-Communist groups, it is believed to be difficult, in the long run, to expect an amicable settlement of the problem.

Relations between the Kuomintang and the Communists, which have already encountered many complications in connection with the proposed reorganization of the Executive Yuan and other pending questions, are understood to have reached a deadlock. Present indication points to an immediate clash between the two rival parties.

COMMUNIST DEMANDS

HONGKONG, Jan. 16—The recent meeting of the Central Political Bureau of the Chinese Communist Party at Yenan, which was reported to have made important decisions regarding the border region policy of the Communist party, caused serious attention from various circles, according to reports from Chungking.

It was learned, according to reports from Chungking, that General Chu Teh, General Mao Tse-tung and other leading Chinese Communists, under a joint signature on January 13 presented the following grave demands to the Supreme National Defense Council of the Chungking Government;

1. In view of military importance in the northwestern area of China, both military and civil administrations of the border area should be fundamentally renovated;

2. In view of the strategic importance of Lanchow, the general headquarters of the Communist 18th group army and several detachments attached thereto should be transferred to Lanchow;

3. Military and political structures of Sinkiang province should be reorganized and General Chou En-lai, Communist leaders, should be appointed as the director of military and political affairs.

STATUS QUO SEEN IN TOKYO LEAGUE RULES

No Changes Expected Under Administration Of New Education Minister

With new Education Minister Chinjiro Matsuura a thorough amateur in the sports world, it is the opinion of those in sports circles that his policy will be to let well enough alone and suggest no radical changes in the activities of the educational institutions.

The case of former Education Minister General Sadao Araki is recalled. It was he that objected to the schedule in the Tokyo Six University baseball league, which calls for a two-game series between the six member institutions. He declared that baseball should be played here with emphasis on the Japanese spirit, in other words that there was no necessity for more than one game. He made reference to the annual championship professional sumo tournaments (the "Spring" tourney is now going on at the Kokugikan bowl at Ryogoku) where it is a one-bout affair between the contestants.

General Araki's announcement of his idea created a storm in the Tokyo Six University league circles. Alumni and former players especially voiced loud protests. The General was out of office before he could do much about his scheme.

It is also believed by leaders in the sports circles that the plans advanced by Education Vice-Minister Ishiguro under the Hiranuma Cabinet for a renovation of the activities of the Tokyo Six University baseball league will not materialize. Mr. Ishiguro contended that the league must be divorced from its professional aspects. The radical change of eliminating admission charges was suggested. And he ordered that no more games be played at the Meiji Shrine stadium, which has a seating capacity of some 50,000 fans, beginning with the Spring season this year. This too had severe repercussions on the sports community. It was argued that the home grounds of the universities would be much too small to accommodate the followers of the league games.

The upshot of it all is that in the consensus of sports experts, the status quo will be maintained, which means that the Tokyo Six University baseball league, with the largest following in the country, will be carried on as in the past without any change of regulations worth mentioning.

made the charge, declaring "the State has met its responsibilities under the relief laws."

Governor Bricker summoned a group of Ohio newspaper editors to a conference today on the problem.

Police Capt. Eugene Aufmuth said three squad cars were dispatched to city hall when the crowd gathered, but that police experienced "no trouble."

Demonstrations at relief stations have been frequent, a group of hungry clients starting an all night "sit-down" at one office last week.

NEMESIS RETURNS

KANSAS CITY—Another federal grand jury started along Kansas City's well-blazed crime hunting trail Nov. 27, admonished by Judge Albert L. Reeves to move against "persons in high places willing to take bread from the mouths of the hungry by looting emergency relief funds of the Government."

The charge came from the same judge who nearly three years ago sent a grand jury on the vote fraud conspiracy path where the first heavy federal guns were turned on Tom Pendergast's Democratic organization, and who early this year launched another group of jurors on their successful quest for the boss, himself, and three of his lieutenants.

Of those who may have mis-spent relief funds, Judge Reeves said:

"Such persons, honored though they may be, are breaking down the government of the United States. The real danger to America today is not in aggression from without but in corruption from within."

STATES SEEK RELIEF

ATLANTA, Ga.—The heads of Welfare Departments from 18 Southern and nearby States met here to discuss plans for united action on revising the program of relief allocation. A plan was suggested by which the Federal Government would take over a greater percentage of payments of social security benefits.

FUTABAYAMA SHOWS INVINCIBILITY IN SUMO TOURNEY AT RYOGOKU

Grand Champion Futabayama continues to amaze close followers of sumo, Japanese style wrestling and the nation's indigenous sport, with his seemingly unlimited strength. Being the captain of the East side, all wrestlers lined up on the West side are forever planning strategy to beat him. Ryuozan tried something new but he was no match for Futabayama in the eighth day's bouts Thursday of the current 15-day "Spring" tournament at the Kokugikan bowl in Ryogoku. Futabayama alone remains undefeated of some 48 wrestlers in the top ranking circle.

Ten minutes are allowed for the "shikiri" or process of starting a bout. In other words, it is entirely up to the two contestants to get started during this 10-minute period. In the old days there was no time limit and it is said that some of the temperamental wrestlers took as much as an hour in rushing at each other, and this gradually killed interest in the sport. There must be a free will on each side to fight it out and as many false starts as possible within the time limit are permissable. Nine cases out of ten, the contestants require the full time allowed. Futabayama has had the reputation of being always ready to start at any time his opponent rushes at him. He is never temperamental in this respect.

RYUOZAN'S STRATEGY

Ryuozan had something up his sleeve Thursday. It is probable that he had thought about it all night Wednesday. He rushed at Futabayama on the first of what is usually a series of false starts, hoping to catch Futabayama off guard. The more than 20,000 fans almost went crazy with excitement when Futabayama, living up to his reputation despite having much to lose and could have easily demurred, stood up and received Ryuozan's charge. They immediately fell into a clinch, grasping each other's girdle with their right hands. Before Ryuozan even had a chance to take a breath, Futabayama resorted to an arm throw and Ryuozan's body sailed through the air. This bout was the first to start on the first try in the current tourney, and for several years at that.

Terukuni, 21-year-old wrestler, continued his brilliant record by lifting the more experienced Ayanobori into the air and depositing him outside the ring for a convincing victory.

Asahigawa registered a surprise by outwitting the strong Akinoumi of the West side. Akinoumi's spirited charge forced Asahigawa to the edge of the ring where he suddenly pulled Akinoumi to the side and out went the latter's body. Once again the favorite had been beaten.

NAYOROIWA BEATEN

The only other upset of the day was burly Kashimanada's victory over Nayoroiwa, stable mate of Futabayama. Nayoroiwa was altogether too anxious to start the bout and when it did start, Kashimanada had the jump on him and forced him out of the ring, with a right-handed attack to the throat.

As the results of the day's bouts, the West continued to lead the East side by three victories, 94 to 91.

The results of the day's principal bouts follow:

Kojimagawa defeated Nishikidani
Yamatoiwa defeated Hatasegawa
Sadogashima defeated Katsuragawa
Shikainami defeated Kuganishiki
Shachinosato defeated Sagamigawa

Winter Swimming Slated in Sumida River 1 p.m. Sunday

One of the annual features of the Winter season will take place Sunday afternoon when some 120 persons will swim in the Sumida River at the Ryogoku bridge. It is interesting that Sunday happens to fall on the first Sunday of "daikan" or the coldest season according to the Japanese calendar. Even a heavy snowfall will not prevent the members of the Shuyojuku, training school, from cancelling the event, which is scheduled to start at 1 p.m.

Participants will swim across the river, temperature of which is expected to be near freezing point, compete in a 50-meter race, demonstrate various styles of swimming, and there will be diving from the bridge too as an added attraction.

Male participants range all the way from Chojiro Mizushima, 65, and Hirozo Kubo, 13. So far as the fair sex is concerned, 27 of them will take part, ranging in age from 27 to 14.

New Civil Service Law Stirs Hawaiian Debate

Christian Science Monitor

HONOLULU—Whether persons of one race can pass civil service examinations more successfully than persons of another race has been the subject of lively debate, while the governmental structure in Hawaii has been adjusting itself to a new civil service law.

The law, passed by the last Territorial Legislature, affects approximately 4,000 governmental employes representing several races. Chief issue has been whether the Civil Service Commission should certify the three persons who pass competitive examinations with highest grades, or certify all who pass satisfactorily.

Opponents of the "rule of three," certification of the three highest, argue that this will be to the disadvantage of Hawaiians, few of whom are equipped by education or academic training to rank high in competitive examinations. Opponents also advance the argument that civil service generally, and particularly the premium which is placed on high grades, constitutes an advantage for Orientals.

It is further argued that Hawaiians possess certain natural qualities, such as sincerity, friendliness, faithfulness, and honesty which make them valuable public servants, but which are not measurable in civil service tests.

Proponents of civil service insist that a well-administered merit system of government need not overemphasize academic qualifications; that adequate consideration may be given such immeasurable factors as personality, integrity, and honesty. They have produced statistics to show that so far one race has fared as well as another in competitive examinations.

A BEAUTIFUL THROW

Ryuozan's strategy was to rush at Grand Champion Futabayama right on the first "shikiri" or process of getting started to catch his opponent off guard (this is seldom, there usually being about 10 false starts), but Futabayama, unperturbed, took him on and threw him with an arm throw. Photo shows Futabayama at the right just after he had thrown Ryuozan.

MODERN SCIENCE

By GOBIND BEHARI LAL

NEW YORK—It takes 150-million years for the milky way to make one full whirl, according to the latest calculations announced by Prof. Jan Schilt of Columbia University.

Interviewed at the University's observatory, the noted astronomer stated:

"The time that it takes our galaxy to make one complete revolution around its center is roughly 150,000,000 years."

This was the average result of no less than eight separate estimates, arrived at through painstaking studies of the motions of the stars.

The milky way, as called our galaxy or island universe, consists of billions of stars including the sun with all its planets.

Sir Arthur Eddington, Nobel Prize winner of Britain, has given the period of a full revolution of the milky way system as 240,000,000 years, at its fastest parts.

Today's estimate given by Prof. Schilt is markedly shorter. The shorter period means that the earth, trailing along behind the sun, has whirled with the milky way more often than Eddington has believed.

Concerning Prof. Eddington's estimate that the milky way consists of 150,000,000,000 stars, Dr. Schilt said:

"No one can say definitely how many stars the galaxy contains. They run into billions.

"As to the size of the system, its equatorial diameter is about 80,000 light-year: One light-year being nearly 6,000,000,000,000 miles, the distance light travels in one year, at the velocity of 186,000 miles each second.

"In thickness, north-south diameter, the milky way is about one-fifth as much, a little over 16,000 light-years.

"The earth, according to the estimate of radio-activity in the rocks, is two million years old, or a little more. The sun itself might be between four and five billion years old, like most of the stars."

Since its birth, then, the earth has made more than a dozen rounds in the Merry-Go-Round of the milky way. What changes have occurred in the earth during these whirls in space, science might some day discover.—King Features.

N.Y. REALTY 'PAY DIRT' TO 'FORTY NINER'

Advised His Heirs Never To Sell Fifth Ave. Corner Bought 80 Years Ago

N.Y. Herald Tribune

NEW YORK—The southeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-fifth Street has been a virtual gold mine for the Matthew Byrnes family for eighty-years. It was purchased by Mr. Byrnes, a 'forty-niner, shortly after his return from the California gold field. He paid $80,000 for the five lots on which stands the fifteen story building, which the city tax experts say, is worth, with the land, $2,750,000.

With the fortune he brought back from the west coast, Mr. Byrnes bought Manhattan real estate located in many sections between Twelfth and Eighty-sixth Streets. Of the 600 properties which he controlled, his advice to his family was to sell all but the southeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-fifth Street, and the Byrnes family would never want. The heirs have heeded this advice, and according to one of them, the family has not wanted.

After two years in 'Frisco in the mad days of the gold rush, Mr. Byrnes came back to Manhattan and began assembling real estate. He once said that there was more "pay dirt" on Manhattan than in California. When he died in 1898 he left a fortune conservatively estimated at more than $2,000,000. He also left many monuments, the homes of wealthy men which he had erected for them. He built the old Collis P. Huntington house at the southeast corner of Park Avenue and Thirty-eighth Street. Mr. Huntington, who also was a 'forty-niner, was an intimate friend of Mr. Byrnes.

The Byrnes estate has turned down many offers for the Fifth Avenue and Forty-fifth Street property in the last twenty-five years, remembering the admonition of their ancestor to hold this corner because, in his opinion, Fifth Avenue was the "mother lode" of Manhattan real estate.

The Peoples National Bank and Trust Company, White Plains, recently named trustee of the estate, will be told what the founder of the estate advised, which is dogma in the Byrnes family.

The fifteen-story building on the corner was built originally as the Hotel Lorraine. Ten years ago the family spent $750,000 in transforming the structure into offices and stores. The interior was reconstructed and many changes made in the exterior of the building.

Butler and Baldwin have been named managing agents for the property by O. W. Birckhead, president of the Peoples National Bank and Trust Company. Gerald F. Finley, 120 Broadway, has been appointed attorney for the trustee.

MANCHOUKUO GIRLS STAR IN SPEED SKATING

The honors of winning the first race of the 11th annual national speed skating championships at Hachinohe, Aomori prefecture, went to Miss Yoshiko Kimura of Manchoukuo Friday when she negotiated the women's 500-meter course in 54.6 seconds. Second was a Manchou lass, Miss Yasuko Funyo, who hung up a time of 56.7 seconds. Third was Miss Kiyo Sakamoto of Tomakomai, Hokkaido, in 57.2 seconds.

Opening ceremonies of the meet were held at 9 a.m. Friday at the Nagane 400-meter track in Hachinohe. Participating were the 63 contestants from the Kanto, Tohoku, Hokkaido, Chubu, Chosen and Manchoukuo districts. The national emblem was lifted, the national anthem was sung, the athletes and officials prayed in the direction of the Imperial Palace, observed a minute's silent prayer in respect of the war dead and another for success of the soldiers on the China fronts, and one part of the rites were over.

Through special permission granted by the commander of the Hirosaki Division, First Class Private Sadayoshi Izumiyama, individual champion last year, was present and returned his trophy. The opening remarks were given by Director Morozumi of the Japan Skating Federation. There were addresses by Governor Suzuki of Aomori prefecture as honorary chairman of the meet and Mayor Kanda of Hachinohe. The contestants' oath of fair play was sworn to by Kunio Nando of Waseda, who was runner-up to Izumiyama for the individual honors.

Then came the first race of the opening day, the women's 500-meter race which was won as mentioned in the foregoing by Miss Kimura of Manchoukuo.

Katsuhisa Yamashita of Waseda University captured the second race of the day, the men's 500-meter sprint, in 45.8 seconds. Second was Go Abe of Meiji University in 46.8 seconds. Third was Saburo Takabayashi, also of Meiji University, in 47.4 seconds.

The girls of Hokkaido came into their own in the last event for Friday by copping first and second places in the women's 3,000-meter race. Miss Mitsuko Nozawa captured the event in 6 minutes 18.8 seconds while her team-mate Miss Kiyoko Sakamoto was second in 6 minutes 19.4 seconds.

The Misses Funwo and Kimura of Manchoukuo, who starred in the 500-meter race, were third and fourth respectively with times of 6 minutes 19.7 seconds and 6 minutes 26.3 seconds.

It is interesting that the Hokkaido girls placed fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth in times ranging from 6 minutes 37.7 seconds to 7 minutes 16.6 seconds.

As a result of the day's events, Miss Kimura led with 118.93 points.

No. 2—Yasuko Funyo, Manchoukuo, 119.983 points.

No. 3—Kiyoko Sakamoto, Hokkaido, 120.493 points.

No. 4—Kiyoko Watanabe, Hokkaido, 126.833 points.

No. 5—Saeko Hirai, Hokkaido, 127.350 points.

No. 6—Kikuye Kitazawa, Hokkaido, 127.583 points.

No. 7—Kyoko Shinagawa, Hokkaido, 128.683 points.

No. 8—Mitsuko Nozawa, Hokkaido, 130.133 points.

No. 9—Chieko Sekishita, Hokkaido, 134.666 points.

SCIENCE THINKS ATOM CAN BLAST A SKYSCRAPER

Possibility of Explosions by Chain Reaction Studied At Carnegie Institution

N.Y. Herald Tribune

WASHINGTON—The possibility of creating an atomic explosion powerful enough to blow up a skyscraper was discussed recently at the Carnegie Institution, of Washington.

At the institution's annual exhibition Dr. Merle Tuve and his associates showed for the first time publicly the process by which they can release more than 200,000,000 electron volts of energy from an atom of uranium with the use of only one-thirtieth of an electron volt of energy.

This tremendous "dividend" was not discovered until about a year ago in Germany. Many laboratories have duplicated the original experiment.

Such a tremendous release of energy raises the problem of whether one atom which was struck in the bombardment with atomic particles might create enough particles of high energy to set off many of its neighboring atoms in a "chain reaction" similar to the explosion of a bunch of firecrackers. The resulting explosion might be greater than any yet generated by man, even though it were produced from only a small pinch of uranium, which is being used in the experiment.

If such power could be generated and controlled it would eliminate coal, oil and water as sources of heat and energy.

"Up to the present, however, no observations are reported or known at any laboratory which indicate that a chain-reaction definitely will occur," Dr. Tuve declared. "On the other hand, it must also be stated that no data exist which would show that a chain-reaction definitely cannot proceed."

Fears of any disturbance of society by the creation of atomic power can probably be disregarded for the present, he added.

The Carnegie Institution is building a machine which will go even further into the mysteries of the atom than its present 5,000,000 volt generator completed last year, Dr. Vannevar Bush, president of the organization, disclosed.

The machine is a new type of cyclotron which whirls particles of atoms through a window at the outside edge. It will create beams of atomic particles with energies of 30,000,000 volts or more.

Use of such powerful energies in cancer treatment and other medical work is being investigated, Dr. Bush said.

2 Japanese Net Stars Invited to Manila Play

The Amateur Athletic Union of the Philippines Commonwealth has invited two Japanese players to its international tennis tournament at Manila for five days beginning on March 27.

The Amateur Athletic Union is expecting Ryuzo Yamagata of Keio University or Kiyoshi Kimura of Waseda University and Miss Junko Kamo, the national women's champion.

The Japanese Lawn Tennis Association is expected to hold a meeting to choose the players who will leave Kobe on March 15 on board the Atsuta Maru.

THRIFTY PUPILS IN NEW YORK BANK $25,000,000

600,000 School Children In Metropolitan District Are Taught Savings Habit

Christian Science Monitor

NEW YORK—Six hundred thousand children in the schools of New Year's metropolitan district have $25,000,000 on deposit in 40 savings banks. And that is a fact which makes Miss Helen A. McKeon extremely happy. As a matter of fact, probably no such number of children would have any such sum in such a number of banks at all if it were not for Miss McKeon because she installed the system in cooperation with local banks.

But it isn't so much that she is happy because the job is of her making, as that she is delighted to have been instrumental in inculcating the theory and practice of thrift in so many young people.

School saving, of course, did not originate with Miss McKeon's project. It reaches back into the 19th century, when it was introduced by a John Thiery, a trustee of the Long Island City Savings Bank. The idea spread to New York City and was sporadically developed in the metropolitan schools, but the school curriculum was crowded and there were frequent interruptions. In the early stages the children took care of the depositing and much of the clerical work involved and everything was, to a degree, hit-or-miss so that the children really didn't learn very much that was of practical value.

DIRECTOR OF THRIFT

In 1926 Miss McKeon was appointed Director of Thrift by the Board of Education, after a convention of New York State bankers had presented a resolution, suggesting a reorganization in the haphazard program of savings by school children. The Board selected Miss McKeon because word had got around that she had been successful in weaning sixth grade boys away from petty gambling and buying cheap magazines and dime novels, and getting them to systematically save their small change.

In 1933, 1934, and 1935, it turned out that 800 young people in the New York schools were able to leave school the proud possessors of individual savings accounts of their own, due to the care and faithfulness with which they had followed the provisions of Miss McKeon's system.

A MAN OF PROPERTY

One aspect of the whole thing that Miss McKeon herself particularly likes is the implication of Americanization development. "The possession of a pass book of his or her own," she says, "makes the student a 'man of property.' He has learned the distinction between 'mine and thine,' and a respect for individual rights. Such an understanding can go a long way in vitiating the influence of subversive teachings."

In the old days there were age limits below which a child might not individually have a bank deposit. One of the first reforms brought about was to lower the age at which children might be permitted to deposit their own money. As ink is first used in the second grade, Miss McKeon recognized the validity of permitting second grade pupils to do their own banking, but she went that idea one better—she made it possible for kindergarteners to have savings accounts. Fingerprint records are made, which serve to identify them for future withdrawals. If the children want to draw out more than $5 an older person must accompany the children, but otherwise no parents act in the role of trustee for the young bank patrons.

REGULAR DEPOSITS

Boys and girls are influenced to deposit but regularly. The youngster who deposits the $5 bill he got for a birthday present is all well enough, but it is the boy who appears at the teller's window regular as clockwork with his nickel or dime who is the real backbone of the system.

During 10 months, ending in the first week of June in 1939, $4,626,874 was deposited—an increase of $300,000 over the previous year. Thus the New York metropolitan schools have one-twelfth of all the school savings in the country.

You might think, too, that once the children had been brought to the point of depositing their money, they would be influenced not, under any circumstances, to draw it out again. But that is not so. Since Miss McKeon has wished the program in all ways to be realistic, she feels that if the children encountered a forbidding atmosphere about withdrawals, they would get the idea that the money, after all, was not their own. And since the idea of becoming "property men and women" is based on the saving of something which is, in fact, their own, they must be free to withdraw, if occasion demands.

School savings banks exist now in almost every State in the Union and it is Miss McKeon's surmise that this generation of children will develop into genuinely thrifty Americans.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT" - by Ripley

BANJAKU TOPS MAYEDAYAMA FOR BIG UPSET

Banjaku, he of the great protruding belly, stole the show Friday in the ninth day's bouts of the 15-day "Spring" professional sumo tournament at the Kokugikan, Ryogoku, by registering an upsetting victory over Champion Mayedayama of the West side. It was Mayedayama's second defeat in the tourney.

As a matter of fact, it was a bad day for the West side. Stalwarts Sagamigawa, Kasagiyama, Ryuozan, Kashimanada, Jintozan, Hishuzan and Sakuranishiki, who were favored to win, all fell by the way side. The result was that the day's score found the East side clinching 14 victories as against eight by the West side, which put the total 105 to 102 in favor of the East side for the nine days.

No sooner had they stood up than Mayedayama thrust his left arm through Banjaku's defense for a hold on the latter's grip and had the advantage. But Banjaku through sheer strength stuck his own left through Mayedayama's defense for an equal hold on the girdle. Mayedayama resorted to an arm throw and Banjaku's heavy body almost sailed through the air but the bid for victory was checked. Then it was Banjaku who countered with an arm throw and down went Mayedayama's body.

The day's most thrilling match was that between Champion Haguroyama and Dewaminato. A body throw after furious sallies finally won for Haguroyama.

Grand Champion Futabayama hung up his ninth consecutive victory without a setback by lifting Matsunosato high into the air with his Herculean strength and deposited him lightly outside of the ring. He remains the only undefeated wrestler in the top ranking circle.

The bout between Grand Champion Minanogawa and Kaneminato was a funny sight. Minanogawa is more than 6 ft. in height, weighs more than 300 pounds, while Kaneminato is scarcely over 5 ft. in height and tips the scales at about 150 pounds. Kaneminato's cleverness proved of no avail and Minanogawa just about crushed him outside the ring.

The results of the principal bouts Friday follow:

Tominishiki defeated Kojimakawa
Matsuuragata defeated Ichiwatari
Genjiyama defeated Yamatoiwa
Shikainami defeated Katsuragawa
Tomoegata defeated Sakuranishiki
Hatasegawa defeated Hishuzan
Fujinosato defeated Fujigadake
Aobayama defeated Jintozan
Asahigawa defeated Kashimanada

Itsutsushima defeated Kuganishiki
Taikyuzan defeated Tatekabuto
Ayanobori defeated Oshio
Tamanoumi defeated Komanosato
Akinoumi defeated Onami
Nayoroiwa defeated Sagamigawa
Banjaku defeated Mayedayama
Haguroyama defeated Dewaminato
Minanogawa defeated Kaneminato
Futabayama defeated Matsunosato

FUTABAYAMA DEFEATED BY ITSUTSUSHIMA

The police had their hands full controlling some 30,000 fans who just about went crazy when the generally considered invincible Grand Champion Futabayama was beaten Sunday afternoon in the 11th day's bouts of the current 15-day "spring" sumo tournament at the Kokugikan at Ryogoku.

The hero was strong Itsutsushima, 28, of the Dewanoumi Training House on the West side. Itsutsushima, because of his impressive record in the present touching, having lost but a single bout up to Sunday, was questioned by the sports writers Saturday night if he believed he had a chance against Futabayama. His reply was:

"Futabayama is altogether, too strong. I can't win."

But there is no doubt that ever since the begining of the tournament, Itsutsushima and his stable mates had been planning a system of attack against Futabayama, who had gone through the 15-day tournament last May with nary a defeat. And he semed far stronger than the time he went through an unprecedented winning streak over two and a half years until Akinoumi stopped it at 69 victories in the "spring" tournament last year.

ITSUTSUSHIMA HAPPY

Overwhelmed with the question —"How did you do it?" after his upsetting victory, Itsutsushima too thrilled for words merely said: "The bout went the way I wanted it."

It had been a bad day for the Tachinami Training House to which Futabayama belongs when he ascended the ring to meet Itsutsushima. His able team-mates, Champion Haguroyama and Nayoroiwa, had been beaten respectively by Ayanobori and Kasagiyama, erstwhile Waseda University student. Futabayama attacked with both hands and Itsutsushima responded. The latter began circling his way to the left and suddenly jerked his opponent's arms to the right. Futabayama tottered momentarily but he recovered his balance and resumed his attack with both hands with the intent of forcing his opponent out of the ring. Itsutsushima sidestepped to the left and as Futabayama lost his balance, Itsutsushima shoved him outside the ring from the back. The fans could hardly believe their eyes when they saw Futabayama on all fours.

No. 2 hero for the day was Akinoumi, who defeated Terukuni, the youngster who had defeated Grand Champion Minanogawa for his ninth victory on Saturday. It was a nip and tuck bout, certainly the most thrilling of the day, and Akinoumi finally won, shoving his opponent out of the ring, by virtue of being the aggressor all the way through.

BOTH SIDES TIED

As a result of the day's principal bouts which saw the West side rally with 14 victories as against nine by the East side, both camps are tied with 126 wins apiece for the eleven days.

Sunday's results follow:

Ichiwatari defeated Kiyomigawa
Futasegawa defeated Hatasegawa
Sukuranishiki defeated Kuganishiki
Shachinosato defeated Komanosato
Tsurugamine defeated Yamatoiwa
Yamatonishiki defeated Tomoegata
Fujigadake defeated Sagamigawa
Genjiyama defeated Taikyuzan
Asahigawa defeated Jintozan
Kashimanada defeated Katsuragawa
Banjaku defeated Fujinosato
Hishuzan defeated Saganohana
Aobayama defeated Ayawaka
Dewaminato defeated Kanemmato
Ryuozan defeated Oshio
Onami won by forfeit from Matsunosato
Akinoumi defeated Terukuni
Kasagiyama defeated Nayoroiwa
Ayanobori defeated Haguroyama
Mayedayama defeated Tamanoumi
Minanogawa defeated Tatekabuto
Itsutsushima defeated Futabayama

'INVINCIBLE' GRAND CHAMPION BEATEN

To the amazement of some 30,000 fans, Grand Champion Futabayama, considered unbeatable by sumo experts, went on all fours, outsmarted by Itsutsushima in Sunday's bouts at the Kokugikan at Ryogoku.

GROSZ, VIENNESE SONG WRITER, DIES AS HE PLAYS GAY OPERA IN NEW YORK

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK—Dr. Wilhelm Grosz, Viennese composer and conductor who left his native land in 1933 and became a writer of popular songs in this country and England, died of a heart attack December 9 while playing the piano at the home of friends in Forest Hills. He was 45 years old.

In his turn from the classics to popular music, Dr. Grosz wrote three of the most popular songs of the last few years. They were "Isle of Capri," "Red Sails in the Sunset" and "Harbor Lights." His most recent songs included "Tomorrow Night" and "In an Old Dutch Garden."

His end came suddenly and dramatically as he was playing the piano accompaniment for the final trio from "Der Rosenkavalier," one of the gayest and most melodious of operas. Dr. Grosz was playing at the home of Werner Liebman at 94-15 Sixty-ninth Avenue, Forest Hills, Queens.

The trio, which occurs near the end of the opera, was being sung by Miss Irene Jessner of the Metropolitan Opera Company, Miss Hansi Book and Miss Rosi Book. Grouped around the piano, they had reached the final words of the trio, "In God's Name," when Dr. Grosz played the last chord and fell backward into the arms of his friends.

Dr. Paul Zack was called from 83-15 Lefferts Boulevard, but when he arrived Dr. Grosz was dead.

Born in Vienna on August 11, 1894, Dr. Grosz was graduated from the University of Vienna and studied music under the Viennese composer, Franz Schrecker. He won a prize for one of his compositions and then became conductor of the Vienna opera for the performance of his first opera, "Sganarell."

He also composed the music for several of Fronz Werfel's plays, including "The Goat Song," and wrote works for the orchestra, violin, piano and several groups of songs known as "Children's Songs" and "Love Songs." He also wrote songs for several motion pictures produced in Germany.

In 1933 he went to London to write songs for motion pictures and composed the three songs that became widely popular throughout the English-speaking world. Last April he came to this country to continue his work. Only a few days ago he had signed a contract with Warner Brothers to write songs for pictures.

New Feline Species Makes Its Debut At New York Show

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK—Two hundred entries were on exhibition recently at the opening of the annual championship show of the Empire Cat Club, held in conjunction with the specialty show of the Siamese Cat Society of America, at the Hotel Capitol, Eighth Avenue and Fifty-first Street.

Outstanding in the two-day show was a long-haired Siamese, four-month-old Pur Thai of Newton, a new breed introduced and developed by its owner, Mrs. Virginia Cobb of Newton, Mass., an eight years' process, under the direction of a professor of genetics at Harvard University.

A breed so new that no class at present exists in which the cat can be shown, Pur Thai, with his fluffy hair, was the object of much attention. Sharing the limelight with Pur Thai was a brown tabby female kitten, Bombay, the only Abyssinia cat shown, and a first prize winner among household pets. She was born last May on a steamer en route from Bombay, India, to New York. Austin T. Rogers of this city is the owner.

NO CINDERELLA ALLEY CATS

There were no Cinderella alley cats to jar the sensibilities of the high hat Siamese and Persians, many of whom napped on satin cushions and received beauty treatment every few hours, but five Manx cats that have no tails were on view.

Mrs. Stephen L. Stillman of Pelham Manor, N. Y., is showing Ramtal's Peter Pep, an 18-year-old Manx that already has won many blue ribbons.

In a near-by cage were Misty Man and Brown Betty, Persian kittens, whose mother, Bo Peep, adopted a duckling last year. Miss Lena M. Stephens of Clinton Corners, N. Y., is their owner.

At four-hour intervals Mrs. Karl Norton, president of the Empire Cat Club, took her Siamese, Siam's Princess Azure, from her cage to feed a litter of four male kittens kept in an upstairs room.

CHIEF AWARD TO BE MADE TODAY

The best cat of the show was chosen recently. The distnction of best Siamese went to Oriental Nanki Pooh of Newton, owned by Mrs. Cobb; best opposite sex, Imp. Northwood's Nicolette, owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Bearden, Aldan, Pa.; best champion, Ch. Wivenhoe Tarn of Newton, owned by Mrs. Cobb; best novice, Mun-Yona of Newton, Mrs. Cobb; best senior kitten, Our Own Terpsichore, breeder-owner, Misses Dorothy Mayer and Theo Magrath, Watertown, Mass.; best junior kitten, Serena of Newton, Mrs. Cobb.

The Persian awards were: Best blue-eyed white female, Herondale Marabou, owned by Mrs. Louise Heron, Teaneck, N. J.; blue male kitten, Alitra's Pride, Mrs. Aline B. Traeger, Brooklyn; blue male, imp. Dixi-Land's Hawthorne, Mrs. J. H. Revington, Bristol, Tenn. black male, Hermcrest Dinky, Mrs. F. M. Herms, Tarrytown, N. Y.; red male, Eiderdown Hoga-Baba, Mrs. Mary B. Warfel, Putnam, N. J., cream male champion, ch. Lavendar Chamois, Miss Elsie G. Hydon, Bogata, N. J.

INDIA PUSHES HER INDUSTRY

Trade Commissioner Says War Causes Move; Process Will Be Slow, He Adds

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK—A major effect of the European war on the Indian economy will be an acceleration in the pace of that country's industrialization, Sirdar Hardit Singh Malik, India Government Trade Commissioner to this country, asserted at a dinner of the India Chamber of Commerce of America, Inc., at the Hotel Commodore recently.

But, although advances already have been made in this direction, he went on, there is no need for well-advanced industrial countries to fear the loss of India as a market. As the individual purchasing power of the Indian population increases with industrialization, with a consequent rise in the standard of living, he said, the volume of imports will increase.

NATIONS NOT COMPETITIVE

In urging American manufacturers to attempt to sell more goods to India, he emphasized that the trade between the two countries is complementary and not competitive. India sends this country such items as jute, shellac, goatskins, tea, handmade articles, etc., he pointed out, while India imports from this country goods which, similarly, are not available there, such as automobiles, trucks, refrigerators, electrical machinery, etc.

In addition, he said, because of the dislocation of trade in warring countries and their inability to supply various articles to the United States, India takes on importance as a possible alternate source.

Tariff conditions in India encourage trade with this country, Mr. Malik went on, since the levels are not high and there are few protected items. Discussing the latter, he said that protection is granted to an indigenous industry only if it can prove that local conditions as to raw materials and markets are favorable, that it cannot be set up without protection and that it will be able, after a specified period of protection, to stand on its own.

As a result of the recent changes in neutrality legislation here, Mr. Malik declared, there is a possibility that more United States bottoms may be available for Indo-American service.

SUGGESTS CONSUMPTION PLEDGES

He suggested that importers furnish shippers in India with all available evidence that the goods are required for consumption in this country, so that Indian authorities, before issuing the necessary export permits, can make sure that the goods are not intended for an enemy country. To exporters he suggested that they remember that India is relatively poor and that the market is primarily dependent upon price. While the factor of European competition is not so important now as in normal times, he said, the price factor is still of major interest, since the prohibitive level is not very high.

MODERN SCIENCE

By GOBIND BEHARI LAL

By G. B. LAL

NEW YORK—A chemical key to the cause of skin pain has been found by Drs. Sol Roy Rosenthal and David Minard, of the University of Illinois.

The discovery, which is expected to aid in science's efforts to conquer various forms of pain in the human body, solves a baffling mystery. Hitherto it was not clearly known, what produces the sensation of pain when skin is injured.

The mere injury to the skin, such as burning, abrasion, scratching, could not fully explain the process of pain. A direct injury of the ending of the sensory nerves would naturally lead to painful sensation.

But every day experiences show that pain is felt even in the absence of direct connection between the nerve endings and the site of skin injury.

Drs. Rosenthal and Minard, following clues suggested by some previous scientists, attempted to discover whether some chemical substance was produced by the injured skin tissues. Such a chemical might spread and stimulate the terminals of the sensory nerves.

Once the nerve endings had been stimulated, the messages of pain would be instantly transmitted to the brain.

The Chicago doctors definitely found histamine to be the suspected chemical key to pain. Histamine was produced by the irritated or injured skin tissues. It affects the nerve endings, and thus painful sensations are produced.

Histamine is present in nearly all organs of the body, but especially in liver, lungs and skin. Drs. Rosenthal and Minard cut off slices of skin from the arms of a number of persons. When these skin slices were mounted at the end of a class tube, and then irritated and heated, histamine was released.

It was found that histamine, when applied to the cornea of the eye or to the bared skin, caused pain. In human beings, histamine diluted 40,000 to 60,000 times still produced itching, tinkling, burning sensations when it stimulated sensory nerve endings. One part of histamine in 4,000 diluting parts produced acute pain.

Such injuries as burns of the skin release great deal of histamine, and so severe pain is felt. An enzyme, histaminase destroys histamine, and stops pain. A phenol ether called "thymoxy-ethyl-diethylamine" counteracts the effects of histamine. Just how it works is still a mystery.

These researches by Dr. Rosenthal and Minard are a step forward in the conquest of pain by scientific methods.—King Features.

THRILLING BOUTS FEATURE SPRING SUMO TOURNEY

One thrilling bout after another featured the twelfth day Monday of the current 15-day professional sumo tournament at the Kokugikan at Ryogoku. Grand Champion Minanogawa of the West side tasted his third defeat in the tourney by being thrown by Tamanoumi, ace pupil of the late Grand Champion Tamanishiki.

Tactics of Minanogawa to shove Tamanoumi out of the ring by taking advantage of his greater height and weight failed when Tamanoumi countered with an arm throw that sent the former's giant body sailing through the air.

NAYOROIWA WINS

Nayoroiwa, stable mate of Grand Champion Futabayama, won a brilliant victory by outsmarting Champion Mayedayama, also of the West side. They could not get spiritually united to start and consumed the 10 minutes maximum time allowed for starting. As they stood up, Nayoroiwa charged furiously. Mayedayama sidestepped to the left and shoved Nayoroiwa with the intent of forcing him out of the ring largely on his own momentum. But Nayoroiwa was not to be tricked. They fell into a clinch with both thrusting their left arms through the other's defense for a firm grip on the girdle. But Nayoroiwa was in a more advantageous position. They stood motionless in the center of the ring for a full minute for under such circumstances, the side that makes a move usually is thrown. When it seemed as if the judges would call a halt to allow the contestants a breathing spell and then to continue from the same position, Nayoroiwa lifted Mayedayama, using his great protruding belly as a lever and forced Mayedayama out of the ring.

The most thrilling bout of the day was that between Champion Haguroyama of the East side and Akinoumi, of "sekiwake" or rank below champion, of the West side. The experts had forecasted that Akinoumi would resort to attacking with both hands, to prevent the physically larger and stronger Haguroyama from attaining a hold. With the time limit up in their process of starting, they rushed at each other and fell into a clinch. Akinoumi was quick to thrust in his favorite left for a hold on Haguroyama's girdle. The latter did likewise. As Haguroyama vainly tried to attain a grip with his right arm from the outside, Akinoumi, ever the aggressor, tried an arm throw. Haguroyama checked it. This time, Akinoumi managed to grasp Haguroyama's girdle at the front as well and started pushing. Haguroyama's body bent like a bow at the edge of the ring, trying to check himself, and then he attempted to throw Akinoumi to the side and out of the ring, but Akinoumi held his ground and with one more hard push, crushed Haguroyama outside the ring.

ITSUTSUSHIMA BEATEN

Itsutsushima, who on the previous day had the greatest upset of the tourney by defeating Grand Champion Futabayama, suffered his second setback by losing to the strong 21-year old Terukuni.

Itsutsushima started attacking with both hands, resorting to the same tactics that had beaten Futabayama. Terukuni countered in similar manner. When they had half-circled the ring, Terukuni suddenly bored in and thrust his arms through Itsutsushima's defense for firm grips on the latter's girdle. And without losing any time, he used his big stomach as a lever and just about lifted Itsutsushima out of the ring.

Ayanobori was no match for Grand Champion Futabayama, who refused to be fooled by the former's two-handed attack. Instead of charging as he did against Itsutsushima the day before to be sidestepped and pushed from the back to go on all fours, Futabayama calmly waited. The result was that Ayanobori had no alternative than to fall into a clinch and Futabayama promptly forced him outside the ring.

It was a great day for the West side which garnered 13 victories as against nine by the East side, the result of which the West side is leading 139 to 135 victories in the championship race.

The results of the principal bouts follow:

Kojimagawa defeated Yamatoiwa
Nishikidani defeated Hatasegawa
Ichiwatari defeated Kuganishiki
Shachinosato defeated Yamatonishiki
Komanosato defeated Tomoegata
Jintozan defeated Fujigadake
Genjiyama defeated Hishuzan
Fujinosato defeated Asahigawa
Taikyuzan defeated Tsurugamine
Banjaku defeated Kashimanada
Shikainami defeated Saganohana
Ryuozan defeated Matsuragata
Sakuranishiki defeated Kanemnato
Katsuragawa defeated Ayawaka
Sagamigawa defeated Aobayama
Ryogoku defeated Onami
Kasagiyama defeated Oshio
Dewaminato defeated Tatekabuto
Terukuni defeated Itsutsushima
Akinoumi defeated Haguroyama

MANCHURIA SPEED SKATERS WIN TITLES

Miss Yasuko Funyo of Manchoukuo and Boku Jun-tetsu, also of Manchoukuo, are the women's and men's speed skating champions for 1940 as a result of the three-day meet which ended Sunday afternoon at Hachinohe, Aomori prefecture.

Miss Funyo turned the trick by winning the 5,000-meter race on Saturday in 10 minutes 17.5 seconds and placing second in the 1,000-meter race to Miss Kiyo Sakamoto of the Hokkaido, whose time was 1 minute 52.4 seconds. Miss Funyo's time was 1 minute 54.1 seconds. Miss Funyo was second in the 500-meter race and third in the 3,000-meter race on Friday. The winner of the 500-meter race was Miss Yoshiko Kimura of Manchuria in 54.6 seconds. Winner of the 3,000-meter race was Miss Mitsuko Nozawa of Hokkaido in 6 minutes 18.8 seconds.

The final individual scores for the women were:

No. 1.—Miss Yasuko Funyo, Manchuria, 238.783 points.
No. 2.—Miss Kiyo Sakamoto, Hokkaido, 239.733 points.
No. 3.—Miss Yoshiko Kimura, Manchuria, 243.293 points.
No. 4.—Miss Saeko Hirai, Hokkaido, 251.041 points.
No. 5—Miss Kyoko Shinagawa, Hokkaido, 253.093 points.
No. 6.—Kikuye Kitazawa, Hokkaido, 253.693 points.
No. 7.—Kiyoko Watanabe, Hokkaido, 254.883 points.
No. 8.—Mitsuko Nozawa, Hokkaido, 254.953 points.

Boku made a clean sweep of the concluding events on Sunday by capturing first places in the 1,500-meter and 10,000-meter races in times of 2 minutes 32.1 seconds and 18 minutes 35.5 seconds respectively. He won the 5,000-meter race on Saturday in 9 minutes 6.7 seconds.

The only other race, the 500-meter event in which Boku did not enter, was won by Katsuhisa Watanabe of Waseda University in 45.8 seconds on Friday.

The final standings for the men were:

No. 1—Boku Jun-tetsu, Manchuria, 211.145 points.
No. 2.—Kunio Nando, Waseda, 213.450 points.
No. 3.—Yoshio Ushijima, Manchuria, 214.466 points.
No. 4—Katsuhisa Yamashita, Waseda, 215.663 points.
No. 5.—Cho Yu-shoku, Meiji O. B., 216.240 points.

FUTABAYAMA VANQUISHES AKINOUMI

Led by Grand Champion Futabayama, the East side staged a grand rally by registering 14 victories as against nine by the West side in Tuesday's bouts of the 15-day sumo tourney at the Kokugikan, Ryogoku, and as a result is leading in the championship race by a 149-148 score. The tournament ends Thursday.

Futabayama lived up to his reputation as being one of the greatest grand champions ever in the sport by scoring a convincing victory in the day's most featured bout against Akinoumi. It was this Akinoumi who caused a national sensation on the fourth day of the then 13-day tournament in January last year when he came through with what was then considered virtually impossible, that of defeating Futabayama, who had been invincible for two and a half years and had registered the amazing and unprecedented string of 69 victories in the official championship matches.

NEVER HAD CHANCE

As a matter of fact, Akinoumi never had a chance when he failed to get his favorite left through Futabayama's defense for a firm grip on the latter's girdle. No sooner had they stood up than it was Futabayama who beat Akinoumi to the gun by thrusting his favorite right arm through Akinoumi's defense. On top of this, he stuck his body and neck close to Akinoumi's to make it impossible for Akinoumi to get his left through. Akinoumi, of course, had gotten his right through for a grip on Futabayama's girdle but he was at a tremendous disadvantage without his left. But ever the courageous wrestler that he is, he tried desperately to stick his left through while he began pushing Futabayama. This apparently was what Futabayama, who knows all tricks of the game, had been looking for as he resorted to an arm throw that sent Akinoumi rolling out of the ring.

The usually slow Grand Champion Minanogawa surprised the more than 20,000 fans with his agility in his bout against the strong Nayoroiwa of the East side. These two couldn't get spiritually united in the 10-minute period allowed for starting. The false starts had been eating into the fiery and short-tempered Nayoroiwa. When they finally had to rush against each other, Minanogawa took a quick step to the right, then grasped the charging Nayoroiwa and defeated him with an arm throw.

Haguroyama avenged his elder stable-mate's defeat, that of Futabayama, by vanquishing Itsutsushima. He got the jump on Itsutsushima and grasped the latter's arms from the outside. He then started pushing Itsutsushima. The latter forced to the edge of the ring, made a gallant stand and maneuvered himself back to the center of the ring, but Haguroyama lost no time in throwing him on to the sand with his powerful right arm.

Tamanoumi's power in his arms won for him an impressive victory over Kasagiyama, erstwhile Waseda University student. Kasagiyama made a miraculous save after Tamanoumi had forced him to the edge of the ring. He then succeeded in grasping Tamanoumi but it was to no avail as the latter executed a powerful arm throw and down went Kasagiyama.

The results of the principal bouts follow:

Matsuuragata won by forfeit from Yamatoiwa
Katsuragawa defeated Tominishiki
Tomoegata defeated Fujinosato
Hishuzan defeated Shachinosato
Ichiwatari defeated Fujigadake
Taikyuzan defeated Kuganishiki
Asahigawa defeated Shikainami
Sakuranishiki defeated Aobayama
Kashimanada defeated Genjiyama
Banjaku defeated Dewaminato
Ryuozan defeated Hatasegawa
Saganohana defeated Sagamigawa
Oshio defeated Ayawaka
Terukuni defeated Yamatonishiki
Tatekabuto defeated Ryogoku
Ayanobori defeated Onami
Tamanoumi defeated Kasagiyama
Mayedayama defeated Kaneminato
Haguroyama defeated Itsutsushima
Minanogawa defeated Nayoroiwa
Futabayama defeated Akinoumi

AVENGES ELDER STABLE-MATE'S DEFEAT

Haguroyama, caught by the camera, after he had thrown Itsutsushima Tuesday in one of the principal bouts of the sumo tourney which ends Thursday. Itsutsushima has been the only wrestler able to defeat Grand Champion Futabayama, stable-mate of Haguroyama, in the current tournament.

CENTRAL, RED ARMIES CLASH

Two Chinese Factions Now Reported Fighting at Several Places; Collapse Expected

Domei Tsushin

TIENTSIN, Jan. 23—Open clashes between the Chinese Central and Communist Armies have recently been reported at various places, testifying that the Chinese anti-Japanese front is heading for a total collapse from the inside.

The friction between the Shih Yu-san army belonging to the Central Army and guerrilla forces of the Communist 8th Route army infesting the neighborhood of Tsaochang in southern Hopei province, is being intensified leading to an armed clash.

Both armies have been deprived of part of their spheres of influence due to the cleaning-up campaign carried out by the Japanese forces and the guarding activities of the garrisons of the Peking Provincial Government. As a result the two unfriendly armies have been bound together both territorially and financially, and clash of interests between them has become unbearable.

The Communist army has recently opened hostile activities against the Shih Yu-san army by bolshevizing people and instigating the Chinese masses to attack pretended government offices under the influence of the Kuomintang Party. The Communist army also propagandized Red thoughts to the soldiers belonging to the General Shih's army, urging them to join the Communist army.

The Shih Yu-san army, upset by the hostile activities of the Communist army, called up the people under its influence, disclosed the propaganda works of the Communist army, and declared that they would crush the Communist 8th Route army as a public enemy.

At the same time, General Shih's army confiscated the South Hopeh Bank notes from the people, the paper money circulated by the Communist, and burned them. It also strictly ordered the people not to use the currency other than the Hopeh Provincial Bank notes.

The anti-Japanese declaration made by General Shih Yu-san is interpreted as a proclamation of war against the Communist 8th Route army, and the relations between the Shih Yu-san army and the Communist force have been completely severed.

Federation to Invite Foreign Athletes To Meet This Year

Athletes from Hawaii, the South Seas, Thailand, the Philippines, China and Manchoukuo will be invited to compete in the East Asia Construction athletic meet to be held in Japan either during the latter part of May or in June as one of the functions celebrating the 2,600th anniversary of the foundation of the Empire.

The scene of the meet will be either Tokyo and its environs or in the Kansai near Osaka, it was agreed upon by directors of the Japan Amateur Athletic Federation Monday at the Tokyo Nichi Nichi Kaikan.

The list of events is to be decided later.

Invitations abroad will be sent under name of the Federation.

Waseda Sextet Defeats Keio By 3 to 1 Goals

Scoring a goal each in the second and third periods while they held their opponents scoreless, Waseda University's stick-wielders defeated the Keio sextet, 3 goals to 1, in the ninth annual ice hockey clash between the two institutions Tuesday night at the Shibaura rink. The score now stands six victories for Waseda as against three for Keio.

The team with the bigger players and more fighting spirit won.

The line-ups were:

Waseda: Kawanishi, Yoshijima, Kitabori, Nakagawa, Onikura and Shichida, forwards; Ichikawa and Matsumoto, defense; Onoda and Ota, goalies.

Keio: Kosuga, Kagatani, Kimura, Mekari, Fukazawa and Naruse, forwards; Inaba and Fujioka, defense; Furudono, goalie.

U.S. Kidnapped Child

carried me over what felt like loose dirt. He put me down and told me to step up. I did and heard him unlock a door. He led me in and told me to lie down.

"He covered me up with a jacket. Mama had begged him to take it.

"He left then for about twenty minutes, I guess. And when he came back he lifted me up to the attic, then, and laid me on the floor. He taped my mouth shut. Tied my hands on one pole and my feet on another and covered me with burlap bags, about fifteen of them. I was so thirsty. I tried to ask for water. When I did, he slapped me on the shoulder and said: 'Quiet. Me hit.'

"He didn't hurt me. Then he left.

"I got hot and finally went to sleep. When I woke up I was cool. I wiggled the blindfold loose, but it got over my nose and it made it hard for me to breathe. I got the tape loose from my mouth and one hand loose. I shouted 'Hey!'

"I heard some noise, and it scared me a little. Afterward I found out it was just pigeons and crows. I went back to sleep. When I woke up again, I got my nerve back and got my hands loose.

"I shouted. I said, 'Hey, I'm thirsty.' Then a woman answered. I told her what happened. At first she didn't believe me. Then they came in and got me. Then daddy came.

"I was scared some. I was worried some, too. I worried mostly about mama and daddy. I knew they'd be worried about me."

PEACE URGENTLY NEEDED IN EAST ASIA, WANG SAYS

Orthodox Kuomintang Leader Asserts His Movement Based on Broad Viewpoint

Domei Tsushin

TSINGTAO, Jan. 22—"Our peace movement was perceived from a high and broad viewpoint of East Asia, and is based on the firm belief that Japan and China would not be able mutually to survive and thrive unless peace is established between them", declared Wang Ching-wei, through interpretation by his secretary Chow Lung-hsiang, in a 20-minute interview with some 70 representatives of Japanese and Chinese newspapers at the Yenpinkwan Hall here today.

Mr. Wang arrived here at 3:20 p.m. today to attend the "Conference of Big Three" which is to be held Tuesday.

EXPRESSES FIRM BELIEF

In expressing his firm belief and defining his peace movement, Mr. Wang spoke as follows:

"I hold the following conviction with respect to our peace movement:

"(1) Our peace movement was perceived from a high and broad standpoint of East Asia, and is based on the firm belief that Japan and China cannot mutually survive and thrive unless peace is established between them. It is aimed in no way at merely remedying the calamity of defeat in the war, nor does it mean to snatch a momentary case.

"(2) Our peace movement is based on a grand, permanent plan for both Japan and China. In other words, the foundation for peace between Japan and China should be firmly established on the basis of mutual existence and prosperity of the two nations, but not for a temporary rest and ease.

"(3) Our peace movement owes its origin to one firm principle or conviction. It is based on the firm conviction that, should Japan and China continue to fight both would suffer injuries whereas peace will enable the two nations to enjoy perpetual mutual existence and prosperity. In fact, the movement was not started with tricks and wiles.

"We are, therefore, pushing it forward in defiance of all the difficulties. I have held this conviction for a long time, and I am pleased to say that Japan has come to agree with me since the issuance of the Konoye statement in which Japan declares that it is her mission to preserve the integrity of East Asia and expects China to shoulder her share of the mission. Believing that there have been possibilities of this ideal being realized, I, together with my associates, devoted all the energies to the peace movement.

DEFEAT SUFFERED

"The defeat suffered by China in the present armed conflict with Japan has taught me that armed and other forces cannot be dependable. On the other hand, I am of the view that a fair and square principle and fervent belief are the essential factors in the realization of permanent peace. I firmly believe that, what will be born from these two essential factors will constitute the true power, which would give the most sure and solid basis for the peace movement.

"I assert that the ultimate success of the peace movement depends on whether the masses as well as leaders of young men in the entire China will fully recognize this truth, and assure their share of the responsibility. With such a basis given, the peace movement can develop without being denatured before its realization.

"I firmly believe that this principle and belief will be deeply imbued among the people of China along with the progress of the peace movement, and our mission objectives will be perfectly realized."

Maurice Evans

characteristic of his management. In its outer rooms secretaries, executive assistants and other economic functionaries labor prodigiously. His inner chamber is a paradigm of chaste simplicity. There are the conventional desk and divan, a gilded bust of himself as Richard and a framed portrait of himself as Falstaff, the original of one done by Lupas for the Sunday Herald Tribune. A beer mug or two, obviously Falstaffan props, a miniature Cunard side wheeler brave with red and black lacquer and a generous bookcase complete the decor. There are copies of "With Malice Toward Some," "The Romance of the Bank of England," "Of Mice and Men," "Elizabethan Pageantry" by Morse; Benet's "John Brown's Body," Gwyn Jones' "Garland of Bays," "The Horse and Buggy Doctor" and Tolstoy's "War and Peace."

Mr. Evans' road tour included a one-night stand at Princeton, a fortnight in Chicago and successive weeks in Philadelphia, Cleveland, Baltimore, Detroit and St. Louis, following the route established by the road company of "Richard II." As a travel companion Mr. Evans carried with him "Sir Henry Irving's Impressions of America," published after that notable's tour of the States in the early eighties. He noticed with interest that wherever his path crossed that of his predecessor by nearly 60 years in New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Chicago, Detroit and St. Louis, his box offices grosses topped those of Sir Henry by more or less substantial margins despite the fact that Irving's top was $3 against his own $2.50 and the difference in the value of currency between 1880 and 1939.

"We had the most fun in Chicago, although it's not what I'd call a 'Hamlet'-going town," Mr. Evans says. "When we were there a few months ago in 'Richard', we didn't do so well. We had the slump, we had Lent, we followed Helen Hayes; we had all the usual alibis. This time we had Miss Cornell for opposition and still sold out every performance, although just what this proves I don't quite know. On Saturday we did such a big business that we had to put folding chairs in the aisles and the Fire Department, evidently a radically anti-Hamlet faction in Chicago, told us if we did it in the evening they'd close the theater. That was the day Miss Cornell's manager sent over from the Harris to know if he could borrow a single camp chair as he had one more standee than we had. They beat us by a head."

Following a precedent set by Clayton Hamilton in other years and with other Shakespearean companies, Mr. Evans' troupe was preceded over its route by an advance lecturer or culture-whooper in the person of Sam Pearce, who insinuated a sly literary urge into each community with lantern slides and a spiel called "Up From Leslie Howard." Whenever Mr. Evans' own picture appeared on the screen in young ladies' seminaries and other female institutions it was greeted with screams and howls of laughter, and the management began searching for some provocative defect in the photograph. None was apparent, however, and it was explained by experienced school mistresses that this was simply the normal reaction of young ladies of a susceptible age to the appearance or mention of any celebrity with whom they might be about to come in contact. This sort of thing, calculated cruelly to frighten any less valorous performer than Mr. Evans, merely roused the lion in him, he says.

"The manifestations that piqued our curiosity the most were the reactions of young school children, most of whom had never been to a spoken play before," he says. "Immediately the curtain went up, they associated themselves with the players, just as they are accustomed to do at the films. They sided with the sympathetic characters, hissed the heavies and made audible comments about every one. Sometimes their remarks made the players blow up in their lines. They loved Ophelia dearly and loathed Claudius. Laertes was probably the most popular character and the two things they couldn't stand were love scenes, which embarrassed the tots frightfully, and the four deaths at the end of the play. They could stand for three sanguinary ends with straight faces, but the fourth taking off, which was, of course, myself, always evoked roars of childish laughter. It seemed to them just too much of a good thing.

"Do audiences in the countryside grow restive under a full-length performance? I should say far from it. I think their native shrewdness prompts them to believe they are getting more for their money."

FUTABAYAMA WINS SUMO CHAMPIONSHIP

Today marks the final day of the 15-day "spring" professional sumo tournament at the Kokugikan at Ryogoku but Grand Champion Futabayama clinched the individual championship Wednesday by virtue of his victory over Champion Mayedayama.

Futabayama is a strong favorite to defeat Grand Champion Minanogawa in the final match of the tourney today but even if he is defeated, it will have no bearing on the final standings. His only setback to date was at the hands of Itsutsushima on the 11th day of the tournament. It marks his seventh championship.

The up and coming Terukuni, 21, also on the East side with Futabayama, was in the running for the individual honors up to Tuesday night with only two setbacks and ten victories, but he fell by the wayside Wednesday. Kasagiyama, erstwhile Waseda University student, proved to be a bit too smart for him by crushing him outside the ring after a rip-snorting bout.

The individual honors for those in the top ranking circle, excluding those in the first three ranks, were to be fought out today between Terukuni and Itsutsushima, who belongs to the West side. Both have been beaten but three times. Terukuni was favored to beat Sagamigawa while Itsutsushima was matched against a tough opponent, Tamanoumi, in the bouts today.

The East side won 11 matches Wednesday as against 10 by the West side and is leading the tourney, 160 to 158. If the East side captures the team honors, holder of the championship pennant will be Terukuni, and vice versa, it will be Itsutsushima.

Champion Mayedayama made a gallant stand against Futabayama. He was quick to thrust his two arms through his opponent's defense for firm grips on the girdle. Courageously he started pushing and forced Futabayama to the edge of the ring, but there the grand champion held his ground, and with a powerful arm throw, sent Mayedayama rolling out of the ring.

Champion Haguroyama of the East side, younger stable-mate of Futabayama, was the more aggressive and this won for him against Grand Champion Minanogawa. It was the latter's fourth defeat.

There was a 15-minute dispute over the referee's decision in favor of Ayanobori in his bout with Nayoroiwa. They just about fell out of the ring together. Nayoroiwa had pushed and pushed and forced Ayanobori to the edge of the ring where the latter used his arms as lever and yanked Nayoroiwa with him as he fell. The five judges conferred, had powwow with the two seconds on each side, and finally the decision was reversed in favor of Nayoroiwa. The protest had been lodged by Futabayama. The change in decision was sportingly received by Ayanobori and he was cheered enthusiastically by the 30,000 fans present.

The bout between Akinoumi and Tamanoumi, as expected, was a battle royal with the former winning because of greater speed and variety in attack.

The result of the principal bouts follow:

Takenosato defeated Kojimakawa
Jusannishiki defeated Genjiyama
Kuganishiki defeated Komanosato
Tsurugamine defeated Fujinosato
Katsuragawa defeated Sagamigawa
Yamatonishiki defeated Fujigatake
Sakuranishiki defeated Asahikawa
Dewaminato defeated Shachinosato
Banjaku defeated Shikainami
Matsuuradake defeated Kashimanada
Taikyuzan defeated Sagamohana
Aobayama defeated Ryozan
Hishuzan defeated Kaneminato
Ayawaka defeated Hatasegawa
Oshio defeated Ichiwatari
Jintozan defeated Onami
Tomoegata defeated Ryogoku
Kasagiyama defeated Terukuni
Itsutsushima defeated Tatekabuto
Nayoroiwa defeated Ayanobori
Akinoumi defeated Tamanoumi
Futabayama defeated Maedayama
Haguroyama defeated Minanogawa

GRAND CHAMPION WINS SEVENTH TITLE

Going through the formal rites of the entrance of a grand champion into the ring is Futabayama, who clinched on Wednesday the championship of the "spring" sumo tournament which ends today at the Kokugikan at Ryogoku.

PUBLIC TO BID ON DEPOT LOTS

4 Blocks Fronting Projected Shinjuku Station Plaza for Sale

Four building lots, fronting on the newly planned plaza before the Shinjuku station, have been offered to the general public on competitive bidding.

Bids should be sent to the Geography Section of the Tokyo Municipal Government Finance Bureau during the 18 days beginning February 1.

The lots include one with an area of 826 tsubo (approximately three square meters) in Block 2, No. 73, Tsunohazu 2-chome, Yodobashi ward; one of 759 tsubo in the same block; one of 1,078 tsubo in Block 1 at No. 74 of the same street and one of 807 tsubo in Block 2, No. 74.

Since the sites are as commercially important as those in front of the Tokyo station on which stand the Marunouchi and Marine Insurance buildings, minimum bids acceptable must be from ¥510 to ¥580 per tsubo. Other lots for house building have already been sold in the same neighborhood, and more are scheduled to be opened for bids.

Plans for the plaza call for an expanse of 6,200 tsubo in front of the Shinjuku station west entrance, bordering on the southeastern side of the Imperial railway elevated and the new Odawara express station.

Within the plaza will be built a large parking lot for motor vehicles, stretches of turf, a carriageway, footway and other features. Underground ways will be constructed beneath the plaza and a few railway depots now located on the surface will be put there, in order to decrease traffic congestion.

Because of the contemplated expansion it is possible the Shinjuku station will become a key depot for the projected super-express between Tokyo and Shimonoseki, says the Asahi.

Keio, Waseda Teams Competing in Relay Race Next Sunday

Waseda and Keio universities will compete in their second annual relay race between the Tama Mausoleum and Meiji Shrine Bridge next Sunday.

The race over the 45-kilometer course will start at the Tama Mausoleum at 12:30 p.m. There will be two teams on each side of five runners each.

'HAM-EGGS' FORCES STRESS HELP FOR AGED

Defeat of Pension Plan In California Turns U.S. Attention to Scheme

Christian Science Monitor

SAN FRANCISCO—Defeat of the "Ham and Eggs" pension-money reform scheme, and the immediate declaration of the "Ham and Egg" forces that they would attempt to recall Gov. Culbert L. Olson and put the scheme once more on the ballot, has not only focused statewide but national attention on the old age aid, relief, and employment problem in California.

Governor Olson will call a special session of the State Legislature in January to seek some agreement on how to solve the State's pension problem. He is expected to ask for more than $75,000,000, of which more than one-half would be earmarked for increased old age assistance.

His executive office reports that, while pensions will be foremost in the special legislative session, the additional and correlative problems of relief, taxation, and reorganization of the State's general administrative offices will be acted upon.

There are other proposals being listened to as well as the Governor's. Some of those considered more important follow:

TAX ON BUSINESS

Out of a special meeting of 25 members of the State Legislature in Southern California recently, a meeting called by Lieutenant Gov. Ellis Patterson for the purpose of discussing the old-age assistance problem—came the recommendation that a 1½ per cent gross income tax be levied on all business transactions and business incomes in the State to care for the pensioners.

Still another recommendation came out of the recent meeting of the National Conference on Labor Legislation in Washington, D.C., where a "retraining" program for persons who cannot get into industry was offered, declaring that the Government could afford to instigate such a plan for revitalizing "obsolete occupations" as the employment of senior citizens is fundamentally a national industrial problem. This is being studied here for quicker use than would be possible under Federal sponsorship.

It is also proposed that the Federal Government take over all State old age aid and let the individual States take care of their unemployment and relief problems by themselves.

REVOLUTIONARY IDEA

A more or less new and "revolutionary" idea is propounded by George G. Kidwell, California State Director of Industrial Relations. Not too thoroughly worked out, it nevertheless, recommends national, and or state legislation be introduced to secure pensions for persons of an as yet undetermined age held to be "unnecessary" to and by industry.

Holding that the old-age and unemployment dilemma is basically a "youth problem" an Apprenticeship Council of California is already functioning and will be widened in scope to benefit thousands of youths in this State in job training. Its purpose is gradually to "regulate the training of young men in the skilled trades, assure them and the older journeymen against exploitation, and protect that majority of employers who have never abused the apprenticeship system to break down labor standards."

The Townsend Plan backers and the supporters of the "Ham and Eggs" proposal, who polled nearly 1,000,000 of the some 3,000,000 votes cast Nov. 7, are still pushing their plans as "the answer."

When on Jan. 1 the State Old Age Assistance sum payable is increased to $40 maximum with Federal participation, there is the possibility that the Legislature may raise the $32.43 rate, now the nation's highest, to $40 as a first move following the Governor's demand for $50 or higher.

Gathering or senior citizens and those over 40 held "unnecessary" by industry or agriculture into cooperatives of both producer and consumer types is also being recommended.

The 11th annual national figure skating and ice hockey championships will be held in Tokyo for three days beginning Friday in Tokyo.

The figure skating will be held at the Sanno and Shibaura rinks, the school figures at the former, and the hockey matches at the Shibaura rink.

Together with the four leading university sextets in Tokyo, Rikkyo, Meiji, Waseda and Keio, such strong teams from industrial firms as the Oji Seishi contingent of Tomakomai, the Hokkaido, the Furukawa team from Nikko, and teams from Manchuria, Kwantung Leased Territory and Korea, will compete for the ice hockey laurels. Rikkyo is being favored in some circles to win the gonfalon.

National Intercollegiate Champion Arizaka of Meiji University is favored to win the men's figure skating title. Miss Etsuko Inada of Osaka, who was the youngest contestant in the Forth Olympic winter Games at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany in 1936 but placed tenth, is expected to win the women's title without any trouble.

Tobis Film Makes Immortal Waltz, Life of Strauss

High trees surround the Vienna City Park line an impenetrable wall, making of it a green island in the heart of city traffic. In spring the chestnut trees flaunt their white candles; in summer wide-branched lime trees perfume the air; and now the gorgeous Paiownia imperialis blooms luxuriantly.

The Temple of Music is set in a bed of green, wreathed in flowers of all kinds. The summer sun is shining high in the skies—Vienna is at her best today. Which is quite as it should be, for the "outsider" feels at home immediately when he finds Vienna in this particular "Stimmung," whether he comes from the Old Reich or from countries beyond the seas, he is at home here in a short time. There is an indefinable something about Vienna. A different sky, a different joie de vivre belong to this city!

It isn't even necessary to travel out to Grinzing, to the Heurigen, to get acquainted with the laughing, singing, sentimental element that is Vienna. Music is in the very air of this wonderful city which has been the cradle of so many world-famous composers. Here their spirit lives on more palpably than anywhere else in the world.

One must hear the combined Vienna Military Bands' rendition of the Radetzky March in the Burghof—with their incomparable verve and temperament. From the musical standpoint, the Radetzky March reflects part of Vienna's past. Johann Strauss erected a monument to himself when he composed it. It is just as memorable a work as the waltzes of the Strauss sons.

It is strange that Johann Strauss should have opposed his three sons' musical ambitions. But it was in their blood, and music triumphed in the end, for they managed to acquire a musical education in spite of their father's opposition. Johann Junior became the most famous of the three. He composed over 500 waltzes and 16 operettas, and his fame soon outshadowed his father's. Johann Strauss Senior and his famous contemporary Lanner are honored by a monument in the Court House Park. The two composers and Johann Junior are buried in the Central Cemetery at Simmering.

The Radetzky March and the Strauss Waltzes are immortal. They inspire the hearts of men today as they did years ago. A new Tobis film called "The Immortal Waltz" shows the lives of the composer and his sons. His own bitter struggle for a life of economic security to his sons—their fight for their chosen profession, and the final break between the parents, because the mother supported her sons in their wish for musical education.

Perhaps the father was a despot for whom his own will was law; perhaps he lacked the intuition which would have shown him that children must seek their own way in life. In any case, he witnessed the triumphs of his son Johann, but after he, the father, had once left his family for Emilie Trampusch, the break was complete.

Glider Makes

and Honolulu have become gliding centers.

Each glider flight, long or short, adds to the sum of knowledge of wind, weather, clouds and flying. That is why the government has made gliding part of its air training program.

Frankfort's school is open to anyone with $50 and two weeks to spend. "If you can drive a car, you can pilot a glider," Corcoran says. "The difference is that gliding is safer." But if in his first test the student gets tense or shows himself temperamentally unsuited, he gets his money back and goes no further.

Sailplaners are very safe. They are light and land slowly at a flat angle. Even though most ships now in use are cheap home-made crates, there have been few accidents anywhere.

With the school running full time and several helpers at work in the shop, Frankfort has made its recreation a paying business, its new industry a game. Its first $600 investment has carried it a long way. The merchants short on cash and long on enthusiasm, "caught a thermal" when they decided to invest. Like the young pilots themselves, this small town is soaring on a shoestring.

EAST CAMP VANQUISHES WEST, 173 TO 166 IN SUMO TOURNEY

By the margin of seven bouts, 173 to 166, the East side defeated the West camp as the 15-day spring sumo tournament ended Thursday night at the Kokugikan bowl at Ryogoku with another banner season. It marked the revival of the East versus West system after nine years of the open competition among training houses.

The individual championship honors went to Grand Champion Futabayama for the second consecutive season since the extension of the tournament from 13 to 15 days. It also marked his seventh title in the semi-annual competition, the string having been cut in the January tournament last year when he lost four bouts and Dewaminato replaced him as champion with nary a defeat.

In the tournament's final match at 6 p.m. Thursday, Grand Champion Futabayama defeated Grand Champion Minanogawa with ease. They attacked each other with both hands, after they had consumed the entire 10 minutes allowed for starting, but no sooner had they fallen in a clinch than Futabayama shoved his opponent out of the ring.

Futabayama's only defeat was at the hands of Itsutsushima on the 11th day of the tournament. Minanogawa was defeated five times.

Runner-up to Futabayama for individual honors was the 21-year-old Terukuni, who defeated Sagamigawa Thursday after a furious bout for his twelfth victory.

Itsutsushima was running neck and neck with Terukuni but was defeated Thursday by the strong Tamanoumi of the East side.

In the most looked forward to match of the day, Champion Haguroyama of the East side lifted Champion Mayedayama of the West side high into the air and deposited him outside the ring for an impressive victory. Mayedayama was unable to do a thing with his legs in the air.

Two arm throws, one after another, aided burly Nayoroiwa to vanquish the strong and clever Akinoumi of the West side. Both are of "sekiwake" or rank immediately below "ohzeki" or champion.

The results of the principal bouts follow:

Kiyomigawa defeated Matsuragata
Jusannishiki defeated Hatasegawa
Katsuragawa defeated Ichiwatari
Sakuranishiki defeated Genjiyama
Shachinosato defeated Fujinosato
Jintozan defeated Tsurugamine
Kojimagawa defeated Taikyuzan
Hishuzan defeated Asahigawa
Fujigatake defeated Dewaminato
Aobayama defeated Yamatonishiki
Banjaku defeated Komanosato
Ryuozan defeated Kuganishiki
Tomoegata defeated Ayawaka
Shikainami defeated Kaneminato
Oshio defeated Kashimanada
Ryogoku defeated Saganohana
Kasagiyama defeated Onami
Terukuni defeated Sagamigawa
Ayanobori defeated Tatekabuto
Tamanoumi defeated Itsutsushima
Nayoroiwa defeated Akinoumi
Haguroyama defeated Mayedayama
Futabayama defeated Minanogawa

Armstrong Knocks Out Montanez in 9th Round

Domei Tsushin

NEW YORK, Jan. 25—Henry Armstrong, battling Negro world's welterweight champion, successfully defended his crown for the 15th time last night against Pedro Montanez, winning by a technical knockout in the ninth round.

'Cheated the Gallows'

sador, Sir Hughe Montgomery Knatchbull-Hugessen was staying, indicated that the sentence would be commuted to life imprisonment.

In the next few months Atma Singh grew better, partly recovering from the concussion of the brain he had suffered in the fall. No negligence, nor tampering with the rope, was found in the official inquiry. The executioner had followed his usual practise of tying the rope around the beam instead of the standard. Home practise, and the edges of the square section had been sharp enough to cut the rope: That was the official explanation.

Atma Singh retained his religious nature. In his letters asking his brother to visit him at various times, he asked more than once for Tara Singh, the priest to come too. Atma thanked his brother for the help the latter had given him. "I cannot forget it. God will give you help. You must believe God.

"Be strong, and keep your mind good" he continued. "Don't say anything to anyone and don't quarrel with anyone. All men know of the kindness you have shown me. I have a connection with you for the whole of my life. Men may make sport of you, but don't get angry. I will not forget you for life."

HELD AT HONGKONG

The British authorities in Shanghai sent Atma Singh to India to serve his sentence, but he was a long time on the journey. The Sino-Japanese hostilities had the effect of keeping him in Hongkong for four or five months.

Then he went to Calcutta, where he waited two months. Next to Lahore, with a stay of eight months. Finally he was sent to Mooltan to serve the rest of his life in prison.

In Lahore he had a visit from his wife, and also his 75 years old mother. The wife, with children aged 7, 5, 4, and 2½ years are living at Khara, village by Amritsar, where Atma Singh was born in 1904.

The wife has no means. She and her children are being supported by the village. Atma Singh is unable to do anything to aid their support.

Atma Singh's old mother did her best to get some lightening of his sentence. She went to visit Sirdar Sikander Hyat-Khan, of the Punjab Government. She spent half an hour with him, pleading the case.

It was of no avail. Atma Singh, the man who cheated the gallows, to which many think he should never have been taken, remains in jail. His wife lives many, many miles away and is too poor to go and see him. Looking fit, but with recurrent headaches, he crouches all day thanking God for his life, and grinding mustard seed . . . mustard seed . . . mustard seed . . . .

Lewis' Speech Seen As Very Significant

Domei Tsushin

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24—Political circles viewed John L. Lewis' speech at Columbus as being very significant as only recently William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor which together with the Congress of Industrial Organization claim a membership of 8,000,000 organized workers, indicated that the A.F. of L. would oppose any Roosevelt third term movement.

These circles declared that if the Republican Party should succeed in receiving organized labor's support, the New Dealers may face a serious defeat in the coming presidential election this fall.

At the same time, it is expected here that President Roosevelt and other New Dealers will bolster efforts to secure an early labor peace between the C.I.O. and A.F. of L. It would virtually assure Labor's vote for the Democratic party if a peace could be brought about.

WASEDA, KEIO, RIKKYO BEATEN IN ICE HOCKEY

One major upset after another featured the first day's matches of the national ice hockey championships Friday at the Shibaura rink.

Rikkyo University, a strong favorite, Waseda and Keio, leading contenders, all fell by the way side to sextets from industrial firms. Meiji University alone survived to enter the semi-finals.

First to do so was Waseda at the hands of the All-Manchurian sextet by 4 goals to 3 as the second round play started. Only game in the first round was that between the Tomakomai team of the Hokkaido and Dairen. The former won 4 goals to one.

The Manchurians turned the trick by outscoring the collegians, 4 goals to 3, in the second period.

Greater speed won for the visitors.

The scores were:

Manchuria .....0—4—0—4
Waseda .....0—3—0—3

The line-ups were:

All-Manchuria: Ite, Kuriya, Matsuura, Onishi, Matsuki and Den, forwards; Ito, Yoshitake and Hyakutaba, defense; Meike, goalie.

Waseda: Nakagawa, Onikura, Shichida, Kawanishi, Takashima and Kitabori, forwards; Ichikawa and Matsumoto, defense; and Onodo, goalie.

NIKKO WINS

The Nikko Furukawa contingent started the third period with Keio leading, 1-0, but started a rally that forced the game into an extra period with the count, 3-all. It was a battle royal but the Nikko stick wielders had the greater stamina and outscored the collegians, 3 goals to 2, to emerge victors by a 6-5 score.

The scores were:

Nikko ..... 0 0 3 3—6
Keio ..... 0 1 2 2—5

The line-ups were:

Nikko: Sawamoto, Anno, Kawada, Terayama, Sawamoto (older brother) and Hoshino, forwards; Saito and Kamiyama, defense; Masuda, goalie.

Keio: Mekari, Fukazawa, Naruse, Yamanaka, Kosuga, Kimura, Yamazaki, forwards; Kagatani, Fujioka, defense; Furudono, goalie.

The game between the Tomakomai outfit and Rikkyo University was a nip and tuck affair. Tomakomai took the lead at 3 minutes in the first period on a goal by Nomura and held it in the next period. Sunada pushed the puck into the net to deadlock the count after 10 minutes of play in the third period but Sato, Tomakomai defense star, sped down the ice and scored a beauty in 18 minutes to win the game for his team.

The line-ups were:

Tomakomai: Nihei, Nishiura, Nomura, Abe, Yamamoto, Ito, forwards; Koyamauchi, Sato, defense; Hatakeyama, goalie.

Rikkyo: Tanaka, Sunada, Onikura, Omura Tago and Takahashi, forwards; Naito and Goto, defense; Miyake, goalie.

Meiji routed the All-Enki team from Korea by 11 goals to nil, scoring two goals in the first, seven in the second and two more in the third period. The Koreans are good speed skaters but they have yet much to learn in the ice hockey game.

Miss Etsuko Inada and Takasuke Arizaka led the women's and men's figure skating competition for the first day with 179.20 and 162.10 points respectively for the school figures at the Sanno rink.

OPENING BEFORE EMPTY STANDS

There weren't any cheering fans present but the opening ceremonies of the national ice hockey and figure skating championships were nevertheless held Friday at the Shibaura rink, as the photo shows.

PHILIPPINES SENDING 50 ATHLETES TO FAR EASTERN MEET HERE IN MAY

Fifty athletes from the Philippines will compete in the Far Eastern athletic meet to be held either in Tokyo or in Osaka next May as part of the celebration of the Empire's 2600th birthday.

Acceptance of the invitation sent to the Philippine Amateur Athletic Federation by the Japan Amateur Athletic Federation was announced in Manila Friday.

The delegation is expected to include 10 track and field, four tennis, six boxing, six wrestling, 13 basketball and 17 soccer stars.

From the Philippines has come the invitation to have four swimmers of Rikkyo University to compete in a swimming carnival at Manila. The mermen wanted are: Shigeo Arai, Japan's best freestyle sprinter; Seichiro Oura, breaststroker; Toshio Honma, long distance; and Koichi Sakamoto, backstroker.

Kongo Will Fight Isegawa on Feb. 2

Iwao Kongo of the Usuda Boxing Club, undoubtedly without a peer in the flyweight ranks in this country, will take on Saburo Isegawa of Kobe in a 10-round bout on Friday night, February 2, at the Hibiya Public Hall auditorium.

Shintaro Yamada, promising featherweight who has been coming along in great style coached by Kintaro Usuda, will meet Shoichi Nakamura of the Kansai, in the 8-round semi-final.

There will be two other six rounders and three 4-round preliminaries on the card.

India Seeking

British India in a sort of United States of India. In this, the British knew they had to face opposition from the Congress party because of the Nationalists' fear of the influence feudal-minded, pro-British Princes would exert in national affairs. The Viceroy also knew that the Moslem League and other Moslem groups would fight federation because most of the Princes are Hindus.

On the other hand, the British government felt sure of cooperation on the part of the princes themselves. Only a few months before, at the time of the Munich crisis, the Princes showered telegrams on London offering financial aid and soldiers to defend the Empire. The vast majority of these Princes owe their security to the permanence of British rule in India, which guarantees them great internal independence provided they behave like yes-men. Under the British-drafted plan of federation, these yes-men were to be permitted a strong voice in national affairs—40 per cent of the seats in the upper house and about a third of the seats in the lower house of the proposed central all-Indian legislature.

Of recent months, the Viceroy and London's India Office have insisted that the Princes take steps toward reform in their individual territories so as to forestall growing democratic movements seeking the overthrow of the entire feudal system. At a meeting of the Princes early last Summer, the Viceroy quite sharply pressed them for action. The Princes meanwhile had been examining the details of the terms on which they woud be admitted to the projected "United States" of India. They discovered that the price was too high for the advantages offered. Listening to the Viceroy's pleas, they realized with alarm that their role of yes-men would not in itself protect them any longer. They found that in the projected federation their high degree of internal independence would be sacrificed to national advantages. To the petty lords, this independence has meant license to take a fourth of their entire State revenue for private use, for travel and long absences in England and America. Under independence, the more enlightened, larger states have developed local resources for their internal profit, but further progress in this direction would be to some extent out of local control under the plan of federation.

Hence, to the deep disappointment of the British the Princes joined British India's Nationalist politicos in balking at centralizing Indian rule in time for the present war. Two months ago, the Viceroy capitulated, dropping federation until the end of the war. This capitulation not only brought out the power of the Congress party, it also left the Princes aware at last of their strength, much less eager than in 1914 to contribute money and men to the protection of the British Empire. They will continue to help Britain as before—but on a cash-and-carry basis.

PLAN WORKED OUT

Apparently, the British did not expect their position in India to be weakened on so many sides. However, they made very sure they would not lose India to any outside power during an eventual world war. An admirable military plan for keeping India out of direct contact with possible enemies was decided upon in January 1939 and by September 1, when war broke out in Europe, its provisions had been carried out. Shortly after the Munich crisis in the fall of 1938, Lord Chatfield, who was made Coordinator of Defense in the British home government in February of this year, was sent to work out a plan for India's defense. He and his committee of experts concluded that there was small likelihood of large scale military uprisings by the Indians themselves if they were not influenced from the outside. Britain, they decided, could hold India internally by civilian diplomacy under the direction of suave, experienced Viceroy Linlithgow, whose term was extended indefinitely as soon as Britain declared war on Germany. Lord Chatfield's suggestions that British and Indian troops be withdrawn from India proper to strengthen strategic points controlling the sea routes to India were carried out through the Summer. By September, a third of all British troops had left India. Large numbers of native Indian troops were also taken away from any temptation to mutiny, and sent to "external defenses of India," namely Singapore and the Suez Canal, those switchboards of Empire life lines. By describing such Empire defenses as India's "external defenses" the way is left open to charge expenses of these military establishments to India.

The western approaches to India were strengthened by the recent Anglo-Turkish pact and by reinforcing with Indian troops the port of Aden on the Red Sea just across from Italian East Africa.

Controlling the routes to India from the east, from Japan and the Pacific, is the great naval and air base of Singapore at the southern end of the Malay Peninsula. The navas base, able to shelter and repair an entire battle squadron, was nearing completion by September 1, and Indian and native Malay troops had been added to its defenders. The city of Singapore had become war minded through frequent sham battles and blackouts. The port of Penang, half way up the Malay Peninsula from Singapore, on the way to Thailand, had been fortified. Late in June the British and French military and naval commanders in the Pacific and Asiatic zones met in Singapore to coordinate plans in event of war. Holland's vulnerable East Indian Islands spent a special fund of $50,000,000 this year for additional armaments. On Amboyna Island, which commands one of the shortest routes from Japan to Java, the Dutch have built an impregnable fortress.

The British plan for encircling India with military safeguards does not appear to have envisaged any large scale blitzkrieg by the Soviet by way of Afganistan. Invasion by the frontier tribes and the Afghans themselves has been well guarded against. A conspiracy to foment an uprising in Afganistan a week after war broke out in Europe was promptly put down. Britain held that the conspiracy was "possibly inspired by foreign influences," and suppressed news of it until November 8. Thanks to the past two years of almost constant activity by British bombing planes and armored cars against Afghan border uprisings, the territory has been thoroughly studied, and strategic roads and forts have been built. The British have concluded that relatively few bombing planes and mechanized troop units will suffice to protect India from the north.

Finally there is the Crown Colony of Ceylon at the southern tip of India, which in the past year has been roused to patriotic pro-Empire fervor. Anti-aircraft batteries were recently organized in its great port city of Colombo. Native Ceylonese have been enrolled for the first time as regular troops. Owing to labor disputes between Indian immigrants and native Ceylonese, there is a strong anti-India sentiment here working to British and Empire advantage. Ceylon has expanded its already excellent air traffic facilities, and can receive planes coming from Australia, Singapore or Africa, by routes out of contact with India.

One must conclude that in the present war Britain has little to fear from outright German, Russian or Japanese conquest of India. Britain may, however, be forced to surrender many treasured powers as the price for wholehearted Indian cooperation. In the end, the present [illegible] government in India may have to abandon its recently declared rule by emergency decrees, and to agree with Gandhi that it should "forget the old language of imperialism and open a new chapter" of much greater native control.

Kimura, Miss Kamo Picked for Manila Play

Yasu Kimura of Waseda University, fourth ranking player in 1939, and Miss Sumiko Kamo, of the Denyen Club, 1939 women's champion, were selected by the Japan Lawn Tennis Association late Friday to compete in the International Tournament to be held at Manila late in March.

Action was taken on an invitation received recently from the Philippine Amateur Athletic Federation.

Carey of C.I.O. Tells Science Academy 'Dollar Diplomacy' Is Failure

N.Y. Times

PHILADELPHIA — Expectation that this country could sell its surplus products in large volume in the Western Hemisphere before buying power in this hemisphere was built up "substantially" was ridiculed today by James B. Carey, national secretary of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, in an address at a luncheon meeting of the American Academy of Political and Social Science.

Declaring that United States trade relationships must be built on a foundation "more solid than that of dollar diplomacy," he argued that only those forms of Latin-American trade which would improve "the total position" of the country, rather than of "special groups," meant economic progress and should be encouraged.

"A dollar earned by a United States workingman may be spent to buy 50 cents' worth of goods made by a Brazilian worker, and the Brazilian worker may spend his 50 cents to buy 25 cents' worth of goods made by the United States worker," said Mr. Carey. "But when the costs of shipping and financing and—in some cases—tariffs are included, neither nation is any the better off."

A resolution introduced by Mr. Carey and passed at the recent Havana conference of American national Labor Organization said that it was desirable "that all credit agreements concluded between the nations of the American continent should make provision for the effective enforcement of fair labor standards upon all work financed in virtue of such agreements."

NEW TYPE OF TRADE PACT FORECAST

The speaker described this as "perhaps a significant, postive step toward the achievement of an entirely new and better type of trade and credit agreement."

The criterion for this "new type" of agreement, he suggested, should be: "If a given credit agreement can be shown to increase the purchasing power of either or of both parties thereto, then it is a worthwhile agreement, and it becomes especially worth while when the purchasing powers of both parties are increased."

Referring to the military and naval attaches in traditional diplomacy, Mr. Carey said that it now was time that "what we may call the 'labor attache' becomes an integral part in this machinery, so that the ways of building up new markets, and not the draining of existing markets, will rank highest on the agendas of such conferences."

Retention by this country of its membership in the International Labor Organization was strongly advocated by Henry I. Harriman, past president of the United States Chamber of Commerce and representative of employers at the International Labor Office.

Expressing a belief that the period of American isolation was over and that it would be necessary, "for its own protection," that this country take an active part in world affairs, he said that it would be "a distinct step backward for the United States to withdraw its membership in an organization which is striving to better the standards of living of the nations of the world and thus helping to remove one of the most compelling causes of war.

FAVORS WORLD LEAGUE REVIVAL

"I also feel," he went on, "that at the close of the present war America must be prepared to take an active part in a revivified League of Nations or any successor organization and lend to it its great moral and financial strength.

"I would not have the United States sending troops abroad or intervening in the local quarrels of other continents; but I would have it become an active force in any world organization whose broad purpose is to maintain peace by seeing that economic justice is done to all nations.

"The happy circumstance of some nations have acquired territory containing natural resources should not bar other less favored nations from receiving their fair proportion. In fact, I believe that world peace cannot be assured unless there is a pooling of the world's vital natural resources and unless the nations of the world attain reasonably equalized real wages, with fair hours of work and other working conditions. This is the goal of the I. L. O."

Former Governor John G. Winant of New Hampshire, director of the International Labor Office, described its setup and purposes.

MEIJI WINS NATIONAL ICE HOCKEY TITLE

Meiji University won its first title in the national ice hockey championships by defeating the All-Manchuria sextet in the finals of the 11th annual play Sunday afternoon at the Shibaura rink by 3 goals to 2.

Meiji entered the finals by defeating the Nikko Furukawa team, 4 goals to 3, while the All-Manchuria team did so by eliminating the Tomakomai squad of the Hokkaido, 4 goals to 2, on Saturday.

NO WALKAWAY

It was no walkaway for Meiji in the finals. The All-Manchuria sticks wielders showed plenty of speed and maintained a 2-1 lead at the end of the second period. The visitors got off to a good start by scoring in six minutes in the first period when Shin pushed the puck into the net on a follow-up of Matsumoto's attempt. Meiji retaliated in 10 minutes as Naito registered on a pass from Kusakari. But the same Shin scored another goal almost immediately and the period ended with All-Manchuria leading 2 to 1.

Neither team was able to score in the second quarter. But Meiji lost no time in deadlocking the count at 2-all in the third period on a goal by Fukumoto. The same Fukumoto scored what proved to be the winning goal in 13 minutes, when he tallied from the right flank.

Meiji's strongest factor for victory was its brilliant defense.

The line-ups were:

Meiji: Ezoye, Fukumoto, Ezoye (younger brother), Taguchi, Kusakari and Naito, fowards; Namerigawa and Yamanouchi, defense; Yuke, goalie.

All-Manchuria: Onishi, Matsumoto, Shin, Kuriya, Hyakuzuka, Matsuura, Ide, forwards; Ito and Yoshitake, defense; Meike, goalie.

MISS INADA WINS

Maintaining their lead in the free skating on Saturday afternoon, Takasuke Arizaka of Meiji University and Miss Etsuko Inada of Osaka won the men's and women's figure skating championships. The scores were:

MEN'S RESULTS

		Place	No.	School	Figure	Total
1.	Takasuke Arizaka	6	162.10	107.604	269.704
2.	Hiroshi Kanda	9	159.62	105.336	264.956

RED SOLDIERS ON WHITE SNOW

MOSCOW, Russia—Soldiers of Russia, like their Finnish adversaries, are shown utilizing skis to cross snow-covered terrain during maneuvers conducted shortly before Russia invaded Finland. The Russians, here, wear their regular-colored army uniforms, but on the battle front, both Russians and Finns wear white, which blends with the snow, to make detection more difficult.

SMALL JAPANESE INDUSTRIALISTS INVITED BY HSINKING GOVERNMENT

For the general development of industry in Manchoukuo, the Hsinking Government has decided upon a plan whereby it will invite Japanese industrialists with small or average businesses to settle in Manchuria in larger numbers during the current year as commercial or industrial settlers.

As a direct result of the outbreak of the China Incident three years ago, large numbers of industrialists, who were not engaged in the manufacture of munitions, suffered greatly with the falling off of their businesses and were not able to keep pace with the rapid changes.

Many of them were forced to close down while others were fortunate enough to be able to convert their businesses to others of a more thriving nature.

The Commerce and Industry Ministry of Japan, with the full collaboration of the Manchoukuo Government, did its utmost to relieve the circumstances of these industrialists by transferring them to Manchoukuo. Accordingly small numbers of factories were tentatively transplanted during the past year.

Full support of the scheme is being given by the Manchoukuo Government. The Department of Industry, after consultation with the Colonization Bureau, has appropriated 280,000 yuan for the current year to assist in the plan.

"We are unable to work out the precise number of factories, kinds of industry, amount of subsidy and other matters," said Torao Toriya of the Department of Industry "until the Japanese Government decides upon the budget to assist the projected transfer."

"As it is important to promote industry in Manchoukuo, it would be beneficial if the scheme was carried out in the shortest possible time. We shall study the plan in further detail as soon as the Japanese Government fixes the budget," concluded Mr. Toriya.

As an initial undertaking for this year, about ten factories, which will manufacture farm implements, will be moved from Japan to various settlements in Manchoukuo.

Hawaii and Thailand Will Be Invited To Athletic Meet Here

Formal invitations will be dispatched shortly to Thailand and Hawaii to participate in the Far Eastern athletic games to be staged either in Tokyo and in Osaka next May as part of the celebration of the 2,600th anniversary of the founding of the Japanese Empire.

The Japan Amateur Athletic Federation has already received acceptance of its invitation from the Philippine Amateur Athletic Federation. Approximately 50 athletes are expected to come.

Prowler Kills

no stranger was let into the house throughout the day.

Another taxi-dancer was discovered strangled to death, under almost identical circumstances, four days ago. Police admit that they have no clue to the identity of the strangler. They believe, however, that these two murders are the work of one man. As far as can be ascertained, nothing of value was taken from either of the unfortunate girls' rooms. The robbery motive, therefore, is not being considered by the police.

On January second a "girl-guide" was found with her throat cut, her head practically hacked off, in a room in one of the Shanghai's second-rate hotels in the International Concession. Evidence of robbery was lacking in this crime as well.

Detectives in charge of investigations of the three slayings say that it is almost impossible to trace these girls' private lives. In many cases they come from the interior. Other girls are afraid to talk to the police.

German Envoys to Balkan States Confer with Von Ribbentrop

Domei Tsushin

BERLIN, Jan. 26—The German ministers to five southeastern European states, Rumania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Hungary and Greece, have been in Berlin for the past few days in order to confer with Foreign Minister Colonel Joachim von Ribbentrop regarding the latest Balkan developments, it was revealed here today.

The German ambassador to Turkey, Colonel Franz von Papen, however, was not present at the conference.

It was revealed that the five diplomats left Berlin today for their respective posts.

ANCIENT U.S. MAN IS TRACED BY SCIENTISTS

Remains of 'Civilization,' Oldest in North America, Disclosed in New Mexico

By B. L. LIVINGSTONE
Shanghai Times

ALBUQUERQUE, New Mexico—Evidences of a culture that may prove to be the oldest on the North American continent have been found in a sealed cave in the Sandia Mountains near here.

They point to the existence of an old-timer who roamed the Rio Grande Valley with prehistoric camels and elephants. Scientists believe discovery of the Sandia Man pushes back the curtain veiling North America's early history by possibly 20,000 years.

Final acceptance of his existence by anthropologists would make the Sandia Man an earlier settler than the Folsom Man, who currently holds the title of "Oldest Inhabitant" at 10,000 years of age.

Here are some of the other famous men of anthropological times:

Peking Man, China.
Java Man, Java.
Heidelberg Man, Germany.
Piltdown Man, England.

These all lived about 500,000 years ago, and bones of them were found in the countries named.

Neanderethal Man, lived between 50,000 and 25,000 B.C. Found in Germany.

Cro-Magnon Man, lived between 200,000 and 10,000 B.C. Found in France.

His chipped stone weapons, older than those of the Folsom culture, were found by anthropologists of the University of New Mexico. The weapons were imbedded in bed rock with the remains of prehistoric mammals—the elephant, camel, ground sloth and musk oxen.

IMPORTANT FIND

Dr. Frank C. Hibben of the University of New Mexico characterized the objects as possibly the most important anthropological find in many years.

Overlooking the rock strata in which the Sandia Man's stone weapons were embedded, Dr. Hibben says, is a wide band of yellow ochre, evidence of a wet period in the continental glaciation known as the Wisconsin period. And above this sterile layer—showing it was a good deal later—were evidences of the well known, typical Folsom culture.

"Our find," says Hibben, "is without doubt the oldest evidence of man in North America which has yet been definitely established as a distinct culture—and definitely put in time-relationship to other known cultures."

By conservative estimates of historians and geologists, the Folsom culture is at least 10,000 years old. But the Sandia Man apparently makes Mr. Folsom a piker and an infant. Professor Kirk Brian, head of the Harvard Department of Geology, estimates the Sandia Man appeared on the North American continent between 17,500 and 32,500 years ago.

LOOKED LIKE INDIANS

The University of New Mexico anthropologists say the both "men"—though they lived so long ago—would differ little in appearance from many Indians in the Southwest today.

Neither Folsom nor Sandia had yet developed the bow and arrow. They used darts, the points of which constitute the only anthropological knowledge of their existence. However, there is a difference in the form of their dart points, Folsom's dart points are more improved because he had a few additional thousand years of production experience.

A number of prominent scientists have already visited the Sandia mountain cave or have inspected the stone implements found there. All approved the conclusions reached by the University of New Mexico anthropologists, or expressed the opinion they were correct, subject to further research in the "dig."

KANTO DEFEATS KANSAI RUGBY, SOCCER TEAMS

Kanto All-Stars proved superior to the Kansai All-Stars in every way in the annual intersectional rugby and soccer games played Sunday in the Kansai.

In the 13th annual rugby game played at the Hanazono grounds in Osaka, the Kanto fifteen triumphed for the 13th straight year by winning, 41 to 16. The score at halftime was 17 to 0, the Kanto ruggers scoring four tries and one goal.

Kanto scored three tries and three goals in the second half as against two tries and two goals by the Kansai fifteen.

Kanto won for the third straight year in the soccer game at the Koshien stadium, 4 goals to 1. This put the record 6 to 4 in Kanto's favor to date. Score at halftime was 2 to 0 in favor of the winners.

BASEBALL UMPS IN MANILA SAID LIBERAL

Quite the opposite of the baseball umpires in Japan, especially those of the Tokyo Six University baseball league which commands the largest following in this country, are those in Manila. The latter are liberal in their calling of strikes, those as high as the chin being strikes to the dismay of the batters who must needs go after the bad balls.

Such is the view of Tadao Ichioka, managing director of the Tokyo Giants professional club, which returned to Kobe last Saturday afternoon aboard the Nippon Yusen Kaisha liner, Kamo Maru, on the Australian service. Other sport delegations returning included the Rikkyo University basketball team and a group of professional golfers, all from Manila.

CAUSED DEFEAT

As a matter of fact, Mr. Ichioka attributed his team's two defeats to the Caramba team to the bad officiating of the chief umpire. But he had praise for this Philippine aggregation. Such a well-balanced team is unusual for an industrial club, he said. Further, it showed results of plenty of workouts. The Filipinos are excellent base runners and he more than ever realized the importance of this department of the game, Mr. Ichioka said.

Burly Rightfielder Nakajima of the Giants amazed the Filipinos with his prowess at bat by hitting a mighty homerun clear over the outfield stands in one of the games.

First Baseman and Pitcher Kawakami was the leading hitter for the Giants in the Manila series, according to Mr. Ichioka. Shortstop Shiraishi and Third Baseman Mizuhara starred afield, while Pitcher Victor Starfin did the most work on the mound.

Captain Kishi of the Rikkyo basketball team which won five games and lost three said he was impressed with the speed of the Filipino players, who are deeply influenced by the style of play in the United States, which stresses individual efforts. The Filipino players were considerably bigger than the Rikkyo representatives, and this was no easy item to overcome, he said. The Filipinos had little if any teamwork, he added.

MIYAMOTO PRAISES MACSPADEN

Tomekichi Miyamoto, well-known professional golfer who placed third in the recent Manila open tournament on the Wac Wac course, attributed his defeat to the rain on the final day, which threw his putting off stride. He expressed great praise for the winner, MacSpaden of the United States, who is ranked No. seventh in American golfing circles. He predicted selection of MacSpaden as a member of the American Ryder Cup team. Rather than a stylist, the thing that impressed him was MacSpaden's strength in tournament play, Mr. Miyamoto said.

WRECKED SHIP SURVIVORS IN KOBE

Following their thrilling rescue by the crew of the Ukishima Maru after the President Quezon hit a reef off south Japan Saturday, passengers and crew members of the Filipino-owned vessel arrived in Kobe Sunday aboard the O.S.K. liner. A total of 112 were saved by the Japanese ship complement, and they smiled a greeting to the crowds that welcomed them ashore. Speculation Rife If Davis Cup Play Will Be Held in 1940

With the outbreak of the European War, speculation is rife whether the Davis Cup matches will be held this year, according to the Yomiuri Shimbun.

It is pointed out that although it is necessary under usual procedure for Australia, winner of the 1939 competition, to designate managers of the European and American zones and have entries closed by January 31 and the draws made on February 3, nothing has yet been done by the tennis authorities "down under."

There are those favoring the cancellation of the competition this year because of the European war, but again there are others who claim that out of the 27 countries represented in the competition last year, 18 are not involved in the hostilities.

It is pointed out also that Australia will suffer considerably if the competition is held inasmuch as John Bromwich and Adrian Quist, who won the cup from the United States, will be in military service and will be unavailable for play.

Oxalic acid, in small amounts, injected in the body was found to reduce bleeding by cutting down the clotting time. Drs. Arthur Steinberg and William R. Brown, of Kensington Hospital, Philadelphia, did that.

The female sex hormone, esterone, was made synthetically by Dr. Werner E. Bachman, Dr. J. Wayne Cole and Alfred L. Wilde, of the University of Michigan.

Hundreds of laboratories engaged during the year in a search for modifications of sulfanilamide that would be effective against other diseases as sulfanilamide is against pneumonia and a number of diseases caused by streptococci. Dr. Gerhard Domagk, of Germany, won the Nobel prize for discovery of prontosil, the precursor of sulfanilamide.

Thermal hibernation as a means for relieving pain in incurable cancer was tried with success on human cases by Dr. Temple Fay and associates of Temple University. Some indications were found that the process of reducing the body's temperature to 85 degrees while the patient is kept under anesthetic for many days may have an effect in controlling the later growth of cancer tissue. The process has been used to aid narcotic addicts.

Dr. Frank Adair, of Memorial Hospital, New York, found that the made sex hormone, testosterone, relieved pain in cancer and also improved the mental attitude and physical appearance of patients.

NIUE, TINY ISOLATED PACIFIC ISLAND, BOASTS TOTAL OF 29 MOTORCARS

Shanghai Times

SHANGHAI—One of the smallest and most inaccessible islands in the world, Niue lies in the vastness the South Pacific Ocean, "a dot on the horizon" to ships that raise her. Seventeen miles long and 11 miles wide, Niue is an island of the "raised coral" type. Because of its configuration and because it is entirely surrounded by a coral reef, Niue has no harbors. Passengers and cargoes destined for the island must be taken in surf boats through a narrow passage cut in the coral reef.

Although the visitor reaching shore at Niue for the first time is doubtless prepared to see many strange customs and queer sights in this little outpost of civilization, he is somewhat taken aback when one of the first things that meets his gaze is a modern automobile. Niue boasts a fleet of 18, all Fords. Ford trucks and commercial cars dating from 1931 to 1937 account for 11 vehicles, while Ford passenger cars dating from 1928 to 1938 account for the remainder.

The residents of Niue have constructed a system of roads which enables them to utilize modern motor transportation in carrying on their two principal occupations, the production of copra and the raising of bananas.

Until recent years they depended solely on the production of copra, the dried kernel of the coconut, for a livelihood. During that period the island was almost isolated from civilization, being visited only two or three times a year by sailing vessels from Auckland, New Zealand.

Then an unprecedented decline in the market value of copra forced the islanders to turn elsewhere for the principal sources of their livelihood.

MODERN TRANSPORTATION

It was at this juncture that modern transportation, both ashore and afloat, came to the rescue. Although a coral island with an average soil depth of only six inches, uncertain rainfall and a complete absence of running streams, bananas and other tropical fruit have always grown well on Niue. Inauguration of a regular schedule from Niue to the port of Wellington, N. Z., by the Government motor vessel Maui Pomare provided frequent refrigerated cargo service, enabling the islanders to capitalize on the banana crop. Annual shipments for the New Zealand market soon reached thirty thousand cases, and Nieueans had a new source of income to replace the devaued copra.

Improvement of land transportation on the island was almost simultaneous with the coming of the steamer. The Maui Pomare was launched at Dublin in September 1927. The first of the present fleet of 18 Ford cars appeared on Niue in 1928.

230 ENTERED IN SPEED SKATING EVENTS

Hokkaido, Tohoku, Kanto, Tokyo, Chubu, Kansai, Korea and Manchuria will be districts represented in the remaining speed skating events of the 10th Meiji Shrine Games of last fall to begin February 2 for three days at Kamisuwa, Nagano prefecture. A total of 230 athletes are expected to compete.

The meet is the third to be staged as a part of the Meiji Shrine Games and entrants will double that of the last championships.

The records follow, the first named being those of the Shrine Games and the second of the national books:

MAP-CHANGING NEW U.S. DAM BRINGS BENEFITS

Federal Flood-Control Project in Famous Red River Valley Proceeds

Christian Science Monitor

DENISON, Texas—The second largest earthen dam, and the third largest of any description, is now under construction at Denison on Red River, border line between Texas and Oklahoma, as a feature of the Federal flood-control, navigation and power production development of Red River, and as a major factor in the omnibus flood-control measure authorized by Congress June 9, 1938.

Clearing the land for the site of the $50,000,000 Denison dam is a completed contract. Excavation of 3,000,000 cubic yards of earth for the installation of eight concrete conduits is well under way.

The Denison dam will control floods from the Red River above Denison. Flood protection will benefit lands in four states, Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, and Arkansas. The Denison dam is the keystone of the Red River Valley improvement. Smaller dams are planned for its tributaries.

The dam at Denison will make possible navigation for Red River, providing water freight connections from the Middle West to the Atlantic Coast which will open the immensely rich iron ore field in the Jefferson, Texas, area. North Texas will be able to compete with its manufactures in retail markets of the larger cities, through cheap water shipment that in turn will locate many factories along the river. Cheap electric power will add to the commercial value of the location.

The magnitude of the project may be better understood when it is learned that it will take from five to six years to build, and will employ around 4,000 persons at the peak of activities. Labor is being drawn from Texas and Oklahoma re-employment offices. The dam will cover 142,000 acres of land in the two States and will inundate four towns to a depth of 130 feet. The towns are Aylesworth and Woodville, Okla., Hagerman and Preston, Texas.

Besides the relocating of homes and schools and business houses, the relocation of railroads, highways and utilities of the reservoir area will be effected through the co-operation of the Government and property owners. The United States is buying land for the reservoir, and is beng very liberal with prices for personal possessions. The Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad has completed plans for relocating its 9.5 miles of track and the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway is arranging for relocation of 18.5 miles. U. S. Highway 70 will require nine miles of reconstruction, and Highway 99 seven miles.

The immense lake will cover places known to United States history. At Preston there is a house, 100 years old, called Glen Eden, that was the home of Col. Holland Coffee, built in 1836 when Texas was a Republic. Such celebrities as Gen. Robert E. Lee, Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, Gen. Fitzhugh Lee and Gen. Albert Sidney Johnston, then commander of Fort Washita, have been guests there. The old house is kept beautified and preserved by the Denison Garden Club and is a mecca for tourists. Here also is the first Methodist Church to be erected in North Texas. Riverside School is an ancient structure that gave prominent National and State figures their lessons in the three R's. Splendid farms that produce blue-ribbon hogs and top crops of wheat will be inundated. Old Indian cemeteries will be obliterated.

The Denison dam for flood control and navigation was first visualized by George Moulton and the late Dr. A. W. Acheson about 15 years ago, though power and irrigation and other benefits were subsequently advocated.

In 1929 the Red River Flood Control and Navigation Association was organized at Denison, with Orville Bullington of Wichita Falls as President. From this has grown the Red River Valley improvement Association, with membership in the four States affected. Through the efforts of the organization the proposal was placed before Congress. Through the untiring efforts of Congressman Sam Rayburn of Bonham, near Denison, now majority leader in the House of Representatives at Washington, final approval of the project was made and the Denison dam became a part of the national flood control program. Nearly $7,000,000 has already been allocated to the project by the Government since authorization.

ROOSEVELT HOPES TO KEEP PEACE

President Roosevelt as he personally delivered his message to Congress when it reconvened on January 3, voicing America's hope of remaining at peace but at the same time recommending emergency measures for defense and means for cooperating with other nations "to encourage the kind of peace that will lighten the troubles of the world."

CHANCE FOR PEACE IN NEAR FUTURE SEEN SLIGHT IN FRENCH CAPITAL

By JOHN ELLIOTT

N.Y. Herald Tribune

PARIS—As the New Year wears on one question stands out in the mind of every one, whether in a belligerent or neutral country—what is the chance for peace?

The recent speech of Pope Pius XII naming his five-point peace program and the action of President Roosevelt in appointing Myron C. Taylor as his special representative to the Vatican have naturally given rise to considerable speculation as to the possibility of peace overtures in the near future.

In the judgment of the writer, however, peace talk at present is premature. The gulf between the two camps is at the moment too wid to be bridged.

Contrast, for instance, the recent addresses by Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, Nazi Minister of Propaganda and Public Enlightenment, and Edouard Daladier, Premier of France, both of whom are authoritative spokesmen of their respective countries.

Speaking over the radio in a Christmas broadcast, the Nazi Propaganda Minister declared: "The Reich's very existence is at stake. Either we resign as a great power or we win."

In almost identical terms, talking in the Chamber of Deputies a few days previously, the French Premier asserted: "It is the life of France that is at stake—we are fighting for the salvation of France."

DEFEATISTS DISCREDITED

The French Premier voiced the convictions of the majority of his countrymen. There is, as Daladier admitted in the same speech, defeatist propaganda of two kinds going on in France. There is the Nazi propaganda disseminating in the elegant salons of Paris which whispers that if the war continues, only Josef Stalin will be the victor and Bolshevism will be universal.

And at the other end of the social scale there is the Communist propaganda, rampant in the factories, which contends that this is simply a conflict between rival imperialisms in which the workers are bound to lose, no matter which side wins.

Both kinds of propaganda differ in regard to their premises, but they agree in their conclusion—namely, that France should lay down her arms immediately.

The French defeatists at the moment, however, are discredited in the country and are in a decided minority. They have only the same nuisance value that the "Copperheads" had in the American Civil War. It was the "Copperheads" who opposed Abraham Lincoln's endeavors to prosecute the conflict to a successful conclusion and wanted an early peace, even if it involved the breakup of the Union and the perpetuation of slavery.

The impotence of defeatism at present in France is reflected in the unanimous votes by which both the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies accepted Finance Minister Paul Reynaud's first war budget. The powerful influence of former Premier Leon Blum has been of great service in rallying the French Socialism party and most of the workers to support the war.

In the World War, Clemenceau "The Father of Victory," declared that the side held out the last quarter of an hour would be the victor. Paraphrasing his words, Reynaud told the Chamber that the decision in this war would go to the side that had the greater will power to see it through.

FRANCE STANDS FIRM

So far, there is no visible weakening of France's determination to see it through to the end. French public opinion on the whole is alive to the fact that a peace on the basis of the status quo would mean that Fuehrer Adolf Hitler, with the spoils of Poland in his pocket, would emerge triumphant with increased prestige and that in a short time this life-and-death struggle between two diametrically opposed conceptions of international life would have to be renewed, with the odds next time on the side of the aggressor.

Discussing President Roosevelt's appointment of Mr. Taylor as his envoy to the Vatican, the authoritative "Le Temps" observes: "The American press does not omit to point out with emphasis that to ask Great Britain and France to sit down at the same conference table with Hitler to discuss peace under present circumstances would be to ask the Allies to renounce their increasing military advantages and not admit that they were wrong to make war on Germany."

Given this will to victory of the French and British, it seems clear that nothing short of the complete defeat of the Nazi armies on the battlefield will bring peace during the coming year.

Horiguchi May Fight Eagle of Philippines Here in Late February

Tokyo boxing fans are in for a rare treat if negotiations presently being made for a fight between Tsuneo (Piston) Horiguchi, Japan's best known scrapper, and Joe Eagle of the Philippines materialize. It is said that the bout may be staged at the Kokugikan bowl at Ryogoku late in February.

It will be recalled that Horiguchi and Eagle fought for what was ballyhooed as the featherweight championship of the Far East at the Kokugikan a few years ago, with the Filipino emerging the victor after a rip-snorting fight.

Horiguchi staged a sensational comeback on January 4 this year by outpointing Umio Gen, able Korean battler, in a 12-rounder to avenge his defeat at the latter's hands last May.

Negotiations Under Way For Italian Boxing Team To Come Here in Fall

As its share in the celebration this year of the 2,600th anniversary of the Empire, the All-Japan Amateur Boxing Federation is negotiating for the visit of an Italian boxing team here next September and October, it was revealed Tuesday.

Tentative plans call for a team of five boxers, from bantamweight to welterweight, and a coach.

Italian amateur boxers are said to rank next to the Germans in Europe in ability.

Negotiations are being conducted with Eduardo Mazzia, secretary of the Italian Amateur Boxing Federation.

BIG SKYSCRAPERS FOUND ECONOMIC FAILURES IN U.S.

Buildings Over 20 Stories Are Said Not Paying; Other Reports Disagree

Christian Science Monitor

CHICAGO—The question as to whether the age of the skyscraper is over—that is, the age of building them—comes up here again under interesting circumstances. The main point is that office building occupancy today in the nation is at the highest point since 1931.

First, is a release from Herbert U. Nelson, Executive Vice-President of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, who suggests, and he admits it is an arbitrary suggestion, that office buildings be henceforth limited to eight stories. He says that the high buildings, the really high ones, over 20 stories, "have proved on the whole to be economic failures." His suggestion is a compromise.

He adds also that piling buildings up beyond a certain limit increases inconvenience to tenants and causes congestion and parking problems. And he voices other arguments having to do with aesthetics, and the human reaction to man-dwarfing structures.

However, there come simultaneously from two other sources the results of office-space occupancy surveys showing that these buildings, some of them certainly the ones Mr. Nelson says are economic failures, are from 82 to 84 per cent occupied. The Mortgage Bankers Association says that in 64 cities in 31 States the occupancy is 84.8. The National Association of Building Owners and Managers says that in 106 cities it is 82.35.

LOOKING AT THE RECORD

Now this percentage of occupancy is encouragingly large. Let's go back over the records of the Building Owners Association. In 1924 in 23 cities the vacancy was 9.85 per cent. Ten per cent is considered "normal." Up until the end of 1926 it stayed around that figure, considered very good, in fact a reason for the large amount of building in that period and the subsequent decline. From then on though vacancies increased steadily, 11 per cent in 1929, for example, 23 per cent in 1932, and then the high point in vacancies, 27.57 per cent in January 1934.

It is notable that the most vacancies occurred in 1934, more than a year after the low-point in the Nation's economic slump, and that since then the improvement has been steady, with no fluctuations, even in 1937 and 1938, when the business machine as a whole felt a rise, then another abrupt drop. The biggest improvement was from January, 1936, to October of the same year, a change from 24.11 to 21.38 vacancy.

The Association notes that the lack of building during the past ten years of course would be expected to pile up tenants in existing buildings with the general business improvement. Then too, rental rates have something to do with the number of tenants, though rates are not such as to encourage an occupancy any higher than the normal business level would warrant.

THINGS TO CONSIDER

But Mr. Nelson's eight-story building. It must be remembered that he is talking in terms of return on the investment rather than occupancy. It is conceivable that a 100-story building might be 90 per cent occupied and still be a "white elephant." Then there is the matter of convenience to the tenant, and to the community as a whole.

Any height limitation would, it is admitted, have to take into consideration the size and needs of the community and the availability of space in the business area. One expert said that perhaps Omaha, Neb., for example, could stand some even higher buildings, while Detroit can't use all those it has.

Th occupancy improvement, says the Association, "discloses underlying strength and encourages the belief that whereas in the past the rental trend has shown a tendency to resist unfavorable developments, it may in the future tend to amplify the effects of increasing industrial activity."

Keio-Waseda Volleyball Game Slated April 29

The sixth annual volleyball game between Keio and Waseda universities will be played on April 29, the Emperor's Birthday, at the Hamamatsu-cho courts, according to announcement on Tuesday.

Graduates of both institutions will play in a curtain-raiser at 1 p.m.

U.S. STATES SHOW VARIED ABILITY TO PAY RELIEF

New York Gives Average Of $34.28, But Oklahoma Only Donates $3.38 Total

Christian Science Monitor

CHICAGO—If an individual or family "case" applies for public assistance in New York State, the average amount received will be $34.28. But if the individual or family happens to live in Oklahoma, the average amount will be $3.38. In both cases this is providing that the States are paying on the scale of last August.

Does the difference between these two average payments—the highest and the lowest in the national range—represent variation in cost and standard of living in the two States? The Council of State Governments thinks living costs have some bearing, but it insists that they cannot possibly explain such wide variations as are to be found in the average allowances of the 48 Commonwealths. It bases its findings on a study of the Social Security Board's records. Its theory is that the differences are due to the varying ability of States to pay.

"It seems evident that the main reason lies in the ability of States to raise funds from their own resources," comments the Council.

Cost of administration does not enter into these figures, for they do not include expenditures for pay roll, materials and equipment incidental to the handling of relief.

REGIONAL PROBLEMS COUNT

On the other hand, regional conditions appear to be an important factor. Fourteen States reported as making an average case allowance of less than $10 a month, the minimum group, are all in the South. The 11 highest States, all paying more than $20 a month are all eastern with the exception of California and Minnesota.

Do relief clients fare better when the State finances their payments than when this responsibility is assumed by localities? The Council's study indicates that there is very little relationship between method of financing and size of budgets. The State pays the whole cost of general relief in both Arkansas and Pennsylvania, but Arkansas stands second from the bottom in its case payments—$4.75 a month average—while Pennsylvania is next to the top with an average of $30.70.

On the other hand, in the group of States in which the local community finances the entire burden are both Florida and Vermont. But Florida is in the low-budget group with an average case payment of $6.98 a month, while Vermont is in the high-budget category with average payments of $21.16.

STATES SHARE BURDEN

The commonest method of financing is for State and local governments to share the burden. This distribution of responsibility is practiced in 31 States. But the formulas for sharing responsibility vary greatly, the Council finds.

In Virginia, for example, State allocations are made ot Counties on a population basis, and County officials must be ready to match every State dollar with 60 cents in local funds.

West Virginia grants funds to Counties on the basis of need, but only after 15 per cent of total County tax levies have been spent for welfare or relief purposes.

Wisconsin helps the Counties only when they need it. Last April, local units in that State carried 90 per cent of the load.

ON HEELS OF TERRIFIC BLIZZARD

Scenes like the above are common in Kanazawa City, Ishikawa prefecture, where 11 feet of snow blanketed streets during the recent storm. Top, citizens fight to clear the streets of drifts. Lower, a buried telephone booth is dug out.

COACHES URGE FOUR RULE CHANGES; MORE FIELD GOAL KICKING SOUGHT

N.Y. Times

LOS ANGELES—Field goal kicking, somewhat of a lost art in football, will be encouraged in 1940 if a proposal made by a country-wide committee of coaches is adopted by the national rules body.

The thirty-man board representing the American Football Coaches' Association opened a three-day convention of mentors, athletic directors and members of the National Collegiate Athletic Association by agreeing on four proposed changes in gridiron rules.

Topping the list of recommendations to be made to the rules committee meeting at Palm Springs, Calif., was a proposal to widen and lower the goal posts.

The coaches' committee, headed by Lou Little of Columbia as president of the association, left the mathematical adjustments of the posts and bar to the rules group. They merely proposed that more space and less height be provided.

OTHER PROPOSALS

The coaches voted approval of three other proposed changes:

Reduce from 15 to 5 yards the penalty for and ineligible man catching or being hit by a pass behind the goal line. Two years ago the penalty was loss of the ball. Last year it was changed to a penalty of 15 yards with retention of the ball.

Reduce the size of present truncated shoe cleats from one-half inch to three-eighths of an inch at the point. The half-inch cleat, adopted last year, was opposed on ground it was so thick it failed to provide quick pivoting.

Maintain rules clinics and enforce physical examination of game officials. The general opinion was that some officials were so slow they got in the way of players.

The committee also recommended adoption of a universal rule for high-school games making twelve-minute, instead of fifteen-minute, quarters compulsory.

The recommendations will be presented to the rules body by an advisory committee of coaches consisting of Little Harry Stuhldreher of Wisconsin, James Phelan of the University of Washington and Dick Harlow of Harvard.

WARNER FAVORS CHANGE

Several of the proposals were discussed on the floor by the coaches.

Glenn Scobey (Pop) Warner, second only to Amos Alonzo Stagg in point of coaching years, favored modification of the present pass rule.

"It will help the offense greatly and, personally, I think it would not tend to increase the risk of injuries," Warner said. "The professionals and many high school teams throw passes from anywhere behind the line, with the result they turn in more interesting games."

Warner, serving as advisory coach at San Jose State College after thirty-three years in "big time" football, added: "I'm sort of timid about proposing rule changes now. Every time I make some proposal some of the other coaches think I have something up my sleeve which will help my particular style of play."

Coach Tex Oliver of Oregon had the same thought. Oliver pointed out that a high school player has to "relearn" the regulations on entering college, and then if he goes into pro ball has to readjust himself again.

Claude (Tiny) Thornhill, who represents Stanford although his contract will not be resumed after March 1, pleaded for a six-man line on offense instead of seven.

Horiguchi to Fight Eagle on Feb. 15

Joe Eagle, one time featherweight boxing champion of the Far East, will meet Tsunco (Piston) Horiguchi, premier pugilist in Japan, in a 12-round bout on February 15 at the Kokugikan bowl in Ryogoku, according to announcement Wednesday.

It will be the third fight between the two. The Filipino was victorious in the first but Horiguchi took the decision in the second.

If Eagle is in any shape, the bout should be a battle royal. Horiguchi early this month scored an impressive victory over Umio Gen, able Korean battler, in a 12 rounder.

NO DRASTIC CHANGES SEEN FOR SPORTS

The new regime in the Education Ministry plans no drastic changes in the sports activities of the education institutions, it became known Wednesday at the discussion between Athletic Director Ogasawara of the Education Ministry and representatives of various sports organizations.

Common sense and an aim to see that sports will not interfere with the scholastic requirements of the students will be the guiding elements. This is a far cry from the policy of former Education Vice-Minister Ishiguro who planned revolutionary changes in the Tokyo Six University Baseball league. Mr. Ishiguro would have banned further games at the Meiji Shrine stadium and effected a drastic shortening in the schedule. And games on week days would have been taboo.

While Mr. Ogasawara is of the opinion that week day games of the Tokyo Six University league, the Tokyo Collegiate league and the Kansai Six University league should not be held, he is said to be willing to countenance them when necessary after school hours.

Schedules for the year are to be submitted by the sports organizations to the Education Ministry by the first of March for formal approval.

Irene Dunne to Star In 'First Woman Doctor'

Irene Dunne will be starred in "The First Woman Doctor," a forthcoming Columbia production based on the life of Elizabeth Blackwell, the English girl who was the first woman to obtain a medical degree and practice medicine. Miss Blackwell's life during the period between 1832 and 1910 is a precedent shattering chronicle of a woman's struggle in a realm heretofore dominated by men.

Negotiations are now under way to engage Lloyd C. Douglas to do the story and screen play. If these are consumated it will be the first screen play written by Douglas, other than for his own novels. Everett Riskin will be the producer.

Miss Dunne was last seen under Columbia's banner as the star in "The Awful Truth." Some of the important productions she has starred in are "Back Street", "Showboat", "Roberta", "Magnificent Obsession", "Love Affair" and "When Tomorrow comes."

'STREAMLINED' ARMY DISCUSSED

Mellifluous Phrases and Neat Illustrations Impress Public With Progress of Science

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK—From sub-Arctic Alaska to sunny Caribbean shores, from Maine to California, the "streamlined service" that is the United States Army today is pictured in detail in a fifty-three-page pamphlet released by the army recruiting bureau at Governors Island.

Published under the direction of Major Thomas B. Woodburn, the "army artist," and designed to encourage recruiting, the new pamphlet is described as one of the most informative treatises on the nation's land forces that the recruiting service has ever introduced to the public. With the familiar poster of "streamlined Miss Columbia" on the cover emblazoning the historic parade of American soldiery from the Revolutionary fighter to the modern military man, the booklet gives a graphic and complete picture of the nation's "new" army.

EVIDENCE OF ARMY PROGRESS

Bearing the title "Service With the Colors," the publication is viewed by army officials here as evidence anew that the fighting service has become a modern and efficient organization completely in step with the promotion measures of the times.

The fact that the army is "streamlining" both soldier and system is emphasized by recruiting officers, who point to the pamphlet's description of the corps as merely the latest effort to "streamline" the entire service. Already many of the colorfully caparisoned troops, whether the officer in his flowing blue cape and gold or the "rookie" in his visored cap and the fourragere of the First Division, have been molded into streamlined soldiers, while more important indications of the trend, according to officers here, are the incorporation of the five new "streamlined" divisions into a mobile, hard-hittting corps.

General modernization of the nation's entire military machine is also cited in the authorized increase of the army to 227,000, the large-scale winter maneuvers designed primarily to mold every member of the service into an efficient fighter, the purchase within recent months of four government-owned ships to enable swifter and more comfortable transit for army troops, the re-enactment of the bonus plan for re-enlistments, and in comparatively minor aspects even the adoption of modern promotion measures for recruiting and the use of mellifluous catch-words to impress the army upon the nation.

In reviewing the fighting force of the army's field and flying units the new booklet outlines the twelve divisions in army activity and the descriptions, whether they are the story of the Air Corps, the infantry, or any other branch, seek to "streamline" the corps without losing the old army spirit of '76 and '61.

AIR CORPS MAN A SPECIALIST

Speaking of the Air Corps soldier the booklet describes him as not merely a man who can handle guns and pilot the army's giant flying fortresses, but one who is also a technical specialist in the field of aerial photography, airplane maintenance, armament, meteorology, radio or similar aeronautical duties.

Ambitious, well-educated, the air service soldier, even as a private holding a first class mechanic's rating, receives nearly three times as much pay as does the first class private in the ordinary unit.

Under the anomalous insignia of the crossed sabers the mechanized cavalry is reviewed particularly in the light of modern military demands of the "metal mount" rather than the balky mule, although some attention is paid to the traditional role of Dobbin even in the machine army of today.

Other branches of the army, from the chemical warfare service, through the coast artillery, engineers, field artillery, infantry and to the remaining units of the military arm, receive similar reviews. The story of each service—yesterday and today—is told separately.

The booklet is offered primarily to young men of enlistment age who are anxious to make a career of military service and to any organization which seeks to solve the economic problems of young men throughout the country, according to an announcement by recruiting officers.

GREET IMPERIAL FLAG DONATED TO MEET

Photo shows athletes from all sections of the country lined up at the Kamisuwa station, Nagano prefecture, Thursday to receive the Imperial flag given to the figure and speed skating and ice hockey events of the 10th Meiji Shrine Games. The meet was slated to start today at the Tadenoumi outdoor rink.

UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO QUITS INTERCOLLEGIATE FOOTBALL

N.Y. Times

CHICAGO, Dec. 21—The University of Chicago, in the past one of the powers of the Western Conference, tonight decided to abandon intercollegiate football.

The decision to drop the sport, in which Chicago ranked high for nearly half a century, was made upon a unanimous vote of the university board of trustees in a meeting tonight. The action was announced by Harold Swift, chairman of the board, and Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the university.

The board's statement included the suggestion that all of the university's football opponents for the 1940 season release the Maroon eleven from the scheduled engagements.

Only Tuesday night T. Nelson Metcalf, athletic director at Chicago, announced next season's program, listing eight games and including three with other members of the Big Ten.

1940 GAMES ARRANGED

This schedule follows:

Sept. 28, Wabash; Oct. 5, De Pauw; Oct. 12, Miami at Miami, Ohio; Oct. 19, Purdue at Lafayette, Ind.; Nov. 2, Michigan; Nov. 9, Ohio State at Columbus; Nov. 16, Virginia; Nov. 23, Brown at Providence.

The Big Ten opponents on this card are Purdue, Michigan and Ohio State.

STAGG RETIRED IN 1933

Mr. Metcalf expressed himself as surprised by the announcement, although admitting he was aware of the proposed abandonment yesterday. Clark D. Shaughnessy, who has coached football on the Midway since Amos Alonzo Stagg was retired in 1933, was the most astounded figure involved in the sudden move, stating he was unaware of it until today.

Shaughnessy said he had made no plans for the future and could not comment on the move. When asked if he would remain as a member of the faculty, he said:

"I can't be sure of anything; as far as I know, I will remain with the university."

He appeared to be under great strain.

Mr. Metcalf said he had expected some action, because of the controversies created by Chicago's poor showing in football in recent years, but that he had not known until yesterday that the trustees were planning to abolish intercollegiate competition.

"I had hoped to get the opinions of all the other Western Conference athletic directors before any publicity was given the trustees' action," Mr. Metcalf said. "In so far as I know, the university will continue to engage in Conference competition in all other sports, but I cannot be sure of that until I learn whether or not the other schools will consent to meet the Maroons in those sports and not in football."

TEXT OF STATEMENT

A statement by Mr. Swift and Dr. Hutchins read:

The university believes in athletics and in a comprehensive program of physical education for all students. It believes its articular interests and conditions are such that its students now derive no special benefit from intercollegiate football.

The university looks upon all sports as games which are conducted under its auspices for the recreation of the students.

The university will continue to promote intramural sports and will encourage all students to participate in them.

This emphasis on athletics for all students at the university has been steadily increasing during the last fifteen years, and there are more students taking part in the twelve intramural sports now sponsored by the university than ever before.

EFFECT ON OTHER SPORTS

The university trusts that its withdrawal from intercollegiate football will not require termination of its long and satisfactory relationship with the other members of the intercollegiate conference known as the Big Ten.

The University of Chicago at present is the only institution in the Big Ten that competes in all thirteen sports sponsored by the conference.

Except for football, the university will continue to maintain intercollegiate teams in all sports which the conference sponsors. The decision is effective at once and institutions with which football games have been scheduled for 1940 and 1941 will be asked to release the university.

Matsuki Appointed Osaka Tigers' Manager

Kenjiro Matsuki, star first baseman of the Osaka Tigers professional baseball club, has been appointed manager to succeed Hideichi Ishimoto, who resigned recently, it was announced Thursday. Matsuki has been assistant manager for several seasons.

Captain Tadashi "Bozo" Wakabayashi, former star pitcher of Hosei University, has been promoted to assistant manager. He will also retain his duties as captain.

PRINCE CHICHIBU WILL ATTEND ICE EVENTS

His Imperial Highness Prince Chichibu will attend the events on the closing day of the ice events of the 10th Meiji Shrine Games next Sunday at Kamisuwa, Nagano prefecture, with the view to encouraging better health efforts among the nation. His Highness is honorary president of the Games.

His Highness is scheduled to leave from Shinjuku station at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, arriving at Kamisuwa station at 8:39 p.m. the same day. His Highness will spend the night at the Katakura Inn on the shores of Lake Kamisuwa. After praying at the Kamisuwa Shrine the next morning, His Highness will attend the finals of the various events, which include:

Women's open 2,000-meter race.
Men's open 5,000-meter race.
Men's and women's open free figure skating.
Ice hockey finals.
Women's open 1,600-meter relay.
Men's open 2,000-meter relay.

His Highness is scheduled to leave Kamisuwa station by the 4:31 p.m. train Sunday, returning to Shinjuku station at 8:46 p.m. the same day.

There is a possibility that His Highness may himself take to the skates, which will be for the first time in 18 years at Kamisuwa.

Some 220 athlets from the Hokkaido, Tohoku, Kanto, Tokyo, Chubu and Kansai districts, Korea, Kwantung Leased Territory and Manchoukuo are slated to compete.

Argentina Now Seeks Trade With America

Christian Science Monitor

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina—A high Argentine official said recently that Argentina had offered "substantial concessions" concerning imports from the United States in an effort to arrive at a reciprocal trade treaty with the northern Republic.

These concessions, which have not been made public, were delivered to United States Ambassador Norman Armour. They amounted to counter-proposals to previous United States proposals which Argentina had found unsatisfactory.

Treaty negotiations center now on a reply awaited from Washington, where President Roosevelt, Secretary Hull and others conferred recently, Argentine sources said. It was believed here the Washington conferences dealt with the proposed Argentine pact.

Argentina was said to be particularly interested in the question of United States imports of Argentine canned meats and flax. It was asserted here that both items might provoke "political agitation" and that this made a decision by the United States Administration difficult at this time.

An Argentine official reflected, however, that "if some effort comes from Washington, we probably would re-examine our position in an effort to reach an agreement."

Time is regarded as an important factor as powers granted the United States Administration under the Reciprocal Trade Treaty Act expire June 12. Negotiations are virtually at a standstill now.

Among matters holding up agreement was the reluctance of Argentine negotiators to accept a United States proposal for import quotas on linseed and other restrictions on Argentine products.

Argentina feels an agreement must assure a reasonable volume of sales to the United States to give importers enough foreign exchange to buy United States goods.

NEW RECORDS GALORE IN SPEED SKATING MEET

One record after another went by the boards Friday in the opening day's events of the three-day speed skating championships at the Tadenoumi outdoor course at Kamisuwa, Nagano prefecture, of the 10th Meiji Shrine Games.

First to hang up a new national record was Miss Makiko Nawate of Manchoukuo who negotiated the 500-meters in 50.6 seconds, smashing the record of 51.8 seconds registered by Miss Yaeko Ejima of Manchoukuo in 1938. Second in the race was Miss Kiyo Sakamoto of the Hokkaido whose time was 51.2 seconds, also under the former national record. Miss Ejima, the record holder, was third in 52.3 seconds.

The Shrine Games records in the men's 3,000 and 5,000 meter events were smashed in the trials held Friday, as follows:

3,000 meters: first heat—1.—Boku Juntetsu, Manchoukuo, 5 mins. 1.7 secs.; 2.—Ri Kosho, Korea, 5 mins. 2.2 secs.; 3.—Yasuji Komaya, Chubu, 5 mins. 2.9 secs. The first two times smashed the national record of 5 mins. 2.9 seconds set by Kin Seifuchi in 1936; second heat—1. Katsuhisa Yamashita, Tokyo, 5 mins. 5.4 secs.; 2.—An Juteru, Korea, 5 mins. 6.3 secs.; 3.—Cho Yushoku, Kanto, 5 mins. 6.3 secs.; all foregoing times are better than existing Shrine Games record of 5 mins. 15.7 secs. set by Cho Yushoku in 9th Games.; third heat—1. Kunio Nando, Tokyo, 5 mins. 6.1 secs.; 2.—Isamu Katabatake, Manchoukuo, 5 mins. 6.2 secs.; 3.—Kin Seiri, Korea, 5 mins. 6.2 secs., all times bettering Shrine Games record.

5,000 meters: first heat—Kunio Nando, Tokyo, 8 mins. 53.2 secs.; 2.—Boku Juntetsu, Manchoukuo, 8 mins. 53.5 secs.; 3—Ri Kosho, Korea, 8 mins. 53.8 secs., all times bettering Shrine Games record of 9 mins. 0.1 sec. set by Cho Yushoku in 9th Games.; second heat—1. Cho Yushoku, Kanto, 8 mins. 54.2 secs.; 2.—Yoshio Ushijima, Manchoukuo, 8 mins. 58.6 secs., both times bettering Shrine Games record.

Go Abe of Tokyo won the men's 500-meter race in 44.2 seconds. Second was Shin Naito of Manchoukuo in 44.3 seconds. Third was Katsuhisa Yamashita of Tokyo in 44.4 seconds.

Results of the first round of the ice hockey championships follow:

Kanto (Rikkyo University) defeated Kansai, 2 goals to 1.

All-Dairen defeated Tohoku University, 22 goals to 0.

Tokyo (Meiji University) defeated Hokkaido, 6 goals to 3.

Captain Tells

officer and five seamen remained on the launch, which was moored to our gangway.

The armed steamer reached a point roughly two miles from our ship at 1:30 p.m. There she turned back and disappeared.

One of the three boarding officers was in the uniform of a first lieutenant. He looked about 32 years old. The three officers and several seamen came on deck and demanded to see me. I saw them on the deck under the navigation bridge and asked why the warship stopped us.

They replied that it was because we carried enemy nationals among our passengers and asked us to deliever them. When I asked who were the "enemy" nationals, they said that they meant the Germans on board the ship. They said, they were authorized by international law to remove them.

CAPTAIN REFUSES

I refused the request, saying that the ship was an international ship and that Germans could not be delivered on the mere ground that they were their "enemies," because whether or not they had military duties was not ascertained.

To which the boarding sailors said that they recognized them as contrabands. I said that there might be civilians, women and children among the German passengers and that I could not regard them as contraband. As I again refused, the British sailors said that as belligerents they were authorized by international law and seize law, which was declared last winter to take away the Germans. I said that I could not comply with their request because I did not recognize their right to do so.

INCIDENTS CITED

For instance, I said, when I brought Germans from Europe last fall after the outbreak of the present European war aboard the Haruna Maru, I never received such a request either at Singapore or Hongkong. Therefore, I said, I could not accept their request even though it was made in the open sea.

At this, they demanded that a roll-call be held. I could not refuse this because the ship was in the open sea. The chief mate, the purser and a clerk attended the roll-call. I was not present at it but was informed about it later.

According to what I was told later, the boarding party caused the German passengers to be assembled in the saloon and examined the passenger list. After consulting a list which he had brought, the chief boarding officer checked 21 passengers of German nationality and wanted to see them because, he said, he wanted to take them away.

PASSPORT DEMANDED

Hermann H. Gross, captain of a tanker, was the first to be asked to show his passport. After identifying him with his picture on the passport, the officer said that he was going to capture him. Before he left the saloon, Mr. Gross said something to other German passengers, who began to be perturbed. Then the nine seamen produced revolvers. The Germans, however, showed no signs of resistance.

Other Germans showed their passports. After 21 Germans were identified, 30 others remained, who were only asked if they had military duties and documents related to their professions.

The chief boarding officer came to me and said that he was going to take the 21 men. When I asked him if he considered them contraband, he replied in the affirmative and said that he had proofs of their being contraband.

Because I had no documents to prove to the contrary I had to yield. The Germans were taken aboard the warship in two groups, 16 men were removed at 2:09 p.m. and then the six others. They were allowed to carry their suit-cases and other articles of immediate necessity. At this time the warship was near the starboard stern of our ship.

SAILED AWAY

At 2:36 p.m., the warship sailed away and signalled our ship to sail. At 2:38 p.m. our ship was heading for Yokohama at full speed.

The boarding party took away all Germans of officers' ranks, and six seamen and stokers, who were recognized efficient as engineers, officers and trice operators.

61 PER CENT IN ENGLAND BACK STATE IN WAY IT CONDUCTS WAR, SURVEY SAYS

N.Y. Times

LONDON—Sixty-one per cent of the public in England is satisfied with the government's conduct of the war, while 18 per cent is "dissatisfied," according to a survey by the British Institute of Public Opinion.

The result of the British survey was released here recently by the American Institute of Public Opinion, of which Dr. George Gallup is director. The statement follows:

"A special survey of public sentiment in England shows that a majority of British voters polled are satisfied with the government's conduct of the war against Germany.

"Approximately three-fifths of those polled expressed satisfaction. Another one-fifth said they were dissatisfied with the progress of the war, while the remainder expressed no opinion or said they felt the war should be stopped.

"The survey question was:

"'Are you satisfied or dissatisfied with the government's conduct of the war?'

"The vote was:

Satisfied	61%
Dissatisfied	18%
Stop the war	11%
No opinion	10%

	Government Voters	Opposition Voters
Satisfied	74%	46%
Dissatisfied	10	31
Stop the war	5	14
No opinion	11	9

"While voters favoring the present Chamberlain government expressed satisfaction with the conduct of the war by a vote of more than 7 to 3, those of the Opposition parties were more evenly divided in sentiment, less than half saying they were satisfied."

Navy Blockade

blockade so as to cut off completely the supply route for the enemy and cooperated with the Army forces in aforesaid operations against the enemy.

OCCUPIED HAINAN ISLAND

"For instance, in February, 1939, the naval forces occupied Hainan Island which forms the most important position for dominating South and Central China. At the same time, the naval forces also cooperated with the Army forces in clean-up campaigns near Haichow which is now under Japanese control.

"In June, Swatow and its vicinity were reduced thus cutting off the main supply route in South China, especially in Kwangtung province.

"Twelve ports including Fuchow, and Wenchow in Fukien, Kwantung, Chiekiang were closed to navigation so as to cut off the important supply routes along the southeastern coast.

"In November, the naval forces effected a surprise landing on a certain point near the bay of Annan thus cutting off the supply route for transhipment of war materials through French Indo-China to Kwangsi province.

"As the result of the aforesaid operations, the Japanese naval forces are now completely dominating the entire Chinese coast extending over 2,800 miles. Therefore, there is no port left unclosed along the China coast for utilization by the enemy.

"In the meantime, the naval air forces also continued their strenuous efforts in conducting reconnaissance from the air and in bombing enemy's military establishments along the China coast and it is noteworthy that the Japanese naval air forces gained a satisfactory war result in their operations on a large scale near Nanchang.

"Carrying out a long distance flight, the naval air forces effected fierce raids on important positions of the enemy in remote places. They attacked Chungking, Chengtu, Kunming, Lanchow, Sian and other places inflicting heavy damages to the enemy. During the period between May and August last year, they effected a series of raids on Chungking, thus throwing the enemy into complete confusion.

"Since the occupation of Nanning at the end of last year, various places in Southwestern China were repeatedly raided by the Japanese naval air forces. During the raids on these places including Kweilin and Yuchow, about 50 Chinese planes were either shot down or destroyed by Japanese planes. During the raids Japanese planes bombed the railway leading to Kunming from French Indo-China and destroyed railway bridges and several sections of the line thus completely cutting off the war-material supply route for the enemy and demolishing the enemy's air forces.

"Under such circumstances, the enemy's marine supply routes were completely cut off and the enemy seems to be greatly exhausted as the result of repeated raids by Japanese planes on Lanchow, Kunming and other important places which form bases for imports of necessary materials from third powers.

"However, there are still many difficulties in the future of the China Affair which must be overcome. Therefore, the Navy will redouble its efforts for achievement of its objective of the necessary strategy in the China Affair, so as to answer to the Throne, on the one hand, and to comply with the expectation of the nation."

PLAN SPURNED BY CHAMBERLAIN

British Parliamentary Opposition Fails in Try For Economics Minister

Domei Tsushin

LONDON, Feb. 1—The Opposition's demand for appointment of an Economics Minister to co-ordinate all phases of British war effort in the economic sphere, was rejected by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain during question time in the House of Commons this afternoon. Rejection was made on the ground that it would not help to shorten the war; on the contrary, the change at present might involve more harm than good.

After emphasizing the contradictions of the Opposition's arguments, Mr. Chamberlain pointed out that the appointment of a "super-minister" might weaken the sense of responsibility of departmental ministers and is likely to cause increased friction.

He said that decisions are now being taken smoothly and effectively and that he could not see how the addition of an extra minister in the Government would facilitate or accelerate work.

Dealing particularly with the problem of maintaining Britain's export trade, Mr. Chamberlain said that a new minister is not necessary for this purpose. He then disclosed that an export council is being established under the chairmanship of the President of the Board of Trade to correct all maladjustments in trade.

The new council, he said, would include Lord Stamp, leading businessmen, trade union representatives, and delegates from Treasury, the Foreign Office, and the Ministries of Supplies and Economic Warfare. The chief task of the new council will be to find means whereby Britain is enabled to meet foreign demands for goods, particularly from quarters which formerly traded with Germany.

2,000 ENEMY DEAD ARE LEFT AT PINGYANG

Japanese Units Rout Enemy Friday, Capturing Tanks, Field Guns

Domei Tsushin

FROM AN UNDISCLOSED FRONT, Feb. 3—Approximately 2,000 dead Chinese soldiers were left behind on the battlefield in the Pingyang basin as a result of a hot onlaught of Japanese forces Friday, according to a field dispatch.

The Kato, Hashida and other Japanese units encountered Chinese forces equipped with about 10 tanks, belonging to the 78th Division and newly organized 22nd Division at a certain point. As a result of this engagement the Japanese took possession of three tanks, two field guns, while Chinese troops left behind about 1,000 war dead, the remainder of the Chineese troops running away in complete disorder.

The Japanese units pushed their way toward Pingyang, driving the enemy away. Meanwhile, the Omura and other units met with Chinese forces of about 3,000 Friday at a certain pont. After a severe fighting lasting for three hours, the Chinese troops suffered a fatal blow, abandoning approximately 1,000 war dead. The Chinese forces in this engagement belonged to the 151st and newly organized 49th Divisions.

MOVING ON

Domei Tsushin

NANNING, Feb. 3—The Takezono and Tsubol units are moving on to a certain Chinese vital position with their renewed vitality since early this morning as they captured Pinyang late yesterday afternoon, according to a report reaching here today.

The Japanese double flanking movement in the Pinyang valley is believed to be fatal to Chinese troops, it was added.

BOMB TSIENKONG

Domei Tsushin

UNDISCLOSED PLACE, Feb. 3—Braving bad weather a Japanese navy air unit yesterday bombed and inflicted heavy damage upon Tsienkoog, important Chinese position with land units in the Nanning sector, according to an announcement made at 9 p.m. yesterday by the press section of the Japanese fleet in South China waters.

BOMBING IN KWANGSI

Domei Tsushin

UNDISCLOSED BASE, Feb. 3—The Suzuki, Yamazaki and Sudo air units yesterday morning machine-gunned and rained bombs upon Chinese troops of about 1,000 strong who were resisting Japanese land forces in a fierce fighting in the mountainous district north of Kiutang.

Later the same fliers effected severe air raids and gave heavy damage upon Chinese remnants numbering about 3,000 who were in a district south of Pinyang, northeast of Nanning.

The same air corps carried out another bombing and crushed about 50 enemy trucks which were carrying full loads of munitions from Tisenshanglin to the enemy's front line.

All the fliers returned safely to their base.

NANNING, Feb. 2—The Katsuyama, Tamaya, Maki, Komura, Kume, Uyeda, Takezono, Miyamori and Sumita units which advanced from Wingshun, east of Nanning, encountered the Chinese 76th Division, killing 3,000 and advanced to Kantangkan yesterday evening.

These units charged on the enemy this morning on the Pingyang plain. Meanwhile, Japanese advance units that had previously drove into the mountainous zone, including the Nomi, Miki, Watanabe, Hayashi, Azuma, Sakata, Morimoto units, also advanced to Szelungszu, about 20 kilometers southwest of Pingyang, yesterday and are now drawing the steel cordon around the enemy.

On the other hand, Army planes also showed activities in this section where approximately 100,000 Chinese forces taking positions in the Wufengshan mountain range and on the Pingyang plain are now completely surrounded by Japanese forces.

The entrapped Chinese troops are now aimlessly moving about within the Japanese steel cordon, and it is expected that a complete defeat of the Chinese will be realized within a day or two.

United States and appeared in many concerts in such cities as San Francisco, Los Angeles and Washington, D.C.

"Returning to Hollywood, California, I went to the offices of the National Broadcasting Company and took a voice test. The results were evidently satisfactory because I was told to go immediately to the New York office of the N.B.C. and I would at once be put on the air. Unfortunately, I was unable to go there, so the only real experience I have had on the radio was singing over a network in Canada."

CHANGES HER MIND

Miss Saito then went to Hawaii where she sang before the Honolulu audiences. She then decided that she wanted to visit Japan again.

Although Miss Saito wants to give several concerts in Japan, she said that her greatest desire was to appear in military hospitals or at gatherings of the Japanese soldiers in China so that she could entertain them with her singing. As yet she has not completed such plans but she expects to put in her application just as soon as she becomes settled in Tokyo.

Also returning to Japan on board the Tatuta Maru was Miss Tamiko Shiotsuki, daughter of an N.Y.K. official in San Francisco. After being graduated from a Tokyo girls' school, Miss Shiotsuki went to San Francisco three years ago to join her father.

During her stay there, she has met many American born Japanese. But when the San Francisco Golden Gate Fair was opened, Miss Shiotsuki was selected Miss Nippon and thus became an active participant in activities in the Japanese Pavilion.

When asked why she had returned here, Miss Shiotsuki said that she had returned to be married. However she refused to answer whether she had found her man or not.

COLD OUTSIDE, WARM FRIENDS WITHIN

An international meeting of 60 young ladies, with Japanese women writers acting as hosts to students here from China, Manchoukuo, the United States, Germany, Italy and other nations, took place Saturday afternoon. Coming into the Shiba-ku residence of Kikugoro Onouye, a famous kabuki actor who volunteered his hospitality for the event, the ladies left the cold, snowy outdoors to gather in a warm atmosphere of sharing culture and goodwill with the Japanese. The function was arranged by the "Kagayaku-kai," a women writers' association.

PEERS' SCHOOL BOYS SEND PHOTOS TO U.S.

32 Amateur Snapshots Chosen To Send in Unique Exchange

Thirty-two amateur camera fans, students of the Peers' School, were supremely happy today. Their snapshots had been chosen to be sent to America, as part of a unique plan to exchange pictures taken by students of the two nations.

Over 1,000 amateur "shots," all depicting Japanese student life, were submitted to the officials in charge, of which the best were chosen to exchange with those taken by the addicts of the pastime at Princeton and Knox Universities in the United States.

Marquis Yorisada Tokugawa, president of the Society for International Cultural Relations; President Admiral Katsunoshin Yamanashi of the Peers' School; and Matsuzo Nagai, chairman of the board of directors of the society, were in attendance at the awarding of prizes to the winners Saturday at the society's offices. The latter group is acting as intermediary in the exchange.

On behalf of the students whose works had been selected, Etsumi Tokugawa, student of the third year in the higher department of the school, was handed a medal by Mr. Nagai.

A total of 150 pitcures, picked as being worthy of honorable mention, were placed on exhibition at the society's offices all day Saturday.

Speaker Decides

ing from the unfortunate speech. Later in the day Speaker Shoju Koyama, Minseito, was interrogated at the meeting of the bargaining body in the House why he had not stopped Mr. Saito when he came to the objectionable passages.

Despite the fact that Speaker Koyama deleted the remarks in question from the stenographic record of the proceedings Friday night, thereby signifying the disapproval of the House, the attacks of some of the other parties on the Speaker as well as on Mr. Saito, both being of the Minseito, so far from ceasing tended to grow more vehement with time. The maximum penalty of the House, that of expulsion, was demanded by all the members of the Nakajima faction, the Jikyoku Doshi Kai and the Social Mass Party and part of the Kuhara faction. Nor did the Minseito indicate any intention of opposing the step.

Meanwhile, Mr. Saito, to all appearance regretting the fact that he had caused such a furore and trouble in the Diet and party, consulted Magoichi Tawara and Matajiro Koizumi, elders of the Minseito, who came to see him Saturday morning at his home in Kita-Shinagawa, as to what course he should take to make amends. At noon the same day he attended the emergency meeting of the party managers and offered his explanation on the attitude he had taken. Mr. Saito is reported as having said:

"As the goal of the holy war is clear from the Imperial Rescript granted to the Diet and also from the statements of the successive Cabinets, I have striven day and night to discharge my duties faithfully as a member of the Diet in conformity with the spirit of the Imperial Rescript.

"During my interpellation Friday night, I unwittingly let slip a few remarks which in point of phraseology I now regret were liable to misunderstanding and it happened solely because of my lack of virtue. I am extremely penitent that I have caused so much trouble to party and comrades and I wish to atone for it by seceding from the party."

Magoichi Tawara, one of the elders of the party, replied:

"We are grateful for many years of unremitting toil Mr. Saito has put into the cause of the party but with the situation such as it is we have no choice but to accept his proposal to withdraw from the party."

The meeting approved the opinion of Mr. Tawara and Mr. Saito lost no time in going through the formalities for seceding from the Minseito at the office of the House of Representatives.

STEPS DECIDED

At 2 p.m. the bargaining body of the House met in the Diet building and as a result of negotiations among the various parties represented on the body decided on the following steps:

1. When the plenary session opens Saturday, Speaker Koyama should admit the fact that there were in the speech of Mr. Saito Friday the items on which understanding had been reached by the bargaining body and report to the House that the latter portion of the speech had been deleted from the stenographic record on the authority of the Speaker, thus explaining the attitude of the Speaker on the issue.

As the question of the Speaker's part in the matter is a serious issue, various views were put forward by the bargaining body. The Speaker's explanation, therefore, should be drafted and immediately presented to the various parties before the Speaker calls the session to order.

2. The order of the speakers for the Government should be Premier Yonai, War Minister Hata and Navy Minister Yoshida, when expressing the attitude of the Government on the issue in the plenary session of the House.

3. When these speeches are over, Mr. Saito should ask for the rostrum to make his retraction and explanation.

4. Speaker Koyama should then state his decision regarding penalties for making the indiscreet speech.

5. Kiroku Oguchi, of the Kuhara faction of the Seiyukai, should be the next interpellator and if there is still time the next speaker on the agenda should be called to the rostrum.

6. The plenary session of the House should be recessed for Sunday until Monday afternoon, when the interpellations of the State Ministers are to be continued.

During the meeting, Speaker Koyama was asked why he had not stopped Mr. Saito when he came to the objectionable passages as was his duty to do in such cases and why he had not shown the stenographic record to all when Friday's plenary session was adjourned.

Speaker Koyama replied that he did not stop the speech because it was a representative opinion of the Minseito and had been submitted through the executive members of the party. He deleted some because they infringed some of the items banned from publication, he explained. He promised that the case of Mr. Saito would be decided after due deliberation

In a camera meeting Saturday afternoon, Diet members of the Minseito opposed any penalty being imposed on Takao Saito, whose speech Friday had stirred up the most intense political excitement since the Seiyukai split, on the ground that 30 years of diligent service in the cause of constitutional government was not a thing to be obliterated by an unguarded remark or two.

At this meeting, Yoshitsugu Takahashi, a manager of the party, reported on the results of the bargaining body negotiatons Tetsuo Kudo, Hideo Tamura and other Representatives present pointed out the distinguished service that Mr. Saito had rendered the political world in the past 30 years and declared that any penalty imposed on him on the Speaker's authority could not be countenanced by his comrades.

IN UPROAR

The meeting was in an uproar with opinion of all shades hotly advanced. A recess had to be called at 5 p.m. and when the meeting was re-opened at 5:10, Tetsuo Kudo proposed that the Speaker should be urged to reconsider penalizing Mr. Saito on his authority as it would leave an undesirable parliamentary precedent. On this the meeting recessed again at 5:30 p.m.

Matsugoro Kawasaki and Morihei Takahashi, Minseito, during the second recess of the meeting of the party's Representatives, saw Speaker Koyama and asked him to use his influence to prevent the Saito case from being referred to a penalties committee but to open a plenary session of the House at once and have the Government speeches delivered. Then, they further asked, the Speaker should call a recess for the various parties to discuss what is to be done with Mr. Saito

The Speaker promised to give his decision after having negotiated with the various parties.

The two Minseito men then saw Shichiroku Tanabe, chief secretary of the Nakajima faction of the Seiyukai, and made a similar appeal but he flatly refused saying that the Nakajima faction of the Seiyukai was going to make a motion for referring the case to a penalties committee immediately after the speeches of the State Ministers.

The two returned to the Minseito meeting and reported on his negotiations with the Speaker and the chief secretary.

307 Chinese Coolies Frozen to Death On Shanghai Streets

Domei Tsushin

SHANGHAI, Feb. 3—More than 300 persons were frozen to death here Friday night, due to the extreme cold spell which followed the snow fall.

Recently the whole city of Shanghai was shivering on account of the cold weather, rarely experienced by its inhabitants.

The freezing spell suddenly caught them as the snow fall ceased early this morning. Those found dead both in the International Settlement and the French Concession, all Chinese coolies, totaled 307.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE URGES SHORTER HOURS

Move to Keep Tokyo Bright At Night Despite Power Cut

To keep the shopping streets in Tokyo gaily lightened after the enforcement of the Electric Power Regulation Ordinance this week, the Tokyo Chamber of Commerce and Industry has staged a movement to cut down the present business hours prescribed by the Shop Regulation by one hour, it is reported.

After next Saturday, February 10, all neon and other commercial advertising electric lights will be turned off and the street lamps will be dimmed, to the great inconvenience of the shopkeepers as well as customers.

The shopkeepers in Tokyo have been pondering the question of how to maintain normal business conditions and keep the streets well lightened after the new rules go into effect.

The plan of the Tokyo Chamber of Commerce and Industry is to urge the shopkeepers to voluntarily cut their present business hours.

In view of the fact that in Nagoya the shop and store business is being carried on smoothly under a similar system, the proposal of the Chamber of Commerce and Industry is attracting much attention among businessmen here.

Berlin Papers

limited to the settlement of her own narrow interests.

Foreign Minister Arita's speech makes it quite evident that the whole world situation was being closely watched in Tokyo. Japan clearly understood, says the Korrespondenz, that in Europe as in the Far East, discord and dissatisfaction were attributable to the fact that certain Powers strove to preserve conditions which had been outgrown in the course of evolution.

The Korrespondenz recalls that Foreign Minister Arita frankly stated that the European War was caused by the "fact that some nations insisted on the retention of unreasonable and unjust status quo."

The Japanese statesmen saw, the paper continues, in the policy of "exclusivism" as pursued by certain Powers which misused their predominant position the source of the existing menace of future catastrophes. In conclusion, the Korrespondenz says that Foreign Minister Arita's sympatheic references to Germany and Italy had created a favorably impression in the Reich.

SHANGHAI PAPER HAILS CHINA POLICY OF ARITA

Foreign Minister's Speech Before Diet Is Claimed As Friendly to Third Powers

Domei Tsushin

SHANGHAI, Feb. 2—The speech of Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita made before the Imperial Diet Thursday when it resumed its 75th session was hailed by the Chung Hwa Ji Pao, mouthpiece of Wang Ching-wei and his peace faction here, in an editorial of today's issue.

The paper especially welcomed the statement of Foreign Minister Arita that Japan had no intention of ousting the rights and interests of third Power nationals from China and that Japan welcomes foreign investments in China, for the paper says that both Japan and China are bound by strong ties to adopt the same military and foreign policies.

Following is the gist of the editorial:

"From the standpoint of the peace movement, the military and foreign policies of both Japan and China are fully in accord. In other words, China is duly bound to share the responsibility with Japan for the latter's movement. That is the reason why we attach great importance to the speech of Foreign Minister Arita."

"When Mr. Wang had a conference with the then five ministers of Japan in Tokyo in June last year the prerequisite of the Sino-Japanese accord in military and foreign policies was the readjustment of relations with third Powers so as not to make an enemy of them. Since then two cabinet changes have taken place in Japan, but we are glad to see from the speech of the Foreign Minister that Japan is still adhering to that basic policy."

"All the preceding Japanese Cabinets declared their unchanged policy of readjustment of foreign relations. Foreign Minister Arita has now made it quite clear, beyond any doubt, that Japan has no intention to oust the rights and interests of third Power nationals in China. Not only that, he also made it clear that Japan welcomes the economic cooperation of third Powers and rightly suggested that the policy of the forthcoming central regime in China would be the same."

"The statement of Mr. Arita testifies to the fact that the declaration of Prince Konoye that Japan was not trying to monopolize the China market is the consistent and unshakable policy of Japan. By this policy Japan leaves the door open for conciliation and cooperation with third Powers, not wanting China to enter into different and separate relations with third Powers."

"We have been opposing the Chungking Government's reliance on Britain, America and the Soviet Union. We desire to have friendly relations with Britain, America and the Soviet Union on an equal footing, but we shun standing on a position subordinate to them. From this standpoint, we welcome Japan's foreign policy, the aim of which is to readjust her foreign relations."

TALK OF CHANNEL TUNNEL REVIVED BY ALLIED GROUP

Proponents Say Dover-Calais Tube Would Save Its Own Cost By Shortening War Two Weeks

By RAYMOND DANIELL

N.Y. Times

LONDON—One matter discussed at a recent meeting of the Allied Supreme War Council, it was learned recently, was the possibility of building a tunnel under the English Channel between Calais, France, and Dover.

This does not mean a tunnel will be built or that the traditional resistance of the British isolationists has been overcome. It means simply that under the stress of the war's emergencies the old project is being discussed again.

While engineers estimate the cost of the tunnel would be about £60,000,000, supporters of the project argue that if it helped shorten the war by a fortnight it would be a good investment, for they point out that the Allies jointly are spending £6,000,000 daily in prosecution of the war. It is further argued by tunnel supporters that it would relieve unemployment, which, owing to the dislocations of modern war, is a serious problem.

MONUMENT TO SOLIDARITY

Finally, it is held, the project would stand as a monument to Anglo-French solidarity, which is regarded as one relatively indestructible permanent factor in the diplomacy of these unstable times.

On the other hand, while the objections of military men may be decreased by the technical problems of moving men and supplies for a modern mechanized army across the Channel under threat of attack from above and below the sea, economic problems may be expected to be stressed by the opposition if the discussions ever come out into the open. There is a serious question in the minds of many, in and out of the government, whether it would be good sense to divert men, supplies and money to a project that might not be completed until after the war is over.

The history of the tunnel project is an old and interesting one. As far back as 1802 Napoleon, who had obtained the idea from an engineer named Mathieu, proposed it to Charles Fox during the negotiation of the allies' treaty. Before anything came of it, however, France and England were at war against each other. It remained for Thome de Gamond, a fanatic on the subject of rapprochement between France and England, to keep it alive.

The scheme was not taken up seriously again, however, until 1874, after the defeat of France in the war of 1870. M de Gamond had succeeded in [illegible] the support of Napoleon III and Queen Victoria, who had gone so far as to say in a letter that if he could bring off his plans he would win the thanks of an Englishwoman, whom he would save from seasickness.

In 1874 plans were worked out for the creating of French and British companies to begin construction of the tunnel. Work was actually begun soon after 1875, and there are today shafts, each about a mile and a half long, at Dover and Calais.

CRUSADE HALTED WORK

However, in 1882, before the work has progressed very far. The Times of London and The Nineteenth Century, a powerful periodical of that day, began a crusade against the tunnel. They argued that, if it was completed, it would make Englishmen into Continentals and that at any time a French army of occupation might swarm through.

The Duke of Cambridge, a cousin of Queen Victoria and Commander in Chief of the army, took up the cudgels against the tunnel and aroused the War Office against the scheme.

A special commission that investigated the controversy held that permission for completion of the tunnel should be granted only if a large fortress and garrison were maintained at the British terminus. It warned that it might even make it necessary for the country to resort to conscription as insurance against invasion from the Continent. That closed that chapter.

In 1917, when Great Britain and France were fighting Germany, as they are now, the project was revived in Parliament. At that time the government held that it was folly to discuss so giantic and costly an engineering project until after the war was over.

Once more in 1924 discussion of the tunnel was revived at the instigation of the French Government, which offered its cooperation. Again the British refused to help, on the ground that experts held the revenues would be insufficient to retire the debt and maintain the tunnel, and that a permanent government subsidy would be needed.

When tunnel supporters sought to revive the long dormant scheme in 1930, the Committee on Imperial Defense quickly stifled their effort.

U.S. Census-Takers Start Activity; Many New Questions Asked

Christian Science Monitor

BOSTON—When the census taker (or enumerator, to use the official term) comes a-knocking at the American door in 1940 the citizen is asked to help Uncle Sam's big job by answering questions about himself chronologically. Otherwise, the enumerator has to set the years all in order, and that takes time. Since the population census will have to be completed in two weeks' time, one can see what a job the enumerators will have on their hands.

Such is the situation outlined by Mrs. Ella T. McCarthy of Boston, said to be the only woman in the United States appointed as an assistant area manager for the Bureau of the Census. Mrs. McCarthy's post is here in Boston. The Bureau has just set up offices in the Chamber of Commerce building, 80 Federal Street.

The census-taking for 1940 will go beyond population census, says Mrs. McCarthy. It's been a "counting of noses" ever since 1700, she declares, but now the Government is interested in finding out, not only how many babies were born in your family or neighborhood this past decade, but also about agriculture and housing. Before anything else is run off, industry and business will be checked, beginning Jan. 2 Enumerators will start on dwellings beginning April 2.

Supervisors and district supervisors who have been taking a two-weeks' instruction course were scheduled to "graduate" recently and the day after Christmas the first enumerators for Boston, 40 of them—those who will do business and industry—started their two-weeks' training.

For 1940's second census job, 80 enumerators will be chosen out of Mrs. McCarthy's list, and she hopes to have as many women as men.

Here's what the Government wants to know about a farm: How long the family has lived on it, how many in family, how many hired men, number of livestock, amount of crops raised, what there is in the way of equipment.

The Government is particularly interested in housing because there has been a housing shortage since 1920, despite a boom before the depression.

Uncle Sam also wants to go into major and minor repairs and improvements, and to ascertain the market value of the house, the type neighborhood in general, and what type house is in each economic civil division.

WORLD RECORD IS BETTERED BY GIRL SKATERS

Honored by the presence of His Imperial Highness Prince Chichibu, contestants came through with spectacular performances Sunday in the third and final day of the ice skating championships of the 10th Meiji Shrine Games at he Tadenoumi outdoor course at Kamisuwa, Nagano Prefecture. Excellent weather prevailed.

In the women's 3,000-meter race, three girls negotiated the distance under world record time, as follows: Miss Sayeko Hirai, Hokkaido, 5 mins. 26.9 secs.; Miss Emiko Okura, Manchoukuo, 5 mins. 28 secs.; and Miss Yaeko Ejima, Manchoukuo, 5 mins. 28.3 secs. The world record is 5 mins., 29.6 secs held by Miss Nielsen of Norway. The times apparently will not be submitted for official sanction as the race was not held in separate courses.

TOKYO WINS

Tokyo won the men's speed skating championship with a total of 47 points, followed by Manchoukuo with 32.5 points, Korea 19.5 points, Kanto 6 points, Hokkaido 3 points, and Chubu 2 points.

Manchoukuo triumphed in the women's division with 44 points. Hokkaido was second with 34 points and Korea third with 4 points.

Takasuke Arizaka of the Kanto district won the men's figure skating with a total of 132.366 points with place number 3 while Miss Etsuko Inada of the Kansai took the honors in the women's competition with 133.100 points with place number 3.

The All-Manchoukuo sextet sprung a surprise by winning the ice hockey championship, defeating the All-Dairen combination by three goals to nil. The score was:

Manchoukuo	0	1	2—3

Boku Juntetsu of Manchoukuo won the men's 5,000-meter race in 8 mins. 49.7 seconds for a new Shrine Games record.

The Tokyo team of Abe, Nando, Takahayashi and Yamashita, set a new national record in the men's 2,000-meter relay by crossing the goal in 3 minutes 5 seconds.

Hokkaido won the women's 1,600-meter relay in 2 minutes 58.9 seconds. The team was comprised of the Misses Sakamoto, Otaka, Kitazawa and Nakagawa.

BOKU STARS

The 3,000-meter race for men on Saturday was won by Boku Juntetsu of Manchoukuo in 5 minutes 2 seconds.

The hockey teams from the continent pulled off major upsets on Saturday, with the All-Manchoukuo squad eliminating Rikkyo University, 1-0, and the All-Dairen combination turning the tables over the strong Meiji University six, 4 goals to 1.

RUSSIA 'EXPLAINS' DRIVE IN FINLAND, NO BLITZKRIEG INTENDED, SHE SAYS

Christian Science Monitor

MOSCOW—Soviet Russia declared that the Finns' natural and constructive defensives made impossible a "lightning blow."

Virtually admitting the impracticability of a "Blitzkrieg," a Soviet communique said they had never intended a lightning war.

Although the Russian communique contended the Red Army was doing well under the circumstances, unconfirmed reports circulated here that Gen. K. A. Mevetskoff had been relieved of his post as Commander of the campaign against Finland.

Summarizing activities since the war began Nov. 30, the communique said "important successes" had been scored in this period.

North of Leningrad was described as equal to Germany's Siegfried Line on the French frontier, but the Russians said they had broken the Mannerheim Line at several places, and jibed that the British and French were not doing as well against the Siegfried Line.

"Finland was building these fortifications for four years," said the communique, "with the aid of three foreign States which fought among themselves for influence in Finland as a base for attack on Leningrad and later on Moscow."

(It was on the ground of protecting Leningrad, the Soviet Union's second largest city, that Russia originally made territorial demands on Finland that led to the war.)

JIBE AT ALLIES

"In its defense power, this system of artificial fortifications, as, for instance, on the Karelian Isthmus, reinforced by natural conditions, is in no way inferior to the defense power of the fortified Siegfried Line on the Western Frontier of Germany, against which British and French troops have been fumbling already for our months without making the lightest progress," the Army asserted.

"The Red Army knew of these difficulties in Finland and therefore never expected to annihilate the Finnish troops by one lightning blow.

"Only ignorance or overt hostility toward the Red Army could ascribe to Red Army leaders the wish to do away with the Finnish troops in one week."

Observers professed to see significance in the absence of Andre Zhdanoff, Communist Party Secretary in Leningrad, from among the Soviet leaders whose names were appended to publish birthday greeting to Joseph Stalin.

Mr. Zhdanoff has been largely responsible for the recent policy toward Finland, and had been regarded generally as Mr. Stalin's probable eventual successor as Communist Party leader.

REDS LIST ADVANCES

The Red Army reported that since the war's start it had advanced 150 kilometers (about 93 miles) from Finland's Arctic coast; 150 kilometers "in the direction of" Uleaborg; 80 kilometers in the vicinity of Serdobol; and 64 kilometers on the Karelian Isthmus.

MURPHY CAREER ACTIVE ONE IN AMERICA

New Supreme Court Judge Served in Army in 1917, Became Philippine Chief

N.Y. Times

WASHINGTON—The nomination of Attorney General Murphy to the Supreme Court of the United States caps a career of many honors and responsibilities. Mr. Murphy served as a criminal courts judge. He was Mayor of Detroit in the early part of the depression, when he first began to attain prominence because of his humane attitude toward the unemployed, and he was the last Governor General and the first High Commissioner of the Philippines. In 1936 he returned to this country to run for Governor of Michigan. It was while serving as Governor that he attracted attention through his part in the automobile sit-down strikes in January and February, 1937.

Mr. Murphy's conduct in these strikes and subsequent industrial troubles won him praise from President Roosevelt.

American labor history knows few periods so turbulent as the seven months of 1937, when conditions bordering at times on revolution, with unruly mobs and barricades in the streets and machine guns in buildings, disturbed Michigan.

One big strike after another claimed Mr. Murphy's attention, but they were all settled without bloodshed. A situation that threatened many times to lead to bloodshed and serious loss of life was kept under control by Mr. Murphy's tenacity in keeping conferences going when all further talk seemed useless.

In many instances Mr. Murphy drew censure for not using force to compel strikers to leave seized plants, but criticism appeared to vanish when agreement came and the sit-downers marched out to the blare of music and with American flags flying.

The general popular resentment against the sit-down became so great, however, that in November, 1938, Mr. Murphy was defeated for re-election. President Roosevelt appointed him Attorney General in January, 1939.

In Washington Mr. Murphy rapidly became one of the most popular official figures. He rejoiced in the idea that even his critics in the capital had come to see that his attitude of forbearance in the strikes had proved wise in that it had served to avoid possible great violence and bloodshed while facilitating repudiation of that weapon by labor itself.

Mr. Murphy has been called a practical New Dealer, who stands on middle ground. Ever since 1937 he has been mentioned as a possible Supreme Court justice. In May of that year it was reported that the President might appoint him to succeed Justice Van Devanter, who had retired. His name was again mentioned upon the death of Justice Cardozo in 1938.

During the sit-down strikes Mr. Murphy frankly told the electorate of Michigan that if they wanted their Governor to "shoot the workers out of the factories and thus end sit-down strikes once and for all" they would have to get another Governor.

SAID EMPLOYES COULD BE TAUGHT

"If the American workingmen are wrong, I believe they can be taught the right way without writing the lesson in blood," Mr. Murphy said.

"We must guide and direct our efforts along cooperative, peaceful and intelligent lines, never losing sight of the best interests of all parties—workers employers, and, of course, equally if not more important, the public.

"I am not condoning confication of property. I am not condoning certain methods and procedures, but I am taking the long view, I am attempting to see both sides, and I am determined that as far as the legally constituted authority of the State of Michigan is concerned, justice and fairness and peaceful procedure must prevail.

"I want no human blood to besmirch the fair name of this State."

On the larger problem of depression and unemployment, Mr. Murphy said in an address in New York in June, 1938, that unless industry will "voluntarily" solve the problem of the wide-swinging economic cycle, government "will be compelled to exercise its helpful and reasonable influence."

"It is well for us to remember that social progress has ever come the hard way," he said, "that there are always elements in society opposed to any change because it is a threat to the security they have acquired under the status quo."

As Attorney General, Mr. Murphy expressed his attitude on labor problems as follows:

"I have had much experience with labor problems, but I have no bias or prejudices. There will be protection for the rights of the weak and obscure, and those on the left with whose views we disagree, but there will be the same amount of protection for business men, industrialists and others of the right. "There mut be, if we really mean what we say when we pledge allegiance to the Bill of Rights."

Discussing the establishment of the special civil liberties unit in the Department of Justice early last year, Mr. Murphy said:

'It has long been my feeling that in times of social unrest there is an increased necessity for vigilance in those charged with the protection of constitutional privileges and immunities.

"Emotions' run higher. The clash of interests in frequent and heated. In the battle for public favor, extremists urge tolerance for their ideas, intolerance for their opponents.

"Meanwhile, those in government—preoccupied with grave social and economic problems—tend naturally to be less sensitive to instance of oppression and denial of constitutional rights. In this welter of confusing factors that principle which is the essence of democracy—tolerance for all sides in all questions—is usually the loser.

"It was particularly in view of these conditions that the civil liberties unit was created to implement the Constitution's guarantee of personal liberties."

With respect to the law in general, Mr. Murphy has declared that "the old conception of law as a system of purely negative rules designed primarily for the maintenance of order is giving way steadily to the broader view that the law is properly a positive instrument for human betterment."

"Under the pressure of unprecedented economic problems, this transition to a broader viewpoint has been greatly accelerated within the present decade," Mr. Murphy said after three months in the office of Attorney General.

"There are some among us who view this change with anxiety, if not actual foreboding. Their concern is understandable, for man is ever reluctant to leave the tranquility and calm of old-established philosophies for the transitional confusion and uncertainty of the new.

"I am not disposed to share these fears. The alteration, to my mind, is but a natural evolutionary and inevitable process arising from the character of a changing social order."

AS U-BOAT OFFICER SAW HIS VICTIM

Passed by the German censor, this photo shows a British freighter standing up on her stern just as she took the final plunge that sent her to the bottom of the sea. The photo, according to the German caption, was made by an officer of the U-boat that gave the freighter her death blow.

Suehiro Named Head Of Students Swim Body

Dr. Itsutaro Suehiro of Tokyo Imperial University has been elected president of the Japan Students Swimming Federation for 1940. He has been president of the Japan Swimming Federation for a number of years.

The Federation at its meeting on Sunday voted to stage the national championships for the middle schools at Osaka this year.

SLUM HOUSES RAZED IN U.S.

Result of 36 USHA Low-Rent Projects Up to December 1; 9,750 Units Are Effected

N.Y. Times

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16—Reports from twenty-six cities show that 9,750 "substandard" structures have been eliminated as of Dec. 1 as a result of the government's low-rent housing program, Nathan Straus, Administrator of the United States Housing Authority, said today.

Mr. Straus stated that reports were made on only thirty-six USHA-aided slum-clearance projects, remarking that "a large additional number of substandard dwellings have been eliminated throughout the country in connection with construction now under way on more than 125 low-rent projects."

The Housing Act requires that substandard dwellings equivalent to the dwelling units provided by an USHA project must be demolished, effectively closed, or rendered safe and sanitary for human habitation.

Mr. Straus estimated that in all 118,995 substandard structures would be eliminated under these requirements by the construction of 310 USHA-aided projects in 140 communities on which loan contracts had been approved.

In the twenty-six cities covered by the report, Mr. Straus said, the 9,750 substandard dwellings were eliminated to make way for 17,717 new dwellings.

"These statistics are factual proof that the USHA program is progressing effectively to rid America of disgrave and waste of slums," he stated. "The figures, of course, do not tell the whole story, for they are confined to formal reports from local authorities that have been received and reviewed by the USHA."

Among the projects on which reports were made to Washington were the Red Hook Houses and Queensbridge Houses of New York City, Eastern project of Syracuse and Adrean Terrace of Utica. No details on the number of slum houses eliminated at each of these projects were made public.

a neccessary preliminary step to involvement of the nervous system."

'AIRPLANE BENDS' PREVENTED

A new method for preventing "airplane bends," known as aeroembolism, which affects fliers as a result of rapid ascents to high altitudes, was described before the association by Drs. W. Randolph Lovelace 2nd and Walter M. Boothby of the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., and Captain O. Benson.

The new method, consisting of inhaling oxygen for long periods before take-offs, is expected to be of invaluable assistance against sudden aerial attacks from high altitudes on the various battle fronts in Europe. In sudden attacks, in which fliers for the defensive forces are called upon to rise quickly to high altitudes, they are subject to attacks of these "airplane bends," similar in nature of diver's bends, though the causes are not the same. The new method of protection against these aerial bends, which seriously hamper the effectiveness of the aviators, and often completely put them out of action, therefore promises to make defense anti-aircraft warfare from the air more effective.

Among the symptoms of aeroembolism are boring, gnawing pains about the joints, itching of the skin and eyelids, unconsciousness, convulsions and paralysis, including paralysis of the breathing muscles. Small blood vessels in the lungs may be plugged by emboli (clots), thus cutting off the blood supply.

The condition has been only recently discovered by Captain Harry G. Armstrong of the Medical Corps of the United States Army and director of the aero medical research laboratory at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio. The disease, Captain Armstrong found, is produced by a rapid decrease of atmospheric pressure below sea-level conditions, such as may occur in flights to high altitudes. Nitrogen bubbles form in the blood and tissues. The symptoms of the disease depend primarily on where in the body these bubbles form and how big they are.

An altitude of 30,000 feet seems to be the critical point for development of aeroembolism.

Recompression, that is, descent to a lower altitude where the atmospheric pressure is higher, is the treatment for the condition once it has occurred.

But getting tanked up on oxygen while still on the ground prevents the condlion. In the Mayo Clinic experiments, in which seasoned pilots of Northwest Airlines, Inc., took part, "ascents" to 40,000 feet a a rate of 4,000 feet per minute were safely made when the pilots had breathed pure oxygen for thirty minutes while walking two miles on a treadmill. These rapid experimental "ascents" were made in a low-pressure chamber in which presures of high altitude could be produced.

Military pilots who must be ready to take off at any moment, it was pointed out, can tank up on oxygen with no loss of time by breathing oxygen through a new type mask even while they sleep.

NERVOUSNESS MEASURED

A nervousness meter for humans, something like the electric meters used to measure the consumption of electricity in a home or other building, was demonstrated here recently by Dr. Edmund Jacobson, of the Laboratory for Clinical Physiology, Chicago.

Deuteron particles, that is, ions of heavy hydrogen of atomic mass 2, were driven at high energy by the cyclotron against the heavy element bismuth. Out of the bombardment came radium E and radium F, the latter discovered by Mme. Marie Curie and known as polonium.

Radium E and radium F occur in nature, are radioactive and emit alpha particles. These particles, too were found to be emitted by the man-made radium.

GROWTH OF BABY RECORDED

Diagnosis of abnormal or retarded behavior, sickness or even feeble-mindednes in babies, before birth, is the possibility for the future held out by a new method of observing infants while they are still unborn. The new technic was described by Professor W. N. Kellogg of Indiana University.

Light metal plates, fitted over the material abdomen, are attached by threads to appropriate writing levers, so as to record all changes in the abdominal contour which are produced by movement from within.

Graphs of the increase in spontaneous activity of the unborn child as its age increases have already been obtained by use of the apparatus in one case.

Xray treatments may be "of critical value" in speeding recovery from carbon monoxide poisoning, Dr. John A. Cameron of the University of Missouri, declared on the basis of results obtained with such treatment of monkeys and other animals.

For solving a famous and difficult problem in mathematics, concerned with what are called Riemann matrices, Professor A. A. Albert of the University of Chicago was presented recently with the Cole Prize, awarded by the American Mathematical Society once in five years.

Musashiyama Named One of Sumo Judges

There ought to be good work from the judges when the "summer" season of the professional sumo championships is held next May.

Elected as judges at the meeting of the Japan Sumo Federation Tuesday were five former champions as follows: Grand Champion Musashiyama, Champion Shimizugawa, Champion Kagamiiwa, Wakashima and Takanobori.

With the exception of Shimizugawa, all the rest announced their retirement just before the recent tournament last month.

QUINTUPLETS SLIDE ALL OVER THE PLACE AS THEY TRY OUT YULE GIFT SKATES

N.Y. Times

CALLANDER, Ont., Dec. 25—The Dionne quintuplets awoke at 4:30 a.m. today and aroused the nursery to find out what Pere Noel had left them.

That began an exciting day of high jinks during which they made hilarious attempts to take to the ice on regular tube skates, a gift of their physician, Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe. The 5-year-old girls slipped and slid on everything but the skates.

Dr. Dafoe did not stay long. As is his custom on holidays, he made a quick trip to the nursery, left the skates and collected a round of smacking kisses from the joyous youngsters.

But the skating tryout was only a small part of the day.

The five sisters had tumbled into their beds last night after having sung 'The First Noel," a Christmas carol, for Dr. Dafoe. They slept soundly until 4:30, waking three hours ahead of schedule.

After breakfast the sisters ran to boards, in which each had hung a stocking. Delighted "oohs" and "aahs" came forth at the generosity of Pere Noel as they took apples, oranges and small toys from the stockings.

Shortly before 10 A. M. the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne, and the other Dionne children made their Christmas call, but the family did not exchange gifts; this is reserved for the New Year's weekend.

From the big lighted Christmas tree the quintuplets took a large package and presented it to Tony, their Great Dane watchdog. The package contained a bone—the biggest bone that Grace Demers, the housekeeper, had seen in some time. She had been under instructions from the five girls to save the biggest of all bones, and the selection made a great hit with Tony.

At noon Mr. and Mrs. Dionne and the other children left the nursery and returned to their own home across the road, but they returned later for another visit.

Just after sundown the quntuplets donned pretty party dresses and led the parade to the nursery dining room table for a family feast of turkey and all the trimmings.

So full was the day that the girls, tired and happy, trooped off to bed thirty minutes before their usual time.

PRINCE CHICHIBU WILL ATTEND SKI EVENTS

His Imperial Highness Prince Chichibu will honor the ski championships of the 10th Meiji Shrine Games, to be held from the 8th to the 12th at Takada City and the Myokozan slope, on Saturday.

His Highness will leave Uyeno station by the 11:50 p.m. train Thursday and will arrive at Takada at 8:25 a.m. Friday. After breakfasting at the Takada-kan, His Highness will attend the ski events in Takada. His Highness will then leave Takada station at 3:15 p.m., arriving at Taguchi station at 4:10 p.m. By auto-sleigh, His Highness will go to the Akakura Kanko Hotel. His Highness will attend the ski events the next day from 2:10 p.m. and will leave Taguchi station at 4:10 p.m., returning to Uyeno station at 11:45 p.m. the same day.

His Highness will witness the following events:

Friday at Takada City: army and navy men's competition; reservists' races; young men's school and prefectural relays.

Saturday at Akakura Kanko Hotel slope: men's and women's slalom events.

Sixteen hundred twelve athletes from all sections of the Empire are already gathered at Takada City, waiting for the opening of the championships Friday, which will close the 10th Shrine Games, of which Prince Chichibu is Honorary President.

The schanze at Takada City, constructed by voluntray labor of middle school students, was put at the disposal of the contestants for practice and it is said to be excellent.

adding that this was "the thing I'm not so sure about."

"If you can project a favorable financial trend in 1940 I can predict a good business trend," he challenged the statisticians.

The first major uncertainty, he said, lay in the bond market, with business, as statistically measured, edging now "over the line toward prosperity, and in doing so, threatening the new-era price structure in the bond market."

Recalling that business activity "approached a prosperity level in December, 1936," and that the boom then was controlled by "the simple expedient of precipitating the greatest liquidation of bank investments in the history of the world," Mr. Hughes declared that under current conditions bank liquidation of investments "means bank credit deflation" and that "bank credit deflation always has meant trouble for business."

He foresaw no change in the character of the stock market in 1940, a market which had "its speculative fangs pulled," and he could not, therefore, envisage a sustained flow of private capital into "productive economic channels."

EDIE POINTS TO PRODUCTION RISE

Dr. Edie, for whom the second half of 1940 was "a blank page," said that production was ending the current year with the index around the 1929 peak, which was "a very high rate for an economy in which private investment is practically paralyzed."

He said a production index of 110 to 112 represented the broad consensus. At first glance, he observed, this sounded like "a cheerful prediction because it is 5 points above the average for 1939," but it meant that since the December index was 125 or better, to average 110 the index must in some months drop 5 to 10 points below the average.

"I shall make no attempt to guess the twelve-month average of the prodution index," he went on, "but shall content myself with saying that a readjustment downward is coming. I hope it will be held within moderate bounds and I have no basis for predicting otherwise."

He said that an estimate of gains of 6 or 7 per cent in consumer income during the first half of 1940, compared with a year before, could not go "far wrong." This would be near the 1937 level and "would indicate a reasonably good level of retail trade in consumer goods." Automobile retail sales, he said represented in many ways the "most stable part" of the whole economic picture, and he had no evidence to show that the industry was wrong in counting on "sustained retail sales right through the first half of the year."

The speaker predicted that the New Deal would be succeeded by "a less left-wing Democratic administration or a Republican administration" unless a savage offensive developed in Europe by summer. He rather looked for such an offensive and predicted a good year for the armament industries.

AYRES CALM ON WAR EFFECT

Colonel Ayres told the audience that he was not anxious, as Mr. Hughes was, "about the bond holdings of banks," and that, unlike Dr. Edie, he did not worry about "the possibly depressing effect of a flood of war orders."

He agreed that the new issues market was "just as stagnant as Dr. Edie said it was," with new corporation flotations bringing in only about $1,000,000 a day.

"The problem of sustaining recovery," he said, "is where are they going to get $10,000,000 a day of new money; also, what kind of money? It makes a big difference whether it is high-powered money, such as that from new corporation issues and the like, or low-powered money from pump priming."

He predicted an average of industrial production for 1940 at about 110, saying that figure would not miss it by more than 10 per cent "up or down." The national income, he said, would approximate $71,000,000,000 "or within 3 per cent of it," compared with $69,000,000,000 this year.

Colonel Ayres predicted that contracts for building construction in 1940 would be "the largest of the recovery years" and the largest since 1930.

At another session, however, L. Seth Schnitman, a New York consulting economist, was pessimistic on 1940 prospects for the construction industry, blaming uncertainty over the results of the war. Rufus S. Tucker, economist of the General Motors Corporation, advised businessmen to keep inventoreis large enough to protest them against a sudden stoppage of supplies but not to use "bank funds that are so abundant and cheap for the purpose of commodity speculation."

'TOO OLD' TO RUN, HE MIGHT 'TAKE A WALK'

Former Governor Al Smith of New York, the famous rebel of 1936 and candidate of 1928, with his granddaughters, Mary and Emily [illegible] 66th birthday party recently in the Empire State Building. He is opposed to a third term and Democratic indorsement of the whole New Deal.

NAZI SHIP BURNS WOOD TO SPAN PACIFIC; CREW CHOPS MONTH ON SOUTH SEA ISLE

N.Y. Times

BERLIN—A sea yarn that might well have sprung from the pen of Joseph Conrad was recounted in Berlin of the cruise of the North German Lloyd freighter Erlanger, which was caught by the outbreak of the war in Australian waters with her coal supply running low and sailed and steamed her way across vast reaches of the Pacific to a Chilean harbor.

In five weeks she covered 4,826 miles, burning wood that the crew chopped down in a month's labor on a South Sea island or using sails made out of hatch covers and tarpaulins rigged to derrick masts. When the Erlanger arrived in Chile on November 12, she had burned most of her cabin floors and almost every article of furniture on board, having covered 3,319 miles under steam and 1,507 under sail.

She had left New Zealand headed for Australia to replenish her coal supply when the war broke out. Running without lights, she made for an uninhabited South Sea island, where she anchored in a bay, invisible to passing ships. The captain decided to substitute wood for coal and the entire crew was put to work chopping down trees and sawing them up. The ship's engineers made axes and saws from reserve wind screens.

The wood at first was rowed to the ship in her four lifeboats, but it was soon seen that it would take months to get a sufficient supply on board by this means. The ship therefore was cautiously headed in closer to land and finally anchored about 100 yards off shore. From there it was possible to string a cable to shore, along which boatloads of wood were pulled. Some of the wood was also tied together to form rafts and floated to the ship's side, whence it was pulled up by derricks.

After a month's labor the ship had 400 tons of wood aboard, which, according to exhaustive calculations, was sufficient to get her to South America. The first officer meanwhile gathered all available canvas, sewed it together for sails and rigged them on the masts.

On October 7 the ship steamed out of the bay and headed eastward. She was covered with camouflage paint and every precaution was taken to avoid her capture. At sea it was found that she was able to sail fairly well. The weather was bad, with a strong wind, but for nine days the Erlanger made good time under sail alone. In calm weather she proceeded by steam, frequently changing her course to avoid main shipping lanes.

After thirty-five days' sailing, during which not a single ship was seen and the only connection with the outside world was by radio, the ship sighted the Chilean coast. When she ran into harbor there was scarcely a stick of wood on board and the drinking water and provisions were almost exhausted.

New York Postoffice Sets World Record For Mail Handled

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK—The greatest volume of mail ever handled by any postoffice in the world, 17,508,033 pieces, passed through the New York postoffice on December 20, Postmaster Albert Goldman reports.

Receipts for Tuesday and Wednesday totaled $966,474, exceeding any previous two-day volume and setting a new world's record.

The records broken were both set last year. On Dec. 20 last year 16,595,851 pieces were handled, 900,000 under this year's total, and the receipts on the two comparable days of 1938 were $920,000.

The New York postoffice handles more mail, both at Christmas and during normal mailing periods, than any other office in the United States or in any foreign country, the postmaster's office revealed.

The peak of Christmas mail in Brooklyn was reached recently, in the opinion of Francis J. Sinnott, postmaster of the borough, Mr. Sinnott said that although figures for mail collected recently, were not yet available, cancellation machines showed a total many thousands in advance of the amount of first-class mail collected and canceled at the same hour of the corresponding day in 1938.

HOLIDAY MAIL AT PEAK

WASHINGTON—Postal authorities predicted that this year's volume would show a record increase of approximately 600 per cent over the average monthly volume of 1939.

Postmaster General Farley based his prediction upon confidential estimates submitted by postmasters in 135 key cities. Reports on actual business will not be available for nearly a month.

Mr. Farley estimated that it would cost the Postoffice Department approximately $10,000,000 additional to handle "the greatest mail volume in history," but revenues from the additional mail probably will be twice that figure. Postal personnel was increased by 100,000 to 500,000.

Postal authorities believed that Christmas mail would slack off, although they planned to make deliveries of gift parcels as late as Christmas Day to accommodate those who failed to heed the department's warning to "shop early, mail early."

Christmas packages still are getting to foreign nations from the United States, the International Division reported, although in some cases delay has been experienced.

Air mail has attracted a great portion of the letter volume to foreign countries, it was reported. The last ship carried 4,306 pounds. All recent flights have carried a ton or more, it was said.

PROGRAM FOR FAR EASTERN MEET ADVANCES

Track and field, soccer and basketball will comprise the events for Japan, Manchoukuo, China and the Philippines in the Far Eastern athletic meet to be held either in May or June in Tokyo or Osaka as a part of the celebration of the 2,600th anniversary of the founding of the Japanese Empire, if plans of the Japan Amateur Athletic Federation materialize.

The track and field events would include 100, 200, 400, 800, 1,500 and 5,000 meter runs, 400 meter low hurdles, 110 meter high hurdles, discus throw, shotput, javelin throw, hammer throw, broad jump, high jump, pole vault, hop, step and jump, 400-meter relay, and 1,600 meter relay. The marathon may be added.

One team each will represent each country in soccer and basketball.

Volleyball will be contested by Japan, Manchoukuo and China.

Competition featuring Japan, Manchoukuo and the Philippines will be tennis.

Competition only between Japan and Manchoukuo will be cycling, ta[illegible] tennis and tennis.

Japan and the Philippines will co[illegible] and wrestling.

If rowing, horsemanship and rugby are included, it will be contested only between Japan and Manchoukuo.

Tentative plans also call for baseball competition between Japan and Hawaii and field hockey between Japan and India.

If Thailand accepts the invitation that has been sent, it is expected her [illegible] will compete in track and field, soccer and tennis.

Present indications are that the meet will be held early in June.

ESKIMOS LIVE IN TRANQUILLITY FAR FROM THE ECHOES OF WAR

Christian Science Monitor

OTTAWA—With Canada at war there are some 7,000 ardent "pacifists" in the northern regions of the Dominion completely aloof from the war effort. The Eskimo population knows nothing about the war and historically is probably the world's most unwarlike race, according to two outstanding authorities on those northern people.

The eskimos, say Maj. D. L. McKeand, chief of the Dominion Govment's annual Eastern Arctic Patrol, and the Rt. Rev. A. L. Fleming, Angelican Bishop of the Arctic, are survivors of the patriarcal age, and because they have no tribes, they have no nationalism.

Eskimo social economy is based on the family unit rather than on the tribal unit. Eskimos live in small groups, moving about the vast expanse of snow, ice, and tundra. Their quarrels are family disputes rather than clashes of rivalry between different tribes or different peoples. An Eskimo just doesn't understand war, and is a pacifist of temperament and tradition.

The war has little effect on the Eskimo. His natural habitat is unlikely to become a battlefield, since Arctic ice floes could defeat the most powerful navy, and Arctic blizzards, the intense cold and the shifting snowdrifts could rout an army. There is no forage for soldiers, no fuel to be had.

War touches the Eskimo hunter only in a way he cannot understand—economically. When he brings his fur catch to the white trader in wartime to exchange it for such necessaries as matches, rifle, ammunition, flour, and household goods, it is puzzling to him to find that he must give more furs than usual for fewer goods in return. He knows nothing of a wartime decline in world fur markets and a sharp increase in commodity prices.

At present, fur prices are holding up a fairly well, while commodity prices are rising. Some distress might come to the Eskimo if the price of fur, his one stock in trade, should drop.

Eskimos hear little of the war. Some have radios, but mostly for the white man's music. News over the air in the white man's tongue means nothing, but if there are isolated Eskimos who want to enlist to fight for their King, it would be a long and lonely journey out of the Arctic to join up. Too, the Eskimo physique is adapted to the northland.

HAGUROYAMA WEDS DAUGHTER OF HIS TEACHER

Champion Haguroyama, 26, who broke all existing records in professional sumo by the speed of his promotion, becoming an "ohzeki" or champion in five years since he made his first public appearance in the ring, won further honors Wednesday. He was married to Miss Kinuyo Takagi, 24, the second daughter of his teacher, whose professional name is Tachinami.

It is interesting that Haguroyama, whose real name is Masashi Kobayashi, was a helper in a bathhouse near the Kokugikan wrestling bowl at Ryogoku. Tachinami, a patron of the bathhouse, noticed his splendid physique and kept coaxing him to become a wrestler. Haguroyama refused and it was not until Tachinami had the young man's relatives in Niigata prefecture bring pressure upon him that he consented to try his fortune in the indigenous sport of the country. That was five years ago. Each tournament saw him promoted to a higher rank and the tourney last month saw him performing as a champion, a rank which nine out of ten wrestlers never reach. He has good prospects of becoming a grand champion in the next few years, a rank held by his elder stablemate, Futabayama.

Haguroyama and Miss Takagi were married at the Iidabashi Shrine at 3 p.m. Wednesday. The wedding reception was held at the Imperial Hotel at 6 p.m. the same day. Including the go-betweens, Mr. and Mrs. Seijiro Kato, and General Soroku Suzuki, president of the Haguroyama Patrons' Club, Admiral Isamu Takeshita, president of the Japan Sumo Association, Kenkichi Yoshizawa, former Foreign Minister, and officials of the Sumo Association and leading wrestlers, some 250 persons attended the reception.

Following the reception, the newly-weds left Tokyo Station at 10:25 p.m. for a short honeymoon to Atami.

was shattered and the cameras continued to turn, and showed riders and horses unscathed. The cameras were kept on the "flying W's" in the same picture, until the animals scrambled to their feet and ran a short distance.

"Virginia City" is being filmed almost as much excitement as featured life in that early Nevada metropolis. There have been no actual shootings, but upon occasion, alarmed by the glint in the eyes of some cast members, Director Michael Curtiz anticipated gun play.

This week barroom scenes were shot with Miriam Hopkins doing the can-can, which engaged the nation's rougher element of the period and which was described in The Police Gazette: "The lascivious waltz has become tame and the orchestra, catching the infection of the hour, strikes up the merry measure of Offenbach's can-can music. Lively feet dance themselves into abandon, until limbs of all sizes and shapes are elevated in dangerous proximity to male physiognomy." Of course, Miss Hopkins will not go that far, but during rehearsal of the number she did throw her hip out of joint.

The star was coached in the dance by Fannie Van Meader, 71-year-old mining-camp artiste. After Miss Hopkins had recovered, she did the dance, and at the end of it a bearded extra grabbed her and kissed her. All went well during rehearsals and shooting, and when it was over the extra asked the assistant director, "Do I get a stunt check for that?" Miss Hopkins overheard the question, and, stamping her foot, she exclaimed, "Well, I declare," and strode to her dressing room, where she slammed the door.

2 Ex-Meiji Wrestlers Are Called to Colors

Kozo Mizutani and Hideichi Yoshioka, who competed for Japan in amateur wrestling at the 11th Olympic Games at Berlin in 1936, have been called to the colors, it was announced Wednesday. They will join their respective companies soon.

Both are graduates of Meiji University.

Widow, Son Get Fairbanks Estate In Actor's Will

N.Y. Times

LOS ANGELES,—Douglas Fairbanks, stage and screen actor, who died in Los Angeles on December 12, named his widow, Sylvia Fairbanks, the former Lady Ashley, and his son, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., as his principal heirs. His will, drawn November 2, 1936, indicating that his estate was in excess of $3,000,000, was filed in Surrogate's Court recently. It made no mention of his former wife, Mary Pickford, who is now the wife of Buddy Rogers, or his first wife, the former Beth Sully.

Mr. Fairbanks divided his property into two estates and named the Guaranty Trust Company of New York as executor of his New York estate and the Bank of America National Trust and Savings Association of Los Angeles as executor of his California estate. After making specific bequests he divided his estate into forty parts.

He directed his executors to set aside $2,000,000 as his residuary estate and bequeathed onehalf of it to Mrs. Fairbanks. In making the bequest Mr. Fairbanks expressed the wish that his widow would bequeath a part of the property she was to receive "to such of my heirs and next of kin and for such charitable or educational or patriotic purposes as she may decide in her discretion." He added that it was not his intention to place any restriction upon her full ownership, use or enjoyment of the property.

'Men with Wings'

mantic, daredevil swashbuckler of the air, MacMurray, and the courageous, pioneering builder of planes, Milland. In her decision is bound up the future of aviation's progress for many years.

Wellman has assembled a supporting cast of some of Hollywood's best-liked players. Andy Devine leads the group.

Because California airplane plants are working 24 hours a day on government and commercial orders, Producer-Director William A. Wellman had to build a complete plane factory on the Paramount lot during the filming of his Technicolor cavalcade of aviation.

When plans for this story of aviation from the Wright Brothers to Howard Hughes were being drawn up a year ago, Wellman was certain he could borrow a nearby plane factory for a few days, since "Men With Wings" does so much to glorify American aviation. But he did not count on the present aviation boom, which has made it impossible for the factories to cease production even for a moment!

Building the factory on the Paramount lot was one of this season's biggest construction jobs. The set covered two hundred by three hundred feet, contained four complete airplanes, several others in various stages of construction and eight airplane wings. Two hundred "airplane builders," played by extras, filled the structure.

In "Men With Wings," the factory belongs to two aviation pioneers, Fred MacMurray and Ray Milland, who design, manufacture and fly new planes.

DUBLIN FIGHTS TO SMASH I.R.A.

Outlaw Radio Station Caught During Broadcast; Police Continue Complete Round-Up

By HUGH SMITH

N.Y. Times

DUBLIN—Ireland faces the new year with a problem of dealing with increasingly active Republican radicals within its borders, added to the already serious economic and fiscal problems created by the war situation.

The recent raid by Irish Republican Army men on the National Arsenal in Phoenix Park, when a million rounds of ammunition was reported stolen, was a challenge to the government of Premier Eamon de Valera.

Dublin and the counties around it have been been in a ferment of military and police activity that is still going on. The State forces found quantities of the missing ammunition hidden in fields in Counties Kildare and Meath, and nearly half of it is reported to have been recovered.

The police have been busy arresting suspected Republicans in many parts of the State. About 20 young men have already appeared before the Dublin District Court, some of whom were sent for trial to the Special Military Tribunal.

Recently the Dublin detective squad ran an I. R. A. "pirate" short-wave radio station to earth on the outskirts of the city. On Sundays, Wednesdays and Fridays the station had been sending out Republican propaganda for many weeks. It was raided while the program was being transmitted.

Four young men, including the announcer and operators, were arrested and were formally charged in court recently. They included George Noble Plunkett, who was the first Republican to contest a Sinn Fein abstentionist in pretreaty days.

The Dail Eirann has been asked to give the de Valera government powers of internment without trial. Both the Dail and the Senate are certain to rush through the amending bills, but the government will have to stand a fire of criticism over the National Arsenal affair. Both in the press here and among the people there is condemnation for permitting a condition of affairs under which this was possible.

Some persons alleged that the I. R. A. riot in Londonderry jail was timed to synchronize with the Dublin raid so that the seized ammunition could be more easily sent across the border to radicals in Northern Ireland. Extremists here are anxious to force the Ulster border issue to the fore during the present international situation, but Premier de Valera opposes any use of physical force that might bring Ireland into conflict with Britain.

MAKING HEADWAY

THOMAS DEWEY

DEWEY GAINING, SURVEY SHOWS

60% of Republicans Questioned In Gallup Study Back Him As Presidential Nominee

District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey has increased his lead substantially as the favorite candidate of voters who now intend to vote Republican in November, a nationwide study by the American Institute of Public Opinion, of which Dr. George Gallup is director, indicates. Mr. Dewey's rise in popularity according to the New York Times at the expense of Senator Vandenberg of Michigan and Senator Taft of Ohio, followed his speeches in New York and Minneapolis in which he announced his format candidacy and attacked the New Deal for "defeatism."

Many voters are still undecided about their opinions, however, an analysis of the survey emphasizes. It continues:

"Whereas 39 per cent of those with definite choices on the 1940 candidate mentioned Dewey two months ago, 60 per cent mention him in the present test of rank-and-file opinion.

"Dewey is thus 21 points higher than he was in November, but only 6 points higher than he was in May, his popularity having dipped, abruptly during the fall of 1939 as the news from Europe thrust other Republicans into the national spotlight.

"In second and third place respectively the voters reached in the institute survey name Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan and Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio. Although they are trailing Mr. Dewey with the rank and file as of today, it is entirely possible that these or other candidates will prove to have greater support with the party leaders who will meet in the convention itself and whose votes will decide the nomination. In this connection it is interesting to note that in a poll of Washington political writers published last month in News Week, Vandenberg and Taft were picked as the most likely Republican President nominees, and that Dewey was picked by only four of the fifty writers participating in the poll.

QUERY PUT TO VOTERS

"In its continuous surveys of rank-and-file opinion the institute has asked persons who voted for Landon or who intend to vote Republican in November: Whom would you like to see elected President in 1940? The replies of those with definite opinions at this time, as compared with two months ago, are:

TODAY

1.	Thomas E. Dewey	60%
2.	Senator Vandenberg	16
3.	Senator Taft	11
4.	Herbert Hoover	5
5.	Governor James	1
6.	Senator Lodge	1
7.	Governor Bricker	1
8.	Senator Borah	1
9.	Alf M. Landon	1
	All others	3

NOVEMBER

1.	Dewey	39%
2.	Vandenberg	26
3.	Taft	18
4.	Hoover	5
5.	Landon	3
6.	Borah	3
7.	Lodge	1
8.	Lindbergh	1
	All others	4

"While political observers will be interested in the shifts which have come about apparently as a result of Mr. Dewey's widely heralded opening speeches, the most obvious political lesson is that Republican sentiment is far from crystallized, even in the minds of the rank and file and that additional changes for any candidate—either up or down—may easily occur as the result of speeches, endorsements, campaigning and news developments at home and abroad between now and convention time.

"Another important indication of the plastic character of the race is that more than a third of the voters interviewed (37 per cent) have not yet decided in their own minds whom they would like to see nominated. The number of undecided voters has been gradually declining in recent months, but the number without definite opinions still remains substantial.

STRONG WITH YOUNGER GROUP

"As might perhaps be expected, the 37-year-old Mr. Dewey, a relative newcomer to national politics, is stronger with younger classes of Republican voters than he is with their elders. No one age group alone accounts for his present lead, however, as the following figures show:

Age Groups.	Percentage of Those With Definite Opinions Who Name Dewey.
Under 30	72
Thirty to 49	61
Fifty and over	53

"The survey also indicates that Mr. Dewey has sharply increased his popular following in the Middle West since his Minneapolis and New York speeches.

"Dewey's emergence as a candidate with substantial popular backing at this stage in the race closely parallels the rise of Governor Landon in Republican sentiment just four years ago. The Kansas Governor took the lead over other Republican candidates late in 1935, according to institute studies, and by February, 1936, was receiving 43 per cent of the G. O. P. preference vote in those studies.

"In 1936, as it happened, the Republican convention chose the leading popular favorite, but there have been many instances in American political history when the prize went to a 'dark horse' candidate. In 1920, for instance, the Republican delegates passed over the claims of both Governor Lowden and General Leonard Wood to nominate a lesser-known Senator from Ohio, Warren G. Harding.

"As the 1940 campaign speeds up the real Republican decision rests with the 1,000 delegates who will meet in a city not yet selected on a date not yet determined.

"Where the candidates' popular strength with the rank and file may have its greatest influence is in the series of State primaries, beginning in New Hampshire in March and stretching into the late spring. Here, wherever clear-cut contests develop, it will be possible to check on the strength of Mr. Dewey, Senator Vandenberg, Senator Taft and the other candidates."

Highway Construction Planned Through North China Forest

Domei Tsushin

YANKI, Feb. 7—A plan is now underway for construction of highways running through a thick forest extending over Antu, Chientao province; Tunhua, Chilin province; and Fusung, Lunghua province. The forest is considered a hotbed for bandit who disturb peace and order in these provinces.

The plan is expected to contribute greatly to exploitation of natural resources and industrial development. It has been decided that the projected construction work will be carried out at a cost of approximately ¥4,000,000 which will be appropriated jointly by the three provinces.

HOKKAIDO STEALS SHOW IN SKI MEET

Hokkaido stole the show in the team contests which opened the ski championships of the 10th Meiji Shrine Games Thursday on the slope of Mt. Kanaya near Takada City, Niigata prefecture.

Teams from Hokkaido captured the 5-men 50-kilometer races for the railway, communications and factories-mining companies divisions.

Hokkaido was fourth in the forestry division and second in the defense organizations races. It did not enter the young men's organizations race.

One thousand contestants participated in the opening ceremonies held notwithstanding the falling snow and sharp wind that almost bent Tadayoshi Sato, representative of Saghalien, holding the flag donated by His Majesty the Emperor, into two. The athletes' oath of good sportsmanship was given by Hozo Tatsuta of Waseda University.

Announcement was made during the ceremony that Tomekichi Yasu, contestant from Saghalien, working at the Mitsui mine, had been summoned to the colors. Instantly, he was the object of congratulations.

Winners of the races were:

Communications: Sapporo, 52 mins. 49 secs.

Railways: Sapporo, 56 mins. 1 sec.

Forestry: Akita, 51 mins. 57 secs.

Defense organizations: Niigata, 54 mins. 58 secs.

Young Men's organizations: Yamagata, 58 mins. 55 secs.

Factories-Mining: Hokkaido, 53 mins. 9 secs.

GROUP STUDIES NEW AIRPLANES

Authority Finds Multi-Engine Craft and Greater Power Create New American Problems

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK—Multi-engine installations and the development of more powerful engines have done much to widen the margin of safety in airplane flight but they have at the same time resulted in important modifications of airplane characteristics, Dr. Clark B. Millikan told the Institute of the Aeronautical Sciences recently in presenting the third Wright Brothers lecture at Columbia University.

About 100 persons prominent in all branches of aeronautics were present when Dr. Millikan, who is an associate professor of aeronautics at the California Institute of Technology, read his paper on "The influence of Running Propellers on Airplane Characteristics." The lecture, sponsored by the institute and endowed by the Vernon Lynch Fund, is given every year on the anniversary of the first flight of the Wright Brothers. Because the anniversary falls on Sunday this year, the lecture was moved up one day.

"It was early realized," Dr. Millikan declared, "that running propellers might have effects on characteristics other than resistance to forward motion, such as stability, control, flying qualities and so forth, and scattered wind tunnel investigations on such questions began to appear in the technical literature at a relatively early date.

"However, until fairly recently these secondary effects of running propellers were in general relatively minor, so that the power-on characteristics of an airplane could be estimated from its power-off or gliding characteristics through the application of rough empirical correction factors."

CALLS IT UNSATISFACTORY

This procedure, he explained, has become increasingly unsatisfactory. Engine horsepowers have increased rapidly in recent years and multi-engine installations have been more widely used. This has meant the increase of the slipstream velocity and that a greater percentage of the wing area has been affected by the slipscream from the propellers. To assure the margin of safety by furnishing information as to the nature and magnitude of the power-on effects, Dr. Millikan and the staff of the Guggenheim Aeronautical Laboratory made a two-year investigation. The paper read recently was the result.

Following Dr. Millikan's lecture, Dr. George W. Lewis chairman of the meeting and head of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, and Frank W. Caldwell, J. C. Hunsaker, Donald H. Wood and T. P. Wright joined in a discussion of the paper.

FEATURES OPENING RITES OF SKI MEET

A feature of the opening ceremonies of the ski championships of the 10th Meiji Shrine Games Thursday at Takada City, Niigata prefecture, was the mass ski calisthenics by 3,000 students of the city's primary schools.

NEW YORK PUSHCART MARKET TO VANISH, MOVING INDOORS AFTER UNIQUE CENTURY

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK—With only a few sentimental New Yorkers to sigh over its passing, the century-old East Side pushcart market will slide into oblivion soon, to be replaced with a fine new shiny enclosed retail market on Essex Street.

Markets Commissioner William Fellowes Morgan Jr. said recently that Mayor La Guardia and a group of city officials would mark the transition with special ceremonies when the former street peddlers will take possession of their new quarters in the enclosed market.

No more will Orchard Street, Hester Street and Rivington Street resound to the rancous cries of "Look, lady—cheap—fine quality—and such a bargain!" The clamor of competition between bull-voiced peddlers will be stilled. And that solid phalanx of penetrating odors will no longer invade the visitor's nostrils, with the aroma of steamed clams ("Help yourself to the butter sauce"), baked sweet potatoes ("Nickel apiece, gents") and forlorn-looking fish ("Not an hour out of the water, lady").

In place of all this, the Markets Department offers four new market buildings built at a cost of $525,000, "of modernistic design." The grimy, calloused hands that made the bells jingle on the carts will have to get used to sedate steel and masonry structures, with their rose brick facings and fancy skylights. The pennies of the peddlers go into stall rentals of $4.25 a week, and it is estimated that the markets will earn $100,000 a year above expenses. All the spaces have been rented, and a thousand peddlers have already applied for the first vacancy.

"There still seems to exist opposition to the transfer of peddlers from the open street to enclosed markets on the ground that we are eliminating picturesque landmarks," says the Markets Department. "That is the point of view of the sentimentalists. Let them ask the peddler how he feels about standing out in the open street in the cold and wet when he can operate 300 days per year in comfortable and attractive surroundings."

In the same breath, the department admits that here are quite a few peddlers who refused to move into the new quarters and preferred their cold, wet, nomadic existence on the streets. They are pushcart peddlers—and they like it.

Far Eastern Meet Scheduled for Tokyo, June 6, 7, 8 and 9

The Japan Amateur Athletic Federation's Far Eastern athletic meet as its share in the celebration of the 2,600th anniversary of the Empire will be held at the Meiji Shrine Outer Gardens in Tokyo on June 6, 7, 8 and 9, it was definitely decided Thursday night.

Athletes from Manchoukuo, China, the Philippines, Thailand and Hawaii have been invited to compete.

A meet in the Kansai will also be held on June 14, 15 and 16 at the Koshien stadium, near Osaka, with part of its events at the Kashiwara Shrine premises.

SWISS RIGHTS FIND DEFENSE IN SCHOOL PLAN

Wartime Defense, Preparedness Costly, But Education Holds Its Own in Budget Allotments

Christian Science Monitor

BERN, Switzerland—While wartime defense and preparedness continue to make heavy inroads on Switzerland's financial resources, recognition of education as one of the strongest safeguards of democracy has so far forestalled any cut in the Republic's school budget.

In Switzerland, where power is vested in the people through referendum, citizenship is considered a responsibility, and education is looked to as the only preparation for exercising the franchise wisely. The state emphasizes education, and Federal, Cantonal, and municipal authorities make many concessions to schools, which are adapted to meet the various needs of every section of the population. The most modest town, the most mountainous section, has its school, in many cases well-lighted, roomy, well equipped, with the principal building standing beside the church and the town hall, while the larger cities often have school-buildings in conspicuous locations. In the Alps, where the population is scattered, the law provides for adequate schools, which are occasionally housed under the same roof with the town or other governmental authority. In the far regions no less than in the busy cities, foreign children are admitted on the same basis as Swiss children.

To fit this universal education to its variety of population and its complex physical conditions, Switzerland has evolved what at first sight appears to be a complicated system, but insofar as there is no illiteracy in Switzerland, the system has proved successful.

The base is the free elementary school, subsidized by the Confederation, and found in each Cantonal-community, with attendance required of each youth from the ages of about 7 to about 15.

Specialization begins early. If the classical university is the aim, entrance examinations for the classical college are taken. If the choice is a profession or business, elementary school is attended four more years.

An institution that goes under the various names of municipal school, grammar school, preparatory school, and regional school, sends its graduates to the university. Duration of studies in it is about six and one half years.

Continuation Schools offer teaching in trades, industry, commerce, domestic science, and agriculture.

In eastern Switzerland are schools for embroidery; in the west, for watch-making; in Zurich are schools for silk-weaving; in Bern training is furnished in pottery and wood-carving. Of 22 schools devoted to agriculture, the Government subsidizes four general schools (equivalent in America to agricultural universities), three for dairy-making, and eleven winter-schools for the sons of farmers who would add experimental knowledge to their practical knowledge.

Domestic Science Schools are intended mainly for girls, but older women are not excluded. Women's training schools for social work are found in Lucerne, Geneva, and Zurich. Training Colleges of which there are about 39 now in the country, are for elementary teachers, each having its own practice classes.

Small boarding schools, or pensionnats, exist, where fees are light and external surroundings are modest, where living is simple, and where only the most important branches of study are taken up. There are also large international boarding schools, having modern equipment and spacious playgrounds, in the sub-Alpine regions or in the beauty spots of Switzerland. Classes are generally small and emphasis is always placed on the needs of the individual. Here acquirement of new languages and absorption of a European culture come about gradually, and in natural surroundings.

The Government has no minister of education. Each canton organizes its schools, sets its own standards, and provides its own teacher-training. The seven universities of Switzerland are generally kept up by subsidies from their respective cantons.

U.S. SCIENTIFIC PRIZE IS WON BY M.I.T. MAN

Dr. Rabi's Report on Radio Frequencies of Atoms Called Most Noteworthy by Group

By WILLIAM L. LAURENCE

N.Y. Times

COLUMBUS, Ohio—The prize of $1,000 given annually by the American Association for the Advancement of Science to "the author of a noteworthy paper" presented at its annual winter meeting was awarded recently at the closing sessions of the meeting to Professor I. I. Rabi of Columbia University. The award was for his epoch-making discovery that all atoms and molecules in the universe transmit radio waves of various frequencies, and for his devising of atomic radio receiving sets that make it possible for man to listen in to these cosmic broadcasts.

Professor Rabi presented his report on his discoveries at the joint meeting of the American Association and the American Physical Society at Ohio State Union University, where a large gathering of eminent physicists hailed Dr. Rabi's report as an outstanding contribution to modern science.

In announcing the award the committee of scientists that selected the winner issued the following statement:

"As in past years the committee found it difficult to choose from almost equally meritorious contributions in scientific fields so different that comparison and contrast were impossible.

BUT AGREED ON RABI'S WORK

"Notwithstanding this difficulty, the committee reached a unanimous decision in favor of Dr. Rabi's research as outlined in his paper 'Radio Frequency Spectra of Atoms and Molecules' because it extends the range of scientific knowledge regarding atoms in a very significant way.

"Dr. Rabi has not only discovered radiations, emitted by atoms, that are pitched lower than any hitherto observed but also devised a method of measuring them. Although they lie within the range of radio, they are too feeble by far for detection by even the most sensitive devices now known in radio.

"Dr. Rabi's work has opened a way of measuring such subtle properties of atoms and molecules as the magnetism of their component parts a hundred times more accurately than was possible by any instrument available up to the present time. Of special significance is his conclusion that 'there are no forces between the nucleus and the electrons because of their spins, other than those arising from the fact that the nucleus, as well as the electron, is a magnet.'"

Dr. Rabi is 41 years old. He has been assistant professor of physics at Columbia University since 1930.

Dr. Albert F. Blakeslee, noted botanist and director of the Department of Plant Genetics at the Station for Experimental Evolution, Carnegie Institution of Washington, Cold Spring Harbor, L. L., recently was chosen president-elect of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He will take office at the annual meeting in December, 1940, at Philadelphia.

LENS IMPROVER IS REPORTED

A method for coating camera lenses, which greatly increases the effective speed of the lenses, eliminates flare and ghost images and produces a marked improvement in contrast under adverse lighting conditions, was reported before the closing of sessions of the meeting of the American Physical Society by Dr. C. Hawley Cartwright of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The method consists of coating the camera lenses with evaporated metallic fluorides.

Dr. Cartwright reported studies of a highly corrected F:2 lens composed of five separate elements on all surfaces of which a fluoride film had been deposited. The effective speed of this lens, he said, was almost doubled, the extent of the improvement by coating, he found, depended on the complexity of the lens. The increase in speed obtained by coating a three-element F:3.5 lens was much less than for the F. 2 five-element lens.

The method is an outgrowth of Dr. Cartwright's earlier work with the help of Dr. A. Francis Turner, which resulted in reducing reflection and adding to the transmission of light through glass.

PRINCE CHICHIBU ATTENDS SKI CHAMPIONSHIPS

Honored by the presence of His Imperial Highness Prince Chichibu, a thousand skiers, including representatives from the Army and Navy, competed in the second day's events of the ski championships of the 10th Meiji Shrine Games Friday at Takada City and Akakura.

Ideal weather prevailed in the morning but a blizzard handicapped the contestants in the afternoon.

The results of the downhill race for the new combined event follow:

Men's division: 1. Shingo Nakagawa (Sapporo), 4 mins. 14.2 secs.; 2. Kiyoshi Nakazawa (Kusatsu) 4 mins. 21 secs.; 3. Tetsuo Shimada (Meiji University), 4 mins. 22 secs.; 4. Wakao (Meiji), 4 mins. 24.4 secs.; 5. Okumura (Sapporo Railway) 4 mins. 26 secs.

Women's division: 1. Shizuko Taimura (Toyohara Federation), 3 mins. 12.2 secs.; 2. Toshiko Tsurumi (Nikko Federation), 3 mins. 23.8 secs.; 3. Toshiko Minemura (Myoko Club), 3 mins. 41.2 secs.; 4. Setsuko Kimoto (Odaru Higher Girls' School), 3 mins. 42.8 secs.; 5. Toyoko Kawai (Yamagata Higher Girls' School), 3 mins. 54.8 secs.

Army and navy communications relay, navy's division: won by Ominato Base (Okamoto and Fushimi), 59 mins. 3 secs.; second, Maezuru Naval Station (Sakurai and Okada), 1 hr. 40 secs.; third, Ominato Base (Hirano and Saito), 1 hr. 48 secs.; army's division: won by Miyamoto company, 51 mins. 59 secs.; second, Imamura company, 55 mins. 59 secs.; third, Hasegawa company, 58 mins. 52 secs.

Reservists race, 8 kilometers: won by Yoshida (Takada), 51 mins. 17 secs.; second, Seki (Takada), 53 mins. 11 secs.; third, Shimizu (Takada), 54 mins. 40 secs.

Young men's school race, 8 kilometers: won by Niigata, 50 mins. 24 secs.; second, Nagano, 52 mins. 15 secs.; third, Iwate, 57 mins. 8 secs.

Scouting race, 10 kilometers, army division: won by Hasegawa company, 59 mins. 44 secs.; second, Miyamoto company, 1 hr. 6 mins. 55 secs.; third, Innai company, 1 hr. 12 mins. 37 secs.; navy division: won by Ominato Base, 1 hr. 18 mins. 31 secs.; Maezuru disqualified.

FUTABAYAMA TO LEAD 120 WRESTLERS TO CENTRAL CHINA TO ENTERTAIN SOLDIERS

Led by Grand Champion Futabayama, one hundred twenty long haired wrestlers of the Tachinami training house have been given permission by the Army and Navy authorities to go to the front lines in Central China to entertain the soldiers.

The wrestlers have requested that the authorities on the spot refrain from going out of their way regarding their reception and that they be treated the same with the soldiers. They have even volunteered to assist in the transportation of arms and supplies.

Tentative plans call for the wrestlers' departure about September 20 and the trip will take them about 50 days.

Revenues from the usual barnstorming tours during the off-season of the championship bouts in Tokyo in January and February will accordingly be sacrificed.

In Grand Champion Futabayama, Champion Haguroyama and Nayoroiwa, rank just below champion, the Tachinami training house has three of the strongest sumo men in competition today.

or desired by either Japan or the United States, David Lawrence, writing in the New York Sun, suggests today the creation of a Japanese-American commission to study and, if possible, settle the Far Eastern situation.

"The United States should create a commission to mediate in the Sino-Japanese conflict, while another commission composed of Japanese and Americans—the Japanese representatives should include representatives of the military as well as civil services—would study a formula for permanent peace in the Far East," he declares.

Since the United States already recognizes Japan's special interests in China, Japanese military strategists should perceive the wisdom of looking upon the China problem as economic rather than political, then the United States whose interests in China are also economic might be willing to cooperate," he says.

"At present, the whole problem between the United States and Japan is being permitted to reach emotional stages, when actually there are economic factors which are suseptible of a mutually satisfactory settlement . . . Japan, the United States and China have cooperated before and a plan for economic and financial collaboration can be reestablished with the realization that Japan is being excluded by our tariffs and those of many other countries.

Difficulties between Japan and the United States, he continues, arise chiefly out of Japan's ambitions in China and the Japanese determination to disregard apparently all previous Japanese - American understanding with respect to American interests in China.

However, from the Japanese viewpoint, Japan has had to expand in China because the United States and other countries have insisted upon erecting high tariff walls to exclude Japan-made products.

Mr. Lawrence concludes by asserting that there is evidence of alarm among liberals in Japan as well as the United States over present relations. "Many well informed observers believe that Tokyo and Washington could, if they tried hard, reach an understanding, in view of the lack of any serious problem except that of emotional feelings."

we have given to Finland has been of real value."

TALKS WITH GREECE

Passing on to Britain's financial discussions with Greece, the Prime Minister said, "Satisfactory agreements have been reached on a number of financial and economic questions which are of mutual interest to the two governments including the settlement of the question regarding service on the Greek external debt for the duration of the war."

Prime Minister Chamberlain then referred to the German claims of successful U-boat and aerial attacks. He declared that these had no relation to the facts.

For example, he pointed out, "on February 3, it was asserted by Germany that in an air raid that day, no less than nine merchantmen as well as other vessels were sunk and that the British ships sunk were all in a convoy.

"The facts were that one Norwegian merchantman was sunk and that no British merchantmen were lost.

"These vauntings are poured out like a smoke screen to conceal stories of callous brutality as inhuman as any yet recorded of an enemy. The bombing of unarmed merchantmen and fishing boats from the air, and the machine gunning of their crews are done at elevations which made it clear that there was no doubt of the identity of these vessels.

"The German wireless statement on January 30, that the British naval patrol vessel Eastdudgeon was sunk by German aircraft was a falsification intended to cover up from the world a deliberate and savage attack upon a lightship.

"The Eastdudgeon is well known to the seafarers of all nations as a lightship and she naturally is unarmed. We always have shared with other civilized nations the view that lightships are outside the scope of hostilities. They are not even utilized to report the presence of enemy craft in their vicinity.

"The horror and disgust which such acts of pure gangsterism has excited, has made us all the more resolved to carry on the struggle until civilization is purged of such wickedness. We have no reason to be dissatisfied with the opening phases of the war. We face the future with calm deliberation and unshaken confidence," Mr. Chamberlain concluded.

The committee is composed of: Kenji Tomita, H. P. Egleston, Dr. F. Wilhelm, O. Santner, Ushiji Kabayama and Teruhiko Fujiyama.

All-Foreigners' Fifteen Favored vs. Kanto O.B.'s

The annual All-Kanto Old Boys (graduates and alumni of universities) versus All-Japan foreigners rugby game will be played at 2:30 p.m. Sunday at the Meiji Shrine grounds.

The foreigners' fifteen is said to be one of the strongest ever assembled, and the fact that the O.B.'s haven't had much chance to practise, the Japanese experts believe the foreigners have a good chance ot avenging past defeats.

NISHIO STATES DETERMINATION ON CHINA AFFAIR

General Declares Japanese Took Up Crusade to Crush Anti-Japanese Elements

Domei Tsushin

NANKING, Feb. 10—The present China Affair is a crusade in which the one hundred million populace of Japan have taken up arms for the purpose of making the Chinese anti-Japanese elements to understand the virtuous spirit of the founding of the Imperial Japanese Empire at the risk of their lives, declared General Toshizo Nishio, Supreme Commander of the Japanese Expeditionary Forces in China, today in a press interview in welcoming the 26th centennial of the founding of the Empire.

Following is the gist of his statement:

"We are overwhelmed with an indescribable and irresistible feeling to welcome on the warring Continent the 2,600th anniversary of the founding of the Empire when the China Affair has entered its fourth year and a new stage in the construction of a new East Asia under the glorious virtues of our August Emperor.

UNIVERSAL BROTHERHOOD

"At this juncture when the Imperial glory is spreading to the spirit of universal brotherhood with which the Emperor Jimmu founded the Empire, after overcoming great difficulties, throughout the alpha and omega of the 2,600 years has been traditionally followed and realized in the pursuit of the Empire's great mission, thereby building up a national polity and a glorious history that cannot be seen in any other nation in the world.

"The fact that the entire nation of Japan is now bravely facing the greatest national crisis unheard of in its history is because the Empire's mission which had been fostered and nurtured during the past 2,600 years encountered an unavoidable force. The present China Affair is, therefore, a crusade in which the one hundred million populace of Japan have taken up arms for the purpose of making the imbecile Chinese anti-Japanese elements who cannot throw off the incubus of anti-Japanism to understand the virtuous spirit of the founding of the Japanese Empire at the risk of their lives.

"Although a new central regime is about to be born in a new China and a dawn is about to be ushered in East Asia, there are still many difficulties athwart the path of realizing the lofty aims of the Empire.

DETERMINATION STRENGTHENED

"In welcoming the 26th centennial of the founding of the Empire at this time, our determination to crush all the Anti-Japanese elements with an indefatigable spirit and to push forward towards the goal of the disposal of the China Affair is all the more strengthened. At the same time, we are fully resolved, as the vanguard of the nationwide war structure of the Empire under the complicated international situation, to display the true value and power of the Imperial Army, so that the great mission of the Army which is based upon the gracious spirit of the founding of the Empire shall be duly fulfilled."

Taxes Explained

per cent deduction of taxation on the Second Class Incomes, which included incomes derived from bonds, debentures, deposits etc.

"On the other hand," Mr. Taman went on, "increase is found in the Indirect Taxation (taxation imposed on manufacturers for their manufactures such as sake and dresses, which is finally be paid by the consumer) and the Consumption Taxation, which would result in the increase of burden on the public."

Then the interpellator expressed fear that the enforcement of such an increased tax plan would bring about a general increase of commodity price, as a result of which the Government would find it difficult to execute the budget.

Then in interpellator suggested the abolishment of Business Taxation for the reason that profits earned by retail merchants of today are entirely different from those of the past, as a result of the enforcement of the officially-fixed prices.

"Today," he continued, "retail merchants can earn only limited profits because of the officially-fixed prices and therefore it is unreasonable to levy two taxes, business tax and income tax, on them."

Mr. Taman also asked the Finance Minister if the Government intends to establish a "property tax" in view of the phenomenal rise in the value of private properties since the outbreak of the China Affair.

Referring to the remission of taxes on the branch of important war industries, Mr. Taman maintained that such important war industries now take the form of monopolized capital and that the remission of taxes for them did not stimulate the increased production but only served to favor the monopolized capital.

Mr. Taman suggested that the Government might adopt such a system as remitting taxes when they manufacture a certain quantity of manufactures.

He then asked the Finance Minister if the Government would carry out a drastic increased taxation on wartime profits, pointing out the fact that incomes of 1,800,000 persons in Japan increased to ¥4,500,000,000 from ¥2,500,000,000 during the period of three years from 1936 and 1939.

In reply, Finance Minister Sakurauchi stressed that emphasis was laid on the burden on the part of the capitalists rather than the public reiterating that the tax reform plan aims at the equalization of burden and the harmonization of various urgent economic policies.

Referring to the problem of the second Class Incomes Taxation, the minister replied that he thought it undesirable to levy heavy taxes on second class incomes because otherwise a radical change might be brought about in financial circles to cramp the Government's bonds policies.

As to Indirect and Consumption Taxation, the minister explained that the imposing of taxes on daily necessities is averted as far as possible in the plan.

Regarding the Business Taxation, the minister made it clear that he had no intention of abolishing it because of the fact that parts of retail merchants earn their profits by the operation of capitals even under the officially-fixed price system.

OPPOSES PROPERTY TAX

Minister Sakurauchi opposed to the establishment of the Property Taxation because it would be extremely difficult to value private properties and because a large revenues are unlikely even if it is established.

The minister stated that the Government decided to remit taxation on important war industries in order to carry out the production capacity expansion program. He said he was opposed to carrying out a drastic increased taxation plan on wartime profits because the proposed new plan provide for considerable heavy taxes on these profits.

Following this, Shigeru Ishizaka, Jikyoku Doshikai, and Tokuichiro Takeda, Nakajima Faction of the Seiyukai Party, took the platform to ply Finance Minister Sakurauchi with questions regarding the tax reform plan, to which the minister made answers of similar nature.

SUGAR SETUP ASSURES TOKYO AMPLE SUPPLY

Two Pounds Per Day Slated For Each Family in Area According to New Plan

A program of sugar distribution, based on estimated consumption of two pounds per family per day, soon will be enforced in Tokyo.

The program will assure Tokyo citizens of an adequate supply of sugar, said Chief Tsuneki Fukutomi, of the commodity prices adjustment section of the Tokyo prefectural government.

"As far as the sugar supply is concerned," he told the Asahi, "Tokyo people may rely on our present measure."

Last November Tokyo prefectural and municipal authorities held a rice and sugar distribution conference and planned a smooth distribution of both important commodities in people's daily life.

Recently, a concrete program has been formulated as a result of the conference for securing the domestic sugar supply. It will be enforced shortly, the Asahi says.

PROGRAM DETAILED

According to the program, authorities will see to it that Tokyo citizens will have an ample annual supply of 420,000 piculs, of which 150,000 piculs will be diverted to free trading. On the other hand, there will be an annual amount of 279,500 piculs to be applied for adjustment of distribution. This will function once in every month, with 22,500 piculs of sugar distributed, except in July and December when 32,250 piculs, respectively, will be allotted.

Authorities believe that the guaranteeing of these amounts are enough for the consumption of all citizens, based on the estimation that each of the 1.3 million households in Tokyo can live on two pounds of sugar per day.

DISTRIBUTION SYSTEM

For the system of distribution, the Wholesale Dealers' Union will issue monthly amounts, based on last November levels, to each wholesale dealer in the city, who in turn will meet individual demands in exchange for tickets issued by the retail sales' unions. Authorities hope a careful and detailed survey will be made of individual needs for ticket issuance.

Mr. Fukutomi added as follows:

"What I earnestly wish is sincerity on the part of every citizen in cooperation for the success of our measure. The whole thing will be an utter failure if individual hoarding becomes as rampant as experienced last September. We will do our best with the new measure."

ENVELOPING DRIVE AGAINST ENEMY GAINS

3,000 Chinese Remnants Put to Flight Near Pinyang Plain

Domei Tsushin

CANTON, Feb. 10—The Japanese second-term enveloping campaign is now well under way. The Matsumoto, Kasama, Fukuda and Tsuboi units staged successive raids from Thursday night to Friday morning at various points against the Chinese remnants who were infesting the Pinyang Plain.

Following a clean-up operation in a mountainous district southwest of Pinyang, the Japanese units Thursday were advancing to the south where the Japanese encountered and crushed about 3,000 Chinese who were retreating in disorder near Hsiashih-tsun across the Pinyang Plain. At the same time the Japanese destroyed the enemy's headquarters and confiscated important documents.

JAPANESE ACHIEVEMENT

Domei Tsushin

CANTON, Feb. 10—Regarding a series of Japanese clean-up operations near Wuming, the press section of the Japanese expeditionary forces in South China announced at 5 p.m. yesterday as follows:

In and around Wuming the Harada, Watanabe, Suetsugu, Hayashi, Matsumoto and Sakata units on Thursday engaged the 93rd, 2nd and 135th divisions and about 5,000 other remnants. The Chinese left 1,370 dead. Booty included 6 light machine-guns, 100 rifles, 23,000 hand-grenades, 800,000 rounds of rifle ammunition, one motor-car and 400 tons of gasoline.

Meanwhile, from Wednesday to Thursday the Nomizo, Ogawa and Ishiwara units encountered and crushed about 6,000 Chinese remnants of the 156th, 175th and 115th divisions in the vicinity of Wangling and Laitong, 40 kilometers east of Pinyang. During the engagements the enemy left no less than 2,000 dead behind while the Japanese captured huge quantities of arms and ammunition.

TRAGIC-COMEDY OF ENEMY

Domei Tsushin

NINNING, Feb. 10—A tragic comedy of an enemy force attacking another, erroneously believing the latter to be a Japanese unit, occurred on Thursday near Laitongkan, Kwangsi province, according to a field dispatch.

This happened in the course of the mopping-up operations conducted by the Japanese Nomizo, Yamakawa, Hashida and Okada units against an enemy concentration of about 3,500 in the vicinity of that town.

One of the enemy units involved was fleeing from the barrage of Japanese machine-gun shots and passing by an elevation situated in the north, when the other party, also sneaking out of the Japanese trap as far as the fatal spot, attacked former's flank.

The damage caused by this fighting of the enemy troops among themselves must have been considerable, the dispatch says, as both of them finally took to flight leaving behind them more than 2,000 dead.

Diet Reveals

Minister if he could disclose the name of the British man-of-war which inspected the Asama Maru, to which Mr. Arita replied that the Government did not know it, although attempts were made to learn it.

Mr. Yutani next interpellated the Government concerning the reported $20,000,000 loan to China by the United States, but Foreign Minister Arita replied that the Government has been investigating it and could not comment on it.

Asking the Foreign Minister's views on validity of the Nine-Power Treaty, the Jikyoku Doshikai member recommended that the Government denounce it. He said the treaty has lost its validity since outbreak of the Manchurian incident in 1931.

CHINA LOAN

Returning to the question of the reported American loan to China, Mr. Yutani asked the Premier what he meant by his statement in reply to Tadao Matsumoto's interpellation last Wednesday in which he said that the Japanese Government is fully prepared to cope with the situation should the United States keep on oppressing this country and interferring with its action, and he declared that the reported American loan is "nothing but pressure on Japan by the United States."

Premier Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai replied that the Government determination was already made clear the other day, but its "preparedness" would depend on future developments of the situation, adding that he could not say anything concrete about it in view of the delicate international situation.

SUGANO WINS NATIONAL SKI JUMPING TITLE

With two leaps of 55 meters each scoring 229.50 points, Shunji Sugano of the Odaru Higher Commercial School won the jumping event of the skiing championships of the 10th Meiji Shrine Games Sunday at Takada City, Niigata prefecture. He lived up to his reputation as national student champion.

Masaji Iguro of Sapporo was second with 50.50 and 52 meters for 223.50 points. Matsutaro Wakamoto of Toyohara was third with 51.50 and 54 meters for 218.30 points. Fourth was Tetsuji Nishi of Waseda University will 54 and 52 meters for 216.10 points. Noboru Hoshino of Meiji University was fifth with 54 and 51 meters for 215.70 points.

BATTLE ROYAL

It was a battle royal between Shiro Mori of the Iiyama Middle School and Tadashi Okubo of the Kosei Commercial School for the honors in the youth's division. Mori leaped 56.50 meters on his first. Okubo's was a 57.50 meters and when it seemed as if he might take the first honors through better form with Mori registering 55.50 meters on his second, he swerved to the right as he landed on his second jump which was 53 meters. Total points were 218.80 for Mori and 217.30 for Okubo.

Kurao Kuji of Sapporo retained his title in the combined event with 440.90 points, registering 240 points in the long distance race and leaping 44.50 and 46 meters in the jump for 200.90 points.

Tokito Sakada of Keio University was second with 399.80 points, scoring 189 points in the long distance race and leaping 50.50 and 46 meters in the jump for 210.80 points. Third was Takeo Tayama of Akita Forestry with 393.50 points.

Tadashi Okubo won the title in the youth's division with 417.60 points. He scored 205.500 points in the long distance race and leaned 50 and 54.50 meers for 212.10 points.

The Toyohara Federation of Saghalien won the 32-kilometer relay championship for the third straight year. The time was 2 hours 22 minutes 29 seconds. Sapporo was second in 2 hours 24 minutes 20 seconds and Akita third in 2 hours 29 minutes 45 seconds.

HOKKAIDO GIRLS WIN

The girls from Hokkaido emerged victorious in the prefectural women's slalom competition with a time of 12 minutes 46 seconds. Members of the team were the Misses Katsuko Yamamoto, Shizue Sekizawa and Setsuko Kimoto. Akita prefecture was second in 13 minutes 8.6 seconds.

Historic Action

took on oxygen welding torches and steel plates and went to work. There was sad work to do, too. Sixty wounded men were treated: two went ashore to hospital. Thirty-six bodies were put into swastika - draped coffins, carried ashore, buried far from home.

Aboard the Exeter as she limped off toward the British base of Port Stanley in the Falkland Islands, 1,000 miles to the south, were 61 dead men, and 23 wounded. Commodore Harwood was notified by radio that he had been knighted and promoted to Rear Admiral. Ajax and Achilles got off comparatively lightly: between them only eleven dead and eight wounded.

DIPLOMATIC STORM

A diplomatic storm raged, Germans furiously charged the use of mustard gas, then dropped the charge. American Governments helplessly talked over what to do about this violation of their 300-mile neutral zone. Germany accused Uruguay of not allowing enough time for repairs.

Outside the mouth of the Rio de la Plata where it spews its yellow silt, the Ajax and Achilles waited exultantly for the deadline. Reinforcements came up fast. The much-disputed aircraft carrier Ark Royal and the battle cruiser Renown put in at Rio to refuel—evidently on their way to Montevideo. The 31,100-ton battleship Barham, and the French battleship Dunkerque—it and the Renown two of five Allied ships which can both outrun and outgun German pocket battleships—and the 10,000-ton cruiser Cumberland were rumored to be waiting just over the horizon. The Spee's sister Admiral Scheer and German submarines were also rumored on their way.

As the zero hour approached, Montevideans rushed down to the harbor to watch. Correspondents got up on a hotel roof. An NBC radio broadcaster set up his equipment on the dock.

At 6:20, two hours and to spare before the deadline, Spee weighed. Slowly she started moving for the breakwater mouth. The evening was clear—sun at the set, half moon already up, lazy little clouds. The supply ship Tacoma, with all Spee's married men aboard, picked up after her.

What would she do? To try to run that Allied gauntlet would be suicide. Spee had had time to make herself seaworthy, but not battleworthy. A rumor got around that Captain Langsdorff would slip her across the Plata's mouth to Buenos Aires, there perhaps to intern.

Outside in the river Spee anchored. Over the sides into barges and launches scrambled the crew. Captain Langsdorff stepped into a launch which, as it drew away from Spee, dragged a long, thin cable.

Just as the rim of the sun dipped into the sea, Captain Langsdorff surrounded by his officers, saluting, pressed a button on the end of the cable. A dull explosion. In three minutes Spee was on the bottom, her superstructure still showing ablaze. Darkness settled around the hissing remains.

This dramatic curtain was Adolf Hitler's pleasure, communicated by wireless. There was no apparent reason for it. Assuming that the Spee was in no condition to engage even the light British cruisers, Hitler had nothing to lose by allowing her to be interned—unless he expects to lose the war, he could expect to recover the interned ship when war is over. World War I had been lost when the Germans scuttled their fleet at Scapa Flow. If Hitler ordered the Spee scuttled merely that his enemies would never lay hands on her, World War II was already half lost in his own head.

BULLS AND BEATS

For its accidents as well as its accomplishments is the British Navy noted. On the same day last week that three British cruisers brilliantly defeated the Admiral Graf Spee, two of the Navy's warships collided somewhere at sea and the destroyer Duchess went to the bottom with 129 men. The Admiralty refused to divulge either the place of the collision or the name of the other ship, but it could not conceal the fact that this was Britain's fourth largest naval disaster of the war.

Coming on the heels of the Bremen's escape, this made two bulls to one beat for the week. Day after the Bremen's escape, the Admiralty announced that the submarine that let her get away had sunk a German submarine, had torpedoed and damaged a German cruiser. This evened the count. It is extremely difficult for one submarine to sink another. Maneuvering for position requires great technical skill, and it is almost impossible to attack if the enemy submarine is submerged. If the range is under 250 yards, the torpedo is likely to miss, and at short range the explosion of a torpedo is dangerous to the attacker as well as to the attacked. During the four years of World War I, British submarines got only 19 U-boats.

Five days later the Admiralty reported that the submarine Ursula had sneaked into the mouth of the Elbe, past six German destroyers, and sunk a 6,000-ton cruiser. Since such a ship would normally carry 571 men, this feat almost made up for the loss of Royal Oak, certainly put Britain far ahead in the naval score for the week.

Last week 19 Allied and neutral ships were sunk by mines, torpedoes and airplanes. Of the 19, 9 were British, 10 neutral.

Foreigners' Fifteen Beats Tokyo O.B., 15-8

The All-Japan Foreigners' rugby team defeated the Kanto O.B. fifteen Sunday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium by a 15-8 score.

Showing more power in the tight scrums, the foreigners, behind by a 7-8 score at the end of the first half, outscored the Japanese, 8-0 in the second half.

All told, the foreigners scored two tries, one goal and drop goal against one goal and one penalty goal by the Japanese.

FOKKER, FAMOUS AERO DESIGNER, BUILDER, DEAD

International Figure in Aircraft World; Had Said Planes Would Shorten War

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—Anthony H. G. Fokker, pioneer airplane designer, manufacturer and promoter, died today at Murray Hill Hospital, where he had been ill of pneumococcous meningitis for the last three weeks. He was 49 years old.

Mr. Fokker is survived by his mother, who lives in Holland. Although his death occurred at 6:30 a.m., news was withheld by Mr. Fokker's physician, Dr. Robert M. Cushing, until 11 a.m., so that the news might be telephoned by friends to his mother first.

IN BAD CONDITION

Dr. Cushing said that Mr. Fokker had been in a semi-conscious condition from the time he entered the hospital on Dec. 1. He lapsed into unconsciousness yesterday after making what Dr. Cushing described as "the msot gallant fight I have ever attended."

Talking with friends shortly after the outbreak of the present European war, Mr. Fokker said there would be little bombing of civilian areas from the air. He said that Germany was afraid of such maneuvers because of the effect reprisal bombings might have upon the morale of troops at the front. He explained that the troops, learning of the bombing, would become concerned as to the fate of their families at home.

Mr. Fokker, who felt the same condition would exist so far as the Allies were concerned, also offered the opinion that the plane would be the means of ending the war rather than prolonging it.

A pioneer in aviation, who took up flying in 1911, he first attracted attention during the World War when he designed planes for the German High Command. He came to the United States in 1922 and for several years headed the Fokker Aircraft Corporation of America. In recent years he maintained an airplane factory in The Netherlands.

At his factory in Amsterdam Mr. Fokker recently had been building planes for the Finns and for the other Scandinavian countries. Associates here yesterday said his D-21 plane, now in use with skis by the Finns, has been very successful.

TAUGHT HIMSELF TO FLY

Anthony Herman Gerard Fokker played a dominant part in the development of modern flying. He taught himself to fly on a home-made airplane, brought a long-sustained ascendancy to the German air arm in the World War by the invention of the synchronizing gear which allowed a machinegun to be fired through the propeller and by his design and construction of high-performance fighting planes.

Born April 6, 1890, at Kediri in the island of Java, where his father, Anthony G. Fokker, had a coffee plantation, young Tony did not wear shoes until he was 6 years old, when he moved with his family to Holland. In very early youth he showed signs of the mechanical ingenuity which marked his whole later life. He built a toy railroad, spring-operated, as a boy.

Young Fokker was a poor succes at school and was cast out upon the world by a disgruntled family. In 1910 he built his first monoplane in an abandoned Zeppelin shed at Baden-Baden and on it taught himself to fly, his first successful attempt being a hop of 500 feet.

This first machine was radical for its time. It soon aroused avid interest in Germany, where young Fokker was intermittently attending an engineering school near Frankfort. His first important public appearance in it as a solo flier was in connection with the birthday celebration of Queen Wilhelmina at Haarlem. In Germany he was the first man to execute a loop.

HELD GERMAN CONTRACT

In 1912 he secured a government contract. He had tried unsuccessfully to sell the rights to his self-stabilizing plane to Italy and to Great Britain. The German Imperial Government accepted his terms, however.

Although impressed as a German citizen during the war and not permitted to cease the manufacture of aircraft, Fokker continued to regard himself as a Hollander and a neutral.

One day the Germans captured the machine of the French flier Roland Garros. His plane had been fitted with a machinegun pointing ahead. The sides of the propeller blades were shod with wedgeshaped metal plates to deflect the bullets and protect the propeller. The Germans were impressed and showed the device to Fokker in Berlin. He was a stranger to machineguns. Receiving a light model gun from the army authorities, he took it to his factory at Schewerin. Three days later he returned with the synchronized machinegun-propeller mechanism which was to revolutionize air warfare and usher in the long line of the knights of the air.

Fokker, during the war period, was concerned not merely with the aerial gunnery device. He designed more than forty types of planes.

All the planes of his design were demanded by the Allies at the Armistice. Revolution in Germany threatened both his life and his property. But he saved both. Liberal with bribes, he bought the right of way over the Dutch border for a sixty-car train loaded to the guards with planes, engines and accessories of manufacture. It was followed by five more such trains.

Part of his fortune Fokker flew himself to his own country, but a substantial portion was shipped in a battered old suitcase carried by a cook of a legation under diplomatic privilege and another large sum went out of Germany on a schooner.

Invited to visit the United States by the Army Air Corps and to offer military designs, he sold the corps a transport, T-2, a single engine type. In it Lieutenants John A. McCready and Oakley G. Kelly made the first non-stop flight across the American continent.

SOLD PLANES TO U.S.

In a matter of three years Fokker sold $750,000 worth of aircraft to the United States Army and Navy. In 1922 he established in the United States the Atlantic Aircraft Corporation, where the welded steel fuselage construction which he had developed was adapted to 100 De Havilland planes. Three years after he brought over an innovation—a three-engined plane. Christened the Josephine Ford, it carried Admiral, then Commander, Richard E. Byrd and Floyd Bennett to the North Pole. It became the prototype for America's early transport airplanes.

Another plane of a similar type, the Fokker America, carried Byrd with Balchen, Acosta and Noville across the Atlantic. An even more famous Fokker of the period was the Southern Cross, in which Kingsford-Smith was to make his historic Pacific crossing and later to circle the world.

His three-engined transports were chosen for use in the model airline which operated between San Francisco and Los Angeles. They were purchased by Western Air Express under the first equipment loans ever made for aircraft, financed by the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics. His line was the fountain head of the present American system of air transports.

HAD TWO PLANTS IN U.S.

Fokker's company in America, with plants at Teterboro and Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., later joined forces with General Motors, and as the General Aviation Corporation was established at Wheeling, W. Va. Fokker developed the first large four-engined airplane in this country, the F-32. Holding F. A. I. license No. 88, issued May 16, 1911, he continued to fly, and won the Ford reliability tour in 1925. By the time he was 40, however, he admitted that he no longer enjoyed flying, but preferred his yacht or motorcar.

In Holland he maintained his factory, the Nederlansche Vliegtuigenfabrik, N. V., and continued to produce both military ships and airliners. He pioneered the 9,000-mile airway from Amsterdam to the Netherland Indies.

These planes reached the proportions of the F-36, a four-engined monoplane, for thrty-six passengers, on its shorter runs powered with American engines. Always alive to new developments of merit, whether his own or not, Mr. Fokker was quick to appreciate the American Douglas twin-engined transport with its 200-mile-an-hour cruising speed. He promptly took over the European manufacturing rights to this plane and its successor, the DC-3, and also negotiated for that to the Lockheed Electra transport.

DESIGNER OF GLIDERS

Mr. Fokker designed motorless aircraft in Germany during the war period, and suggested the glider train. In 1924, in England, he learned of plans for a glider meet. He cabled specifications for a glider to his factory in Holland and flew the craft, a biplane, in the meet to make the first long motorless flight with a passenger.

Last year he designed and built a stabilized, streamlined yacht in the Netherlands, which he called Q. E. D. It burned last autumn in the Hudson off Yonkers while taking a couple on a wedding trip. Eleven persons on the 112-foot craft jumped to safety. A twelfth was drowned.

Mr. Fokker married twice. His first marriage was during the war, and ended in divorce. On February 8, 1929, he married Miss Viola Lawrence of Quebec, Ill. She died the same year.

He maintained a residence at Alpine, N. J., where he also owned property, as well as his home in the Netherlands.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT" - by Ripley

FROM INSIDE SOVIET RUSSIA: A BURNING HUMAN DOCUMENT

By EDMUND STEVENS

Christian Science Monitor

HELSINKI, Finland,—The human side of war is not greatly different whether in Russia, Finland, or elsewhere.

Its story has been disclosed in a bundle of letters that will not be answered. They were found, wrapped in an old newspaper, beside a Russian soldier who fell in the snow-covered forests of Agglajaervi.

Perhaps their greatest value is what they show of the tragic and pitiably inefficient methods of the Kremlin, both in the war with Finland and in the "peace" at home.

The letters were written to Efim Pavlovitch by his wife Marusya, who calls him Sima, and translated into English by this correspondent.

The letters begin in October, when Moscow held troops ready presumably to invade Estonia if the latter had refused to accept the Soviet terms.

'Please Write'

Oct. 15

Dear Sima:

Best wishes from your devoted wife Marusya and son Lyonya. Please write me whether they have listed you for long-term service. I felt from the start that it was a serious matter, but you insisted you would be back soon. Write me whether they issued your winter clothing. I wonder how matters will end and whether we will ever see each other again, Sima.

We have a hard time of it, Sima, for they refused to pay me any extra allowance for Lytanya and all we have is seven rubles for the two of us to live on, Sima.

Some people say you will all be home soon. Others say not until peace is made. Try to get off just for one day to come home. I have lost track of many letters I wrote you. I don't understand why you don't get my letters. I wanted to try to come to see you the twelfth, but Peter told me I wouldn't find you, at the postal address, and your whereabouts is kept secret. So I stayed home.

If only you could write me and tell me when to come and if you could see me. I bought you some slippers for 20 rubles and some shirts. I hope they will fit. Only come home.

Lyonya keeps saying, "If my daddy, Sima, comes home when I am asleep please wake me." Peter was home from Poland for three days. If others can get off you should be able to.

Marusya.

'GET YOURSELF A JOB'

Oct. 21

Dear Sima:

Greetings from your loving Marusya and your son Lyonya. First of all let me tell you that I got your letter for which I thank you. Sima, you tell me to get work and earn something. Even before your letter came I had signed up as charwoman in a workers' barrack. I worked one day and never went back. Aunt Vera was most angry with me for quitting. But I could hardly stand the work among those men for one day, and now I shall look for other work the first of the month, but I don't know where.

You tell me in your letter, "Get yourself a job. I will be home soon." But I just know you are deceiving me. If you were really coming home you wouldn't tell me to get a job. Why have you got a new address?—although you don't mention the transfer to another town. Sima, I feel they are taking you farther and farther away from us.

Marusya

'I DON'T KNOW . . .'

Nov. 3

Dear Sima:

Greetings from your wife and little son Lyonya. Why don't you write? I am terribly worried about you. Mother writes she is leaving on the fifth and that I should meet her the sixth, but I think we shall eat up our last kopeks if she comes and then what on earth will Lyonya and I do?

Write before the holiday (Nov. 7, anniversary of revolution). I don't have a very gay holiday this year without you, Sima. I am back at the factory now. The only trouble is we have no electric current half the time, so working is very irregular and I don't know how much I will earn. Please write.

Lyonya and I feel like two poor little orphans. We cry and cry.

Sima, I inquired about the 20 rubles I sent you. They told me I must wait 42 days and then file a written request for tracing them. But maybe you received the money after all.

Marusya

'THEY TOOK OUT THE RUBLES'

Nov. 24

Dear Sima:

I sent my last letter by registered mail. If it isn't returned that means you received it. If it is returned that means I shall have no idea where you are—I cry and cry because I have got no more word from you. Yesterday I went and inquired about you and was curtly told you weren't permitted to write, as you were on secret duty but I just cannot believe they should be so heartless and cruel. The registered letter I sent you to Ostrov, enclosing Lyonya's picture and 10 rubles has just been returned, but they took out the 10 rubles.

I am so lonely and unhappy. A letter would cheer me, for if anything happened I should have your letter as a last keep sake.

I got my first month's wage yesterday: 101 rubles was all I earned on account of lack of electric current. I don't know when I will get your allowance money, but I wouldn't care about the money if only you wourself would come home. I cannot get over the feeling when I saw you off at the Moscow Station that I would never see you again. Marusya.

MASUDA WINS ENDURANCE SKI CROWN

Leading from the bark of the gun, Shinichi Masuda of Kamikoshi, Niigata prefecture, beat a field of 52 entries in the 36-kilometer endurance race Monday as the ski championships of the 10th Meiji Shrine Games closed at Takada City, Niigata prefecture. His time was 3 hours 18 minutes 55 seconds. It was the same Masuda that had triumphed in the cross country race on Saturday.

LEADS FROM START

Masuda's time at the end of the first lap of the 18-kilometer course was 1 hour 31 minutes 37 seconds. In second place was Masao Oyanagi of the Sapporo Communications Bureau with a 1 hour 35 minutes 31 seconds. They were followed by Yutaka Tadano of the Sapporo Railway Bureau, 1 hour 35 minutes 52 seconds, Yukichi Ohashi of the Toyohara Federation of Saghalien 1 hour 37 minutes 5 seconds, and Chikara Sekido of the Sapporo Railway Bureau and last year's winner, 1 hour 42 minutes 36 seconds.

At the 8th kilometer mark on the second lap or three-fourths of the race, Masuda had increased his lead and was 7 minutes 50 seconds to the better over Oyanagi to clinch victory.

A quick pitch over the snow which nullified the effects of wax in quick time was responsible for Masuda's victory.

Oyanagi was second in 3 hours 21 minutes 36 seconds.

A strong spurt forged Sekido into third place with 3 hours 22 minutes 17 seconds.

The others finishing within the first ten were:

4.—Minoru Tadano, Sapporo Railway Bureau, 3 hours 23 minutes 30 seconds.

5.—Moriye Yamada, Aomori Forestry Club, 3 hours 26 minutes 8 seconds.

6.—Sueyoshi Sato, Miuta Kozan, 3 hours 26 minutes 36 seconds.

7.—Yoshio Suzuki, Sapporo Communications Bureau, 3 hours 30 minutes 37 seconds.

8.—Shiro Yamada, Waseda University, 3 hours 31 minutes 46 seconds.

9.—Yukichi Ohashi, Toyohara Federation, 3 hours 32 minutes 29 seconds.

10.—Hisaji Hiratsuka, Shinbashi Station, 3 hours 39 minutes 1 second.

AKITA TEAM WINS

In the other race of the day, the 24-kilometer relay for middle school, the Odate Middle School team of Akita prefecture won from 20 other schools with a time of 2 hours 3 minutes 4 seconds. Second was the Navoro Middle School of the Hokkaido in 2 hours 5 minutes 55 seconds. Third was the Odomari Middle School of Saghalien in 2 hours 6 minutes 9 seconds.

AMERICA'S G.O.P. FOXES ITS ENEMY

Democrats Find Opponents Trying to Outwait Them; Announce Conclave Later

Christian Science Monitor

WASHINGTON—In the first round of 1940 campaign strategy, which no doubt interests the politicians more than the public and influences more head-lines than it does voters, the Republicans came out where they wanted to be—on top.

When John Hamilton, Chairman man of the Republican National Committee, announced recently that his Committee would meet in Washington on Feb. 16, it was apparent that the Republican strategists would be in a position to wait out the Democrats and defer their national convention until after their opponents have named their presidential ticket and written their platform.

Under James A. Farley's aegis the Democratic National Committee were to gather at the Capital on Feb. 5 to fix the place and date of the Democratic Convention, and the Republican committeemen will have this information before them when they convene 11 days later.

At least four months' notice must be given of the date for the Republican national convention in accordance with the convention's rules.

VANDENBERG GAINS SUPPORT

Further support accrued today to the receptive but quiet candidacy of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R), of Michigan, when his Republican colleague from North Dakota, Sentaor Gerald P. Nye, announced that he hoped Sentaor Vandenberg would receive his Party's nomination.

"Senator Vandenberg has a great deal of courage," said Senator Nye, "a thing which is going to be essential during the next four years. I find a pretty level strength for him in all sections of the country and all classes of citizens. I can't see the industrialists fighting him and his agricultural record ought to bring him a grand response from the farming sections. He has demonstrated a degree of independence that would be most appealing to a lot of people."

Just back from the Middle West, Senator Nye reported a considerable sentiment for both Senator Vandenberg and Thomas E. Dewey, and on the Democratic side for Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana.

In Washington, presidential aspirant Senator Robert A. Taft (R), of Ohio, continues to be in the thick of it. He had no more than submitted a 7,000-word prize essay on "Mr. President: Here's How to Balance the Budget," for which the White House had promised a handsome award, than Mr. Roosevelt told his press conference that it didn't read satisfactorily to him and that the economies didn't add up. No prize.

PEOPLE WILL DECIDE

Thus we have Mr. Roosevelt and Senator Taft quoting figures at each other from the ends of Pennsylvania Avenue with nobody to judge the contest unless—and that will be the real judging—the voters bring in the verdict in the fall.

One other bit of political news which might be recorded—and without suggesting any overwhelming meaning—is what didn't happen at the office of the President's Press Secretary, Stephen T. Early. What hasn't happened is that Mr. Early hasn't reprimanded either Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace or the new Attorney General, Robert Jackson, for suggesting third terms for their chief in their Jackson Day Dinner speeches recently.

Last year when Secretary Wallace spoke up for another term for the President, Mr. Early rather scolded the Secretary of Agriculture—a former Republican. Not this time, and no explanation offered. Mr. Roosevelt, asked to comment, said his recent reading hadn't included either of the speeches. He's more fortunate than the newspaper correspondents.

SWEDEN LOOKS ALOFT---ANXIOUSLY

STOCKHOLM, Sweden—A mobile anti-aircraft unit of the Swedish army is shown in action on a highway near Sweden's Eastern border as the Scandinavian country continues her preparations to resist any threat to her integrity. King Gustav recently reiterated his country's determination to remain free thus:—"Sweden is determined to defend her independence under all circumstances." The King also pledged humanitarian help to Finland.

U.S. CONGRESS PIGEONHOLES MANY BILLS

New Alien Deportation Law Passed, But Perkins Report Vindicates Bridges

Christian Science Monitor

WASHINGTON — Congress continues its legislative spadework and with no great fanfare is winnowing various proposals, some to be dropped quietly into pigeonholes, some to be taken out of pigeonholes and placed at the forefront of national debate.

Most rapid development was quick Senate passage of a measure already through the House for prompt deportation of aliens engaged in espionage and sabotage, alien criminals, and other undesirable aliens."

Related to this action indirecty was announcement by Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, that she had approved the trial examiner's report that Harry R. Bridges, head of the Pacific Coast Congress of Industrial Organizations Longshoremen's Union is not a Communist nor affiliated with the Party. This ends deportation proceedings against Mr. Bridges.

Members of Congress, critical of the Autstrallan-born unionist, propose sharper alien legislation that may yet involve union leaders who are not naturalized Amerians. How far such proposals will go is uncertain, but many persons believe the last has not been heard of the celebrated "Bridges case."

PROPOSAL PIGEONHOLED

Quietly and unobtrusively the House Naval Affairs Committee put aside a proposal of Secretary Charles Edison that Congress give President Roosevelt power to commandeer factories, materials, and ships in peacetime emergencies as well as in war. This measure, which attracted great attention before Congress met, has been unostentatiously pigeonholed and Chairman Carl Vinson (D) of Georgia, explained with a twinkle that it is "resting very carefully in the basket" and that he had no immediate thought of introducing a bill. The Committee continued testimony of Admiral Harold R. Stark, Chief of Naval Operations, in behalf of the $1,300,000,000 naval expansion measure in categories below the battleship class.

The Senate temporarily held up the Harrison plan for a joint 24-man committee to study budget proposals. Republicans, who indorsed the plan, were responsible for holding it back when Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi would not agree to incorporate in it a provision for specific inquiry into past and prospective expenditures for national defense. The House is known to be lukewarm to this budget study, but the Senate opposition comes as a surprise. Senator Carter Glass (D) of Virginia, Senator William E. Borah (R) of Idaho, and Senator James F. Byrnes (D) of South Carolina, all expressed lack of sympathy.

ACTION POSTPONED

"We do not need any general committee of 24," said Senator Glass, who is Chairman of the Appropriations Committee. "We have 24 members on the Appropriations Committee and we are detached from any particular view. I think the matter had better be left to the Committees on Appropriations of the two houses."

Action was postponed till Jan. 10 by the Republican objection to immediate unanimous consideration, at which time Senator Harrison will try again, with the hope of better luck.

Sapporo Selected For 1941 Ski Meet

The all-Japan ski championships next year will be held at Sapporo in the Hokkaido where the Fifth Olympic Winter Games were originally scheduled and would have been held this year but for the China Affair.

The Japan Ski Federation's fifth training course toward development of skiers of international caliber will be held at Nozawa from March 20 to 24. Eligible to participate are those who finished within the first 15 in the 1939 and 1940 championships.

1,300 Paris Policemen With French Armies

Christian Science Monitor

PARIS—Thirteen hundred Paris policemen are doing service with the armies.

Although left with a short force and the necessity of patrolling a blackedout city, police authorities say that crime has actually diminished in Paris since the war.

Communists Are Warned By People of Bolivia

Christian Science Monitor

LA PAZ, Bolivia—The Government, replying to leftist criticism of Bolivia's association with the League of Nations' condemnation of Russia, reminded citizens that the decree-law of March 27, 1938, remained in force. This measure was aimed at extremist doctrines, primarily Communism.

The cabinet, presided over by Premier and Foreign Minister Ostria Gutierrez, explained that Bolivia could and would not be identified with any extremist tendencies nor would it permit direct or indirect operations of international Communism or of "systems of aggression." A supplementary statement from the presidential Palace referred to the energetic penalties devised for authors of Communistic propaganda.

Senor Ostria Gutierrez is heading a new temporary cabinet whose personnel was changed to enable former members to participate in the next presidential and parliamentary elections. The rule is for a member of the Government to resign at least six months before elections.

The rise in the price of tin has eased the economic situation, which had been of a threatening character in the early days of the war. The value of mining exports in November rose above £1,000,000,000. This has improved industrial and social conditions.

The Government has decreed employment of a part of the extra exchange for bolstering the currency reserves which were almost totally dissipated through arms buying during the Chaco war. There will be a 12 per cent deduction on export exchange bills, graduated according to the rise in the price of tin above a basic level of £230 per ton.

The improved situation is also due to increased exports of antimony.

MEXICO CHOKING WITH OIL; NEED OF OUTLET SEEN

60 Per Cent Consumed Internally; Loss of German Market Is Felt

Christian Science Monitor

MEXICO CITY—Mexico is today literally choking with oil. Sixty per cent of her production is consumed internally and the remaining 40 per cent is for export. Half of this was formerly shipped to Germany but since the outbreak of the war this market has collapsed leaving Germany owing Mexico $5,500,000.

No new market has been found to take the place of the vanished German market, due, according to Mexican sources, to a shortage of tankers for transportation. Accordingly even the much sought Latin American markets are for the time eliminated. Mexican officials insist that their oil could be sold if transportation could be found.

ITALY BEST CUSTOMER

Italy is today the best customer for Mexican oil. She is bartering three tankers and 3,000,000 kilograms of rayon for oil on a previous contract and a recent contract provides for an additional 1,000,000 kilograms of rayon on barter. Delivery of the tankers is scheduled for January, February and March and if made on schedule may help to solve Mexico's transportation problem.

The storage problem for unsold oil meanwhile has become acute. The wells ar now producing 45,000 barrels daily in excess of sales. Stored oil amounts to 16,000,000 barrels and there is storage space remaining for only 2,000,000 barrels. Added to the surplus oil here Mexico owns and is paying storage on 1,500,000 barrels of gasoline at Houston, Texas, where it was shipped in bond for refining.

STILL OPTIMISTIC

Despite this critical situation Mexican spokesmen maintain an optimistic viewpoint, declaring that they will again be able to market their oil and that the solution is a question of time.

In a recent interview Minister of Finance Eduardo Suarez revealed that his government has purchased $600,000 worth of drilling equipment and is investing $3,000,000 in the improvement and expansion of refineries. However, Mexico will benefit very little from the recent reduction of the United States oil import tax from 21 to 10½ cents per barrel, since she will be permitted to share in only 3.8 per cent of the imports affected by the reduction.

There can be no doubt that the Cardenas Government has played in luck on the whole oil issue and the question now arises as to whether that luck will hold enough to rescue it from the present dilemma. Mexican officials say yes but foreign observers are more skeptical.

U.S. DRY PARTY STRESSES MORAL REFORM AS AIM

National Prohibition Group To Meet in May in Chicago, Where Formed 70 Years Ago

Christian Science Monitor

CHICAGO—With a platform calling for moral reform on the political front, the National Prohibition Party plans to meet in Chicago May 8-10 to choose its presidential candidate for 1940. Thus the Prohibitionists are returning to the City were their party was organized 70 years ago for one of the first of the year's nominating conventions.

While national prohibition is still its goal, the Party is appealing to voters this year with a broad program of moral reform in government. Neither of the major political groups, it charges, has taken its stand against political corruption nor has either one made a determined effort to enforce existing laws.

"Under the domination of the Democratic and Republican Parties, moral considerations are ruled out of politics and government, and we confront a national moral blackout," declares the National Prohibitionist, organ of the Party. The time is ripe for change. This change cannot be made through either the Republican or Democratic Parties which have created the situation. It cannot be made except through a political party. The only party which in any measure is qualified to perform this task is the Prohibition Party."

The decision to meet in Chicago was reached at a meeting of the Executive Committee in Philadelphia. One reason for the choice was that Chicago has a good local Party organization, a thriving Youth Auxiliary, and has cordial relations with County and State W.C.T.U. groups.

Keynoter of the convention is to be Claude A. Watson of Los Angeles, who polled more than 100,000 votes when he ran for Attorney General of California in 1938.

A larger and more representative convention is expected this year than has been held since 1920, according to Edward E. Blake, National Chairman. The vote polled by the Party in State and local elections of 1938 gives reason for encouragement, Mr. Blake pointed out. He is urging Prohibitionists to see that their Party functions not only in the national election, but in local, legislative, and congressional contests as well.

A new "battle line" is offered Party workers in a recent issue of the National Prohibitionist. Its five points are as follows:

1. A militant drive for national prohibition and a Prohibition Party elected to power to make it effective. (Prohibitionists blame repeal of prohibition on the failure of the voters to put into power a party unitedly in favor of making it succeed.)

2. A continuing attack on the spoils system, which corrupts both old Parties and renders them unfit for government.

3. Constant warfare against pressure groups, and for enforcement of all laws, so as to effectively prevent the waste of our human resources.

4. Immediate effort to unite good citizens in this new kind of political party founded on principle and devoted to making representative government effective.

5. Promotion of a systematic plan for Party organization to make it effective in as many States and communities as possible.

'TOMORROW'S CITY' IS UNDER STUDY IN U.S.

Busy Superhighways Only Part of Coordinated Idea With Population Shifting

Christian Science Monitor

CHICAGO,—Busy superhighways may crisscross the city of tomorrow, but if they do they will be part of a co-ordinated plan, taking into consideration increased traffic at the hub, and possible shifting of population. Like the skyscraper, the superhighway is not necessarily in itself an asset, either to property owners or to an orderly development of the community, real estate men and city planners now agree.

While planning experts admit that in the past, they may have been guilty of short-sightedness imposed by pressing economic considerations, they insist that they have for long seen that building wider and smoother and faster highways from the suburbs into the downtown district will not solve anything, but rather will bring new problems.

Walter H. Blucher, executive director of the American Society of Planning Officials, says that greedy property owners and real estate operators have been largely to blame for illogical zoning laws which result in overcrowding, which in turn starts a movement to the suburbs, which movement is accelerated by the superhighways. A sort of vicious circle thus develops, he says, with one condition inspiring the other, and the result is in the end bad for the property owners and the city. Mr. Blucher says he is encouraged now to find such men as Herbert U. Nelson, Executive Vice-President of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, advocating a closer-to-the-roots approach.

Mr. Nelson says that while it used to be thought that city planning was largely a matter of foreseeing traffic needs, it is now recognized that the more provision for traffic, the worse the problem is liable to become. "The wider we build arterial highways to lead into and out of our central business districts," he says, "the more we siphon off their real estate values through over-rapid ballooning of the city's area." The new roads, he notes, entice people to live further out, to get away from the crowding of the in-town areas.

U.S. PREPARES FOR POST-WAR ECONOMIC SHIFT

Special State Department Group Named to Investigate Future Economic Problems

Christian Science Monitor

WASHINGTON—Economic problems which the European war poses for the United States and which peace will raise in the future are to be studied by a special State Department Committee.

Undersecretary Sumner Welles has been designated to be Chairman of the advisory group on problems of foreign relations. Hugh Wilson, former Ambassador to Germany, was made Vice-Chairman.

"The war," said the State Department announcement, "has brought about and is continuing to bring about a series of measures and policies on the part of both belligerents and neutrals which immediately affect the United States and which may have consequences of an enduring nature upon our country's foreign relations once peace is established.

PEACE PROBLEMS

"Some of the most important and immediate of these measures and policies are in the field of economic activity and relations. The war has absorbed the labor and production of much of the world in armament and military activity. When the war ends, problems of readjustment to peacetime production will be presented, which may gravely affect the United States."

A Department official said the formation of the Committee did not mean necessarily that the Department believed European peace was near. He recalled recent statements by Secretary Cordell Hull that the United States had a vital interest in the type of peace that would develop and desired a peace which would eliminate, if possible, causes for future wars.

As the Department prepared for the adjustments which may follow the termination of the war, Senator Gerald P. Nye (R) of North Dakota, leader in the unsuccessful fight against repeal of the arms embargo last fall, said he would seek reenactment of a ban on shipment of munitions to warring countries.

PITTMAN LAUDS LAW

Senator Key Pittman (D) of Nevada, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said, however, there was no intention on the part of the Government to change the present neutrality law.

"The Neutrality Act has accomplished everything that was intended by its prononents," Senator Pittman said, "and the results of its administration have contradicted all the dire forebodings of its opponents.

"The repeal of the embargo was not the first step toward war, as the opponents predicted, and in fact there has been no step toward war.

"None of our ships has been lost, none of our cargoes has been destroyed, and, still more important, not a single American citizen has lost his life by reason of the foreign wars."

Ishimoto Named Pilot Of Nagoya Dolfins

Hideichi Ishimoto, who recently resigned as manager of the Osaka Tigers, will lead the Nagoya Dolfins during the 1940 season.

His appointment as manager of the Dolfins was announced Tuesday, succeeding Gensaburo Okada, who has become an adviser to the Dolfins while at the same time devoting his full time as a member of the editorial staff of the Shin Aichi newspaper of Nagoya.

AMERICAN NAVY 'READY' WITH NEW COMMANDER

Admiral J. O. Richardson Relieves Admiral C. C. Bloch As Commander-in-Chief

Christian Science Monitor

ABOARD U.S.S.R. PENNSYLVANIA, Los Angeles Harbor—Indicaions of readiness and confidence throughout the United States Navy during these tenses years since the World War were given here recently in colorful change-of-command ceremonies as Admiral J. O. Richardson relieved Admiral C. C. Bloch as Commander-in-Chief, United States Fleet.

In sailors' weather, Admiral Bloch addressed the traditional assembly of gold-braid and white caps, saying: "Two years ago on this same quarterdeck I said to you officers and men that our only excuse for being was to be ready to fight. It is my firm conviction that this Fleet is ready to fight, and for that condition full credit is given to the officers and men of the Fleet who have worked so hard and so intelligently during our two years of service together.

COMPLIMENTS SUCCESSOR

"It is with a feeling of satisfaction, closely allied to peace of mind, that I am about to turn over command to Admiral J. O. Richardson. His high professional attainments and outstanding qualities of leadership guarantee the required state of readiness, and guard against that enemy of progress—complacency."

In response, Admiral Richardson, the new "Cincus," expressed his appreciation for the kind remarks and returned compliments.

"A Navy," he said, "can be no better than its officers' conception of duty. In these serious and disturbed times the people of the United States confidenly rely upon the Navy as their first line of defense. We cannot honorably discharge our obligation to our country unless each of us voluntarily contributes the last bit to his assigned task. I pledge myself to perform my duty in this way to the limit of my abilities. The people of our country can demand no more of you, and they will be secure with no less."

GOES TO IMPORTANT OUTPOST

Admiral Bloch, one of the few men to be chief for as long as two years, is to confer in Washington before assuming his next post. Reverting to his permanent rank as Rear Admiral he will command the all-important "outpost" district of the Navy, centering in Hawaii.

Admiral Richardson assumed command aboard this Fleet flagship after having relinquished command of the Battle Force, aboard the latter's flagship, U. S. S. California. There he was succeeded by Admiral C. P. Snyder. The latter had in turn been relieved as Commander of Battleships, Battle Force, by Vice Admiral W. S. Pye, aboard U. S. S. West Virginia.

In this roadstead headquarters of 80 per cent of the Navy's fighting force, the ceremony was one of the most extensive in naval history, pointed up by its occurrence while many nations are at war. The ceremonies aboard the three flagships were witnessed by complements of officers and men, and by a score of news reporters and photographers.

300,000 PIGEONS READY FOR CALL FROM U.S. ARMY

American Plan to Provide Homers for Carrying Messages In War Is Revealed

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK—A scheme known as the single corps procurement plan has been evolved to provide 300,000 homing pigeons for service in the United States Army on two months' notice, in the event of war, it is learned here.

Legislation is being planned in New York, New Jersey and at Washington, D. C., to protect the potential recruits from traps, shotguns and other dangers. A rough outline of the nation-wide project was disclosed recently at the seventeenth annual show of the Brooklyn Concourse Association in the Labor Lyceum, 949 Willoughby Avenue.

"Pigeons are part of the armed forces, you know," explained Thomas Black of 1,972 East Thirty-fourth Street, Brooklyn, a steward. "In 1917 the American Army had no birds to speak of. Today there are about 10,000. But think what it will mean when fanciers everywhere turn their lofts over to the government!"

FLY UP TO 80 MILES AN HOUR

It will mean twice as many as the 150,000 pigeons enlisted by the Allies during the World War. The birds are valuable for carrying messages under conditions where normal communication is impossible. They are trained to fly from 100 to 600 miles bee-line at rates of speed up to eighty miles an hour, depending on the wind.

The procurement plan was first discussed six years ago. Steps to be taken for pigeon mobilization are still carefully guarded secrets among fanciers, but the protective legislation is an old story. This year will see a successful end to a long battle, it is felt.

Homing pigeons merit the legal safeguards given sea gulls, the argument follows. Representative Joseph L. Pfeifer at Washington and State Senator Edward J. Coughlin in Albany will sponsor bills making it a misdemeanor to harm one. Penalties of $500 fine or a year in prison or both are being asked.

1,200 LOST IN ONE RACE

Last year in a 300-mile race from Charlottesville, Va., to this city 1,200 birds out of 8,000 never returned. The chance of a homing pigeon losing its bearings or falling from weariness was dismissed as slight. Hunters shooting pigeons flying low against a wind are blamed for most casualties.

A thousand pigeons were displayed at the Brooklyn show. The fanciers came from Massachusetts, New Jersey, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio and Canada.

Six snow-white birds were released in the bunting-draped hall as a climax to the annual memorial service directed by Martin Cummins of Middle Village, Queens. Among the pigeons on special exhibition were the blue checker hen of William J. Lyng, association president, winner of the World's air race last fall; a dark checker hen that flew 600 miles in 12 hours for a 1939 record, belonging to Walter Widmayer of Jackson Heights, Queens, and Joseph Cutrone's blue checker hen that won the first Brooklyn Concourse championship held last year. Mr. Cutrone lives in the Bergen Beach section.

The prize for the best bird in the show was awarded to Frank P. Sullivan of Woban, Mass. The award for the best bird in the 600-mile class went to Anton Heuvelmans of Forest Hills, and to John Heidig of New Rochelle for the best bird in the 500-mile class. Thomas Black of Brooklyn received an award for the best record bird in the show.

40,000 AMERICAN CITIZEN PILOTS READY SHORTLY

August Set As Deadline For Total by Aeronautics Authority in Recent Report

N.Y. Times

WASHINGTON—A prediction that there would be 40,000 certified civilian pilots in the United States at the end of August was made recently by the Civil Aeronautics Authority in its first annual report to Congress.

The Authority said that the pilot-training program already had created a demand for civil aircraft, engines and accessories, as well as maintenance and operations services.

As of Oct. 31, the report stated, there were 27,691 holders of student pilot certificates and 29,513 holders of pilot certificates of higher grades.

The report said that domestic airlines were now handling 45.9 per more passenger traffic, 49.7 per cent more express and 12.5 per cent more mail than a year ago, and, with few exceptions, were "in the black."

The carriers, the report added, had been protected against uneconomic and destructive competition and wasteful duplication of services, while their air mail rates had been fixed on "a sound economic basis constantly subject to review and adjustment."

The Authority attributed the growth in airplane travel to the gain in safety of operation, which it said was four times better than that of any other year.

A recommendation was made that Conress make immediate allocation of $100,000,000 in WPA funds and a $25,000,000 special appropriation for airport development throughout the United States.

"The Authority does feel," the report stated, "that the direct appropriation of Federal funds for airport projects deserves serious and early consideration. The rapid development of air transport activities upon the nation's leading air terminals and the growing concern of our military officials over the adequacy of our current airports for defense purposes, indicate the desirability of creating some new air terminals and of improving or enlarging others at the earliest possible time."

Eagle Fights Horiguchi Feb. 19 At Kokugikan

Joe Eagle, well-known pugilist of the Philippines, will take on Tsuneo (Piston) Horiguchi, Japan's outstanding fighter, in a 12-round bout next Monday night at the Kokugikan in a smoker under the auspices of the Fuji Boxing Club.

It will be the third meeting between the two, with each having won one to date.

20 ARE PICKED ON WOMEN'S TRACK TEAM

Selection of an all-star women's track and field team based on records in 1939 was announced by the women's committee of the Japan Track and Field Federation Wednesday.

The 20 athletes picked were:

Sprints: Fumiko Koshiyama (Sugiyama Girls School); Hasue Tazoe (Osaka Minami Nijo School); Toyoko Yoshino (Chukyo Girls School); Fumi Koga (Torisu Girls School); Rieko Ikeda (Sugiyama Girls School).

Hurdles: Yoshiko Yamashita (Chukyo Girls School); Masayo Kisamori (Sugiyama Girls School); Aiko Takada (Kurume Girls School).

Broad and high jump: Rie Yamauchi (Chukyo Girls School); Kiyoko Arinaga (Chukyo Girls School); Mitsuko Yamane (Matsue Kasei School); Kiyoko Sugi (Fukuoka Girls School); Junko Nishida (Tokyo Normal).

Throwing events: Fumi Kojima (teacher, Torisu Girls School); Koko Yada (N.A.C.); Masako Mayasu (teacher, Izumo Girls School); Shizue Yamaki (Hokkaido Girls School); Ko Nakamura (Hokkaido Girls Club); Isuzu Tsujii (Hyogo Daiichi Girls School); Namiye Shimizu (teacher, Aoba Girls School).

Thirty five other athletes were picked as alternates as follows:

Sprints: Kimiko Mori (Torisu Girls School); Miyoko Kamitsuji (Chukyo Girls School). Isako Kaneyasu (Tokuyama Girls School); Kanoko Takami (Niigata Iron Works); Tomiko Ikuda (Tokyo Prefectural First School); Kiyoko Katayama (Sumire Club); Sumiko Yuhara (Nagaoka Girls School); Haru Kubo (Hokkaido Girls Club); Namiko Machida (Hyogo Daiichi School); Toshi Imai (Hiromaye Girls School); Hisako Ugai (Kawasaki Mazda).

Hurdles: Kinko Ishihara (Kofu Girls Club); Motoe Okawabara (Kyoto Girls School); Miyoko Uchiyama (Chukyo Girls School); Chie Kida (Takao Girls School); Suzuko Nakano (Chukyo Girls School); Mie Morii (Hokkaido Girls School); Okiko Matsuo (Niigata Girls School).

Broad and high jump: Teruo Kawamura (Chiba Girls School); Fumiko Otsuki (Osaka Meijo School); Umeko Kawagoshi (Kyoto Prefectural First School); Misao Takahashi (Niigata Miyaura School) Yasuko Watanabe (Hyogo Daiichi School); Kazue Kodani (Hiroshima Girls School); Shizuko Kobayashi (Korean Tatsutani Girls School); Haruko Kiza (Oita Daiichi Girls School); Sayoko Yamada (Nishinomiya Seitoku School); Yoshiye Hisano (Aichi Shukutoku Girls School).

Throwing events: Yoshiko Miura (Kinjo Club); Hisako Hirota (teacher, Omori Girls School); Hisa Kobayashi (Chukyo Girls School); Kyoko Takeuchi (Hokkaido Girls School); Kiyoko Nagaoka (Kagawa Normal School); Itsuki Makiguchi (Hokkaido Girls School); Tanjaku Koshi (Takao Girls School).

Following the district championships this year, the members of the all-star team and alternates will undergo a joint training course.

$10,000,000 LOAN BY U.S. TO SWEDEN IS PROJECTED

Federal Administrator Jones Sees No Reason Against It; Export Bank Needs Cited

N.Y. Times

WASHINGTON—The $10,000,000 advanced by the United States to Finland shortly after she was attacked by Russia and the $10,000,000 credit to Norway announced recently will probably be followed by at least another $10,000,000 for Sweden, to judge from a statement by Federal Loan Administrator Jesse Jones.

Sweden, said Mr. Jones, has not yet applied for a credit, but has admitted that she might be interested in one. He said if she were he could see no reason why she should not have it, since all the Scandinavian countries were "good pay." Norway would make use of her loan, he thought, to buy wheat, other grains and gasoline, all non-military materials, and Sweden would probably do the same. But no list of purchases had been mentioned and neither had the amount of the loan been discussed.

FREES SCANDINAVIAN HOLDINGS

If Sweden gets $10,000,000 the United States will have put up $30,000,000, which—even though not used for the purchase of war essentials—will free an equal amount of Scandinavian holdings in this country for this purpose. Since Sweden and Norway are aiding Finland and may themselves be attacked by Russia if she overcomes the gallant defense of the Finns, the $30,000,000 must be reckoned as an asset in the balance sheet of Russia's prospective victims in their fight to escape this role.

The Export-Import Bank has not yet actually paid out any money to Finland or Norway, since neither country has completed arrangements for purchases.

The United States might well look forward in 1940 to a fairly good year, Mr. Jones thought.

"It will be satisfactory if we are not too greedy," he declared. "When I say 'greedy,' I am warning against overexpectations. Last year was a satisfactory one in view of the fact that it left us still on the upgrade. We need more national income, but we must not go up too fast."

NEW EXPORT-IMPORT BANK LOAN

All obligations of the Export-Import Bank, he revealed, had been met on time. One or two extensions had been made but none was in default. Neither was its cash exhausted, since repayments were coming in. But Congress, he admitted, would probably be asked for another $75,000,000 or $100,000,000 for it. As for the $700,000,000 which the President had mentioned that the Treasury would like to recover from unexpended or unnecessary capital of the RFC, Home Owners Loan and Farm Credit organizations, the RFC could spare $200,000,000, he thought, without going broke.

The Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission, it was announced, will receive an additional loan of $5,800,000 from the RFC to continue work on its super-highway. It has already had $35,000,000 from the commission and $29,250,000 from the Public Works Administration.

Hitler Jugend Here To Stage Ski Meet At Iwahara, Feb. 16-18

Eighty resident members of the Hitler Jugend, who have been in winter training at the Iwahara Ski House, will stage a ski meet at Iwahara for three days beginning Friday, it became known Wednesday.

A feature of the meet is said to be the reconnoitering race which is modelled after the Nazi troops' maneuvers in the mountains.

The third day will feature events for resident Germans in Tokyo and Yokohama, for both men and women.

CHINA WARLORD HAS BIG FUNERAL IN PEKING CITY

Marshal Wu Pei-fu, Called Last of Warlords, Given Picturesque Burial Rites

When Marshal Wu Pei-fu, described as the last of the warlords, was given his "preliminarly funeral" at Peking, Tokyo received somewhat formal descriptions of the picturesque event. Mr. W. Lewisohn, correspondent of The North China Daily News, "covered" the procession with an observing eye, to bring out some additional features in the report hereunder. As it has been said that the Wu Pei-fu funeral may well be the last of its kind, the end of such lavish displays for the dead, the report is reproduced here as of historic interest.

PEKING—The funeral of the late Marshal Wu Pei-fu, to which the populace had been looking forward eagerly for several weeks, was one of the biggest shows of its kind that has been seen here for many years. Although people speak of a procession of this sort as a funeral, it does not include the actual burial of the deceased which takes place at a much later date.

On January 22, a ceremony was held at the late Marshal's residence, which was attended by high Chinese and Japanese officials and by members of the foreign Embassies. And on the 24th the coffin was borne from the private residence to the Nien Hua Ssu (Temple of Picked Flowers), there to lie in state, until a suitable burial-place has been found by the geomancers.

Starting about 9 a.m., and moving at the usual snail's pace, the coffin did not arrive at its destination till after 5 p.m. The people of Peiping who are great connoisseurs of funerals had, therefore, full opportunity of enjoying the spectacle, which they regard, much as we do a Lord Mayor's Show or the Americans a Columbus Day Parade.

BEGGARS NOT DISAPPOINTED

Nor did this funeral disappoint their expectations, for though I have seen just as good ones, as far as quality goes, it was certainly exceptional in size and quantity. And it was a good day for the beggars of Peiping, whose special prerogative it is to carry the coffin and all the other paraphernalia that go to make up the procession. The catafalque was borne by three relays of 64 bearers. Sixty-four is the number allowed for the highest officials, with two relays, so that this was something special. (The coffin of an Emperor is borne by 84 bearers in the city and 120 outside).

What seemed to excite the particular admiration of the crowd were two full-sized motor cars of papier mache, complete with chauffeurs and attendants; though, as a matter of fact, this is by no means a novel feature in modern Chinese funerals. Most of the funerals of wealthy persons nowadays include at least one motor car, which has apparently become as much of a necessity in the next world, as in this.

There were one or two unusual features about the procession, which gave it a special character. One special feature, which will probably not have been noticed by the majority of foreign spectators, were the two cords of twisted white cloth, several hundred feet long and attached to the coffin, which were held by the mourners. This corresponds to our pall-bearers and is only seen at the funeral of a very important personage. Another feature, uncommon in Chinese funerals but a common sight nowadays in Peiping and one that does not add to the aesthetic charm of any ceremony in which they appear, were the two rows of gaudy-colored paper wreaths presented by Japanese.

PROOF OF POPULARITY

Furthermore, the very large number of honorific tablets, amounting to over 200 in all, provided striking proof of Marshal Wu's popularity and of the respect in which he was held by all classes. These tablets were presented by all sorts of public bodies, such as guilds, chambers of commerce and so forth, and by friends and former subordinates and members of the present "Provisional" government.

As showing the high, if somewhat exaggerated, regard paid to the late Marshal's military talents—in the heyday of his power he was called the Napoleon of China—one of these tablets bore the three characters Kuan Wu Yueh; that is to say, Marshal Wu Pei-fu was worthy of being placed in line with Kuan Yu, the God of War, and Yueh Fei, another famous military hero in Chinese history. While over the bier itself were inscribed the characters Wu Sheng, Military Deity. Some Chinese of the old school criticized this, as going a bit too far. And, as a last reminder of his military career, a couple of dozen of his veterans from former days, dressed in their old uniforms, marched in the procession.

It was noticed and much commented on, that no high officials of any kind were to be seen walking among the mourners. This was ascribed to the fear of unpleasant incidents, as to which the authorities are said to have received repeated warnings.

MASTER OF MONEY CEREMONIES

Finally, I must not forget to mention the presence of the famous money-thrower, Mr. Li, or One Bunch Hair, as he is better known thanks to a mole on his cheek from which sprout a few solitary hairs. No funeral would be considered really first-class without the services of this gentleman. Mr. Li who is now getting on in years is famous for the skilful and vigorous way in which he throws the obligatory paper money high into the air, "so that it disappears to view into the sky," as the Chinese papers somewhat exaggeratedly describe it.

On this occasion, however, he did not seem to be putting forth his full powers, as the white paper discs did not rise very high and fell again in thick clusters to the ground, to the great satisfaction of the beggar children who scrambled and fought as they gathered them up in order to sell them to the waste-paper collectors.

The funeral and accompanying ceremonies are said to have cost nearly half-a-million dollars. It would be interesting to know, where this large sum came from, as Wu Pei-fu is known to have died a poor man. A certain amount was subscribed by various public bodies and by personal friends and admirers, but the bulk of the funds must have come from the local government, even though Wu's family publicly announced that it was not accepting any official grant.—Jan. 25.

U.S. College Students Edit First Trilingual Paper

Christian Science Monitor

RICHMOND, Va.—The first issue of a three-language magazine, organ of the Pan-American Student Chain, has appeared at the College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va. Entitled the "Pasco," the publication is scheduled to appear four times yearly. Its contents are printed in English, Spanish and French.

The Pan-American Student Chain, organized at William and Mary, has the primary aim of promoting friendship among all students in the Americas. According to the first issues of the magazine, there are 10 active groups in the United States affiliated with the chain and it has approximately 350 members residing in different sections of the Western Hemisphere.

During the coming summer, the chain plans a caravan of 100 motor cars filled with students to Mexico City. The Founder and President of the Chain and Editor of the magazine is Ben F. Crowson, Jr.

Listed among Honorary Vice-Presidents are Ambassadors or Ministers to the United States from Ecuador, Guatemala, Costa Rica, Haiti and the Dominican Republic.

MINISTRY ARRANGES JAPAN EXHIBIT AT N.Y. WORLD'S FAIR REOPENING

Arrangements for a Japanese exhibit at reopening of the New York World's Fair in May are being made under direction of the exhibits investigation committee of the Ministry of Commerce and Industry.

According to the Chugai Shogyo the following program has been adopted, to cost approximately ¥1,260,000:

1. Seventeen Japanese-school mural paintings will be hung in the hall of the Japan House. Juppo Araki and 10 other Tokyo artists and Insho Domoto and five other Kyoto artists have been selected to paint them.

2. "Silk girls," warmly received at the previous exhibit, will be sent again to demonstrate manufacture of stockings and sox. The Central Silk Yarn Association is now considering selection of the girls.

3. A panorama, representing the plaza in front of the Imperial palace, will be installed at the entrace to the Japan House. The panorama is 40 feet wide and 20 feet high and will contain a large map of the Eastern hemisphere with Japan as its center and an account of significance of the 2600th anniversary of the Empire's foundation.

Songs, Heart-Throbs

Gentleman from Featherbed Lane" and "Hang Your Heart on a Hickory Limb." Johnny Burke and James Manoca, two of America's favorite composers, wrote them. Crosby sings them in that style which is all his own. Furthermore, each song has a definite and natural place in the plot.

CLEVER SUPERVISION

This was taken care of by Herbert Polesie and David Butler, who wrote the original story, and William Conselman who did the screenplay. Butler also directed the picture, giving it reality, smoothness and movement seldom equalled on the screen.

Nobody knows exactly what "Sandy" thinks of being Hollywood's newest film star. And "Sandy" won't say. In fact, this newest recruit to the ranks of film "biggies" can't say anything—but "hello."

"Sandy" happened to become a film celebrity because Universal studio needed a baby to play in the new Bing Crosby-Joan Blondell picture, "East Side of Heaven."

CAME THE BABIES

When this news leaked out, hundreds of mothers stormed the studio portals. All carried babies. All but about 50 of the children were quickly eliminated. The others were given exhaustive screen tests.

Then Roy Henville, a Los Angeles milkman, entered the picture. It happened that one of Henville's customers was Charles Previn, Universal musical director. Henville left some pictures of his baby, along with two quartz of milk, on Previn's doorstep one morning.

Previn in turn showed the pictures to Director David Butler. An immediate test was arranged, with a contract quickly following.

CAREER BEGINS

That is how "Sandy" Henville became a film star, without knowing or caring what was happening. What really counted was the group of great big men who went through the funniest motions for "Sandy's" own particular amusement—whenever the camera was grinding. That is one way baby smiles are obtained on the screen.

She Didn't Want To Be A Movie Star

Rosalind Russell is the actress who didn't want stardom, but who had it thrust upon her.

When she deserted the stage in favor of motion pictures, it was her expressed desire that she be accounted a featured player, proving herself in minor roles before being given more vital characterizations.

In accordance with her request, she was given important, but not stellar parts in her first pictures. Her subsequent success was as amazing as it was instantaneous.

Parts became bigger, pictures more important. Her fan following increased by leaps and bounds. She became a "name" to be reckoned with, not only in the casting of films, but also on the nation's theater marquees.

As she entered the second phase of her Hollywood career, she was in demand by producers for those roles "which only Rosalind Russell can play."

FINNS SEEN AS COURAGEOUS PEOPLE, ENDOWED WITH HIGH NATIONALISM

By BASIL P. NORTON

Shanghai Times

HELSINKI—The Finns, as we now call them, were originally a primitive tribe, who migrated from the Central Asian plateau to the Northern extremity of Europe some thousands of years ago. Before reaching the Baltic Sea they began picking up earlier fugitives of their race along the Volga river and the Northern parts of Russia and to colonize the cold expanse of uninhabited lands around the confines of the Arctic Circle which comprise the present Finland and the Northern parts of the Scandinavian countries.

For a long time they were allowed to colonise and live in peace but their neighbors, the Swedes, finding that these strange people from Central Asia were gradually growing prosperous and were worth their acquaintance, began to negotiate for trade relationship which afterwards led to the absorption of Finland by the Swedes. Later, the Russians defeated the Swedes and won Finland, which long suffered at the hands of the Tsarist regime. After the Finns secured their independence, and immediately seized the opportunity to build up their nation. They went abroad and began to study the arts of peace and war; some settled in America and other foreign countries and earned a reputation for intelligence, courage, and persevering industry. They are considered to be most frank and honest people.

THE COUNTRY TODAY

Today Finland is one of the most vigorous of the young nations of Europe. It possesses exemplary laws, a splendid social organization, and democratic government on a highly socialized basis. Its passion for education and its almost religiously humanitarian care for the young, the sick and the stricken have gained for it the sympathy and respect of the world.

The stranger who lands at Helsinki (Helsingfors), the chief city of Finland and the most Northerly capital in the world, is usually surprised at the evidence of prosperity and culture which meet him on every side. The splendid granite-lined quays, the two mighty cathedrals, and the observatory standing out prominently in the skyline show their beauty to the visitor at once. The station, standing in an immense square, with a tower reaching high in the sky, is considered one of the finest in Europe. The broad straight streets with their solid buildings and splendid shops give an impression of national stability. Helsinki wears a very different aspect in summer and in winter. In summer time the journey there is a delight. The usual route is by steamer from Stockholm, most of the time through the archipelago which almost connects Sweden with Finland. More and more travellers fly by plane now, and the journey is probably one of the most beautiful and entrancing air-routes in the world.

In the middle of summer Helsinki is bathed in almost perpetual daylight. The people spend much of their time in the large parks around the city, or holiday making on the coast or on the Baltic islands. In winter, the waters between Stockholm and the Finnish coast are often frozen for a large part of the way and a ship has to break its way through the ice-fields. It is asserted that more snow falls here than in any other city in the world. The people of Helsinki have a constant battle to keep their streets free from snow and ice: electric snow-melters work in the main streets.

NORTHERN WINTER

After every storm armies of men and women keep sweeping the streets for if they did not use every effort to prevent snow accumulations they might find themselves buried in it before the winter ended. Situated as it is in a wintry region, Helsinki is in its most characteristic mood during winter. Everyone is well wrapped up in furs, and men, women and children consider their skis as essential as their boots. Winter sports are a national pastime. Skating, skiing, ice-sailing and motor-sledging are almost universally indulged in and the Finlanders are experts in these sports. It is not surprising that being blessed with a climate so delightful in summer and so severe in winter they have developed into a strong athletic nation. They cherish this distinction with their customary national pride.

Finland is the only country in Europe which has successfully enforced prohibition. There are no public-houses and no alcohol is sold anywhere in the country. Prohibition was enforced in 1919 and the penalties imposed on the offender are based on the person's income. This is a unique punishment and remarkable for its justice. Instead of inflicting a fixed fine, the law varies it according to the offender's income. Anyone found selling alcoholic drink for the first time has to pay 50 days' income; for a second offence his fine is doubled to 100 days' income. Anyone found consuming drink in a public place is fined 25 days' income.

Cooperation has been carried a long way in Finland. The traveller will observe that most of the large shops in Helsinki are cooperative stores. Business is carried on in most of the commercial and industrial centers of Finland on a cooperative basis. The financiers and workers share the profits proportionately. There are no feudal lords in Finland, and farming is done by farmers and peasants on a community system, the peasants sharing with the farmers on equitable proportion of the produce. Many Finns have returned from America to settle again in their own land and have brought much of the enterprise and energy of American life into Finland. America is looked upon here as a great friend and protector, and American money has lavishly been forthcoming in the modern development of Finnish industries.

Finland is intensely nationalist. When the people were given their freedom, in the days of Tsar Alexander I, Finnish as then spoken had no suitable words to express modern developments, laws, scientific terms, etc. Educationists, thereupon, set to work to build up the Finnish language and bring it up to date. Universities were immediately built and schools and colleges spread throughout the land. The Finnish movement sprang up, as it were, overnight and the young Finlanders were buoyed up and stirred by the patriotic spirit which inflamed them. "Finland now a Nation" became the national slogan, and every Finn made up his mind to strive from then onwards to make himself a fit and useful citizen. Things went well in the beginning for the Finnish nation when the rulers in Russia were sympathetic, but unfortunately things got bad in the reign of Tsar Nicholas and in 1910 the Russian Government began to oppress the Finnish people and attempted to suppress their growing nationalism. The Finns resisted bravely and unitedly and though the Russians overpowered them for a time it was not till after the war, ten years later, that Finland regained her independence.

The Bolshevik revolution threw the country in a turmoil. Revolutionaries came from Russia and tried to make Finland Bolshevik. A furious civil war tore the country to pieces and it seemed as if unhappy Finland would go the Russian way. Thousands of people suffered in prison camps, thousands died of starvation and disease, thousands were martyred for their faith and blood. But this dark and hideous chapter of her history was closed by the courage and strength of these people, who succeeded in driving the Bolsheviks out of their country and resolved never again to leave themselves at the mercy of Russia.

Nambu Returns From 5-Month Coaching Tour in Brazil

Chuhei Nambu, former world record holder in the running broad jump, returned to Yokohama Thursday afternoon aboard the O.S.K. liner Buenos Aires Maru after a 5-month coaching tour in Brazil.

Following his arrival at Santos on July 30 last year, Mr. Nambu coached Japanese enthusiasts throughout the country, and also at the athletic schools in Rio de Janeiro and San Paulo, as well as at the Brazilian army headquarters.

Mr. Nambu said he was amazed at the great interest showed in sports in Brazil.

PAN-AMERICAN PATH TRACED IN ADVENTURE

Proposed Route for Highway From Mexico City to Panama Covered by Two Explorers

Christian Science Monitor

MEXICO, D.F.—An adventurous trip over the proposed route for the Pan-American highway from Mexico City to Panama has just been completed by two intrepid explorers and writers. They are Bernard Bevan of London and James A. Sturken of New York City, who are now collaborating to put the tale of their exploits into a book.

The two men and a Mexican guide made the trip on muleback crossing Mexico, Guatemala, Honduras, Salvador, Costa Rica, and Nicaragua before reaching Panama. The journey covered 2,932 miles and took 10 months to complete, although the travelers admit that much of this mileage was spent in "zigzagging" about to varied spots of interest. Fourteen hundred miles of the trip was spent between Mexico City and the Guatemalan border.

They found the units of the highway completed in Guatemala and Salvador, and more than 300 miles built in Panama. In Panama they recount seeing a sleek puma cross their path on the highway, an incident which reveals the primitive nature of the land through which the new road is being built.

Illuminating observations are made by the travelers on the variety of civilizations and governments which they encountered in crossing Central America. Vivid contrast was provided between the liberal government of Mexico, the extreme Rightist government of Guatemala, and the true democracy of Costa Rica.

Much of interest unfolded as the travelers' trail led them to cross a 12,000-foot mountain in Costa Rica and spending 14 days crossing a tropical jungle in Honduras. One incident of note was finding natives of Costa Rica, who unearth pots and ceramics from archaeological sites and return them to use for their everyday cooking.

Discovery of an Aztec calendar with a 13-month cycle was made in Oaxaca where Mr. Bevan has previously worked on the calendar systems of the early Indian civilizations. He also found in the Mexican State of Chiapas a Tzotzil calendar which he will study and add to his earlier works on the Indian records of seasons.

The book which is now in preparation will cover the authors experiences and observations on the capitals, archaeological sites and Indian tribes visited, as well as their amusing peronal encounters with the strange lands and peoples. One of the most surprising accomplishments of the trip was that they arrived in Panama with the same four mules with which they left Mexico and managed to sell the beasts there for more than they had paid for them.

PLANETARIUM HELPS SOLVE TIME PUZZLE

Ancient Egyptian Mystery Believed Solved by U.S. Scientist in Pittsburgh

Christian Science Monitor

PITTSBURGH—An ancient mystery of Egyptian history, the date of the beginning of the Egyptian calendar, is believed solved by Dr. Jotham Johnson, Professor of Greek and Archaeology at the University of Pittsburgh, who has been studying the puzzle for many years.

A simple experiment performed in the new Buhl Planetarium confirmed his book research and pencil-and-paper calculations, and the date, he announced, was June 18, 3251 B.C. It is important, Dr. Johnson says, because it automatically becomes the earliest recorded date in human history. It goes back to the dawn of written records—and there are no older written records known than those of Egypt.

This date establishes as nearly as ever will be established, he said, the start of the art of writing. Egyptians developed writing with pictures instead of letters to keep their financial accounts, business men's bookkeeping, loans, interest, and records of rents and taxes. Adoption of the calendar and of the then-new writing system also indicates the strong arm of a great national leader who might prove to be King Menes, known to historians as the first king of the first Egyptian dynasty.

PLANETARIUM DOES WORK

Dr. Johnson in the course of eight years' work involving intricate astronomical calculations, arrived at 3251 B.C. and then turned his figures over to officials of the newly constructed Buhl Planetarium for checking. On the indoor sky the stars were turned back some 5,000 years: This took 10 hours, for the machine had to be run backward all day October 12, at a steady rate. Later it took just as long to correct it.

That evening Dr. Johnson and a number of his friends saw the same sky the Egyptians saw in early June of 3251 B.C. Historians are certain that the calendar was started at a time when Sirius, the Dog Star (then as now the brightest star in the sky), appeared over the eastern horizon just before the sun came up. And the natural time, historians further agree, for the start of the calendar, was the start of the Nile's annual flood, soon after the middle of June every year.

STAR AND MOON EVIDENCE

And so if at about flood time in 3251 B.C., in the Planetarium's sky duplicating that above ancient Egypt, Sirius appeared just before dawn, Dr. Johnson's theory would be corroborated. And that's exactly what was disclosed.

The Planetarium did even better than that. It tossed in extra evidence. Before the Egyptians adopted the calendar whose origin Dr. Johnson was tracking down, they used a primitive moon calendar. By this calendar a new month started every time there was a new moon. After the rising of Sirius on the dawn of June 18, 3251 B.C., the Planetarium machine was run through that day to evening and there in the western sky, just after sunset, appeared the thin sliver of the faintly visible new moon. That would be the night for the calendar to be changed.

Byrd's Baggage From A to Z

Christian Science Monitor

Admiral Byrd packs quite a suitcase when he sets out on a southern jaunt. Here are some of the items in Byrd's baggage:

Four 500-watt radio transmitters for Little America.

Four 125-watt radio transmitters for Snow Cruiser or airplanes.

Five 80-watt radio transmitters for temporary base use.

Twenty-five 12-watt radio transmitters for dog sleds.

Forty-two electric resistance thermometers for accurate readings from 50 degrees above to 95 degrees below zero.

One five-gallon ice cream freezer.

One snow cruiser.

Twenty-four tents.

Eight hundred books (no poetry).

Six hundred magazines (old).

Checkers, chess, Chinese checkers, backgammon, deck tennis, dart-throwing (no ping-pong allowed: disturbing).

Assorted airplanes, tractors, Army tanks (without guns), trucks, dog sleds.

Assorted instruments for studying geography, biology, metcorology, oceanography, geology, physics, seismology, glaciology, zoology, terrestial magnetism.

One hundred and forty malamute huskies (plus one puppy).

Two ships: North Star, Bear of Oakland.

One hundred and twenty-five men, including assorted dog handlers, pilots, mechanics, scientists, physicians, sailors.

Assorted food: tons of it—concentrated, dehydrated, canned, frozen, fresh.

Rossevelt Plan

must be made to eliminate the most distressing economic causes of war. These advisers feel that any peace offer must be made attractive to the peoples of presently antagonistic and undefeated nations.

Also being considered by some Presidential aides as necessary bases of a sound and enduring peace are the advancement and acceptance of a bill of rights for the common people of Europe, and freedom of communication, interchange and news. Practical diplomats and economists are cooperating in studies of problems and ideas of this nature.

In general, most of the leaders in the Administration working upon the problem feel that ultranationalist economics on a worldwide scale in recent years heighten political nationalism and that methods must be found to break down artificial trade barriers and remove economic pressures upon various nations as one important bulwark of lasting peace.

TRADE PROGRAM IS INVOLVED

This is one reason why most Administration leaders are behind Secretary Hull's reciprocal trade agreements program. For, it is felt, should the United States repudiate this program it could scarcely ser forward any later program that involved the lowering of tariffs and international economic cooperation later.

A plan to rally 10,000 Protestant missionaries throughout the world in a spirtual drive for peace through a Christian Foreign Service Convocation later in the year was discussed with the President at the White House recently by the Right Rev. Henry St. George Tucker, Presiding Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and by James M. Speers, treasurer emeritus of the Foreign Missions Conference of North America, and Emory Ross, executive secretary of the Planning Committee of the Conference.

Mr. Ross stated that the convocation would be organized under the auspices of the Foreign Missions Conference, which is an interdenominational Protestant conference sponsoring missionaries all over the world.

The Protestant churches in America naturally were concerned "about the spiritual contributions which American churches can make in this troubled world situation," Mr. Ross said.

He asserted that President Roosevelt had shown interest in the project, indicating that he considered it a contribution to the program he has undertaken of rallying the influence of all churches to bring about a lasting peace.

YOUNG BRITISH SEAMAN LEADS MEN TO SAFETY

Directs 22 Men in Open Boat for Week after Reich Sub Had Sunk Their Ship

Shanghai Times

LONDON—Malcolm Morrison, 18-year-old seaman of the s.s. Arlington Court (4,915 tons), which was sunk by a submarine more than six weeks ago, who has only just been able to return to London from his home in the Hebrides after recovering from severe frost-bites incurred during a seven days' voyage in an open boat, received an official commendation of the Admiralty on the gallant heroism and good seamanship he displayed when he took charge of one of the ship's boats.

The other occupants were one fireman, one trimmer, one able seaman, the deckboy of 16 years, the ship's cook and the galley-boy—none of them experienced in managing a boat.

The boat in which were the captain of the Arlington Court and 22 men was picked up after just under four days by a Dutch steamer, but Morrison's boat was less fortunate.

The moment she touched water she crashed into the ship's side and filled. The crew had to bale for their lives, and as they drifted slowly to leeward he saw the periscope of a submarine which soon sent the Arlington Court to the bottom.

He and his companions kept the other life-boat in sight until the dark, but there was no sign of it next morning. Early that day, Friday, they sighted a ship but failed to attract its attention with flares, and when daylight came they were alone in a waste of heaving and breaking water, scantily clothed, drenched through and constantly having to bale to keep the boat afloat.

Under Morrison's directions, they hoisted their mast and set a single lug-sail sailing before the wind which blew from West-South-West with gale force. Morrison alone knew how to steer. When his fingers were numb round the tiller and he was shivering with cold, he lashed himself and took a spell at the oar to bring warmth back to his frozen body. Sometimes he dozed while steering.

They sailed on, sighting a convoy on Saturday, but failing to attract its attention. On Sunday, they sighted another vessel but were not seen. It was still stormy with fierce squalls and heavy showers. The men had no oilskins and were beginning to give up all hope. Water was very short, for one of the casks was found to be impregnated with salt, and the other was only half full; apart from this, they had but few tins of condensed milk and some corned beef and biscuits. Water had to be strictly rationed, Morrison ensuring this by keeping possession of the dipper. The men's throats were too parched and swollen to eat salt beef.

On Monday, with little or no water left, there was a slight improvement in the weather, but they saw no ships, and Tuesday was another blank day. Even baling had now become an effort.

At 5 a.m. on Wednesday, they sighted a tanker, and succeeding finally in attracting her attention, they ran alongside, the boat's crew practically helpless. The tanker lowered the pilot ladder, and the men half scrambled and were half pulled on board, only to reel helplessly when they reached deck. Their feet, wet through during the whole of the seven days' voyage, had swollen to prodigious size and had no feeling in them.

Cho Named Captain Of Rikkyo Quintet

Cho Ri Shin, star guard, will lead the Rikkyo University basketball team during the 1940 season. His election as captain was announced Friday.

Tsunco Nomura and Takehiko Onoda were elected managers.

Rikkyo's 1939 edition won the national collegiate championship and recently returned from a successful tour in the Philippines, winning five games and losing three.

Vandenberg Hailed As U.S. Presidential Candidate by Nye

N.Y. Times

WASHINGTON—Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota declared recently his support of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan for the Republican Presidential nomination.

The North Dakotan, who has been mentioned as a possible candidate, said he would not run.

"Senator Vandenberg has a great degree of courage," Mr. Nye said, "a thing that is going to be most essential in these next four years.

"He has an understanding and an appreciation of human needs.

"He has a grand record as respects agricultural legislation that has been considered in Congress during the last dozen years."

Senator Nye said he believed Mr. Vandenberg would "find a pretty level strength in all sections of the country and all classes of citizens."

"I can't see the industrialists fighting him," Mr. Nye continued, "and his agricultural record ought to bring him a grand response from the farming sections.

"He has demonstrated a degree of independence that would be most appealing to a lot of people."

Senator Nye said he hoped North Dakota "would see the greatness of Vandenberg as the most available candidate."

Just back from a week in the State, he said he found considerable sentiment there for Mr. Vandenberg, Hanford MacNider of Iowa and Thomas E. Dewey of New York as Republican contenders, and for Senator Wheeler for the Democratic nomination.

"Wheeler is going strong out that way," Senator Nye said. "He would get a lot of Republican votes."

TOPEKA, Kan.—Senator Vandenberg of Michigan says he would be willing to serve as Republican Presidential candidate but, he adds: "I have absolutely no personal aspirations in this direction."

In a letter to Walter Fess, State Republican chairman, Mr. Vandenberg said it would be impossible for him to visit Topeka in response to an invitation directed to "potential Republican Presidential candidates."

"I might add," he wrote, "that I am scarcely eligible for consideration.

"I do not consider myself to be a candidate in the usual sense of that word. I have indicated my willingness to serve in this terrific responsibility, but I have also indicated that I have absolutely no personal aspirations in this direction and that I shall not personally participate in any pre-convention campaign for delegates."

Miami Pet Flamingos Finally Reproducing After Nine-Year Stay

By LARRY ROLLINS

Shanghai Times

MIAMI, Fla.—After nine years of coaxing by amateur ornithologists bright-plumaged flamingos are reproducing on the palm-dotted infield lakes at the Hialeah Park race track.

Fourteen of the long-legged, long-necked pink and red birds were imported from Cuba in 1930 to decorate the infield of Joseph E. Widener's swank racing establishment. Some died, some escaped, and those that remained made it plain they were doing so under duress.

Other flamingos were brought in later but it was an expensive procedure and track officials tried to make the birds feel enough at home to hatch out some baby flamingos.

Joe Morrow, superintendent of grounds, studied their diet and tempted with such delicacies as cooked rice, dried shrimp and wheat garnished with cod-liver oil. He even went so far as to construct turret-like nests of mud, sticks and stones.

The flamingo, it developed, is a stubborn bird. For seven years he refused to take the hint.

Then, on July 6, 1937, the first flamingo hatched in this country appeared in the flock. There was joy in Hialeah Park's official family. Two weeks later the infant expired and was sorrowfully mounted in a glass case.

Last May 5, however, another young flamingo made its appearance. Others followed in rapid succession and now there are 60 youngsters in the flock of 400.

The papa and mamma flamingos apparently decided finally to make the best of matters, and are living contentedly in their new habitat.

On February 24 the entire flock will participate in a Hialeah Park tradition, a promenade on the turf course prior to the running of the annual $20,000 Flamingo Stakes.

Scientists' Study

in this factor we have found at least one of the natural causes of mutation and hence of evolution" is Muller's conclusion. But there must be other forces at work, as Dr. Muller himself has insisted. Natural radiation alone cannot account for the universal mutation rate in aged seeds.

We are now at the rock-bottom of life—the gene. What is it? A bit of matter, but matter endowed with what we call life. Yet a chemical machine, in Morgan's opinion. "All the evidence that we possess at present indicates that only those particular chemical substances that are characteristic of each species can make the organism what it is," he says. How did these substances come together?. Through accident or design? How is it that they manage to change and perpetuate themselves, whereas iron, gold and other matter remains on the whole what it is?

Suppose the biochemist does delve deeper into the chemical mysteries of chromosomes and genes—what then. We are still left with old puzzles. For instance, there are two types of cells—germ cells and body or somatic cells. The germ cells transmit the units of heredity from one generation to the next. But how does it happen that the germ cells develop spontaneously as they do? They seem to say "grow a hand here, a nose there, a brain in the head" and the designated organs appear in the designated places. The germ cells never make the mistake to causing an ear to appear in the hand or a brain in the abdomen. Why? No answer can be given.

THE MIND

There also remain questions about mentality and emotion to answer. The mind is not a function of the brain, as, for example, hearing is a function of the ear or seeing of the eye, though we could not think without brains. The most crass of material psychologists recognize that mind is something that can be developed as strength is developed in muscles. Even if we could follow the process of thinking and responding to the beauty of nature to the uttermost brain cell, we would not know what mind is. Yet there can be no doubt that brain cells have everything to do with thinking.

Can man take his destiny in his hands, and by controlling heredity make use of his latent mental powers more effectively? No doubt something can be done by applying the methods of the scientific plant and animal breeder. We need some billions of brain cells with entirely new functions. But the acquisition of these is a matter of evolution. Our successors may have these brain cells. If so our yearnings, premonitions, intuitions will be more highly developed. But if that superhuman successor of ours, with his differently organized brain, is to come, he must pass through us, just as we passed through all the life that preceded us in the sense that it had to be created before we could appear by the process of evolution.

Construction Starts Soon on Kishi Athletic Building

Construction will start soon on the long contemplated athletic building in memory of the late Dr. Seiichi Kishi, former president of the Japan Amateur Athletic Fedration for many years and member of the International Olympic Committee, with final plans being approved by the Federation Friday afternoon.

An appropriation of ¥100,000 has been made available by the widow of the late Dr. Kishi.

The site is at Ochanomizu, Tokyo.

PHILIPPINE ARMY STANDS READY FOR TROUBLE

Nine Combat Divisions Now Already in Complete Position To Fight; 100,000 in Force

Shanghai Evening Post

MANILA—If war were declared in the Far East in the next few months and the Philippines were called upon to defend their shores, in 24 hours after the preliminary warning nine Philippine Army combat divisions of approximately 100,000 men in their early 20's would be ready to repulse the enemy.

While the actual responsibility of defending the Philippines until 1946, date of political independence, devolves upon the United States, no military strategist will deny that the Commonwealth forces would be a powerful factor in the defense of these shores.

THREE YEARS' TRAINING

Three years of intensive and systematic military training under the personal direction of General Douglas MacArthur, military adviser to the Commonwealth Government, and his staff, have developed a citizen army sufficient to harass with disconcerting effectiveness any invading force reaching Philippine shores. In seven more years, military experts confidently predict, the Commonwealth forces will be able to take over the defense of the Ptilippines.

Every effort is being concentrated to attain by 1946 the objective which General MacArthur has set out as follows:

"Manifestly the keystone of the defensive arch necessary to create this relatively strong position in the Philippines is the trained citizen army which will compel every attack to assume the character of a major overseas operation, and will confront the enemy with the certainty of staggering costs in money and men.

ARMY GROWING

"Three years ago, before the enactment of the national defense law, any invading force could have attacked the Philippines without fear of any effective help from an organized and well-trained citizen army. Times have changed. And as years go on, the Philippines will be more and more prepared. In 17 more years, the Commonwealth citizen army will grow to 30 divisions of 400,000 men. It will eventually, at the fruition of the plan in its 30-year cycle, embody 30 divisions of more than 1,000,000 men.

"Today an invading force would find in every principal island a garrison to resist landing and fight for every inch of ground. The enemy would find every foot of shoreline in the inhabited islands closely watched. In a few more years each garrison will grow in man-power and tactical strength to insure an effective concentration of forces against any troop landing, and will be so organized, equipped and supplied, that any partial penetration will encounter a bitter and continuous resistance from the moment it quits its transports."

War Refugees in Britain Volunteer for Army

N. China Daily News

LONDON—Replying to a question in the House of Commons recently, Sir John Anderson, Home Secretary and Minister of Home Security, stated that since September 1, about 1,200 refugees had been emigrated from Great Britain, and arrangements had been made to send away further parties within the next three months.

Large-scale plans, however, for new settlements, which were contemplated when refugees were admitted to this country, had to be put aside for the present.

It was desirable, said the Home Secretary, that during the war, use should be made of those refugees who were willing to assist in this country's war efforts. Many, indeed, had volunteered for war service, and suitable applicants had been accepted, while others who had special technical experience and skill might be usefully employed on the country's production program.

There was still a substantial number of refugees maintained by voluntary organizations, which had spent £5,000,000 since 1933, but which, under conditions of war, were now unable to meet the whole cnarge.

The Government had decided to supplement voluntary effort by grants up to half the amount organizations had expended, concluded Sir John, subject to a maximum monthly payment of £27,000.

OLIVER STRESSES BRITAIN'S AIMS TOWARDS NAZIS

'Never Again Must They Have Power to Inflict Misery on World,' War Minister Says

Shanghai Times

LONDON—British determination to crush Naziism once and for all was reaffirmed by the Secretary of State for War, Mr. Oliver Stanley, in a speech at Newcastle recently in the course of which he condemned the Nazi doctrine of Lebensraum (living space).

"For ourselves we want nothing of Germany or of the Germans," he declared. "We do not desire their destruction; we do not grudge their prosperity; we do not want to make of them helots that they have made of millions, or make their land the desert that they have made of a quarter of Europe. We want them to be peaceful and happy members of a peaceful and happy Europe.

"But never again under this or any leader, or under this or any regime, must they have the power to inflict upon the world misery and suffering, which twice in our life they have done."

An Allied victory was certain, Mr. Stanley stated, but there must be no illusions as to the difficulties and sacrifices to be faced. There could be no victory without tears.

DIFFERENCE OF PUBLIC BEHAVIOUR

The Minister recalled that exactly five months had elapsed since the War broke out. He contrasted the difference of public behaviour then and at the outbreak of the Great War.

That generation which had never known a European war entered the 1914 struggle determined, but was yet able to clothe the war with the romanticism of a bygone age, while the present generation, ignorant neither of dangers nor sacrifices, entered the present conflict even more united and determined.

Discussing the reasons for that outstanding unity of purpose, Mr. Stanley recalled that throughout the centuries, Europe did not consist of a few great Powers but was made up of nations of various strength and size, small nations developing their own national culture and, until the rise of Nazism, not regarded as the natural prey of their stronger neighbors.

HIGH SOUNDING DOCTRINE

The Nazis, however, had introduced the high-sounding doctrine of Lebensraum which, the War Secretary said, merely meant: "Anything your neighbor has is yours if you are strong enough to take it." This was shown, he asserted, by instance after instance, culminating in the march on Prague.

It had often been said, and was reiterated by General Hertzog (Leader of the Opposition in the Union of South Africa) in a recent speech, that all the trouble came from the Versailles Treaty, the Minister continued.

While not denying its imperfections and mistakes, he said, on the whole the Treaty was inspired by a single idea—to release the people of other nationalities from German rule, allowing them to make their own countries and to live their own lives.

WHAT NAZI RULE MEANS

"When, in the past few months, we have seen what German rule means," Mr. Stanley asked, "can anybody say we were wrong and the idea was ignoble?"

According to General Hertzog, he proceeded, all Herr Hitler had done in past years was to put right grievances, although, in doing so, he might have been a little inconsiderate, hasty and brusque, but always with good intentions.

"How true it is that distance lends enchantment to the view," Mr. Stanley commented. "Let us call as witness not people 2,000 miles away, but people a little nearer the scene."

And he asked whether the Czechs, Poles and Austrians, with their over-run countries, shot students, silent workers, and life without laughter or liberty, were likely to think that Herr Hitler's intentions were good, or his actions only a little inconsiderate.

PHILOSOPHY OF BRUTE FORCE

And did small neutral countries, fearing an attack at any moment, the War Secretary further asked, feel the same confidence in the Nazi leader as that expressed by General Hertzog? Against that philosophy of brute force, he added, the Allies were fighting not only for their lives but for lasting peace.

Turning to the question of trade, which Mr. Stanley said had been his chief concern until a few days ago, he pointed out that exports were a vital element in the war effort, in which workers, manufacturer, merchant and public must take part.

Although, at the beginning of the War, the export trade suffered a sharp decline, recovery had been rapid, and the December figures actually exceeded the pre-war monthly average.

ARMY CREATED IN LIMITED TIME

Turning to the concerns of his present office, the War Secretary dealt with the initial difficulties of raising and equipping a large army in a limited time, but said much had already been accomplished.

The expeditionary force, he added, had been built into a formidable army, some units of which already had had an opportunity of showing the customary skill and dash of the British soldiers in contact with the enemy.—Reuter.

Four Tennis Players Will Leave March 9 For Manila Tourney

The Kamo sisters, one of whom is the national women's singles champion, Yasu Kimura of Waseda University and Harno Kodera of the Kobe Higher Commercial College will leave Kobe on the President Adams on March 9 to compete in the Philippine all-comers tournament at Manila, it was announced Sunday.

The tournament will start on March 23.

Scheduled date of the liner's arrival at Manila is March 19.

Joe Eagle Arrives; Fights Horiguchi Tonight

Joe Eagle, 24, arrived at Kobe at 2 p.m. Sunday aboard the President Cleveland from Manila and entrained immediately for Tokyo. He meets Tsuneo (Piston) Horiguchi, Japan's best known fighter, in a 12-rounder tonight at the Kokugikan at Ryogoku.

Eagle, upon his arrival, gave his weight as 126 pounds. He expects to be in Japan for three months.

Incidentally, the smoker tonight at the Kokugikan starts at 6 p.m.

EXPERTS SAY AIR RAID CAN BEAT WARSHIP

Insley Holds Use of 1,000 Planes in Attack Warranted Despite Great Losses

N.Y. Times

DETROIT, Jan. 16—Despite the skepticism of many naval authorities today, Robert Insley, chief research engineer for the Pratt & Whitney Company, maker of aircraft engines, believes that the airplane is master of the naval vessel, and that an airfleet, in sufficient numbers, will prove the nemesis of a battle fleet on the sea, at least in Europe.

He expressed this opinion today as a purely personal viewpoint at the annual convention here of the Society of Automotive Engineers.

Mr. Insley, whose work deals primarily with aircraft engines, believes that a mass attack by planes can wreak havoc on a fleet.

"I believe," he said, "that, forgetting the waste of man power for the moment, it is worthwhile for airplanes to attack war vessels en masse.

"If a battleship were marked for destruction, by an enemy power, I believe that it would be worth sending 1,000 planes in a mass attack, even if only two reached their objective and succeeded in sinking it by bombing.

"The loss of the 998 planes, if such huge losses occurred, could be borne by the attacker, since that many planes could be replaced in a month. But it takes two years to make a battleship."

NEW GERMAN CRAFT PRAISED

He praised the new German Messerschmitt planes which, he claimed, would be a serious problem to opposing aircraft, in that they are very fast and very mobile. The older type Messerschmitt, he said, was fast but could not be handled quickly in combat.

The best Russian planes, he said, are mainly those bought from other countries and which are now obsolete.

Mr. Insley was chairman of the morning session, at which A. L. Beal of the Wright Aeronautical Corporation spoke on "Ceramic Plugs Re-enter Aviation" and F. H. Riddle of the ceramic division of the Champion Spark Plug Company, discussed "Ceramic Insulators for Spark Plug."

In the afternoon sessions of the convention Major Mark V. Brunson, army quartermaster of Washington, D. C., gave an illustrated lecture on the tactics used by French and German generals in 1914.

He discussed various aspects of the famous Schliefen plan, by which Germany attacked in the World War.

NUTT IS ELECTED PRESIDENT

At the evening session officers of the association for 1940 were elected.

Arthur Nutt, vice-president for engineering of Wright Aeronautical Corporation, Paterson, N. J., was elected president of the Society of Automotive Engineers, succeeding William J. Davidson of the General Motors Corporation, Detroit.

David Beecroft of the Bendix Products Division of Bendix Aviation Corporation, succeeded himself for the eighth consecutive term as treasurer.

The following were elected to the Council of the Society for a two-year period: Murray Fahnestock of Pittsburgh, James B. Fisher of Waukesha, Wis., and Austin M. Wolf of New York.

MANILA'S SHOE INDUSTRY HAS LONG HISTORY

First Natives of Islands Went Barefoot, Then Wore Slippers, Western Shoes

Shanghai Evening Post

MANILA—In 1937, Manila celebrated the birth of her first Philippine owned and managed shoe factory, for which machines were imported from the United States and Germany. Today, there is quite a large number of factories in the Philippines manufacturing leather and rubber shoes.

Before the Spanish conquest of the Islands and even during their reign, the natives of the islands went barefooted. Little by little, Chinese slippers and wooden clogs were used. Just before the Americans came on the scene, the men of the wealthier classes began to wear leather shoes.

FORMATION OF ARMY

It is believed the formation of the Philippine Army really developed the shoe business. Today, the largest shoe factory in the Philippines and indeed the Orient, Ang Tibay, is turning out 300,000 pairs of shoes a year in addition to 100,000 pairs of leather-soled native slippers, the abahario and sabal.

The Ang Tibay Shoe Factory in Manila, blending the old and new ways of making shoes, was founded by Toribio Teodora 25 years ago, and is still carried on by him with the help of his efficient and shrewd daughters, the Misses Toriba and Cecilia.

The factory runs on the Western idea of manufacture. Imported machinery from Germany and America are employed and manned by expert Filipino workers in all their departments from that of the raw material to the packing departments.

The shoes turned out by this Filipino concern are sold at half the price of American-made shoes.

Native slippers are also made in a secluded corner of this big factory. This industry had its origin from the Chinese, and the slippers called 'chinelas.' Cobblers are here seen using the quaint old fashioned, way in making them.

Although shoes are worn in the cities, the natives in the provinces still find it irksome to wear them. Veterans of the Philippine Revolucionarios Army, for instance, although they start out city parades with regulation boots on, invariably take them off and strap them over their shoulders toward the end.

SURPRISING NUMBER

A surprising number of modern shoe stores nevertheless caters to the needs of city people, although it will be a long time before shoes will be worn in all the interior provinces.

The Philippines at present enjoys only a small export trade in shoes, mainly to Hawaii.

Taking into consideration the vast number of people in the provinces who will eventually wear shoes, and the markets of the Orient, the shoe manufacturing business in the Philippines may still be considered in its infancy, however.

HORIGUCHI K.O.'S JOE EAGLE IN 3RD ROUND

Joe Eagle of the Philippines was no match for Tsuneo (Piston) Horiguchi, Japan's best known pugilist, Monday night at the Kokugikan at Ryogoku. Fat and slow on his feet, showing long absence from the ring, he was unable to block Horiguchi's punches and was knocked out in the third round of the main event scheduled for 12 rounds. Horiguchi weighed in at 126 pounds and Eagle at 127.

Twenty five thousand rabid fans turned out to see the bout, the third between the two scrappers with each having won once. Expecting to see a humdinger, they raised a storm of protest when the Filipino, plainly out of condition to go 12 rounds at the outset of the bout, sank to his knees in the third round and refused to rise until he was counted out.

IN POOR CONDITION

Eagle might have been handicapped, having to fight the day after his arrival from Manila, but it is plain he would have gone more than three rounds had he been in any kind of a condition and been active in the ring these past few months.

Sports scribes of the metropolitan papers this morning were unanimous in their criticism of the promoter in not having investigated the record of Eagle these last few months before inviting him to this country.

It must be said, however, that Eagle made an auspicious start, scoring with straight lefts and rights to the head and body. But this sally was short-lived for before the first round had been half over, Horiguchi had driven him against the ropes and punished him mercilessly.

The second round saw Horiguchi chasing Eagle from one corner to another, punishing him relentlessly with a two-fisted attack. Indications were already seen that the Filipino had no intention of continuing the fight for long. He went down without a punch in the third round, ready to be counted out. But the referee would have naught of it and pulled up the Filipino on his feet to fight. He went down again after Horiguchi had driven in two or three punches, and this time he was counted out.

FIGHT TO DRAW

Hideo Fujiwara, 119 pounds, of the Kyowa Boxing club, and Sueji Suzuki, 114 pounds, of the Fuji Boxing club, fought to a draw in the eight-round semi-final.

NETHERLANDS BELGIUM WEDGE

Two 'Low Countries' Form A Block Facing North Sea, Hemmed in by Three Nations

Pieced together, the two "Low Country" nations, Belgium and the Netherlands, which are reported mobilizing their armed forces, from a wedge facing the North Sea, with belligerent nations on all sides—England to the northwest, France to the southwest, and Germany on the east, the National Geographic Society points out in a bulletin from its Washington, D.C., headquarters.

"The Belgium of lacemakers, carillons, and poppy-strewn Flanders of windmills, tulips, and cheese," says the bulletin. "The countries are similar slices of Low Country geography—a diked coastal zone of canal-striped gardens backed by higher pasture land.

SPANISH KINGS RULED

"Belgium, with a deeper grip on the continent, tilts its southern corner up into the Ardennes highlands, gentle mountains hardly half as high as the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia, and possible inspiration for Shakespeare's Forest of Arden in As You Like It. This Belgian knob turns traffic northwest to the seaside plains.

"Lumped together under the thumb of tyrannical Spanish kings, the two Lowland countries shared the name of Netherlands until the Dutch Republic pulled itself free in 1648! Napoleon patched them together again in a brief farewell union. They later demanded an independence apiece as separate neutral kingdoms.

"Though both kingdoms together are not half as large as Alabama, their energy at home and commerce abroad support the densest nation-wide population in the world. With intrepid colonists, like the one-legged Peter Stuyvesant of New Amsterdam fame, the Netherlands empire expanded to sixty times the mother country's size. The same Stanley who tracked down Dr. Livingstone presented Belgium with a Congo treasure-land of copper, gold, diamonds, and tin.

CAPTURE FROM SEA

"For expansion in more recent years, men of the Lowlands have invaded the sea, to capture acre after acre from seaweed and fish. Polders — dike-enclosed lakes — are drained with great power-driven pumping plants and canals, to become walled gardens of flowers and vegetables or lush meadow land, above the land level, surf batters constantly at fortresslike dikes.

"The land of the Netherland curves like an amphitheater around the deltas of the Rhine and Scheldt Rivers and the basin of the disappearing Zuider Zee. Miles of dikes have held off the sea as the amphitheater floor has been pumped dry to extend the fertile 'Hollow-land' that supports almost half of the nation's crowded population. About half of the country could be flooded enough to impede invasion if the dikes were fully opened.

"While the fertility, commerce, and security of the Netherlands have come in large part from the sea, the wealth of Belgium is based to a greater extent on the land—coal, iron, and zinc and factories that utilize them. Flax, greenhouse grapes, and sugar beets are other products of the earth which give Belgium a high place in world trade."

Portable Typewriter Gives Arctic Eskimo 'That Certain Feeling'

Christian Science Monitor

NEW YORK—The story of an Eskimo gone modern is told by Philip H. Godsell, Arctic explorer, writing in the current issue of Natural History, official organ of the American Museum of Natural History. He relates how "Mike" saw the factor at Aklavik, a diminutive metropolis of the Arctic at the mouth of the McKenzie River, using a portable typewriter and asked him to order one for him.

"What really caused my eyes to open wide," says Mr. Godsell, "was the sight of this Eskimo squatted on an upturned milkbox pounding the keys of a portable typewriter. With an appreciable sense of what Hollywood calls 'atmosphere' he sported a navy blue suit and a pair of smoked glasses perched at a rakish angle on his nose.

"As I watched, the Eskimo put the letter he had written in an envelope and gave it to a boy who ran off with it. Later there was a tap on the sealskin tupek and the boy returned and handed another letter to the man in front of the typewriter. I thought indeed civilization had come to the Arctic until the factor explained matters."

It seems that in an effort to ape the white men and impress the other Huskies, two chiefs had bought typewriters and spent many hours (with straight faces) exchanging notes that were meaningless jumbles of letters, figures, and punctuation marks. Mr. Godsell also tells of another Eskimo who purchased an electric lighting system to illuminate his 18-foot driftwood igloo. Now he can cause the "moon to enter and leave his house at will."

PLENTY OF FOOD SAID SUPPLIED TO LONDONERS

All Classes, Rich, Poor In Capital City of Empire Reported with Plenty to Eat

By DONALD L. GILL
Secretary of U.S. Chamber of Commerce, London

LONDON — Germans who make radio speeches from Hamburg and elsewhere in English declare that the war has struck a savage blow at the happiness and well-being of the British people. One Saturday, I went out into the streets of London to see for myself. I am a citizen of a neutral country. I have no axe to grind. I am not interested in serving either the British or the German case. On this Saturday my only interest was to discover the truth. And here are some of the things I saw and heard for myself.

I went to Camden Town, a large working-class district in North London. Near the Underground Station there the side-streets were lined with barrows piled high with fruit and vegetables. Each barrow had a small knot of women round it, doing their week-end shopping. I saw them spending money with comparative freedom.

HUGE MEAT SHOP

In Camden Town is a huge meat shop. I spent half an hour in there, talking freely to both employees and shoppers. Every Saturday since the war began the average number of purchases made there has been approximately 11,000. During the previous week 81 English sides of beef had been sold. An employee told me that since the outbreak of war they had only handled 100 imported lambs each week instead of the 150 of pre-war days, but that they expected very shortly to equal and even surpass this normal peace-time figure.

A whole counter was given over to the display of bacon. The cheapest—nearly all fat—was 8d a pound. The dearest, which looked excellent, was 1s. 10d a pound. Very good bacon could be bought for 1s. 4d. a pound. I went down into the cellars of the shop to speak to two men whose job is boiling gammons. Since the war they have dealt with 300 gammons a week—the normal peace-time figure.

Every department of the shop was crowded.

I spoke to a Mrs. Reele, Regents Park, a middle-aged woman of the working class. "How is the war affecting you?" I asked.

"Mustn't grumble", she replied. "Naturally, it's made things a little difficult, but on the whole things aren't so bad".

"How do you manage about food?"

"Oh, there's no trouble about that. It's just the same as it was before Hitler started his little games."

"Can you get meat easily? Can you, say, eat it at least three times a week?"

"I can get as much meat as I want. Three times a week!"—she laughed. "Who's been telling you that? I like a bit of meat nearly every day—and I get it".

From Camden Town I went to Islington, a North London borough whose population ranks it as the ninth largest city in Britain. It is an essentially working-class area. Fifty per cent of its families have an income of not more than £2.10.0d a week.

HOUSING ESTATE

My first call was at the Hornsey Lane Housing Estate, opened in March 1939. There are eight blocks of buildings containing a total of 206 flats. Some of the blocks are three stories high, others five stories. I called on one family living in these flats, Mr. and Mrs. Bowers. They were in the middle of their midday meal. An enormous loaf lay on the table. Before each of them was a plate heaped high with a meat stew, potatoes and Brussels sprouts.

Mr. Bowers is a laborer earning £3 a week. He has two boys working, a girl living at home, and three children who have been evacuated to the country. The total income of the family is about £4 a week. They pay a weekly rent (including rates) of 18s.5d for their flat.

In the living room stands a small modern radio set. Over it hangs a dart board. Mr. and Mrs. Bowers are joined nearly every night by a family on the floor below for a game of darts or game of "crib". A roaring fire was blazing on the hearth.

"Well, how's the war affecting you?" I asked Mrs. Bowers.

Oh, we're managing nicely. Prices have risen a little, but not as much as I expected. We still get plenty to eat", she declared.

I explored the flat. Besides the living room, there were three bedrooms, all light and of a good size, a bathroom and separate lavatory, and a scullery. The same type of flat in a fashionable area of London would cost anything from £2 to £3 a week.

I left Mr. and Mrs. Bowers finishing their meal and went out into the grounds of the estate. It was a cold bleak December afternoon, with a harsh north east wind blowing but the children's playground was full of noisy, happy, rosy-cheeked children playing on the swings and roundabouts.

WORKING-CLASS FLATS

There are other blocks of these modern working-class flats in Islington. In all they can house over 900 families. Rents vary according to the district and number of rooms. At Blythe Mansions, another of these estates, a three-roomed flat's rent is 11s.8d. A four-roomed flat is 13s.9d.

I met Alderman D. McArthur Jackson, J.P., the Mayor of Islington. He told me of the poverty that still exists in Islington but assured me that the Borough had not had its normal standard of living lowered by the war. The evacuation of families had, of course, had some effect on the district, but the vast majority of shopkeepers were doing their normal trade.—From British Embassy.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT" - by Ripley

PHILIPPINE IS. HAS POPULATION OF 64 MILLION

40 Years Ago It Was Poor Country With Less Than Seven Million Persons

Shanghai Evening Post

MANILA—Forty years ago the Philippines were a poor country with less than seven million people in 49 provinces without roads and with poor ports. Today they are a prosperous country with fine highway systems used by about 55,000 automobiles and trucks, and with modern ports. And in 60 years less than two generations, the Philippines' population will be 64 millions, from natural growth alone.

"Although at present we are facing great hazards regarding the future, there is a certain element of faith in oneself which invariably makes one look confidently into the future no matter what may happen in 1946," says S. F. Gaches, President of the American Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines and President of Heacock and Company. "Otherwise I would not sponsor the building of the most modern department store in the Far East."

Heacock's Department Store, he pointed out is the most beautiful in Manila and even the Far East. Air-conditioned throughout it has the newest invention in automatic doors which are governed by electric rays.—In other words no 'pushing' is needed to enter in and out of the store.

The Philippines have large business possibilities and plenty of room for investment. But real estate pays very little. Three or five per cent net is considered a gilt edged investment. Furthermore property on the Escolta, Manila's busiest street, will not pay five per cent net over ten years.

In 1898, there were no concrete buildings in Manila, only shacks with tin roofs. Many years ago, Spanish and American capital made it possible to build up the town. Then the sugar planters from the provinces, finding no safety in investments in the provincial lands, also began investing in buildings in the city.

The Philippine people are not investors in commercial enterprises; they are good speculators and gamblers, which accounts for the occasional gold mine booms.

Mr. Gaches waxes strong when he speaks of the Philippines; he is known to speak with the spirit of the Yankee Clipper Ships when he is on this subject. In his pamphlet, "Philipine Trade, Our Far Eastern Base," he states:

"Americans ought to look ahead to the approaching day when the Philippines will be as productive per capital as Hawaii is. By not allowing Congress to sell the Islands down the river, that trade alone—that Philippine trade alone—will approximate in billions of dollars a year, the whole of America's overseas trade today.

"Philippine markets for American manufacturers now are worth nearly $100,000,000 a year and have lifted the Islands to the position of the eighth best overseas customer. The Philippines buy with what they grow and with what they dig from the mines. They now get their farm commodities from the cultivation of 4,500,000 hectares of land. They have 19 million hectares to be cultivated. The trade is not one-quarter of what it will be when a larger population using better tools cultivates all the Island's tillable land.

"Of sundry imports from United States, the Philippines are buying goods of higher quality than they formerly did. For new undertakings such as mining, they are buying machinery and equipment running into high unit values per ton.

"Philippine trade is the keystone of America's general Far Eastern trade.

The Philippine press is predominantly an English-language press. It introduces American periodicals and books, and heralds the Hollywood movie. These are sold throughout the islands, and read from cover to cover. There are about 1,500,000 boys and girls attending schools where English is spoken in nearly all of the Philippine islands, making it the third English-speaking country in the world.

"Americans cannot find another large country to match the Philippines for trade because for instance, the trade-field of the ships, American and foreign, that bring American manufactured products to Manila, is not the Philippines alone. It is Japan, China, Hongkong and the Philippines. It is the Far East. The Cuban field, too is not Cuba alone. It is the West Indies as a whole, Central America and Mexico. Sum up America's trade in these two fields for 1937—almost down to date, the Philippine trade-field wins by $134,597,658 in one year only.

"To feel how natural this large Philippine trade is, imagine a ship, American or foreign, loading along America's two great seaboards with manufactures for Japan, China and Hongkong, and the Philippines. The ship uses both seaboards and the gulf ports, like that.

"This ship reaches Manila last; Japan first, then China. In the Philippines, empty, the ship fills up with raw tropical products, some for Europe, more for the United States.

"The Philippines are the turn-around point, the natural one. They always have been. The American Clippers in their heyday, when they dominated the seven seas, when they brought the wares of the world from Europe, Australia, the United States and the Levant to Canton, Macao and Hongkong, turned to the Philippines for sugar, copra, Manila hemp and tobacco for their homeward voyages.

"The Philippines are the key to America's whole Far Eastern market, a market taking 400 million dollars' worth of American products a year and often more. America has this market because she has the Philippines.

"If ships taking American goods to the Far East could not go to the Philippines and be sure of homeward cargoes, they would up their westward freight rates. In China and Japan, American goods could not sell so readily. American Far Eastern business would run down. Americans would look for the reason, and it would be the rates.

"Then, assuredly, Americans would remember that they had permitted Congress to levy against Philippine products that America requires, and even to give up the Philippines altogether. And it would be too late!"

Commenting on business between Shanghai and the Philippines, he remarked with a sweep of his hand over his luxurious office.

"For one thing: see this office? It is of Philippine wood, sent to Shanghai to be made into plyboard and then shipped back here. A big trade could be worked up in this alone, as they can't make plyboard successfully here."

WOODRUFF TOPS BORICAN IN 800M.; FENSKE WINS MILE; CUNNINGHAM 4TH

Domei Tsushin

NEW YORK, Feb. 18—Two world's records were established and two more were tied in the annual New York Athletic Club Games tonight at the Madison Square Garden.

John Woodruff, long-striding Negro Olympic 800-meter champion from Pittsburgh University, tonight provided a thrill for the thousands of spectators who packed the Garden, when he nosed out John Borican, Negro star of the Shore A.C., equalling the half mile world's indoor record of one minute 52.8 seconds. The finish was so close that Borican also was credited with the same time.

George Bolzis, of Georgetown University, set a new world's indoor record of 53 feet 8 ⅛ inches in the shotput, defeating Frank Ryan, of the New York A.C., who only a few minutes before had set a mark of 53 feet 3 ¾ inches, which also surpassed the former record of 53 feet 1 ¼ inches held by Jack Torrance.

The other record was registered by Allan Tolmich in the 60 yard hurdles. His time of 7.1 seconds bettered the old mark of 7.2 seconds.

Chuck Fenske, former Wisconsin track star, won the mile run for the fifth consecutive time by equalling the indoor mark of 4 minutes 7.4 seconds. Louis Zamperini was second three yards behind; Gene Venzke, third; and Glenn Cunningham, fourth.

The two mile run was won by George Rice, of Notre Dame, in 9 minutes 4.2 seconds. Don Lash, of Indiana, finished a poor fifth.

FENSKE BEATS CUNNINGHAM IN MILE RUN

By LOUIS EFFRAT

N.Y. Times

BOSTON, Jan. 27—Defeat caught up with Glenn Cunningham again tonight. Beaten on the same 11-lap track by Gene Venzke two weeks ago, the traveling man from Kansas bowed to Charles (Chuck) Fenske, the Wisconsin graduate student, who thrilled a crowd of 10,000 at the nineteenth annual Prout Memorial Games in the Boston Garden. Fenske sped to a three-yard victory over the 4:04.4 miler in the Knights of Columbus Mile. [Fenske and Cunningham were both in Japan as members of The All-American track and field team in 1934—Editor.]

However, a beaten Cunningham did not mean a humbled, spiritless Cunningham. For the world indoor record-holder was far from being disgraced in finishing second to the second fastest mile ever produced in the Hub. Fenske was clocked in 4:10.3, excellent figures for the slow Boston boards and surpassed here only by Cunningham's 4:10 in 1938.

Never ahead at any stage in this fine race, Cunningham, desperattely hugging the rail in a futile effort to sneak through on the inside had Fenske made the slightest opening, had no chance of passing the fleet Badger as the two sped to the finish line and Fenske grimly protected his advantage. There was no doubt concerning who was superior tonight.

SAN ROMANI FAR BEHIND

Far in the rear came Archie San Romani, one of the early pacesetters, who, in turn, was trailed by Louis Zamperini, the Californian making his initial Eastern board-floor start. Blaine Rideout, Tommy Deckard, a surprisse mile starter, and John Munski completed the seven-man field.

The setback of Cunningham was not the only surprise of the night. Just as much of a shock was the conclusive and decisive victory of little Gregory Rice, Notre Dame's N.C.A.A. champion, over Don Lash in the Leo Larrivee two-mile, which the South Bend athlete accomplished in 9:01.7, time second only to Lash's world indoor record of 8:58, made here in 1937.

FENSKE TAKES COMMAND

Returning to the mile, in which Fenske registered his third victory over the great Cunningham, Chuck deserved full credit for his magnificent performance. Ever a contender, the Badger allowed Deckard to pull the field for the first five laps and then permitted San Romani to pick up where Deckard left off. Two laps from home Fenske took over, with Cunningham just a stride behind San Romania.

Some two hundred yards from the finish Cunningham stepped ahead of San Romania and everything was set for the exciting wind-up. With both men lengthening their strides, Fenske opened a three-yard gap that Cunningham, try as he would, was unable to close. Some thought Glenn would swing wide in an effort to assume command, but he did not.

Along the rail the pair sped around the final turn and up the homestretch, but Fenske would not yield and their positions remained unchanged. It appeared that Cunningham's famous "kick" was missing. Still the fact is that, in placing second, the Kansan was clocked in 4:11, irrefutable evidence that this is definitely not the time for writing Cunningham's competitive obituary.

British Artists Rally to Colors

Christian Science Monitor

LONDON—Artists here are being called to the colors—just dull grays and browns in some cases where their work is to be the camouflaging of buildings, but brighter hues where they are to decorate barracks and Army huts, design articles for the export trade, and copy examples of architecture and pictures which might be damaged in air raids.

The bugle call to service on the Home Front has been sounded by the Institute of Art and Design, through whose work-promotion schemes it is hoped soon to reabsorb many of the 10,000 jobless artists in this country.

The Institute, while not proposing to offer direct employment, in cooperation with the Minister of Labor and various influential bodies, seeks to enlist artists in the service of Government departments, of industry and municipal and public bodies.

Another scheme which is sending London artists under canvas is the United Artists Exhibition to be held from January to March at the Royal Academy. Sending-in day here recently saw many of them carrying their pictures along Piccadilly to Burlington House. This is an exhibition for professional artists only, and it is expected that many well-known painters who have not submitted work before will be represented.

These schemes are to remedy a state of affairs since war broke out in which pavement artists have in some cases been able to earn more than portrait painters.

MANILA'S SUGAR SEEN IMPORTANT TO WHOLE WORLD

Originated in Asia; West Indies First Heard of It From Visit of Columbus

Shanghai Evening Post

MANILA—Most important industry of the Philippines, the sugar industry also is one of the most important to the world at large. For where would tea and coffee-drinkers, sweeth tooth addicts and the many other dependents of sugar, be without this all-important product of the humble sugar cane?

Sugar cane is said to have originated in Asia. It gradually spread westward and Columbus introduced it to the West Indies. It is now to be found throughout the tropical world although its commercial cultivation is limited to certain areas. Botanically, the sugar cane belongs to the family of grasses or "graminae." By scientific breeding many hundreds of different varieties have now been produced. When a variety is shown to possess desirable commercial properties, it is given an index letter and number, designating the experimental station of origin and the serial. The sugar cane plant grows in a clump like other grasses, but the individual stalks may be from 1/2 inch to 2 inches in diameter and up to 14 feet long, with five to 50 stalks per clump or "stool".

DIFFERENCES IN HABIT

The different varieties of sugar cane are characterized by their differences in habit at, coloring, size and yield powers. A variety is a commercial success only when both the field and the factory properties are of high quality. Environment conditions are of outstanding importance in their influence on these properties.

The number of sugar cane experiment stations in the world bears witness to the scientific activity which is taking place in an endeavor to increase yield and decrease costs. Almost every aspect of production is investigated: variety breeding, cultivation methods, manures and fertilizers, soils, together with the engineering and technological work of the factory. Considering the quantity of sugar which is consumed annually, it is of interest to note that both as a food and as a chemical it is retailed in a purer state than almost any other product. Few laymen realize that the greater bulk of sugar bought is 99.9 per cent chemically pure sucrose.

The cane crop is allowed 12 to 22 months in which to grow and ripen. Growth takes place during the rainy season chiefly and as the rains begin to lessen, ripening sets in, during which time the sugar content increases. Yields vary with conditions up to 70 tons of cane per acre, although small isolated areas may show returns as high as 110 tons. The amount of sugar recovered from the cane depends on its sugar content and the efficiency of the factory to which it is sent. The ratio of tons of cane used to make one ton of sugar similarly depends on these factors, and six to 15 may be taken as the commercial extremes, with an average of eight to 10.

A stranger visiting one of the Philippines' sugar "haciends," looked up at a sugar cane stalk and passed the remark: "but where do the cubes come from?

BIOLOGICAL PROCESSES

The sugar factory does not make sucrose: it merely recovers that manufactured in the plant by certain biological processes. The process of recovery consists essentially in extracting the juice treating the extracted juice so that crystallization of sucrose is able to proceed successfully, and finally obtaining and separating the sucrose in crystal form.

The almost universal method of extracting the juice is carried out by squeezing the cane between a series of rollers under pressure (milling). The extracted juice is then treated with chemicals—lime sulphur dioxide, carbon dioxide or phosphate—and heat (clarification). This treatment has the effect of precipitating certain of the impurities, which are then allowed to settle out. The clarified juice so obtained is decanted from the settlings while they, in turn, are finally filtered. The decanted clarified juice and the filtrate are next concentrated, the water being removed by evaporation in two stages. The first stage produces a syrup containing between 45 and 55 per cent of sucrose.

The second stage (crystallization) continues the process but under more closely controlled conditions. It is at this point that the sugar first appears as very fine crystals, which are built up to the size required for the final product. The crystals are separated from the residual juice, or molasses in centrifugals, and finally weighed out into bags for shipment.

Murakami Captures Kawana Golf Tourney

Playing on his own home course, Giichi Murakami shot a 163 to defeat 32 other professional golfers in a 36 hole medal play Tuesday at the picturesque course at Kawana.

Murakami registered a 77 in the morning round, or a stroke behind Rokuzo Asami of the Hodogaya Club, but he went out with a 42 and came in with a 44 in the afternoon to defeat Asami by one stroke.

Son of Manchoukuo also came in with a 164 to tie Asami for second place.

Fourth was Yukimasa Toba of the Sagami course with a 165.

LEAGUE CHIEF URGES FLEXIBLE TARIFF SCHEME

Munro, President of U. S. Tariff Group Urges Law With Nonpartisan Administration

Christian Science Monitor

NEW YORK—William L. Munro, President of the American Tariff League, advocated before the fifty-fifth annual meeting of the League, a flexible tariff law, administered by a nonpartisan, nonpolitical agency with power to adjust rates solely on the basis of domestic economic considerations.

Mr. Munro said that such a statute was necessary to replace the reciprocal trade agreements program, which, he declared, had cut rates to the lowest levels since the 1913 Tariff Act and left this country vulnerable to "a post-war flood of competitive imports that will shake its economic structure to its very foundations."

He said that the full impact of the tariff rewriting would come when the millions of men now engaged in fighting turn from wartime back to normal production.

Tariff rate, Mr. Munro declared, must be established on a basis that would assure domestic producers that the landed cost of foreign merchandise will be equal to the principal elements of labor, material and taxes in domestic costs of production. He said that American producers ask for no more than an even break in their home market.

"This means that our tariff must have a measure of flexibility which is denied under the existing procedure," Mr. Munro continued. "I am prepared to admit that the procedure followed under the old flexible provisions, which is outlawed for trade agreement items, is too cumbersome. I believe, however, that Congress should define a procedure which could be promptly and efficiently administered. I believe that on the basis of the experience under the administration of the flexible provisions of the present and previous Tariff Acts it is entirely practicable to develop a formula which will permit prompt and equitable tariff adjustments with a minimum of delay."

"Congress should prescribe the minimum requirements for a truly flexible tariff," he contiuned, "and should make mandatory the denial of privileges to those governments which discriminate so continuously and flagrantly against the United States.

"By this statement you will recognize that I concede the desirability—in the interests of promptly meeting emergency conditions—of Congress delegating certain specific and carefully defined administrative duties to some responsible, non-partisan and thoroughly competent agency."

He said that provision should be made for a court review of these rulings and that Congress should reserve the duty of reviewing and changing them whenever world conditions demand. The trade treaty program, continued Mr. Munro, has failed both in stimulating export trade and in promoting peace.

MOTION PICTURE SET DRESSERS IN HOLLYWOOD SAID INGENIOUS

Shanghai Evening Post

HOLLYWOOD—In many ways the most ingenious fraternity of motion picture workers are the set-dressers of Hollywood. They really enjoy their work, consider it a kind of heaven because most of them were kids who puttered around the barn or the garage or the back room upstairs with the kind of gadgets which inspired those old Rube Goldberg cartoons. Nowadays, they can command practically endless resources to make their gadgets, and it's like a dream come true.

For the studios to supply them with the means to carry out their ideas, however, is far from a one-sided arrangement. The studios profit from the ingenuity of the set-dressers, and never more than today when virtually every studio in town is dishing up some picture backgrounded in other lands, times and climes—a thing which would be all but impossible to do if it weren't for the ingenious set-dressers.

HISTORICAL FILMS

These lads are called on to fix things upon the sets just as they used to be, say, in Elizabethan England for "Elizabeth and Essex," in the Iroquois Indian towns of upper New York state before the Revolution for "Drums Along the Mohawk," in 15th century France for "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," and so on.

But, after all, the places and times dealt with, for the most part are historic. They really existed. And so the set-dresser can turn to thousands of volumes for descriptions of just about everything he'll be asked to produce plus copperplate engravings to show what things looked like.

This is not pointed out with the intention of detracting in any way from the glory of the set-dressers who, time and again have shown their ability to make something out of nothing and to have it seem to be what it isn't. Just the same, it is one thing to dress the sets for a picture of authenticated background and another altogether to do the same service for a picture like "Swiss Family Robinson."

MANY VISIT SET

The set-dressers themselves acknowledge this, and on that account currently are handing the palm to one of their number, Harvey Miller, for establishing some kind of ingenuity record. Miller is the long, lean, laconic set-dresser on the Gene Towne-Graham Baker production of the classic adventure story of all time. So well has he done his work that half the set-dressers of Hollywood already have flocked to his sets, while the other half threatens to drop in as soon as it gets a day off.

The reason for all this is that the "Swiss Family Robinson" sets constitute a museum exhibiting all the useful articles a man can contrive when he turns his inventive genius loose in the wilderness.

The story, as all the world knows, is about the adventures of a family, consisting of father, mother and four sons, cast away on an uninhabited island and forced to fend for themselves. Johann David Wyss wrote it in 1813. He dreamed the island. He also dreamed all the gadgets and home-making devices created by his castaways.

TALL DREAMING

So Miller had to do some tall dreaming, too. And dream he did, as the island sets show. He took all Author Wyss' imaginings and carried them out in detail, from the first house carved by the castaways out of the trunk of a tamarind tree to the commodious and well equipped plantation abode which later supplants it.

Movie-audiences will be supposed, of course, to believe that Thomas Mitchell and Edna Best, parents of the marooned family, with the aid of their sons—Tim Holt, Freddie Bartholomew, Terry Kilburn and Baby Bobby Quillan—construct everything themselves. But a good many years would have had to go into the making of the picture, if that were the case—and, of course, not even "Gone With the Wind" can take years in the making. So it is tipping off no secret to point out the boss set-dresser and his assistants did it all.

The plantation house is made of split bamboo shakes lashed to cut and trimmed poles with vines. Wooden pegs hold the poles together. The floor is of half-logs smooth side up. So are the table tops. A thing to delight the hear of any fireside lover is the wide fireplace of mud brick, with shells inset in the over mantel.

LOG CHAIRS

Chairs are log and pole frameworks, lashed with vines, covered with hides. Beds somewhat similarly constructed have intricate hide lacing for springs, mattresses of hide stuffed with fern. Everything is so soundly constructed that even exuberant Gene Towne, poking into everything on his first production like a kid with a new toy, bounced on them, all without breaking them down.

It was in making many of the smaller things that so add to livability, however, that the set-dresser really went to town. A conduit of split bamboo brings running water from a distant spring to a huge turtle shell by the door. Dishes and cooking utensils are made from calabashes, gourds, sea shells and baked clay. By a cunning arrangement of weights and tackle, a spit revolves slowly before the fire.

Some iron, wrote Author Wyss in that long-ago day, as he dreamed his classic, was salvaged from the wrecked ship, beaten into utensils on a crude forge. So the set-dresser also built a forge on the island's lagoon, hammered out farming and carpentering instruments, made hoes and plowshares such as no modern implement house ever devised.

WORKABLE CANOE

He even took a great log and, with fire and the long adze salvaged from the wreck, hollowed it out, made a workable canoe in which the family does its navigating on the island waterways.

There are many other items, too, such as the little beehives made of gourds and plaited straw, the salt cellers of gourds and the lanterns of calabashes. But they are too many to enumerate. And it all just goes to show that the set-dressers of Hollywood are a very ingenious lot—so ingenious that they are vitally necessary to the movies.

In fact, hereafter when Pop catches Son puttering with his tools, instead of whaling the tar out of him he might try predicting that he'll grow up to be a set-dresser.

It might appeal more than being president.

TOKYO SCHOOL CAGERS DOWN ST. JOSEPH'S, 34-19

Special to The Japan Times

YOKOHAMA, Feb. 21—In their first encounter with the American School in Tokyo, the St. Joseph's College cagers were whipped today 34 to 19 by the Tokyoites, who displayed the speediest brand of basketball witnessed in the College gym this year. A record-breaking attendance was on hand.

The Yokohama hoopsters registered the initial bucket, but thereafter they couldn't jump back into the lead. At half time the board read A. S. 20, S. J. C. 6.

BATTLE ROYAL

From the opening tip-off a battle royal was in evidence. St. Joseph's broke the ice through Wolschke, but a bit later the visitors equalized and then swished in another to seize the lead. Thus stood the count after a gruelling 8-minute quarter.

Then the Tokyo team let loose and from all angles they sank goals, whilst their zone defense checked the major activities of the Blue and White, whose ragged passing and inaccurate shooting were working havoc. Another 8 minutes had ticked away, and the difference was considerable—A.S. 20, S.J.C. 6.

Both quintets played a bang-up game but the consistency and accuracy of the Orange and Black were responsible for their superiority. Again they outpointed the home loopers, who were improving their style somewhat. The third quarter ended with A. S. out in front, 29-10.

FIGHT TO THE FINISH

The fourth and last scene was really hectic. For a time it looked as though the Tokyo courtmen were freezing the situation, and this compelled the Yokohama cagers to be aggressive to get possession of the ball. It was through this belated rally that enabled them to outscore their opponents during the 8 minutes. However, the splendid start of the Tokyoites spelt defeat for the fighting Hilltoppers. The final standing was: A. S. I. J. 34, S. J. C. 19.

Horn with 12, Fisher 10, and Waiser 8, were the leading scorers for A. S.; Planas and Kranz garnered 6 and 5 respectively for the College. The line-up:

S. African General Insists on Peace

Christian Science Monitor

CAPE TOWN, Union of South Africa,—Gen. J. B. M. Hertzog, whose opposition to South Africa's declaration of war against Germany led to his resignation as Prime Minister Sept. 6, continued his fight against the war recently as Parliament opened a new session.

He gave notice that he would offer the following motion in the House of Assembly Tuesday

"This House is of the opinion that the time has come for the state of war against Germany be ended and peace be restored."

(General Hertzog, one-time commander of a Boer Army in the Boer War against Britain, had been Prime Minister 15 years before his Government fell on the war issue. He is leader of the United Party of South Africa which gained 111 of the 150 seats in the House of Assembly, Lower Chamber of Parliament, in the 1938 elections.

He lost support, however, by his stand against the war. The House voted down his proposal that relations with belligerent countries "persist unchanged, as if no war were being waged," but the vote was fairly close, 80 to 66.

General Hertzog resigned and was succeeded as Prime Minister by Gen. Jan Christian Smuts, who although also a Boer commander in the South African War, led British troops against the Germans in East Africa in the World War and sat in Britain's Empire War Council.

General Smuts' Government declared war on Germany, but he announced that South African forces would be used only for home defense. One of South Africa's problems is the large German population of Southwest Africa, former German Colony now a mandate of the Union.)

Rikkyo Swimmers Decline Manila Bid

An invitation from the Philippine Amateur Athletic Federation to compete at Manila in April has been declined by Rikkyo University's swimming team, it was announced by the university authorities late Wednesday.

The decision was telegraphed Wednesday to the Federation by the Japan Swimming Federation.

Indications are that Rikkyo University will accept the invitation from Manila to dispatch a team either late this year or next January.

BRITAIN KEEPS WAR SECRECY

Appropriations for Armed Forces to Be Designated By Token Sums in Hostilities

Domei Tsushin

LONDON, Feb. 20—In a move to prevent the announced totals of British war appropriations from giving away defensive secrets to the enemy, the Treasury revealed today that for 1940-41 and for the duration of the war provisions for the armed forces, the Ministry of Supply and for certain other services connected with the war shall be listed by the token sum of £100 sterling for each item.

A Treasury minute states that it is neither practicable nor desirable to present to Parliament detailed estimates purporting to cover the whole cost for the navy, army and air services, the Ministry of Supply and certain other services. Expenditure on these services must clearly depend on the course and the progress of war, and it is not desirable in the public interest to disclose through the estimates the nature and extent of Britain's war effort as envisaged at the time the estimates were published.

It appears therefore that there is no satisfactory alternative to dispensing for the duration of the war with estimates for these services in their normal form and to make provision for the whole of this expenditure under votes of credit, the minute states.

The Treasury's token vote for the navy's estimates for 1940-41 was issued simultaneously today. The strength of the navy is not given in the vote and each particular item of expenditure is represented by £100, the total being £1,800.

The navy's supplementary estimate provides for such additional numbers of officers, seamen, boys, Royal Marines for the navy and Royal Marine police as His Majesty may deem necessary. The maximum numbers at present authorized are 145,000 officers, seamen, boys and Royal Marines and 976 Royal Marine police. The additional numbers are required for manning the fleet under wartime conditions.

Nozoye Detachment Reports Total of Captured Arms

AMERICA'S 10 BEST DRESSED MEN NAMED BY N.Y. FASHION EXPERTS

The ten best-dressed men in the United States were recently selected by corps of New York fashion experts according to Domei reports from New York.

The men were chosen as outstanding best dressers in their respective professions, as follows:

1. Screendom—Adolphe Menjou.
2. Political world—Cordell Hull.
3. Business world—I. J. Fox.
4. Radio—Ted Corrinth.
5. Sportsdom—Dan Topping.
6. Man about town—Maury Paul.
7. Social world—Tony Williams
8. Operatic world—Lawrence Tibbett.
9. Club man—William Rhynlander Stewart.
10. "Swing" world—Artie Shaw.

The chief qualification was "the person who was best dressed in accordance with his means."

Irving Hartman, director of the American Fashion Society, said that a well dressed man should have at least seven suits in his wardrobe: three business suits, one sports outfit, one summer suit and one formal outfit. Many Americans may claim that most of them would easily qualify, but Mr. Hartman adds:

"You must not be ruled by fashion. To dominate fashion by applying it tactfully to your own body and letting your own characteristics stand out, may be said to be conforming with the latest styles, and producing the well-dressed man."

Long Wooden Bridge Built in Yangchuan

Domei Tsushin

YANGCHUAN, Feb. 20—The first crossing ceremony of the newly built wooden bridge over the Taoho river in Yangchuan, southern Hunan province, was held this morning.

The new bridge is 3.5 meters wide and 235 meters long. The construction work was commenced by the Fuchino and Takasaki units in November 10 last year.

The bridge was completed on February 11, the 2,600 anniversary day of the founding of the Japanese Empire, but the first crossing ceremony was held today.

The bridge is one of the big wooden bridges in North China, and it cost ¥50,000. It is said that some 60,000 soldiers in total number took part in the construction work.

Rikkyo Six Tumbles Meiji, 5 Goals to 3

Rikkyo University's stick wielders defeated Meiji University's ice hockey team, 5 goals to 3, in their fourth annual game Wednesday night at the Shibaura rink.

A superior passing attack netted two goals for Rikkyo in the third period and victory with the count tied 3 all at the end of the second period.

STEAM HEATING SYSTEM INVENTED BY JAPANESE FACTORY INSPECTOR

An economical system of heating buildings has been devised by a young factory inspector and is under test by the Fuel Bureau of the Ministry of Commerce and Industry, reports the Hochi.

Kazuyoshi Sugiyama, factory inspector for the factory section of Kanagawa prefecture, the inventor, began his researches three years ago in an effort to devise a heating system which would economize on coal.

The new system replaces steam with hot water heat. Steam heating has been the customary mode of heating large bulidings but equipment, especially in view of the coal shortage, is expensive.

According to Mr. Sugiyama's method, half the usual amount of coal will produce the same amount of warmth and noise accompanying the steam system will be eliminated.

Water instead of steam will be driven by a pumping machine through pipes slightly smaller than present steam ducts. The only reconstruction needed for assimilation of the new system is in installation of the pump.

Mr. Sugiyama visited Shinji Kishi, Vice-Minister of the Commerce and Industry Ministry, recently, and explained his invention. Convinced of its merit, the minister had the Fuel Bureau put the device to test. Vice-Minister Kishi commented:

"Similary heating systems are in use in Europe, I think it is a good plan during this time of coal shortage. As I am not familiar with technical matters the new invention is under test by experts."

Mr. Sugiyama is 34 years old. He was graduated from the engineering department of the Imperial University in 1931.

Shigemitsu Sees Halifax On European War

Domei Tsushin

LONDON, Feb. 20—The Japanese Ambassador, Mamoru Shigemitsu, called on Foreign Secretary Halifax at the Foreign Office this morning and remained with him for nearly an hour discussing ways and means to bring about an improvement in Anglo-Japanese relations.

It is understood that the conversations, which were held in an extremely cordial atmosphere, also dealt with problems arising from Britain's stricter prosecution of economic warfare against the Reich.

Well-informed circles stated that Chinese problems, including the Tientsin issue, were not touched upon by the conferees.

SHANGHAI PUBLIC MARKETS SAID IN 'GYP' GAME

Householders' Losses Due To False Scales Enormous; Chickens, Game Bloated

Shanghai Evening Post

SHANGHAI—Shanghai householders are being swindled more and more in the local markets, as new dodges for giving short weight are being brought into use to supplement the old ones, an investigation reveals.

A pound of meat is often not that by a quarter of a pound, a loaf of bread is not the advertised weight, and part of the reason for the vendors managing to get away with this racket is due to the purchasers, who do not report these irregularities officially. This defrauding of the public is being carried on far more extensively than a couple of years ago, and it is a hard task at present to combat it, with the SMC byelaws inadequate.

ONE-TENTH WRONG

Roughly one-tenth of the number of scales checked upon by the Evening Post during investigations showed differences of from three quarters of an ounce to a quarter of a pound short of a full pound.

Although even approximate figures on the losses suffered by the public through the nefarious methods of such racketeers remain impossible to ascertain, some responsible officials attached to market duties state that the daily total of such frauds must be considerable.

WATER BLOATING

In this connection, it was pointed out that in addition to reaping profits by using improper scales, a fair number of the dishonest stallholders at the local markets were accustomed to "bloat" chickens and game by using grain husks, sand or water in order to fatten the product.

In the face of such false practises, Shanghai families are curious to know what the authorities are doing in the matter to combat such frauds. "Under the circumstances," an official of one of the SMC public service departments said, "we are doing all that we can."

BYELAWS INADEQUATE

He explained that under the Land Regulations of the International Settlement, such byelaws that existed were inadequate to curb the activities of false weighing machines being used. "First of all, markets in Shanghai, contrary to what everyone seems to think, do not belong to the Council but are owned by private concerns.

"For instance," he said, "you will find that officials and assistants in that SMC Public Health Department who carry out sanitary inspections at the markets do not wear any SMC badges or uniforms and therefore they are unable to carry out any prosecution of criminal persons unless they make application first to the police."

TIME FACTOR

He pointed out that although fine cooperation existed between the PHD and the police, quite often offenders succeeded in escaping punishment because of the time factor involved in communicating any information to the police.

One of the main difficulties in checking crooked practises was due to the abnormal conditions which had arisen in local markets since the hostilities, it was learned during the Evening Post survey.

MARKET INCREASED

Prior to the outbreak of the Sino-Japanese conflict in 1937, Seymour Road market (for example), contained less than 400 stalls, although built for a capacity of 500. At the present time the market provides space for a little over 100 stalls.

One of the provisions under which licenses are issued for market stalls declares that no stallholder may sublet any part of the stall and that such a step will make the offender liable to a fine.

BREACHES OVERLOOKED

Because of present overcrowded conditions, however, both the PHD and police have been forced to overlook such breaches in order to permit markets to function properly and meet the heavier requirements which have arisen.

Stall licenses are issued by the PHD under bye-law 34 of the Land Regulations. This statute provides the PHD with its strongest weapon in combatting various unfair practises at markets, as each prospective stallholder, before obtaining a license, is made to sign a list of "promises" not to conduct his business along improper lines.

ADJUSTABLE SCALES

One of these provisions states that adjustable scales may not be used in carrying out transactions at public markets. Such weighing machines, if found, are confiscated and makes the owner liable to arrest or a fraud charge. As a result, stallholders use well-known "name" scales, mostly of the springbalance type or ordinary "level" weighing machines of the German kind.

Despite this, however, stallholders have been found to use a number of ingenious ruses to carry out their fraudulent purposes against the public.

QUARTER POUND SHORT

Only recently, a local lady went to Seymour Road market and found that following purchases at one of the stalls and comparing the weight on her scale at home, that there was a difference of almost a quarter of a pound less than should be the case.

The lady informed PHD officials of the matter. The officials proceeded to the particular stall where the proprietor was ordered to place the foodstuff on the scale. The various weights shown on the machine were noted down. When the same foodstuff which had been weighed was taken and examined with official weights.

TRICK DIAL

Examinations proved that the stallholder was giving short weight, but PHD officials were unable to discover the means whereby he performed the fraud as the scale indicator seemed to be in good order and untampered.

After continued examinations, however, it was found that the smart stallholder had cleverly changed the face of the scale so that the markings of the various weights were placed closed to each other.

TEN A WEEK

A PHD official said that an average of 10 such cases, as the one cited above, were discovered in various local markets every week, the offenders being brought up in court on a charge of fraud and punished with 30 days' imprisonment or a fine of $30. The general public has thus far failed to give the authorities reasonable support to curb the crooked elements which were not confined alone to markets, but often enough found in food shops in various parts of the city.

The official admitted that in many cases scales were not found in private homes, and this was possibly one reason why more information from the public was lacking in cases where goods and produce had been sold at short weight.

BREAD WRAPPERS

One trick which was recently uncovered at a Chinese grocery shop, revealed that bread was being sold by the shop far below its actual weight. When the matter was investigated it was found that the paper wrappers of bigger loaves of bread were being used to cover small loaves, purchasers being misled by the higher weight figures shown on the wrapper.

Health officials revealed that the various branch offices of the PHD carried out examination at least twice each week of all weighing machines within their districts, including Chinese "stick" feight measures.

CHINESE SCALE

The Chinese "stick" weighers, the official said, were far more trustworthy than the ordinary foreign-manufactured weighing machines. He declared that this was due to the fact that stall-holders were more wary when up against a Chinese customer, because the latter were shrewd enough to bring along their own scales from time to time and check on the weights themselves.

Cases of fraud against stall-holders using Chinese balance scales however, also are discovered frequently. The trick used is simply to move the separating marks of the weight line indicators closer together.

BLOATING REDUCED

Up to the present the "bloating" of chicken and game is charged under the provision of cruelty to animals, but such cases are becoming more rare due to closer examination.

"Before, any serious check can be carried out to curb these dirty rackets" states a health official. "The Council will have to obtain bigger and cleaner marketing space and facilities, and power given to the SMC departments in charge of such work, through additional regulations which will enable enforcements against the criminals."

Welfare Ministry To Discuss Plans For Meiji Shrine Games

Plans for the 11th Meiji Shrine Games to be held next autumn in Tokyo on an elaborate scale as part of the celebration of the 2600th anniversary of the Empire will be discussed on March 4 at the Welfare Ministry.

An added feature this year, between the latter part of October and the first part of November, relay races to the Meiji Shrine will be held from the Hokkaido, Kyushu, Hokuriku and Sanyo districts.

BABE RUTH GIVES UP HOPE OF RETURNING TO BASEBALL

Christian Science Monitor

NEW YORK—The greatest figure of baseball's modern age, Babe Ruth, has given up hope of ever returning to the game he glorified for two decades.

A mellow, bulging fellow living decorously on the annuities he had the good sense to lay away with part of the million dollars he earned in baseball, the Babe doesn't seem sorry.

"Yeh, I guess I'm out of it," Ruth said. "I've got a comfortable home here and no worries. I get a few odd jobs to do, but mostly I keep busy trying to hold down my weight. I play a lot of table tennis and golf, go hunting and I've got one of those electric horses, too."

IS DIFFERENT NOW

He's a different Bambino now from the rollicking, carefree character who caused the record books to be rewritten, received up to $80,000 a year from the New York Yankees, squandered possibly a quarter of a million in luxurious living and paid some $20,000 in baseball fines.

He weighs 243 pounds, 15 or 20 above his playing weight, and will be 46 years old Feb. 7. Somehow it was a melancholy scene as the Babe lounged amidst countless trophies and remarked:

"I don't go to the games much anymore. Everytime I go I ruin a suit of clothes getting through the crowd. "Somebody spilled ink all down the back of my coat the last time."

Although he doesn't see much of it, Ruth still likes to talk about baseball and compares the old days with the present. He'll be heading south next month—to take a place on the faculty of a baseball school.

BASEBALL SCHOOLS

"These baseball schools do more good for a young player than most people realize," he championed. "They have real instructors who show the boys how to improve themselves and a few weeks in a proper school is worth years of sandlot play. The big league clubs ought to lend the schools a hand. They sign a lot of players out of them every year.

"There aren't so many ball players coming up as there were in my day. Kids in cities don't have much chance to play. If baseball hadn't started the chain store system I don't know where it would be."

The Babe's well-known antipathy to exhibition games cropped up when he declared "there'll never be any more 20-year players. They burn out too fast. A week after training camp opens they start playing games. They play 35 or 40 exhibition games in the spring and during the season so that a player may appear in nearly 200 games a season. Why I started with Boston in 1914 and we never had a single exhibition game until 1918."

Steered into later channels, Ruth praised the present Yankees. "They're a great ball club and I think they'll be on top for a long time. Do you know who made this team? Joe Gordon. He came along just at the right time. The club needed a spark and he gave it."

Finally we asked the Babe a question he must have heard hundreds of times—is anybody going to break his record of 60 home runs in a season. Looking up at a big diagram on a wall showing the date, the score, the team, the pitcher, for everyone of those homers, he mused:

"I hope not . . . I hope not."

CANADA HEADS FOR JUDICIAL INDEPENDENCE

Dominion Supreme Court Rules Parliament May Abolish Council Appeals

Christian Science Monitor

Ottawa,—Canada took a long step toward final independence of its courts recently—a step toward breaking the remaining link which has bound the judicial system of the Dominion to that of Great Britain.

The Supreme Court of Canada ruled that the Canadian Parliament has the right to abolish appeals to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, in London.

The present system—which makes the Privy Council the court of final appeal in many important Canadian actions—has been the subject of debate for many years. Criminal cases are no longer appealed to London, but constitutional cases have been subject to the review of Westminster.

ABOLISH ALL APPEALS

At the last session of the Canadian Legislature, a bill was introduced by C. H. Cahan (Conservative) which would abolish all appeals. Its purpose would be to make the Supreme Court of Canada the final authority, just as the Supreme Court of the United States acts south of the border.

One dissension marked the Supreme Court's decision on the legislation. Justice O. F. Corckett held that alteration of the British North America Act—the Canadian Constitution—to abolish appeals to the Privy Council, was beyond the authority of Parliament. The majority of the court, however, held the action to be within parliamentary competence.

The entire question is interpreted in Canadian circles as readjusting, rather than loosening the bonds of Empire. There has been a progressive effort to place the Canadian courts in an autonomous position—a movement paralleling the political independence of the individual members of the British Commonwealth which was signalized in the Statute of Westminister in 1931.

RULINGS CRITICIZED

One major reason advanced for the abolition of appeals has been that the Law Lords who serve as the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council have been far removed from Canadian judicial practice. Many decisions, it is charged, have been reached without intimate knowledge of Canadian conditions and of the evolving practices which have had the effect of materially modifying interpretations of the Dominion's constitutional law.

The provinces of Canada, however, have not been unanimous in their attitude toward the projected abolition of appeals to the Crown. Manitoba, for example, supported the Dominion Government's contention that Canada had the right to abolish the appeal. Ontario, on the other hand, contended that the measure was a direct attempt to invade fields of legislation assigned to the Provinces. A factor in this opinion is that some of the most important legislation of recent years, involving division of authority between the Provincial and Federal Governments, has been decided by the Privy Council in favor of the provinces.

MLLE. CURIE SEES WOMEN IN MORE VITAL ROLE IN WAR

Christian Science Monitor

NEW YORK—French women are making ever increasing contributions to their country's mobilization of economic and military strength, and their services will be of value not only in the present war, but also in the peace that is to follow, Mlle. Eve Curie, Director of Women's War Work for the French Government, declared at Town Hall here recently.

Women are working in chemistry laboratories, farms, law offices, shops, social work agencies, and also as motorbus and truck drivers, gas detectors, air raid wardens, professors, and social workers, Mlle. Curie recalled.

"When war first broke out," she continued, "behind the bulwark formed by the Army, the country's activities had come to a stop. Fields were empty; shops closed, factories slowed up. France had to be reorganized.

"Here was work women could do without wearing uniforms, without marching to brass bands."

Every woman in the country was ready to do anything and everything, Mlle. Curie declared. At present, many women are working in munition works, some of the work in which, she held, was easier done by women than men.

Mlle. Curie said France was profiting from the record of the 1914-18 war, when many women were strenuously overworked, adding that the Government and social agencies were now making sure that working conditions were not unbearable for the distaff side of the French Nation. She added, however, that even women working a nominal amount of time daily in factories or other service for the Government, did not have any extra time to themselves. When they finish their day's work, she said, they have to go home and do housework, care for the children, and knit things for the men at the front.

"Women will carry on is the present motto of France," Mlle. Curie declared.

French women have stayed aloof from politics, she continued, voicing at the same time the hope that this would be changed in the near future and adding that when war broke out, they were firmly behind the Government and undertook their part in the war with the calm feeling that oppression, suffering, aggression must cease.

Mlle. Curie, daughter and biographer of Mme. Marie Curie, the French natural scientist and discoverer of radium, is at present on leave from her Government in order to make a lecture tour of this country that had been scheduled before the war broke out.

Clodius Will Return To Rumanian Capital

Daniel Tsushin

BUCHAREST, Feb. 21—German circles here disclosed today that Carl Clodius, German economic expert and head of the German economic delegation to Rumania, will return here in the near future from Rome to challenge Rumania's ban against the shipments of grade oil and also to insist upon full delivery of the oil quotas due to Germany.

Nazi quarters said they believed the outcome of Mr. Clodius' new talks with the Rumanian authorities will decide once and for all Germany's attitude toward Rumania, as well as the other neutrals in southeastern Europe.

NATIONAL TRACK MEET SLATED JUNE 1 AND 2

The national track and field championships for this year will be held at the Koshien stadium, near Osaka, on June 1 and 2. Forty athletes will be picked on the basis of their showing in this meet to represent Japan in the Far Eastern athletic meet to be held either in Osaka or Tokyo beginning on June 6, according to announcement by the Japan Track and Field Federation Friday.

Manchoukuo, China and the Philippines have already promised to compete in the Far Eastern meet, which is project No. 1 of the Federation to celebrate the 2,600th anniversary of the founding of the Empire. Invitations will be sent shortly to Thailand and Hawaii.

Other championships decided for the year include:

National students championship in Tokyo in August.

Women's district championships, August 24 and 25, place undetermined.

New national records established in 1939 were announced by the Federation as follows:

Men's discus throw—Eiji Miyagi, of Mie Higher Agricultural School, 45.44 meters, June 3 at Nagoya.

Men's 5,000-meter walk: Eiji Wada, of Kanagawa Young Men's Association, 23 minutes 45.4 seconds, May 28, at Tokyo.

Men's 10,000-meter walk: Eiji Wada, of Kanagawa Young Men's Association, 49 minutes 15 seconds, October 30, Meiji Shrine Games in Tokyo.

Women's high jump: Rie Yamauchi, of Chukyo Higher Girls' School, 1.61 meters, October 1, at Tsurumae.

Women's shot put: Fumi Kojima, teacher at Torisu Girls' School, 12.99 meters, October 30, at Meiji Shrine Games, Tokyo.

Women's hop, step and jump: Rie Yamauchi, of Chukyo Higher Girls' School, 11.66 meters, October 21, at Tsurumae.

CHINA COMMUNISTS KILL, DISPERSE MANY

Elements of Old Shansi Army, Others Hit by Persecution

Domei Tsushin

TAIYUAN, Feb. 22—Elements of the old Shansi army as well as officials and soldiers and their families under General Yen Hsi-shan in the Lin-hsien district, western part of Shansi province, were all either slaughtered or banished by a Communist county head, according to dispatches reaching here recently.

A decisive battle is about to break out between the Communists and Kuomintang armies in the western part of Shansi province near the bank of the Yellow river, the dispatches said.

Bloody conflicts between the two armies have occurred at various places in the region.

According to the dispatches, the self-appointed head of the county government of Lin-hsien called members of a Communist society and heads of all villages in the county under his jurisdiction to a meeting of "war of resistance and national salvation" by order of the 207th brigade of the Communist army.

Following the conclusion of the meeting, he arrested all elements of the old Shansi army as well as officials and soldiers and their families under General Yen Hsi-shan in the county, and massacred or banished them.

In the name of the meeting he had more than 80 soldiers of the Shansi army shot. The Shansi soldiers who were shot had been taken prisoners in the vicinity of Anyeh village about eight kilometers south of Lin-hsien, together with more than 30 women workers. The latter were taken to a training hall of the 8th Communist Route army, after receiving a disgraceful punishment at the hands of the county head.

To escape from the persecution of the Communist army, innocent people and the persons concerned with the Shansi army in the Lin-hsien district are reportedly fleeing in the direction of Li-shih and Chungyang, both south of Lin-hsien.

Newspaper Issued With 328 Pages

Christian Science Monitor

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—Presenting a front page with headlines set by hand as they were back in 1840, The Commercial Appeal, in celebrating 100 years of publication, issued here on Jan. 1 a 328-page Centennial Edition.

Weighing five pounds a single copy, this edition is said to be the largest ever printed in the Nation with the exception of one special issue published in Florida during the real estate boom.

Eleven carloads of paper—approximately 600,000 pounds—were consumed in the Centennial Edition. It took 10,300 pounds, or 1,300 gallons, of ink, to print the entire issue.

Regular subscribers received the Centennial Edition without additional charge, while non-subscribers were asked 50 cents a copy.

Seven hundred advertisers are represented in the edition. Hundreds of communities in the Tri-States had the story of their progress told down through the years. All the color and drama and struggle and achievements of the mid-South century were chronicled in these pages.

President Roosevelt sent a message congratulating The Commercial Appeal on its completion of 100 years of publication.

Consisting of 20 sections, the huge edition covers "100 years in the news" in a most complete manner. One section of 20 pages is devoted to 100 years of progress in the mid-South. Here the news of Atlanta's fall to Sherman; President Lincoln's second inaugural address; the election of James Buchanan to the Presidency of the United States; and countless other events are recorded.

The history of The Commercial Appeal has been completely recorded in another section. Originally called the Memphis Appeal it first was published by Col. Henry Van Pelt. His news came by steamboat and was printed on a hand press, one sheet at a time. Today The Commercial Appeal is one of the nation's major newspapers with all of the modern news gathering methods at its service.

Hamuro, Yusa Given Ovation by Brazilians

Tetsuo Hamuro of Nihon University, world's champion breaststroke swimmer, and Masanori Yusa, former freestyle sprint champion of Japan, are the talk of sports fans in Rio de Janeiro, according to a Domei dispatch.

Accompanied by Coach Kaiyo Saito, the two swimmers arrived at the Brazilian city on February 21 aboard the Brazil Maru and presently are going through stiff workouts every morning in preparation for their races.

The same Domei dispatch says that original plans of the swimmers to go to Chile and Peru have been cancelled and they will return to Japan after competition in Argentina.

Interviewed by the Domei correspondent, Coach Saito said it was his second trip to Brazil in four years and he felt like returning to his second home. Mr. Saito coached Brazilian swimmers on his first visit. He said both Yusa and Hamuro were feeling perfectly at home.

ARMSTRONG KNOCKS OUT PUERTO RICAN

By JAMES P. DAWSON

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Jan. 25—Hammering Henry Armstrong, dusky little fighter from California, still is the world welterweight champion.

For the fifteenth time since he lifted the crown from the brow of Barney Ross in May, 1938, Armstrong retained his 147-pound title when he knocked out stout-hearted Pedro Montanez from Puerto Rico in the ninth round of a scheduled fifteen-round struggle at Madison Square Garden last night. For savagery and bruising fighting, virtually all of it displayed by the irrepressible Armstrong, this was a fight that seldom has been excelled.

A gathering of 19,157, paying gross receipts of $59,575, saw the fracas, yelling hoarse encouragement at the sporadic counter-offensive of a challenger who was on the down grade after the second round. But, reconciled to the inevitable, the fans enjoyed the struggle from the time it started until the intervention of referee Billy Cavanagh after the ninth round had progressed exactly forty-seven seconds.

Before that Montanez had been on a ring floor for the first time in his career—not just once, but three distinct and dangerous times. However, the same Montanez, fighting a losing battle almost from the outset, rallied courageously in the face of a punching blizzard that would have caused a less courageous fighter to give up the ghost without criticism long before Pedro involuntarily had to do so.

CHAMPION IS UNBEATABLE

Montanez had his second chance at a ring title and failed without being disgraced. No welterweight, no man, near Armstrong's inches or poundage could have survived the blistering fire of blows the doughty Los Angeles Negro unleashed in his first defense of the title hereabouts this year.

Montanez tried with his best in his greatest local fight, but Armstrong cut him down like an expert woodsman working in a forest. In the first two rounds Montanez thrilled the crowd by fighting head to head against a compact bundle of fighting fury.

Pedro countered less frequently but more solidly with left hooks to the body and smashing right uppercuts to the face, for which Armstrong was an open target. At times these blows sent Armstrong back on his heels.

The crowd yelled approval to the challenger, who had entered the ring the underdog at 5 and 6 to 1, but though Montanez's blows were sharp and forceful, they seemed to take no effect on Armstrong. The champion went back on his heels, not rocking like a shaken fighter, but like one driven off balance.

And always Armstrong charged tirelessly back to the attack with undiminished fury. From all angles he struck with both hands at a foe whose best was pitifully futile in comparison, gradually wearing Montanez down to the point of exhaustion.

FOURTH AN EXCITING ROUND

In the fourth session Montanez twice went down under trip-hammer blows, driven home in reckless but sense-numbing volleys. The first time Montanez took a count of five and on the second knockdown the Puerto Rican regained his feet laboriously at seven.

The excitement among the onlookers was reflected in a fight among box seat fans at the Ninth Avenue end of the arena as this round ended.

Armstrong's lashing left hook had opened a cut over Montanez's right eye in the third session and the knockdowns of the fourth seemed to forecast an early finish, but Montanez rallied even beyond the expectations of his fondest admirers. He threw aside all caution and slugged.

This was a brave gesture but a costly mistake, Armstrong beat a tattoo on that injured left optic until the cut spread to more than an inch in length and bled accordingly. It was so severe that Manager Lew Burston did not want to let the challenger come out of his corner for the eighth. However, Montanez protested and pushed toward the tigerish champion. Armstrong closed this round with Montanez down under a right and then a left and right to the jaw.

PEDRO CARRIED TO CORNER

Montanez was carried to his corner and brought around to the point where he could get off his chair for the ninth round. A few feet from Montanez's corner, Armstrong was on top of him with punishing lefts and rights to the head and face until finally Referee Cavanagh stopped a battle in which the Puerto Rican won only the second round.

Armstrong weighed 139¾ pounds and Montanez 144½.

HISTORY OF ROMAN CATHOLICISM IN JAPAN SHOWN IN COLLECTION

A rare collection of old and new books relating to the history of Roman Catholicism in Japan soon will be shown to the public, thanks to the single-handed 10 year labors of a German professor in Japan.

This hard working scholar is Dr. Johannes Laures, professor of the Jochi College at Kioi-cho, Kojimachi ward, Tokyo, and he is now engaged in writing a book for detailed interpretation of the collected books and documents, which will appear in September this year.

Dr. Laures came to Japan in 1928 to assume a teaching position in the college, and soon became interested in the history of propagation of Christianity in Japan. In 1929, he began to collect materials for the intended "Roman Catholic Library" to be established within the college.

Since then he ransacked old documents and books, availing himself of every chance to do so, and collected many rare writings among which are found the "manual of Sacrament" published in Latin at Nagasaki (Nagasaki prefecture) in 1606 A.D., the "Stories of Sages" also written in Latin and published at Nagasaki in 1588, and the "Interpretation of the Christian Doctrine" in Japanese printed at Amakusa (Nagasaki prefecture) in 1601.

On the other hand, many pieces of modern literature concerning Roman Catholic history in Japan are also collected. When these are added to the old literature, the total volumes will reach well over 1,000, it is reported by the Chugai Shogyo.

Another feature of the library is that it includes many photoplates of the ancient documents on Roman-Catholicism treasured in many noted European public libraries, inclusive of the Vatican Library at Rome and the Bodley Library at Oxford. Besides, those relics of Japanese Roman-Catholics is a notice board announcing the prohibition of Christian faith in Japan in the Genroku era (1688-1703 A.D.) are contained in the "Roman-Catholic Library."

Dr. Laures, as reported by the Chugai Shogyo, will pursue his studies in the same line and keep on collecting all available data.

did the first president's message indicate any necessity for the Americans to decide who was the aggressor in any foreign conflict and to take embargo measures as a result.

Similar opinions were voiced at birthday celebrations organized by the Democratic Party. Representative N. Sweeney sent a telegram to the British Ambassador Lord Lothian inviting the latter to attend one of these celebrations. In his telegram, he drew attention to the fact that numerous British agents were now attempting to draw the United States into the vortex of the European War. He said that in his opinion it might be profitable for the British ambassador under these circumstances to listen to the historic message of the Father of the American Commonwealth.

CONFERENCE WATCHED

BERLIN, Feb. 22—The conference of the Foreign ministers of the three Scandinavian countries which is scheduled to begin on February 24 at Copenhagen has attracted great interest in political circles here.

This interest is easily explained by the "Cossack" incident as well as by the constantly more visible efforts of England and France to induce Sweden and Norway to abandon neutrality. Common action by the Scandinavian states should in the opinion of the Hamburger Fremdenblatt be decided upon at Copenhagen.

This paper writes that such action might conceivably take the form of the resignation from the League of Nations which in the Finnish question had again proved its subservience to the political demands of the allies.

CONSTANTINESCU AT SOFIA

SOFIA, Feb. 22—The Rumanian Finance Minister Constantinescu arrived here today on a special train placed at his disposal by the Bulgarian Government. Minister Constantinescu is said to be repaying the visit of Bulgarian Minister of Finance Bijiloff to Bucharest November last year.

QUAKE FEARED

ANKARA, Feb. 22—The quake tremors which were felt in the district of Kaiserije today have continued and it is feared that another serious quake might occur. So far 50 persons have been reported victims of today's quake. Relief is being sent to the sufferers.

SPAIN TO PUSH TOBACCO OUTPUT

MADRID, Feb. 23—A movement in favor of diminishing Spain's dependence on imports is now being extended to the cultivation of tobacco and the rearing of silkworms.

Under the terms of the decree issued by the Ministry of Finance today, prices paid for homegrown tobaccos of the 1940 crop will be increased by 50 per cent. And in order to encourage still further tobacco growers and at the same time furnish them with funds for developing their plantations, a premium amounting to 30 per cent of the value of the amount of tobacco delivered to the state tobacco monopoly in 1939 will be paid them.

The same decree fixes the minimum price of seven pesetas for silk cocoons while various measures will be taken to extend the planting of mulberry trees, especially in the region of Murcia which is the center of Spanish sericulture. It is expected that at least 400,000 silk cocoons will be raised in 1940, thus bringing the production up to approximately the same figure which it attained in 1933.

future. It is rumored here that the incident may cause the Government to change its attitude towards granting military aid to Finland. It also may serve to increase the number of volunteers joining the Finnish army. Parliament yesterday endorsed the Government's neutrality policy.

PLANES DELIVERED

LONDON, Feb. 22—Britain has sent 120 fighter planes to Finland and 24 bombers. Of this consignment over 40 planes have already arrived.

Other war material dispatched includes 10,000 anti-tank mines, 50,000 grenades, 25 howitzers 24 anti-aircraft guns with ammunition, 30 field guns, four tanks, 12 six-inch guns with ammunition and a larger quantity of small arms.

In the House of Commons today, Sir Hohn Anderson, the Home Secretary, said that exit permits would be granted to and no difficulties placed in the way of British subjects who volunteered for service with the Finnish armies provided that they were approved by the Finnish Legation.

Reports that British warships are patrolling off Petsamo were featured prominently in the press today. The Times referred to the reported presence off the Finnish port of a British cruiser and other units.

The Finnish Minister today revealed the full demands of the Soviet Government before the invasion of Finland. His country had agreed to far reaching demands but this was not enough because the Soviets wanted the destruction of the Mannerheim Line, possession of Finland's principal port and the right to two naval bases and the garrisoning of soldiers in Finland.

"That we could not accept" he said, "because it would have meant surrendering our freedom".

HUNGARIANS VOLUNTEER

PARIS, Feb. 22—One thousand Hungarian volunteers for the Finnish army, fully equipped for the climate, went through here yesterday. The Commander declared that 10,000 are preparing to follow them.

COLONIAL SCHEME

LONDON, Feb. 22—Malcolm Macdonald, Secretary of State for the Colonies, this afternoon broadcast to the Empire on the Government's new scheme for colonial development and welfare announced on February 20. He stated that after having read British newspaper comment on the scheme he had come to the conclusion that 'despite the heavy additional burdens placed on them in the stress of war the British people gladly welcome announcement of further financial assistance to the British colonies, protectorates and mandated territories".

Pointing out that the great majority of the British colonies were producers of primary products, Mr. Macdonald said: "In these latter years, the production of these things has multiplied in different parts of the world. They are produced in quantities that cannot be purchased. There is not the same eager competition to buy and not even generous imperial preferences have been able to ensure you against slump markets. It may be the day of prosperity will return, but that day is not yet at hand. Meanwhile, he continued, it was "a part of the duty of Britain's trusteeship" to render what assistance she could for the development of resources and the provision of health and education facilities which the Colonies could not themselves afford.

"This is what we propose to do. It opens a new chapter in cooperation between you and us, which will, I am confident, contain even greater prosperity and happiness for the whole people of the Empire". the Colonial Secretary concluded.

DUTCH SHIPS SUNK

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 22—Three Dutch ships were sunk yesterday as the result of German action, it was reported here today. Netherlands losses since the beginning of the war amount to 14 merchantmen and two naval vessels, sunk either by mine or torpedoing, it is recalled by the press in the course of indignant protests against Germans disregard of Netherlands neutrality.

Twenty-three survivors from the Netherlands ship Tara (4,760 tons), whose loss was reported yesterday afternoon, were landed on the coast of Spain today, it is reported here. They were wakened at 2 a.m., they said, by a loud explosion. The other boat from the ship is still missing.

The Tara was on her way from the Argentine to Rotterdam with a cargo of grain for the Netherlands Government and is believed to have been torpedoed.

NORWEGIAN SHIPS SUNK

OSLO, Feb. 22 Two Norwegian merchantmen were sunk yesterday by German submarines, it was reported here today. This brings the total of Norwegian ships sunk by the Germans since the outbreak of war to 51, amounting to over 175,000 tons. Some 350 seamen have lost their lives. Diplomatic protests have been officially made to Germany in this connection on February 8, 12 and 13.

228 LIVES LOST

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 22 — The Prime Minister stated today that Sweden had lost 32 of her cargo ships, totalling 64,000 tons, either torpedoed or mined. A total of 228 seamen have lost their lives. Only one-third of the ships lost by submarine action were destined for Great Britain, he pointed out. He added that no Swedish ship had been sunk while in convoy.

NAZIS ASSAILED

LONDON, Feb. 22—Commenting on the Swedish Prime Minister's account of the methods of German seawarfare, the press this morning says that it provides a crushing indictment of German policy. "Nothing is more severe than this record compiled by a neutral states man' is a typical quotation. "He stripped the war on neutrals of the last shred of excuse when he disclosed that only 53 per cent of the total tonnage sunk was plying between neutral ports."

"The aim of the Nazis is the total destruction of the Swedish overseas trade, except her trade with Germany".

GOOD RELATIONS CONTINUE

ROME, Feb. 22—The London correspondent of the 'Giornaled Italia" states today that despite the present dispute, Anglo-Norwegian good relations will not be disturbed.

BRITISH AGENTS FOILED IN MOVE TO CORNER BEANS

Germans See A Plot, Stop It Before London Men Buy All Manchoukuo Market

By OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT

HSINKING, Feb. 26—The dramatic revelation that British agents working through neutral channels recently attempted to buy up the bean supply in Manchoukuo in order to prevent shipments of this staple product to Germany was made by a certain source to this correspondent. This informant declared that the British would have succeeded, had it not been for the obstructive tactics of German circles in Manchoukuo, which, scenting the plot, worked fast to frustrate the attempted cornering of the bean market.

As a prelude to the move to monopolize the bean supply, the British agents, according to the same informant, bought up the entire supply of 100,00 gunny sacks in Yingkow, before any one knew what was happening.

These facts are ample proof of the great importance which Great Britain attaches to Manchurian beans as a source of food and fodder for Germany. Spending as she is one million pounds Sterling daily on her war against Hitlerism, Britain can easily afford to buy up the entire Manchurian bean stock, if by doing so, she can prevent Germany from getting hold of this vitally necessary staple product. So far, however, her efforts have proved of no avail.

As far as her naval blockade of Germany is concerned, however, Britain has succeeded in cutting down German imports from Manchoukuo materially, as the trade figures for this country with the Reich since the outbreak of the European war bear witness.

Both Germany and Manchoukuo have been seriously affected by the British blockade, but a start has already been made to ship Manchurian agricultural produce, chiefly soya beans, overland via Soviet Russia. This new route for the transportation of Manchurian beans to Germany, frequently under discussion since Britain declared war on the Reich, has finally been opened, according to well-informed circles here.

"Manchurian beans are now rolling toward Germany," said one informat. Other sources confirmed his statement, but added that the first consignment had only reached Tomsk.

With Hitler and Stalin being thrown closer together, as the signing of the recent Reich-Soviet trade agreement indicates, there should be no political difficulty in exploiting to the maximum this new channel of trade with the Reich. But technical difficulties are another question.

It is still problematical whether the Siberian Railway, defective in many ways, will be able to handle any large volume of beans, much less to satisfy the requirements of Germany's wartime economy. If current experiment in routing Manchoukuo's trade with Germany via Russia should prove fairly encouring, there is every prospect of improvement in the badly deranged trade between Germany and Manchoukuo.

Disciplinary Committee

his aged figure and the pained expression when he was not smiling.

FIRST ATTENDANCE IN 3 WEEKS

Before entering the Disciplinary Committee chamber he said:

"Yes, this is my attendance for the first time in three weeks. I haven't undergone any change in my frame of mind. I did not say anything that I consider culpable. I don't care even if the committee session must last until late at night. I wish to hear all that the members have to say but I expect them to listen to everything I have to say. That's the constitutional way of doing things.

"I regret, however, that it is to be a session in camera. Whatever I might say will not be for publication.

"I can't get over that deletion of part of my speech in the stenographic record of the plenary session proceedings. All the misunderstanding has risen out of that deletion. Well, my mental state is set forth in this little poem a la Chinois, which means:

"I had said my say, but to no purpose. My years in Diet have passed like a dream. Vainly blows the wind of spring through the bleak winter scene."

Mr. Saito then saw Mr. Nakai and made arrangements for the Disciplinary Committee meeting.

After lunch at 1 p.m., Mr. Saito entered the committee chamber.

The meeting lasted until 3:25 p.m.

The members of the House of Representatives out in the plenary session since 1 p.m. thinned out as the hours ticked away, slipped into the Disciplinary Committee chamber until it was packed to overflowing. News cameramen strung out their battery in the hall outside. Each time that the door to the chamber opened voices hot in debate, applause or jeers banged out, from which it appeared that the place was more a debating society than a court of justice.

After exactly two hours and 15 minutes of this, members began coming out, making such remarks as: "The result's obvious," "I say it is." In a while, Mr. Saito came out flushed with excitement. He was escorted by his bodyguard and his Minseito friends to the big Diet door.

BRITISH REQUEST REJECTED

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 23—The British Ambassador, Sir Esmond Ovey, called on Foreign Minister Dr. Taboada to request on behalf of the British Government, the internment of the crew of the German warship Admiral Graf Spee in some isolated part of the Argentines, it was reported here today. This request was refused by Dr. Taboada.

Recently, the Argentine Government agreed to the proposal that the members of the crew might obtain any productive employment that the German firms in the Argentines might have to offer.

CLIPPERS SUFFERING

NEW YORK, Feb. 23—Confiscation of American mail in the Bermudas by British authorities is given as the reason why the Pan American Airways is suffering a deficit on the European route. Due to the action taken by the British, many persons have given up sending their mail by the Atlantic Clippers.

JOINT PROTEST

SANTIAGO, Feb. 23—A note was sent by the Chilean Government to the Panama Government today supporting the suggestion of the Brazilian Government to submit a joint protest on the violation of neutrality by England in the Wakama case.

INDIAN INDEPENDENCE

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 23—The newly elected president of the Indian Congress Party Maulana Abdul Azad declared in Bombay, according to a report that was received here today that after the session of the Congress session next month, the Congress Party would urge its followers to disobey British orders unless a solution of the pending Indian constitutional questions was found. Other leading members of the party firmly supported the plan of their new president.

WELLES ARRIVAL DATE UNCERTAIN

BERLIN, Feb. 23—The date of the arrival of undersecretary of State Sumner welles is still uncertain, foreign correspondents here were informed today by competent circles.

Mr. Welles is still en route to Italy from the United States, these circles reported. As to the details of his itinerary and the persons he will see can only be discussed after Mr. Welles arrives in Italy. But these circles report that the American Charge d'Affaires Kirk called on Mr. von Weiszaecker of the Foreign Office here and reportedly discussed with him the details of the program of Mr. Welles' visit to Berlin.

COMPLETES TOUR

ROME, Feb. 23—Minister for Italian Africa, General Teruzzi returned to Addis Ababa today following an inspection tour of Ethiopia. He immediately left to visit the new Italian settlement at Oletta which is 40 kilometers from the capital. He also visited the waterworks completed in January which supplies the capital with water.

After returning, the general had a long conference with Viceroy Duke of Aosta and leading officials. The general pointed out that despite the European war, Italy was pushing on with her big colonization work in Lybia where several thousand Italian farmers have found new homes.

The Governor General of Lybia, Marshal Balbo, according to the general, has given orders to establish farms for 500 Italian families including 100 near Tripoli and 400 in Cyrenaika. Colonization work for the native Arabs will continue. Five hundred houses will be completed this year so that the number of Arab families with permanent homes will be increased by a thousand.

EXETER, AJAX CREWS HAILED

LONDON, Feb. 23—London yesterday gave an enthusiastic welcome to the officers and men of the Exeter and Ajax, the two small cruisers which forced the German pocket battleship, Graf Spee, to destroy herself off Montevideo last December rather than risk a renewal of the fight. The crews arrived at Waterloo station and marched in procession to Whitehall via the Strand and Trafalgar Square through vast cheering crowds. After a service on the Horse Guards Parade which was attended by the First Lord of the Admiralty, Winston Churchill, the Foreign Secretary, Lord Halifax, and other Cabinet Ministers, the crews marched through the streets to the Guildhall where they were entertained by the Lord Mayor of London

ACHILLES WELCOMED

AUCKLAND, Feb. 23—At the same time as London was welcoming the officers and men of the cruisers, Exeter and Ajax, New Zealand citizens welcomed the Achilles, the third victor in the Battle of the River Plate which resulted in the destruction of the German pocket battleship Graf Spee. Thousands of people crowded every vantage point as she entered the harbor here and there was immense enthusiasm when, later, the crew marched through the street.

At a public reception the Mayor of Auckland presented to Captain Parry, the Commander of the Achilles, with a dirk which had been the property of Nelson. When Captain Parry returns to England he will take the dirk with him and hand it over to H. M. S. Victory, Nelson's flagship which lies permanently at anchor in Portsmouth Harbor.

MORE AWARDS

LONDON, Feb. 23—Late last night the Admiralty issued a further list of awards for distinguished and gallant service in the fight resulting in the destruction of the Graf Spee. Those decorated from the commanders of the three cruisers, each of whom received the D. S. O. (Distinguished Service Order), to stokers, gunners and a ship's boy.

Six D. S. O.s were awarded and 17 D. S. C.s (Distinguished Service Cross).

NO ACTIVITY

PARIS, Feb. 23—There was renewed air activity on the western front yesterday, particularly reconnaissance flights, according to this morning's military communique. On land, there is little to report.

A young French pilot credited officially with having brought down four German planes was today awarded the Military Medal.

REPORTS SCANTY

HELSINKI, Feb. 23—Reports from the war fronts received here today have been scanty. The island fortress of Koivisto is still being held. A Finnish "Death Brigade" in Koivisto is reported to be hindering the bringing up of big guns for the bombardment of Viborg.

Finnish troops are said to be fighting a battle before the second defense lines, which are about five miles behind the main Mannerheim Line. Marshal Mannerheim, the Finnish Commander in Chief, is reported to be anxiously awaiting reinforcements from abroad. The authorities here have already called up volunteers in thousands who are now flocking to fight under the Finnish flag.

Blizzards were raging today over the battle lines. Military dispatches say that the Finns are still holding out all along the line but the Russians are only fourteen miles from Viborg at the nearest point.

There is hope that the weather will come to the aid of the hard pressed Finns. The Karelian Isthmus is in reality a lake, and a thaw would turn much of it into a marsh and render large-scale operations impossible.

COMMUNIQUE OUT

MOSCOW, Feb. 23—The military communique announced today, the 22nd anniversary of the founding of the Red Army: "Nothing of importance to report. Soviet troops are pressing the enemy. Twenty one defense fortifications have been taken. Owing to snow storm aviation has been confined to reconnaissance flights."

All indications were that Soviet troops on the Isthmus are pushing strongly, aiming at the capture of Viborg. The High Command it is believed is anxious to announce that Viborg has been captured or cut off in time for the victory to be celebrated in connection with the Red Army anniversary.

In spite of reports of victory, the Leningrad population is highly sceptical, according to reports received here. The unending stream of wounded arriving in Leningrad causes anxiety. As insufficient doctors and medicines are available, many of the wounded die. The hospitals are full.

VOROSHILOV ACTIVE

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 23—It is reported here that the Russians planned to launch a gigantic offensive today with Marshal Voroshilov directing the operations. The report added that the Finns have blown up the railway from Viborg to Koivisto, which the Russians claim to have captured several days ago. The railway is now in the hands of the Russians.

Silence Kills

car road shall receive careful reconsideration as it can be accomplished is a shorter period than in the case of a railway, and therefore will be effective to remedy the present congested transportation systems. The Tokyo harbor improvement question will also be considered by the Government."

The reply of the Railway Minister was supplemented by Communications Minister Masanori Katsu and War Minister Shunroku Hata.

The second interpellator was Viscount Kiko Okochi, Kenkyukai, who was followed by Baron Toshihide Kino, Koseikai. Both posed questions regarding control of rivers and conservation of forests, to which the Finance Minister, Home Minister and Commerce and Industry Minister replied. The last questioner at the session of the day was Taichi Nakayama, Kenkyukai, who said:

"The Government is asked to consider the wartime industries and peace-time industries like the two wheels of a cart. Most of the peace-time industries in this country are run by small industrialists.

"These industrialists in many cases have been forced either to abandon or change their business. Has the Government taken any effective remedial measures in this connection? To encourage production of unsuitable substitute articles is liable to weaken the economic power of the State and to be detrimental to the national living condition. What is the opinion of the Government in this respect? In my belief, it is necessary to prohibit or restrict exportation of raw and other materials produced within the country to third nations. How does the Government view this question?"

Commerce and Industry Minister: "Great importance must be placed on the peace-time industries. The Government is making particular efforts to develop the existing munition industries or new munition industries or quasi-munition industries today because of unavoidable circumstances. It intends to expand both war and peace-time industries in future so that the economic power of the nation may be fostered. I agree with the interpellator in the point that the State should protect and assist medium and small-size industrial enterprises, both because they are financially weak and are participated in by a great number of the people. It is regrettable that the Government's remedial measures have thus far failed to function fully effectively due to various flaws.

"I am quite in agreement with the view of the interpellator regarding the unsuitable substitute industries. It would be ideal to develop quickly some of the substitute industries for the benefit of the nation, but it is very difficult to attain. Just the same, however, they must be protected and improved. The people may suffer inconveniences in this connection as considerable time would be required for their development. However, I do not mean to say that the people should suffer inconveniences permanently in this regard. To meet defects of staple fiber for instance, the Government is intending to supply pure cotton where it is needed for convenience to the people.

"I pay respect to the interpellator for his far-sighted view that exportation of raw and other materials to third countries should be restricted or prohibited."

With this reply by the Commerce and Industry Minister the session adjourned at 12:11 p.m.

LOWER HOUSE MEETS

The Lower House sat in plenary session at 1:21 p.m. Saturday.

Presented before the House were three bills including a bill revising the Law No. 23 of 1938, a measure revising the Mining Industry Law and a bill revising the Iron Sand Law.

Interpellations were made by Hisataro Takahashi (Minseito). He dwelt upon the Government's present policies in connection with the mining industry.

Replies were given by Commerce and Industry Minister Fujihara and Welfare Minister Shigeru Yoshida.

The meeting adjourned at 3:40 p.m.

French Authorities Receive Nippon Note On Yunnan Protest

Domei Tsushin

PARIS, Feb. 23—Questioned whether the Japanese Government has replied to the protest lodged by the French Ambassador at Tokyo, Charles Arsene-Henry, authorized circles today disclosed that the Japanese reply was received here yesterday.

These sources said that the Japanese reply evidences a conciliatory spirit, indicating that Japanese authorities are looking forward to an amicable settlement of the incident over the Yunnan Bombing.

Ningpo Maru Added To Japan's List Of Super-Freighters

Another ship was added to Japan's fast growing fleet of modern super-freighters when the Ningpo Maru of the Toa Kaiun Kabushiki Kaisha was launched Saturday at 4 p.m. at the Tsurumi Seitetsuzosen Kabushiki Kaisha.

The Ningpo Maru is a 3,800-ton super-freighter with passenger accommodations. The new vessel will be placed on the Shanghai-Ningpo-Hankow run. This is the third ship to be constructed by the Toa Kaiun but the first one to have passenger accommodations.

The Ningpo Maru was christened with a bottle of Sake by Retsu Kawada, president of the steamship company, in the presence of 200 notables and guests. As the ship slipped down the ways, three loud Banzai were given by spectators.

LEADING EUROPEAN COMPOSERS WRITING SYMPHONIC WORK FOR 26TH CENTENARY

Promoting international friendship through the medium of music, Europe's leading composers are writing symphonic works which they will dedicate to Japan and in which the 26th centenary of the Japanese Empire will be glorified, it was revealed Saturday night.

Through their diplomatic envoys stationed in Japan, the governments of several nations have expressed the desire to contribute toward the celebrations, being held in the course of this year throughout the Japanese Empire, and proposed to have their leading composers write symphonic works for the occasion.

Thus far, it has been decided that Richard Strauss, of Germany; Jacques Ibert, of France; Ildebrando Pizzetti, of Italy; Sandor Fellesz, of Hungary, and Benjamin Brittain, of England, dedicate their compositions to Japan.

STRAUSS COMPOSING

Richard Strauss, foremost German composer today and one of the most celebrated contemporary musicians in the world, is to complete his work by the end of March. It will be a symphony in three movements, the first movement being a Heroic Prelude, the second movement a musical depiction of the Japanese national characteristics, and the third movement, a Festive Hymn solemnizing the 26th centenary of the Japanese Empire Foundation.

The other works are to be completed by next fall. For their performance in Japan, it is now being considered that an unprecedentedly large symphony orchestra shall be especially organized in Tokyo, to hold the performances with the greatest possible splendor.

Richard Strauss has long felt a particularly intimate connection with Japan, ever since the Japanese musical world honored the master composer at the occasion of his 70th birthday anniversary, in 1934, on that occasion performances of Richard Strauss' compositions, given by the chorus and orchestra of the Tokyo Academy of Music under the direction of Prof. Klaus Pringsheim, were broadcast to Germany in the course of the first Germano-Japanese musical broadcast exchange.

EXPRESSED GRATITUDE

At that time the German composer expressed his deep appreciation for the honor bestowed upon him from Japan, in a letter in which he said that he desired to visit this country but that his advanced age prevented the realization of this wish.

Now, the aged master has decided to express his admiration for Japan and her people through the medium of his composition, which he hopes to be allowed to dedicate to the Imperial Court. An explanation has been received at the Foreign Office here from the Japanese Ambassador to Berlin, Saburo Kurusu, pointing out that although there is no precedent for such a procedure in Japan, it has been accepted as custom in European monarchies that an artist could dedicate his best work to the king or emperor.

U.S. BLAMES ARGENTINA FOR PACT FAILURE

Fox Tells House Equality With Goods of Britain and France Refused

By HAROLD B. HINTON

N.Y. Times

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—Negotiations between Argentina and the United Statess for a reciprocal trade agreement were broken off because this country could not obtain equality of treatment for its products in the Argentine market with like products from Great Britain and France, the Ways and Means Committee was informed today by A. Manuel Fox, a member of the Tariff Commission. Mr. Fox was completing his testimony in favor of renewing the Trade Agreements Act for three years from June 12.

Mr. Fox, in his explanation of the breakdown of the negotiations, added that the State Department had protested to Great Britain and France, asserting that they had offered unfair trade concessions in order to channelize Argentine foreign commerce in their favor. As he made this statement, Mr. Fox looked at Henry T. Grady, Assistant Secretary of State, who was waiting to testify, but Mr. Grady gave no sign of confirmation, discouragement or denial to the witness.

The explanation Mr. Fox gave is at variance with the popularly accepted interpretation of the officially announced reasons for stopping the negotiations, and there has been no previous intimation that Great Britain and France had been chided for their part in the affair. The official account, which took the form of a joint statement issued by Argentina and our government, lay most of the blame for the failure to agree on the insistence of the United States negotiators that quotas be put on imports from Argentina under any reduced tariff rates.

EXCHANGE PROBLEMS RECALLED

Mention was made of Argentina's exchange difficulties and the necessity for highly increased United States imports from Argentina if the South American republic were to continue its purchases here. These have been resulting in heavy "adverse trade balances" in recent years. This may have been the clue to Mr. Fox's references, and Mr. Grady was inclined to believe, after the hearings closed for the day, that this was what the Tariff Commissioner had in mind.

Mr. Fox's remarks were made while he was defending to Representative Woodruff of Michigan, a Republican member of the committee, the Administration's policy of including the most-favored-nation principle in its reciprocal trade agreements. To point his argument, he said this was the rock on which the negotiations with Argentina had foundered.

The Tariff Commissioner held that the incident illustrated the necessity of maintaining the most-favored-nation idea in the trade agreements program, insisting that it alone would operate to abolish the commerical discriminations which lead to international bad feeling.

Republican members of the Ways and Means Committee, as well as Senator Vandenberg and other minority members in the Senate, intend to make a fight on that point.

At one point Representative Jenkins, Republican, of Ohio, asked Mr. Fox if he were formerly a republican.

"I was and I am," the witness replied.

He went on to discuss the merits of free trade versus protectionism, and characterized free trade theories as being abstractions which ought to be limited to the classroom.

PROTECTIVE PRINCIPLE A 'MANDATE'

"America was built on the protective principle," he said, "and that is the mandate we are carrying out."

In discussing the tariff principle of equalizing costs of production, Mr. Fox was inclined to minimize the importance of wage differentials to which much reference has been made during the hearings.

"I am proud to say," he told the committee, "that there are many American industries which produce goods so efficiently that Japan and other countries, even with low wage rates, are not in a position to compete either in the American market or in foreign markets."

Mr. Fox has been connected with the Tariff Commission for sixteen years, he testified.

NEW AIR LINE TO ROME FROM N.Y. PLANNED

Nonstop via Azores with 27 Passengers, Crew, Mail Is Asked of Authorities

By ROBERT R. MULLEN

Christian Science Monitor

STRATFORD, Conn.—Unless the Civil Aeronautics Authority rules against having two lines competing for transatlantic air traffic, Igor I. Sikorsky will soon produce in his humming seaside factory here three super seaplanes that will be able to do, he believes, more than any flying boat has ever done before.

They will fly from New York to Rome, nonstop, and at a speed about equalling the time it takes to go by train from Boston to Chicago. They will carry 16 passengers, a crew of 11, and 1,600 pounds of mail. They will cruise at 175 miles an hour, and by eliminating the Azores fueling stop, will be able, Mr. Sikorsky believes, to cut at least six hours from the present flying time.

The new flying boats, having a 124-foot wing spread and 79.3-foot length, have been ordered by the American Export Airlines, a division of the steamship firm that has been gathering Atlantic weather data from its ships for years in preparation of this step. A $2,000,000 contract has been signed and a down payment made. Mr. Sikorsky is already fabricating certain parts, but there is a big "if" in the picture.

PAN AMERICAN OBJECTS

This comes in questions Pan American Airlines has raised in objections before the C. A. A. against giving permission to a competing line to open transatlantic service. These objections have precipitated a fight in aviation circles reminiscent for its drama and stakes of the old-time rivalry between railroads expanding to the West.

Pan American, which already operates two flights to Portugal a week, with stops at Bermuda and the Azores, has informed the Authority that it has ordered six new Boeing Clippers and seeks a certificate covering two additional flights a week, starting within the next 90 days, and further certificates as business and equipment becomes available until they are running a flight each way across the water daily.

Pan American asserts it has based all its plans on at least four flights a week, and feels it should not have to split the traffic, or compete in fares, until it has had a chance to establish itself.

MAIL IS BIG FACTOR

American Export counters that it would be a good thing to have two competing lines; moreover, they stress their trump card—these Sikorsky planes, which they point out will make the hop without stop, speeding mail deliveries both directions.

This factor of mail apparently is the nub of the argument. The procedure is for the C.A.A. to grant a certificate of convenience and necessity. The Post Office Department may then decide on the measure of the necessity by granting a mail subsidy.

The goal, of course, is to obtain a subsidy for the amount of anticipated deficit, plus reasonable interest to investors.

In the case of American Export this figure has been estimated at $2,000,000 for the first year's operation of two weekly flights.

It is believed, on the other hand, that Pan American can add two more flights to its present schedule at a net loss of $774,000.

ELABORATE PLANS MADE

The feeling between the two camps is tense, for both have made great plans for the Atlantic service. Pan American pioneered the South American flights and the transpacific service. It carried on experiments over the North Atlantic for several years in hopes of starting service, but complications in obtaining European cooperation and permission obstructed the service.

American Export, likewise, has carried on considerable experimentation. It operates a fleet of vessels, mostly to Mediterranean points and has been gathering weather data for at least two years.

WOULD SUPPLEMENT SHIPS

It is the thought of W. H. Coverdale, president of the line, that competition for the luxury traffic to Europe will probably not go back to boats when the war is over, but will remain in the air with the principal Nations offering competing services.

American Export has a network of agents throughout Europe and the United States and feels it would be in ideal position to have a luxury air service supplementing its surface craft. The two would be complementary in operations, too, it is felt, since under ordinary conditions the ships would be spaced so that planes would never be more than 500 miles away from a surface vessel.

A NOTABLE RECORD

These are all factors that have been laid before C.A.A. hearings recently. They are doubtless being weighed, and the decision is, of course, being anxiously awaited at the Sikorsky plant here.

Mr. Sikorsky, now rounding out 31 years as an airplane designer, first in his native Russia where he built the world's first multi-motored plane and since 1919 in the United States, supplied Pan American with its first Clippers, and the line still uses Sikorsky ships over some of its most difficult jumps; but when the transatlantic service was projected Pan American turned to Boeing for such giant ships as the Yankee Clipper, which has a wing spread 22 feet greater than the proposed Sikorsky ship and is 30 feet longer, but 15 miles an hour slower in cruising speed. The question of range is moot, but the Sikorsky plane is expected to fly non-stop from New York to Rome while the Pan American ship does not.

Mr. Sikorsky himself is quite calm about the affair, and impersonal. He points out that he has already built one of the super planes, the Navy's flying dreadnaught, and it has done everything he claims for the passenger version now in production.

GANDHI SAYS WAY TO FREEDOM IS BY HOMESPUN SELF-CONTROL

Christian Science Monitor

WARDHA, India—Mohandas K. Gandhi bluntly told his Nationalist Congress Party recently that more home spinning of cloth and good will toward the country's minorities are necessary for a "civil disobedience" campaign in behalf of Indian independence.

Mr. Gandhi long has advocated universal use of the spinning wheel and the wearing of homespun cloth as a token of Indian unity and fortitude as well as a panacea for unemployment.

"I cannot lead an undisciplined army to victory," Mr. Gandhi declared in his newspaper, apparently warning against any disorder in connection with the Congress Party's Independence Day observance, when he intends to test the temper of his followers.

At a meeting of party leaders Mr. Gandhi was represented as unwilling to undertake leadership in any civil disobedience program unless a non-violent atmosphere prevailed.

Mr. Gandhi enumerated "signs of disintegration" in certain parts of the Congress Party organization, but said that these were not beyond repair and expressed hope that they would be rectified.

"Supposing that conditions are not fulfilled," Mr. Gandhi wrote, "I shall cheerfully become the laughing stock of India and the world and descend from the pedestal of generalship. I shall have the supreme satisfaction of being true to myself."

Mr. Gandhi and his party are demanding complete independence for India as the price of co-operation with Britain in the war. The British Government, however, has taken the stand that the question of Indian independence should be postponed until after the war.

WHAT GANDHI SAID

Christian Science Monitor

NEW YORK—Important qualifications of a statement attributed to Mohandas K. Gandhi—a statement which appeared as a categorical indorsement of the war with Germany—is contained in the current issue of "Fellowship."

The organ of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, over the signature of Harold E. Fey, its executive secretary, carries the following statement in its January issue, under the title of "What Gandhi Really Said":

"At the outbreak of the European war the newspapers carried a statement purporting to be from Mahatma Gandhi which many non-pacifists claimed was a repudiation of Gandhi's pacifism and a justification of the war. It said, 'Gandhi says if ever there could be a justifiable war in the name of humanity, a war against Germany would be completely justified.'

"John Haynes Holmes of New York thereupon wrote Gandhi to learn what he had really said. Branding the press quotation as 'a cruel misrepresentation' Gandhi has just written Dr. Holmes that what he actually said was the following:

"'If there ever could be a justifiable war in the name of and for humanity, a war against Germany to prevent the wanton persecution of a whole race would be completely justified. But I do not believe in any war. A discussion of the pros and cons of such a war is therefore outside my horizon or province.'

"You will note that Gandhi's statement originally dealt with Germany's treatment of Jews and that it was a strong affirmation of his pacifist position and a repudiation of any war. Instead, the reference to persecution of Jews was deleted and it was perverted into a justification for this war. War's frightfulness has seldom been more clearly illustrated than in this effort to make the very truth itself into a lie."

Anglo-French Trade Builds Lasting Ties

By JOHN A. MAY

Christian Science Monitor

LONDON—Plans for a common Anglo-French export policy, which are now being evolved, are seen here to be taking the two Allies a long step toward as complete an integration of their two economic systems as possible without actual political federation.

Formation of an "exports pool" would be one of the final links in an economic chain binding the two countries. Already they have coordinated war and finance, established joint overseas buying of commodities, completed details of plans for collaboration in industrial production and in natural scientific research.

The fact that experts are now tackling the complex problems raised by a joint export policy has been disclosed by M. Raoul d'Autry, French Minister of Armaments, who has this week completed an important series of consultations with Mr. Leslie Burgin, Minister of Supply. These talks are stated to have advanced Anglo-French collaboration more rapidly than any previous meeting of experts since the war began.

MORE THAN COLLABORATION

"Collaboration is too weak a word," M. d'Autry declared. "Instead of collaboration I should prefer to speak of Franco-British union."

"There are no longer any secrets or frontiers between us," he added. "We have not only taken our position side by side in the stiff climb to victory, but we have roped ourselves together."

Mr. Burgin underlined M. d'Autry's words with a statement that it isn't just the two countries which are concerned, but two vast empires. "What we are doing," Mr. Burgin explained, "is making one pool of the manufacturing resources of the two empires, not only in raw materials but in actual manufacturing capacity."

TRANSFER TO EITHER SIDE

As an example he instanced the possibility—even probability—of machine tools (those devices which make the machines) crossing from one side of the Channel to the other, according to the needs of either country. He stressed the importance of this in a war which depended so

Switzerland Policies Displease Germany

Christian Science Monitor

BERNE, Switzerland—The German official news agency, DNB, touched off a furore in Switzerland Jan. 20 by distributing through its Swiss service a scathing attack on the country's "two neutralities" by the Berliner Borsen-Zeitung.

The fact that DNB carried the Berlin newspaper's comment in Switzerland led many observers to believe that it might be a beginning of a German campaign against the Swiss.

The newspaper took to task the Swiss for banning the pro-Nazi Neue Basler Zeitung of Basel Dec. 28. The newspaper was charged here with "continually compromising Switzerland's independence and neutrality by their attitudes."

Borsen-Zeitung said the banned newspaper, which had 70,000 circulation in Germany and only a few thousand in Switzerland, was "suppressed for having too much understanding of the German viewpoint."

On the other hand, it charged that Switzerland tolerated other newspapers "which are in complete accord with the British and French desire to destroy German unity."

Flying Busman's Holiday Given Douglas Workers

AMERICANS HAD MORE HARD MONEY LAST YEAR BUT NO PART OF EAGLES

Christian Science Monitor

WASHINGTON—Americans jingled nearly three times as much change in their pockets and their purses in 1939 as they did the previous year. It wasn't that they necessarily had more money but they had more coins.

The United States mints struck off a total of 674,089,105 coins during 1939 as compared with 280,716,690 coins produced in 1938, Nellie T. Ross, Director, announced recently. The value of the 1939 output was $38,289,169.80 with the value of $14,718,178.64 in 1938.

The production figure for 1939 has been exceeded only twice in mint history, in 1919, when 738,742,000 coins were minted, and in 1936 when 722,976,721 were produced. Production by denominations, was last year as follows:

Halves	13,655,934
Quarters	43,268,795
Dimes	102,683,321
Nickels	130,771,535
Cents	383,700,520

The nickels were all Jeffersons. Over 159,767,900 Jefferson nickels have been struck since coinage started in October, 1938. The Jefferson nickel superseded the Buffalo nickel. The final day of coinage of the Buffalo nickel was April 9, 1938.

Coinage for foreign countries in 1939, was 15,725,000 pieces, as compared with 48,579,644 pieces in 1938. Cuba, the Dominican Republic, and Honduras were the three countries for which the United States mints produced coins in 1939.

Y.C.A.C. RUGGERS DEFEATED BY YOKOSEN, 19-3

Special to The Japan Times

YOKOHAMA, Feb. 25—Yokosen's rugby team defeated the Y.C.A.C. second eleven this morning under messy weather conditions at the latter's club grounds, the fans contenting themselves with a distant view of the proceedings through the clubhouse rain-splashed windows. The score was 19 to 3.

Y.C.A.C. won the toss and elected to play against the wind, the Japanese team kicking off. The home team being short-handed three vacancies were filled by supporting members of the visiting eleven. In spite of this help the foreign team found itself strongly held. Superior scrum players of Yokosen scored as many as four tries in the first half of which two kicks were converted, thus closing the first half with the score of 16 to nil.

The second half started in a steady rain and stronger wind, with the club taking the kick. The ball proved wet and slippery, but through a series of fumbles Salter managed to dribble the ball up to the opposition goal line where he was tackled and lost it, but the ball was recovered by Agajan who succeeded in making the one and only try of the game for the club, which they were not able to convert.

The game was brought to a close with a further try by the Yokosen left wing who, avoiding the tackles of the club backs, was able to make their only try in the second half, closing the score at 19 to 3.

The teams were represented as follows:

Yokosen: Abe, Sakai, Sugimoto, Nakamura, Kazi, Omori, Shinomiya, Tanaka, Murakami, Imasaki, Ogawa, Ota, Kano, Okuda, and Hiraki.

Y. C. & A. C.: W. Salter, J. J. Planas, I. Shalfeieff, C. M. Decker, J. A. Cromerty, E. A. Crane, E. Salter, Lt. G. de la Chevalerie, L. A. Frank, Dr. M. Weidermann, G. Agajan, R. Russell, Hanamitu, Matsuo, and Higuchi.

U.S. TARIFFS MAKE A STUDY IN CONTRASTS

Expert Study; Partisan, Political Debate Compose Two Means of Forming Outline

Christian Science Monitor

WASHINGTON—The House reciprocal trade hearing recently had before it graphic illustrations of the two methods of tariff making: what is generally termed the "scientific method" and the partisan, catch-as-catch-can debate.

A United States Tariff Commissioner, A Manuel Fox, argued in a prepared address for the method of expert and painstaking research. He gave the Ways and Means Committee a straightforward description of exactly how the reciprocal treaties were worked out. The picture, as he developed it, was one of exhaustive investigation, patient taking of businessmen's testimony, and scrupulous weighing, measuring and checking by a number of Government agencies—all conducted in an open and above-board fashion and by competent specialists.

The Ways and Means Committee itself put on an exhibition of tariff by congressional debate. Republicans arrayed against Democrats, the Committee members alternately denounced American women who wear British gloves as "Anglomaniacs" and defended American womanhood from so devastating a charge. They went into a long discussion of the effect of trade treaties on agriculture, finally conceding that they did not have the facts in hand. The witness at the moment, Undersecretary of Commerce Edward S. Noble, conceded that the discussion was outside his field, too.

There was a great deal more of sniping between the two factions and of partial discussion about this factory and that, in one Congressman's constituency or another's, and the committee had little to stabilize its discussions except for the statement of Mr. Fox.

All new procedure had to be created for the reciprocal trade treaties, he said. In the case of the agreement with Belgium, the analytical data prepared was so extensive as to require 15 large volumes, enough to fill one section of a standard office bookshelf.

Some 165 commodities were studied. In the case of each one of these, an economist first assembles a report with all needed information, both as to the needs and interests of the United States and the other country. He works together with an expert on commodities. The report then goes to the Chief of the Commodity Division, and is reviewed by another economist. Then the Tariff Commission's Planning and Reviewing Committee takes over, and finally, a committee of the commissioners themselves. Then a committee which specializes on Belgium alone goes over the report and makes any corrections or suggestions.

This was only the beginning, and consumed one page of Mr. Fox's testimony which totaled 15 pages, all packed with still further details relating to the tariff-making process. He told how the other Government departments assist, how the American commercial attache is called home from the country with which the treaty is being negotiated, how the hearings are held and the testimony of businessmen analyzed.

THE BASIC REQUIREMENT

For the layman, the details were too numerous and complex to follow. There only emerged a net impression of what Mr. Fox referred to as "an excellent personnel, a good, constantly improving procedure and scientific technique." The program, he said, "assumes a rational, common-sense attitude; there are adequate checks and balances; a keen desire to be guided by general public interest, an increasing evidence that every action is being watched to safeguard and protect the legitimate interests of American producers, agriculture and labor."

The question of the method of tariff making came to a head with a colloquy between Mr. Noble and Representative Allen T. Treadway (R) of Massachusetts.

Hamuro, Yusa Win Races in Rio de Janeiro

Both Tetsuo Hamuro of Nihon University and Masanori Yusa, graduate of Nihon University and former sprint champion of Japan, had little trouble winning their races in their first exhibition meet in Brazil at Rio de Janeiro on Sunday, according to a dispatch received by Domei.

Yusa won the 100 and 200 meter freestyle races in 58.4 seconds and 2 minutes 16 seconds respectively.

Hamuro triumphed in the 100 and 200 meter breaststroke in 1 minute 11.4 seconds and 2 minutes 39 seconds.

The times were registered in a 25-meter pool.

LOW COUNTRIES SAID READY FOR ATTACK

Although Serious Plans Made for Invasion, Reich Action Considered Unlikely

By MALLORY BROWNE

Christian Science Monitor

LONDON—Although a serious view is taken here of the situation in the Low Countries—as shown by cancellation of leaves of British Expeditionary Forces in France, simultaneously with new precautionary defense measures taken by Belgium and the Netherlands—responsible quarters are inclined to consider a German invasion at the present moment unlikely.

The purpose of the latest precautionary action taken over the week end by the Belgian, Netherlands, and British governments, it is underlined, is primarily to make clear to the Reich that all are thoroughly on the alert and ready and determined to repel any attack on or through the neutral Lowlands. It is estimated that approximately 1,000,000 troops are under arms in the Low Countries.
